Good plunging by Dube and Parker enabled Penetang to hold the homesters for a few minutes but twice the Peterborough wings broke through and smothered Fahey's kicks and on the second occasion another touch looked sure. Penetang, however, held and took the ball on downs only to lose it the same way. This time an onside kick by Fraser went to the dead line and the Petes were in the lead 6 to 0 when the quarter ended.

They continued to press in the second period, Gore's great tackling being a feature but for some time Penetang's defence was tight enough to keep the Petes from increasing their lead. Finally, however, Jack LeBarr raced down under Fraser's onside kick and dropped on the ball behind the Penetang line for a second touch, which he converted neatly. The half time score was 12 to 0.

Parker's long kickoff in the third quarter carried the play into Peterborough territory and the visitors fought hard to keep it there. They did succeed in getting their only point of the game when Fahey kicked over for a rouge, but a few seconds after Penetang's hopes of holding their lead on the round faded when Bookhout broke away for an eighty-yard run that wound up in a try. The Peterborough half went round Penetang's left end and shot down the side of the field for a beautiful touch. It was not converted but the Petes were ahead on the round, the score on the game being Peterborough 17, Penetang 1.

The winners dominated the play in the last period. They early forced Penetang back on the defensive and Bookhout booted one over for a rouge. Gore making a beautiful tackle to secure the point. A few moments later Bookhout boomed a long one to the dead line for another point. Penetang could not work the ball away from their territory and a series of successful plays culminated in Bookhout smashing through for another unconverted touchdown Peterborough 24, Penetang 1.

Westbrook took the kick-off on his 15-yard line and making a wonderful dash through a broken field carried the ball back to centre. Smashing gains by Yelland and Bookhout carried the play into Penetang territory and Westbrooke shot around the visitors' right end for a pretty run. He crossed the Penetang goal line, but slipped out of touch doing so, and the play was called back to the visitors' five-yard line. Yelland bucked it almost over and on the next play Fraser plunged through for the Petes' fifth touchdown leaving the fine score: Peterborough 29, Penetang 1.

PIRATES DEFEAT DETROIT COUGARS

Initial Invasion of Pittsburgh as Members of National League.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 22 (Canadian Press).—Detroit was defeated, 4 to 1, by the Pittsburgh Pirates on Saturday night in the Cougars' initial invasion of Pittsburgh as members of the National Professional Hockey League. All of the scoring was done in the final period, when Darragh, McKinnon, White and Cotton made goals for the Pirates and Halderson registered for the visitors. The locals showed considerable improvement in team play over their first performance, earlier in the week, when they lost to the New York Americans.

WITNESSES ABSENT.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—(Canadian Press).—"We will not allow anyone, for one moment, to flout the subpoenas of this commission. They must come or take the consequences."

This was the declaration of Judge J. T. Brown, chairman of the Customs Royal Commission. Chairman Brown had been informed by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., counsel for the commission, that neither E. N. Todd, freight traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, nor C. B. Brown, manager of the Caledonia Springs Water Co., subpoenaed as witnesses, were present.

SENATORS WIN MATCH BY LAST MINUTE RALLY

SENIOR RUGBY

Make Brilliant Comeback in Last Fifteen Minutes of Play.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 22. — Canadian Press. — Smashing down the wavering and broken defence of the Balmy Beach Rugby team, through a vivid 15 minutes of the last period that saw them sweep from the depths of defeat to the heights of brilliant victory, Ottawa Senators came from behind a five-point lead held by the O.R.F.U. champions here Saturday afternoon to eliminate the Torontonians from the senior Can. Rugby championship play-offs by a score of 7 to 6. Eight thousand five hundred Rugby fans saw two great teams stage such a battle as is rarely witnessed an any football field for forty five minutes of the 60 minutes of the play; saw the Senators enter the last period with the score 6 to 1 against them and their championship hopes seemingly fading out; saw an inspired, red-shirted, mud-covered, leg-weary crew step into their blue and gold-clad opponents with everything they had in a last desperate attempt; saw the score board change from time to time as the individual points were marked up one after the other; saw Harold Starr finally drag Ross Robertson to earth for the point that meant victory, and as the final whistle blew they saw no more. For this same crowd was hysterical with delight and excitement All they could now see was some hundreds of their fellows storming the gates to the playing field, lifting the exhausted Senators shoulder high and carrying them away to their dressing room

It was a finish such is recorded in motion pictures and magazines from the pens of imaginative authors. No one present thought that such an accomplishment was possible A touch down that would have cut the Balmy Beach lead five points at one stroke; a field goal that would have reduced the margin by three, or even a safety touch might have been considered possible, but the feat performed of kicking six single points, and kicking those against that most exacting of all judges—time—was something that was not even dreamed of, and in doing this Joe Miller and Charlie Lynch wrote their names in Rugby's book of fame, Miller kicking five of the points and Lynch the other one,

Conditions were against good football, the light snowfall of the early morning had given the field a slippery dressing that made footing treacherous and left the playing area in a greasy condition. Despite this, there were very few misplays, the mistakes made being mostly charged to the halves for kicking errors.

The Beaches secured an early advantage when they scored their touch down It was an unfortunate break for the home team, but marked a heady bit of play by Teddy Reeves and Earl Smith After [illegible] had registered Foster's fumble at centre field the Beaches held the Ottawa attack and Foster kicked Miller. Two more Ottawa kicks were smothered and miller had to kick. Reeves went smashing through to block the kick and as the ball hit the ground, he booted it towards the Ottawa goal line. Connell set out to intercept the play, but Smith raced past him and rolled on the ball for a touchdown. It was a close decision as many thought the oval had rolled into touch behind the goal line. Metcalfe missed the attempted convert from the extreme left side of the field.

This occurred in the first two minutes and it was near the end of the period before Ottawa broke into the scoring column. Beaches lost the ball for a line infringement on their own forty, and after making yards through the line, Miller booted over to Robertson for a rouge

Through a scoreless second quarter they battled away furiously and the half time whistle found the Beaches still leading by 5 to 1.

Halfway through the third session Foster forced Ottawa back until Miller was held on his five-yard line. He kicked out safely, but Foster ran the punt back QT yards to the Ottawa 30, and then booted over to Tubman for a rouge, making the count 6 to 1. Here it was that Beaches lost the game. They were twice on the Ottawa 15 yard mark but elected to buck instead of kicking. Had they kicked single points at this stage the game was theirs.

However, they did not, and there came the final 15 minutes with the Dominion champions 5 points in arrears. It was a team that was "seeing red" that faced the Beaches. Miller kicked to Foster on the blue and gold 35-yard mark. Cawkell was held and Foster was thrown for a five-yard loss on the second down. Then Connell blocked the attempted kick, and Starr took the ball on the Beach 30-yard line. Following two plunges Miller laced the ball to the deadline for Ottawa's second point.

The home team then got two breaks Starr took yards and then Lynch's attempted drop was blocked, Miller recovered the ball. Then Miller's kick was blocked and Lynch recovered it, but on the next down Miller made no mistake and kicked a touch-in-goal for the third point.

Ottawas were fighting like mad. They crushed the Beach attempts to break through and when they got the ball, Miller hoisted a mammoth punt to Robertson for the fourth point.

Foster kicked on the third down and Miller took it on the run and kicked back. Foster's next attempt to kick was blocked and Miller put another one over to Robertson, the fifth Ottawa score.

Beaches staggered into the fight with all they had but they could not make a yard through the Ottawa line. The locals were penalized ten yards, but Foster lost the ball on a bad snap and Bruce nailed him for a loss on the third down, and it was Ottawa's ball. Miller dropped back to kick, ran the ball five yards around the end and kicked on the run to the open field. When Robertson gathered it in behind the line four red tackles smothered his attempt to get out and the score was tied.

Pandemonium reigned in the stand and around the field. With three minutes to go, both teams fought tooth and nail. Foster and Cawkell made magnificent running efforts, but they could not break the red cordon that stretched across the field. Then came the "big moment." Foster kicked to Tubman on the Ottawa 35, the first time of the quarter that the ball had been on the Ottawa side of centre. Tubman made a running catch, and was knocked out in the tackle, but refused to come off. Racing against time, Miller kicked high and far to Foster; the latter started to run it back, but really shook him down with a wracking body tackle, and the ball bounded loose. Like a hawk Emerson swooped down on it and staggered along for ten yards before a bevy of Beachers dropped him on the visitors' 30-yard line. As fast as Miller could get his hands on the ball he drove it cross field to the open corner of the gridiron. Robertson scooped it up and made a brilliant effffort to con.e out, but Starr met him with a flying tackle that crashed him to earth for the point that meant victory for Ottawa and elimination for Balmy Beach. As Foster kicked the ball on the first down, the whistle blew and the Toronto threat was over

BLACK HAWKS WIN SECOND STRAIGHT

Defeat Boston Bruins 5 to 1 in National Hockey League Contest.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22 (Canadian Press).—The Chicago Black Hawks won their second straight hockey game of the week, defeating the Boston Bruins, 5 to 1, Saturday night in a National Hockey League contest. The visitors were held scoreless until the final period.

During the last three minutes of play Shore, who scored for Boston, gave the fans an extra thrill by roughing Fraser. Just before the gun Fraser shot the puck at Shore, starting a fight. A few players joined in but the bench warmers prevented a free-for-all fight.

TORONTO SQUAD DEFEATS M'GILL IN SEMI-FINAL

Breaks Three-Cornered Tie in the Intercollegiate Rugby Union.

WILL MEET QUEEN'S

Play Over Gridiron Which Was Half Covered With Snow.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 22 (Canadian Press) — A drab, bleak day was turned into one of joy on Saturday afternoon for the University of Toronto when an enormously improved Varsity machine trampled McGill, 12-2 in the semi-final play-off game to break the three-cornered tie in the Intercollegiate Rugby Union. Thus Varsity won the right to meet Queen's in the deciding tussle for the title at Toronto Saturday.

Before a crowd of 11,500 spectators, the second largest to ever witness a rugby classic at the Percival Molson memorial stadium, and over a gridiron which was half covered with snow and in a slippery, heavy condition, Varsity used practically every method known to rugby to break down the gallant, fighting defence of the McGill team; took the offensive in the second quarter after McGill had got the jump at the start and, staved off for a time, finally swept over for two touchdowns in the final half to earn advancement to the final.

Led by the dashing Warren Snyder, Varsity was irresistible and after the first quarter there was never any great doubt as to the final outcome, though McGill battled to keep within striking distance of the Blue and the possibility of forcing a break to at least tie or win the game. McGill had the advantage in the first quarter when Varsity was penalized 35 yards on two consecutive penalties and a McGil lend run brought the play into scoring territory. An attempted onside kick went too far and only counted one point as a rouge.

Starting the second quarter Captain Snyder broke through McGill's left, dashing 45 yards to McGill's 10-yard line before being nailed by the safety backs. Snyder advanced the ball to within one-yard of the goal line. Twice Howard Stollery was called on to hurl his 190 pounds at the red line. But McGill's goal-line defence again proved Varsity's nemesis and the threat was temporarily thwarted. The "T" maintained the pressure and McGill was hemmed in near its goal line, resorting to a desperate punting duel to get away from danger. A wide pass on the 15-yard line again gave Varsity the ball in scoring position. Snyder moved it to the one-yard line in two downs. But the next three "T" line smashes again piled up on the Montreal defence and Toronto was once more baulked. A return of punts however, enabled the "T" to tie the score by way of a rouge, before half time.

Early in the seond half Hargraft spotted the weakness on the McGill left wing, with Bazin in the penalty box and off the secondary defence. Trimble was sent in left middle. He broke through and had a clear field for 45 yards to McGill's 8-yard line where he was taken out by St. Germain. This time Varsity made no mistake. Instead of crashing at the red centre they hit wider on the McGill right, Stollery getting the ball over for an unconverted touchdown. On the heavy field the margin was enough for victory.

But McGill were still fighting. The reverse had stirred them to greater action. They started to rip into the Blue line. Snyder was injured in blocking an attack and before he had fully recovered, McGill carried the ball beyond their side of centre. A punt and Snyder fumbled on his 15-yard line. It was McGill's chance. But the red team could make no headway against the Varsity barrier. McGill again staked its chances on an onside kick. Trimble caught the ball and McGill counted but one point.

Varsity maintained the offensive in the final quarter and when the McGill backs fumbled a punt from Trimble, Varsity were in position 15 yards out for another touchdown. The "T" elected to score on an onside punt, which Cameron snared and Varsity tallied only a lone counter. McGill still had a chance to even the score. They attempted to open up the play, but could not get started. Varsity blocked their every move and finally, near the end of the game, McGill, in desperation, near their own goal, attempted to work an onside to get away. Dundas blocked the kick and Dales dribbled the ball 20 yards for the touchdown which ended McGill's hopes and gave Varsity a margin which was justly deserved on the day's play.

AMERICANS LOSE TO SENATORS IN OPENING GAME

NATIONAL LEAGUE

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 (Canadian Press).—With a torrid closing minute attack Ottawa's Senators swept the New York Americans before them and afflicted the invaders with a 2 to 1 defeat in a match here Saturday night that opened the National Hockey League schedule for this city. The teams were so evenly matched that the end of the regular sixty-minute playing time found them deadlocked with one goal apiece. In the overtime, however, the Capital's "Iron-Six" that furnished such a gruelling fight for the league title last season, rose to its former heights and completely subdued the Gothamites. It remained for Cy Denneny, podgy left wing for the Red, White and Black squad, to ram in the winning tally seven minutes and twenty-five seconds after the extra period of play had opened. His Excellency Lord Willingdon and the party which filled the Governor General's box at the auditorium, together with the some six thousand other fans who witnesed the opening tussle, rose to their fet to cheer the veteran forward for his play.

While the contest, on the whole, was not of the brilliant hockey variety, the third period and the overtime play was productive of plenty of action. The first two periods, which went scoreless, saw both sextettes employing lone-man tactics. Little combination work was in evidence as is usual so early in the season and when it was attempted it made little or no headway.

With the opening of the third frame each of the teams strove hard to run in a goal. Capt. Billy Burch, working like a Trojan, led his wings in rapid charges into the Ottawa territory and the bombardment which Alex. 'Eagle Eye" Connell received in the Senator's citadel was withering. Finally, two minutes after 55 seconds after the period had opened, the lanky Madison gentleman took the puck from behind his own goalcage, zig-zagged his way through the local forwards and went fifteen feet out from the Ottawa net sent in a shot that Connell had no chance to save.

On the small end of the score, the locals attacked with a renewed vigor and they pushed the visitors far back to turn hard shots in the direction of Vernon Forbes. The "mite" goalie for the Americans had absorbed difficult shots that came off Ottawa sticks from all angles, and he had stood the gruelling well. Two minutes and twenty seconds after the visitors had gone into the goal-lead ,however, "King" Clancy, standing in front of the New York cage, accepted a pass from Jack Adams, and sent the disc flying through a maze of players. Forbes was caught off his guard. Clancy had been rushing and pounding shots off the American goalie all night long, and when he ran in his tally that tied up the isue, he was given a rousing hand by the fans.

The locals continued to press hard in an effort to break the deadlock and only fifty seconds more play had been reeled off when "Hooley" Smith tricked Forbes with a lobbing shot from close in, but the goal was disallowed because a previous pass which Smith had accepted from Capt. George Boucher was far off-side.

The play which preceded the triumphant tally for the Capital's squad in the overtime period was the prettiest piece of hockey that the contest produced. Frank Nighbor, flanked by Clancy and Denneny, rushed the Madison cage simultaneously with the poke-checking centreman carying the puck past the visitors forward line. Then he passed to Clancy on his right side, who sifted through the secondary defence of the visitors to flip the rubber over to the Ottawa sharpshooter who had worked his way to the front of Forbes. Denneny was close in and it required only a feint to bring the goalie out of his cage, and Cy was left with practically an unguarded net to score the winning tally.

TWO LEADERS TAKE TUMBLE

EASTERN FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (Canadian Press)—Developments in the latest skirmishing of the east's gridiron arrays have dropped two of the previously unbeaten clans, New York University and Holy Cross, from the top, witnessed the rise of the battered Bulldog of Yale over the equally bruised Crimson of Harvard, and emphasized for the third straight Saturday, the potency of the field goal as a decisive weapon.

With the final week of campaigning just ahead, chief claims of the mythical gridiron championship of the east apparently rest in the hands of Brown, the Naval academy and Lafayette, the only elevens which have been neither defeated nor tied.

Lafayette, with two of the east's greatest ball carriers in Frank Kirkleski and Mike Wlison, the latter leading the scorers of the section, closed a brilliant season with a smashing victory over Lehigh Saturday, 35 to 0.

Brown's rugged squad, although given a tussle, was far too powerful for New Hampshire, winning by 40 to 12 for Brunns' ninth straight triumph. The Army and Navy, in their last competitive tests before going west to settle their own feud, also had trouble downing minor opponents, but put the main burden on substitutes in beating Ursinus and Loyola, respectively, by scores of 21-15 and 35-13.

Going west with eight straight victories to its credit, New York University's speedy eleven was tumbled from its unbeaten heights by Nebraska, 15 to 7, on a snow swept field.

The unerring toe of Jerry Wadsworth, Yale's kicking specialist, booted the points that clinched the Eli victory over Harvard before 78,000 in the Yale bowl. The final score was 12 to 7, with Captain Bunnell adding three more points on a 43 yard drop kick to supply a snappy finish to the last "Big Three" series, already clinched by Princeton's previous victories over both the Blue and Crimson.

OFFICIALS SEARCH FOR MISSING MAN

C. N. R. Agent Has Been Gone For Three Weeks.

LINDSAY, Nov. 22.—C. N. R. officials between this point and Orillia are greatly concerned regarding the disappearance of Harry Teabo, C. N. R. station operator at Atherley. It is almost three weeks since his mysterious disappearance while visiting his parents at Lefroy, Simcoe County. During the past few days five hundred searchers took part at various times in a systematic search in the swamp near his home, but their efforts were unavailing. Section men, C. N. R. detectives and county police have all aided in the search. It was thought that the young man might have used his ticket for Vancouver, but inquiries have elicited the information that he has not used his transportation so far as can be ascertained by the railway. The searchers are turning their attention to the waters of Lake Simcoe.

Young People Pass Protest Resolution; In Favor of O.T.A.

TWO VISITING SPEAKERS DELIVER ELOQUENT ADDRESSES ON SUBJECT

Complete repudiation of the propaganda carried on by those interested in the return of the free sale of liquor, which has represented the young people of the province in most unfortunate terms, was the expression of a resolution adopted unanimously at the mass meeting of young people interested in the retention of the Ontario Temperance Act, held in the Grand Opera House last night.

The meeting, which was well attended, was called as a protest against the utterances of the Prime Minister against morals of the young people of the province.

Two eloquent addresses were delivered; one by Alexander Donald, a veteran of the Great War and at present a student in Knox College, Toronto; the other by the Rev. Murdock MacKinnon, formerly of Regina.

The Rev. MacKinnon, who spent fifteen years in the Western Provinces, dealt at considerable length on conditions as he found them under the different liquor laws prevailing at various times. His speech was frequently punctuated with applause from an appreciative audience.

W. T. Fanjoy of Peterborough officiated as chairman.

A male quartette composed of J. W. Bryan, A. B. Lillow, C. S. Thompson, and W. H. Cunningham sang a couple of numbers. Mrs. Doig rendered a soprano solo which was well received. Miss Gwen Donley acted as accompanist.

The following resolution was endorsed by the gathering, every member of which stood when the chairman called for the "ayes."

The resolution was moved by Charles E. Moore of Smith Township and was seconded by Mrs. George Post of Peterborough. It read as follows: "Be it resolved that we, representing the young people of the City of Peterborough, and vicinity thereof, go on record:

1.—That we declare ourselves to be wholeheartedly behind only such legislation as looks toward the prevention of the manufacture, importation and sale of spirituous liquors for beverage purposes.

2.—That we consider the Ontario Temperance Act the best legislation yet devised or proposed in this province for the control of the liquor

Judge Knew Real Music So Radio Fan Goes Free

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (Associated Press).—The radio was officially tested in Tombs Court yesterday and absolved of charges of being "dangerous to life or detrimental to health."

Complaint had been made against an outside loud speaker at the store of Herman Knopf in downtown Manhattan and a test was arranged in the courtroom of Magistrate George W. Simpson, where Knopf was arraigned on charges of violating the sanitary code.

Magistrate Simpson tuned in on a jazz orchestra and after listening to several selections, said:

"I have studied music in my day, I have attended the opera, I have heard sounds from different instruments and I have heard this radio set. I believe that the sounds I have heard from this radio set are harmonious. The prisoner is discharged."

100 Nurses Walk Out Protest 24-Hour Day

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (Associated Press).—One hundred nurses at the West Suburban Hospital remained away from their posts yesterday, due to failure of a peace parley over wage differences.

They walked out Thursday night in protest against a ruling of the board of directors that they must be subject to duty call 24 hours a day for $7. The nurses demand, for the pay, the 12-hour day fixed by the Illinois Association of Nurses.

LARGE MAJORITY OF RAILWAY MEN FAVOR STRIKE

Counting of Ballots Still Proceeding, But Result Definite.

COMMITTEE MEETS.

Decision Will Be Made By Executives of Two Unions.

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press.)— Conductors, trainmen and yardmen on Canadian railways have voted overwhelmingly in favor of a strike, it was announced by S. N. Berry, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, here to-day. The final count of the ballots had not been concluded up toone o'clock this afternoon, but al lindications point that the trend of the vote is in favor of a strike and that the remaining ballots to be counted will not materially affect the result.

The decision as to whether the strike vote shall take effect rests with the full general committee of the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, which will go into session to-mororw, it was indicated by Mr. Berry.

Armed with the result of the ballot the committee will then decide what action shall be taken.

Accoring to the constitution of the organization, a certain percentage is necessary in the vote of the general committee to authorize the course of action to be adopted, together with the approval of the officaers.

Should a strike be called fifteen thousand conductors, trainmen and yardmen will cease work.

BAILIFF IMPROVES.

Mr. St. Charles Has Passed the Danger Point, Says Doctor.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 23.— "Mr. St. Charles is doing splendidly and I believe he has passed the danger point. His complete recovery is just a matter of time." So Dr. Eagleson of Madoc described the condition of the bailiff at Madoc, who, it is alleged, was shot by Abe Robinson, a farmer, a few miles from Eldorado on Monday last.

PREMIERS URGE CONSTRUCTION OF AIR STATIONS

Want Adequate Chain of Bases For Refuelling on Air Routes.

DISCUSS ARMAMENTS.

Deplore Lack of Progress in Reduction—Note Empire's Defences.

LONDON, Nov. 23 (By Cable from George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press). — The Imperial Conference concluded its business this afternoon with a recommendation in the resolution on defence that the several governments of the Empire should consider the necessity "for creating and maintaining an adequate chain of air bases for refuelling stations."

The Conference regrets that it has not been possible to make greater progress with the international reduction and limitation of armaments referred to in resolutions adopted on defence at the last conference, and recognizes that even after a large measure of reduction and limitation of armaments has been achieved considerable effort will be involved in order to maintain the minimum standard of naval strength contemplated in the Washington treaty on limitations of armaments, namely, equalitiy with the naval strength of any foreign power.

Impressed with the vital importance of ensuring the security of world-wide trade routes upon which the safety and welfare of all parts of the Empire depend, representatives of Australia, India and New Zealand noted with interest steps already taken by Great Britain to develop the naval base at Singapore with the object of facilitating the free movement of fleets. Note was taken of steady progress made in the direction of organizing military formations in general on similar lines, adoption of similar patterns of weapons, an interchange of officers between various parts of the Empire, and progress in building up air forces.

The report concludes that discussions at the Conference have made it abundantly clear that the Empire remains firmly attached to a policy of peace and to support of the League of Nations as a great instrument of peace.

2 Hunters Bag a Deer Wanted—An Arbitrator

PORT HURON, Mich., Nov. 23.—Dr. James H. MacVickar and Harry Nordhouse returned Friday from a hunting trip in Northern Michigan confronted by a serious problem. The hunters sighted the same deer at the same time and each shot struck the deer in a vital spot. Which of the two hunters is entitled to the deer remains unsettled.

Is Married In Morning Asks Divorce Same Day

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 23.—(Associated Press). — Married the other day, William Joseph Parnelle filed suit for divorce in the afternoon from Mrs. Maxine H. Parnelle. Parnelle discovered his mistake a few hours after the ceremony when his bride demanded that he transfer his bank account to her, he alleged, and when he declined he says she flew into a rage and struck him with an automobile wrench.

MANY MINERS BACK AT WORK

SIGN CONTRACTS.

LONDON, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press). — Messages from the coal fields indicated that many thousands of miners are not waiting for the conclusion of the district agreements recommended by the Miners' Federation, but are signing for work without further delay. In Northumberland miners have been balloting to determine which of them should get the first jobs, while in the Lothian district the return to the pits is described as a stampede.

In Wales and Nottinghamshire many of the miners have broken away from the Federation and have signed five-year contracts without consulting union officials.

SIX MEN CAUGHT BY EXPLOSION IN ALBERTA MINE

HOPE EXPRESSED.

Mine Officials and Rescue Crews Hope To Find Men Alive.

COLEMAN, Alta., Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—Six men are entombed in the McGillivray Coal and Coke Company mine near here, following an explosion of gas and dust early to-day, according to an official statement issued by company officials. Only fifteen men were in the mine at the time of the blast, and nine of these escaped to the surface uninjured.

Previous reports had placed the dead at fifteen and declared that two bodies had been recovered. Mine officials denied that any bodies had been found and expressed the belief that the imprisoned men would be rescued.

So far as officials know there are no casualties and there has been no extensive damage to the mine.

News of the explosion quickly spread throughout the mine field, and anxious relatives and friends quickly made their way to the mouth of the pit, while rescue crews from the Blairmore field were rushed to Coleman. The crews now are attempting to enter the workings, assisted by mine officials and workers of the Coleman district.

The McGillivray mine is one of the largest in Crow's Nest Pass, and is located a short distance from Coleman.

When running to anything like capacity it has an output of about 4,500 tons a day. Generally about 500 men are employed. At the present time, however, owing to lack of orders, the output is only about 1,500 tons a day. James Nowell, of St. Paul, Minn., is president of the company; Lorne A. C. Campbell, of Roseland, B.C., vice-president; and George Kellock, general manager.

Lindsay School Pupils Question Premier Ferguson

LINDSAY, November 23. — A rather amusing incident occurred here following the address of Hon. Howard Ferguson, in the armories on Friday night. A deputation of Public school pupils mounted the platform and surrounded the Premier. The spokesman informed Mr. Ferguson that he had promised some time ago to abolish home work, but had failed to keep that promise. They wished to know if there was any hope of that "reform" being introduced.

Hon. Mr. Ferguson announced that the inspectors were to blame for the delay in bringing about the abolition of home work.

HAS COLLEGE RIGHT TO DELAY LICENSE GRANT

For Practice of Doctor Who Has Fulfilled Necessary Qualifications.

DECIDED IN COURT.

Case of Dr. Sabetta Versus College of Doctors and Surgeons.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 23 (Canadian Press)—Whether or not the College of Doctors and Surgeons of the Province of Quebec have the right to delay indefinitely the granting of a license to practice to a doctor who has already fulfilled all the conditions necessary to qualification, will be decided in the Superior Court here when the case of Dr. Antonio Sabetta vs. the College of Doctors and Surgeons of the Province of Quebec is called for hearing. The case also involves treaty agreements between Canada, Great Britain and Italy, by virtue of which absolute reciprocity of medical practice exists between all parts of the British Empire and Italy.

Mr. Justice Bruneau, sitting in practice division today, granted a writ of mandamus in favor of Dr. Sabetta and against the Medical College. Through this writ Dr. Sabetta seeks to force the college to admit him to practice in this province.

The petitioner is an Italian doc-

COMPLETE ALIBI IN SUPPORT OF HENRY STEVENS

FAMILY TESTIFIES.

Proves Willam Stevens Did Not Call at Farm House.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., November 23. — Canadian Press. — Bringing twenty-one witnesses from varied walks of life, the defense in the Hall-Mills case yesterday completed its support of the alibi of Henry Stevens and turned to the case of Willie Stevens. The brothers, with their sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, are charged with the murder of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, slain with the Rev. Edward W. Hall on the night of September 14, 1922, a date coming up again and again in testimony as witnesses told of seeing Henry Stevens in Lavallette, N. J., his home that night.

After a morning devoted to the story of a regular fisherman and his wife, an occasional fisherman, and the Stevens' cook, a family was put forward in the afternoon to close the Henry Stevens alibi. A mother and daughter told of a conversation with the defendant at 10.30 o'clock the night of the double killing; another daughter heard Stevens' voice but did not see him, and the family told of meeting the family at Jersey City on Sept. 15, the day after the conversation, when all three testified Stevens took them to the station. The state has fixed the hour of the slaying at 10.20 o'clock.

Dismissing the status of Henry Stevens for the moment, the defense took up his brother's case and offered witnesses to prove that he has not suffered from epilepsy, did not wear a derby hat, constantly used glasses and did not have a gold watch. State witnesses testified on the opening day of the trial that they saw Willie Stevens at Plainfield, N. J., enquiring the way to the "Parker House,' early on the evening of the killing. They said he wore a derby hat, no eye glasses, had a gold watch and was suffering from epilepsy.

Late in the day a movement was started to impeach the evidence of Henry L. Dickman, who testified that he was paid by the late Azariah Beekman ,then prosecutor of this county, to leave the state after he had spent several months in investigating the

Premier Ferguson's Alarmist Cries

WHEN Premier Ferguson, and some of his followers in Peterboro, talk about the sale of liquor in Ontario by doctor's prescriptions and tell us that our boys and girls are going to the devil by means of the hip-pocket flask, etc., he makes us wonder:

1—Why we do not see men and women drunk on our streets and around our hotels as we used to when liquor was sold legally. We seldom do.

2—Why the principals of our High Schools and Colleges deny indignantly that the young people of today are drinking. The recent public investigation in Ottawa by a government official of alleged drinking among several thousand high school pupils proved that such practices simply do not exist.

3—Why commitments to the Peterborough County Gaol of drunks and disorderlies during the year ending October 31 1926, were only 13 and the year before only 7. In 1914, the last year under license they were 143.

THE THINGS PREMIER FERGUSON AND HIS SATELLITES TELL US ABOUT THESE THINGS ARE ENORMOUSLY EXAGGERATED.

POISON ALCOHOL AND THE O.T.A.

One reason urged for the proposed repeal of the Ontario Temperable. They do not include the sensational deaths that took place some alcohol." Premier Ferguson and many of his followers are ringing the changes on this tune and may be misleading some people who do not know the facts.

But here are the facts up to 1924, the latest figures that are available. They do not include the esnsational deaths that took place some months ago in Toronto, Hamilton and vicinity, but even were these included supporters of the O.T.A. may well be proud of the showing especially when we remember that during the 1919-1924 period under the O.T.A., the population of Ontario was over 200,000 greater than during the 1911-1915 period under legalized sale.

Deaths in Ontario from Alcoholic Poisoning
Annual Average

Period	Ont.	Counties	Cities	Toronto	Small Towns
1911-1915	155	88	63	35	10
1919-1924	49	16	27	11	6

There is no truth in the claim that the Ontario Temperance Act has yielded an increase in the deaths from alcoholic poisoning.

ULSTER LEADERS GOING TO LONDON

Will Oppose Change Now Planned in Title of King George.

BELFAST, Ireland, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press) — Premier Sir James Craig and his ministers of finance and labor are proceeding to London to make representations concerning Ulster's position under the proposed change in title of the King. The new title as framed by the Imperial Conference mentions Ireland as a whole, whereas Ulster wants designation showing that Ulster and the Free State are separate. The members of the Northern government feel that serious constitutional questions concerning Ulster's relations with the Free State are involved.

EATS BUT CANT BREATHE, TOO MUCH GAS

"I had gas on the stomach and after meals I was always bloated and short of breath. Since taking Adlerika I feel like a different woman."—Mrs. L. Worstall.

Adlerika gives the system a REAL cleansing and brings out old poisons which may have caused trouble for a long time. Unlike most medicines, it acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never thought was in your system and which caused sour gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In Peterboro at McDermid & Jury and other druggists.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE is utterly different from her sister, FAITH, who stays at home and does all of the work for the family of six, including—

Her semi-invalid mother, her father, who is a carpenter and contractor in a small way, her brother, JUNIOR, or "Long" Lane, 21, and JOY, nine.

Cherry, the flirt, is carrying on affairs with a dozen admirers, including CHESTER HART, formerly devoted to Faith; BOB HATHAWAY, young architect; ALBERT ETTLESON, a married traveling salesman; her present employer, old MR. CLUNY, whom Faith surprises in the act of making love to Cherry, and CHRIS WILEY, over whom a girl has committed suicide.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich man's son and amateur artist, falls in love with Faith, who has already lost her heart to Bob Hathaway, who is infatuated with Cherry.

The two girls are invited to a party at George Pruitt's, but at the last minute, after Faith has worked night and day to finish their party dresses, Mrs. Lane is stricken with a heart attack and Cherry goes to the party alone, leaving Faith to nurse her mother. Pruitt, whom Cherry is trying to "land," because of his money, sends Bob Hathaway to the Lane home with a hamptr of refreshments. Faith has hastily dressed herself in her party frock, hoping to attract him, but she realizes that he is deeply troubled over Cherry.

He tells her that he has seen Cherry in Chris Wiley's arms, although Cherry had told him she loved him, Bob, and had kissed him ardently. Faith comforts him but berates Cherry on her return. Cherry informs Faith that Pruitt is coming the next afternoon to take Faith for a drive.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIV.

During the week that followed Faith Lane wondered rather uneasily, yet not quite unhappily, if she had indeed, as Cherry had said, "cast a spell" over George Pruitt.

She could not believe it, looked humbly for explanations of the strange fact that it was to her he sent the daily box of flowers or candy or basket of hothouse fruit—to her, and not to the adorable little flapper, Cherry, who had always had such attentions, by the divine right of beauty.

But the family, just as puzzled as Faith, were not slow to accept the new, incredible situation for what it was worth. They discussed it with cruel frankness or friendly curiosity at every meal, commenting on every gift, every "date," every expression of the obviously infatuated young man.

At breakfast on Sunday, just ten days after George Pruitt had first come to call, Faith was serving buckwheat cakes to the entire family, Junior having finally emerged from the bathroom in Sheiklike splendor, his Indian-straight black hair shining like patent leather, his tanned cheeks closely shaven and dusted with scented talcum, a striped silk sports shirt open at the throat.

Cherry, in a faded lavender silk kimono, her copper-and-gold curls still wet and lemon-fragrant from the shampoo she had given them, was reading the society section of the thick Sunday paper. Joy, her pert little face, with its snub nose, shining from soap and water, was already dressed for Sunday School.

Mrs. Lane was vast and uncorseted in a thin, faded percale bungalow apron, and Mr. Lane, in white cotton undershirt, his suspenders hanging in great loops abou this bony hips, was reading the real estate section, his near-sighted brown eyes peering through old-fashioned steel rimmed spectacles.

"Here, listen to this, Mother," he said. "'New Hathaway Building Plans'—that's the headline—'Robert Lee Hathaway, rising young architect, has taken out building permits for two model bungalows in the new Englewood addition. His own plans are to be used in building these two charming homes, one of which is pictured on this page, and contract has been let to Builder James G. Lane, of 3518 Myrtle Street. Work is to begin immediately. These are only two of many projected new homes in this popular subdivision, just opened to the public." Builder James G. Lane! Now, what do you think of that, Mother?"

"I just hope you ain't made any mistake on your figgers," Mrs. Lane sighed. "When you're workin' on a job at eight dollars a day, we know what to expect—"

"Oh, listen to this!" Cherry cried. "Lanes all over the paper this morning! 'Miss Selma Pruitt entertained charmingly at the Lincoln Pruitt mansion on Fairview Avenue Friday evening, bridge and other card games, dancing and music being the diversions. The lovely young hostess, assisted by her friends, Misses Frances Warren, Isabel Piper, Faith and Cherry Lane, served a delicious lap supper of fruit salad, cheese straws, sandwiches, ice cream—"

"Gosh!" Junior shouted with laughter. "That was sure a lapful, all right!"

"Shut up! You're just jealous because you weren't invited!" Cherry snapped. "If you didn't run around with that awful Fay allen, you could get into society, too!"

"And listen to this, Smarty." Junior flung the sports section to the floor. "If it wasn't for Faith, you'd not have a look-in at the Pruitts, and you know it darn well! Lord! I'd never hoped to see the day that good old Faith could take you down off your high horse like she's done this week! Hey, Faith when's the wedding coming off? I gotta have plenty of notice, so I can get me a Tuxedo made to order. Me in a Tuxedo and a stiff bosom shirt! Oh, baby!"

Faith slipped three more piping hot buckwheat cakes to his syrupy plate and sat down to her own breakfast.

"Don't order your Tuxedo—yet," she said calmly. "Pass me the butter, Dad, please. Everybody had enough?"

"I ain't got any appetite," her mother answered plaintively. "What are you girls doin' today? Gaddin' about, out to all hours of the night—I don't know what's goin' to become of the house—"

"I haven't neglected the housework, Mother," Faith answered gently. "I've got the dinner on in the fireless cooker and Cherry can dish it up when Dad and Joy get back from church. You haven't a date until this afternoon, have you, Cherry?"

"You know I haven't," Cherry answered sulkily. "Bob's coming over at four, and we're going to drive over to Marlboro for supper. But I think it's mean of you to make an all-day Sunday date, and leave me to fix dinner and wash up a whole raft of dishes."

"I do it seven days a week, Cherry. It's not going to hurt you this once, and Joy'll help, won't you, honey?"

"I will if Cherry'll give me a dime," Joy replied promptly. "Tomorrow's the first day of school and I wanta dime for the fruit shower we're going to give our teacher. A lot of us kids made it up to give her a shower, so's she will be in a good humor the first day, anyway. The fourth grade kids said last year she was a reg'lar old hellcat!"

"Joy! Leave the table this minute and march right into the bathroom and wash your mouth out with soap! And let me tell you, young lady, if I ever hear you usin' language like that again—oh, dear, life's just one thing after another!

With Faith gaddin' about all day Sunday and out every night in the week, and Junior kitin' around all over the country in that second-hand Ford that your Pa oughta knowed better than to let him buy, Jim Lane—"

"Junior's doin' pretty well with this automobile accessories job of his, Mother," Jim Lane told her with mild emphasis. "And if I was you, I wouldn't begrudge Faith a little fun once in a while—"

"Begrudge! Who's begrudgin' her anything? I can't say a word to my own children without gettin' my head snapped off for it, Jim Lane! If Faith's going to marry this rich feller I guess it's all right, but I don't trust him, I don't! Anybody can pull the wool over your eyes, but I guess a mother's got a right to protect her daughter from high-flyin' good-for-nothin's that led Lord knows what kinda life in New York. I never seen an artist yet that meant any good to a pure young girl."

"You're making a movie villain out of George, Mother," Faith laughed.

"That's right—poke fun at me!" Mrs. Lane sighed bitterly. "But what I want to know is—has he asked you to marry him?"

"Oh, Mother!" Faith protested, her face flushing richly with embarrassment. "I've only known him for ten days!"

"Yes, ten days, and he's been hangin' around here every day for a week, clutterin' the house up with his candy and his flowers and his dollar-a-pound grapes! I ain't nobody's fool! A rich man don't shower a poor girl with expensive gifts, and expect no return! Been makin' love to you, ain't he?"

"No, he hasn't." Faith laid down her fork and rose from the table, her hand trembling as she steadied herself against her chair. "Every last one of you is dying with curiosity about me and George Pruitt, and I'm—I'm tired of it! Please don't get mad at me, Mother! I don't mean to be 'sassy,' but I can't stand all of you picking on me like this. George Pruitt is the first man I've ever gone with that I really respect, but I'd better tell you—all of you—that I'm not one tiny bit in love with him, and I haven't encouraged him to make love to me, and don't intend to.

"And what's more, if he does ask me to marry him, I'm not going to do it! I'd rather live in a one-room shack with a man I love than to marry a millionaire! Now, won't you all let me alone and let me be friends—just friends—with George Pruitt? I know enough to take care of myself, Mother. I'm not going to disgrace the family—"

"Well!" Cherry pushed back her chair and pattered around the table in her heelless slippers, to put her arms protectingly around her mother. "I must say that's a fine way for you to talk, Faith Lane! You're always giving me 'Hail, Columbia' for flirting and leading men on, and now you admit that you're letting George Pruitt hang around you day and night, when you have no intention of marrying him. Practice what you preach, saintly Miss Faith! Isn't that right, Muggy?"

"You're being ridiculous, Cherry." Faith controlled her voice with difficulty. "I'm not leading George Pruitt on, as you call it, and I can't very well forbid him to come to see me or refuse to accept his attentions, without any explanation at all. I'd simply be a fool to tell him I can't have him for a friend because I have no intention of marrying him—when he hasn't asked me. Oh, let's don't quarrel! We're always quarreling. We all love each other, yet we are at each other, tooth and toenail, all the time." She dashed tears from her eyes, then turned to Joy, who had been drinking in her words, open-mouthed. "It's half past nine, honey. Better run along to Sunday School. It would be nice if you stayed for church and walked home with Dad."

At eleven o'clock Faith had finished her housework, had made the salad and dessert, leaving them to chill in the ice box, and had dressed herself hastily in her two-year-old white flannel suit, freshly cleaned and altered and touched up with new collar and cuffs of hand-embroidered white silk.

"Just what are you and George going to do today?" Cherry came padding in listlessly on her heelless slippers, to sit on Faith's neatly made bed.

"I told you—drive over to Sulphur Springs. We'll get there about one o'clock—it's forty miles you know. We'll have lunch there, George is going to sketch a while, and then we'll have a swim in the lake, and drive home toward evening."

"You don't know luck when it hits you in the face," Cherry told her enviously. "You could marry George Pruitt, and you turn up your nose at him. If you really don't want him, I wish you'd give me a chance."

"Do you mind if I wear your white felt?" Faith ignored her sister's suggestion. "This old tan straw of mine is terrible looking. Don't bother. I'll get it."

Cherry gave an ungracious assent, and Faith went to her sister's room to search her closet for the last year's fall h[at]. The hat was not on the top shelf, where she expected to find it. Thinking it might have fallen to the floor, Faith knelt and searched in the dark closet. Moving a suitcase to look behind it, she was surprised to find it heavy, as if it were packed full. Lifting it with an effort, she laid it on the floor of the room and tried to open it.

It was locked. A quick search of the closet revealed that nearly all of Cherry's clothes were missing. Bewildered, fighting back a dark suspicion, she was about to confront Cherry with a demand for an explanation when she heard George Pruitt's cheerful voice, greeting her mother and father.

Pain is so often unnecessary

SUFFERED WITH PAIN IN NECK AND SHOULDERS

Following a severe attack of rheumatic fever, a New York girl suffered for days with excruciating pain in her neck and shoulders.

"After trying everything else," she writes, "my mother persuaded me to let her apply Sloan's Liniment, and after three days I felt no further pain."

It is amazing what Sloan's will do to relieve pain. This is because it doesn't just deaden the nerves. It stirs up the body to throw off the cause of the trouble.

Apply gently without rubbing. Instantly it sends a healing tide of fresh, new blood to the place that hurts. In just a few minutes the pain stops. So pleasant and easy to use too. Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

YOUNG PEOPLE PASS PROTEST

traffic in Ontario, and we would urge upon the electors of this province to return to the legislature, members who will maintain, strengthen and enforce the Ontario Temperance Act.

3.—That we repudiate the propaganda carried on by those interested in the return of the free sale of liquor, which has represented the young people of the province in most unfortunate terms and has found expression in public addresses and newspaper items."

Alexander Donald.

"I consider it a great privilege to come to the City of Peterborough representanig, as I do, thousands of young people in the Province of Ontario who do not wish to be linked up or have truck or trade with the liquor traffic as it exists in this country today," declared Mr. Donald.

You will remember when the boys came home in 1919—certain people said and continued to spread the libel concerning them that they were as a body, in favor of the liquor traffic. "It was my privilege to defend them." One would have thought they would have stopped at that but once again the same people are making libellous charges against the young men and the young women. "Those statements are absolutely libellous" he declared. "They are not linked up with the liquor traffic but are opposed to it." Someone has said that the greatest discovery of the twentieth century is social conscience. The average man has discovered that he is his brother's keeper. Living in a Christian country and in a Christian community he has that responsibility.

After years of propaganda this generation has learned the great lesson that alcoholic liquor is a menace to society; that it is a menace to mankind.

During the Great War when the boys were giving their life's blood in France and Flanders, the citizens of this great province decided to do away with the liquor traffic throughout the province. When the war was over the electorate was asked whether this prohibition law was to be continued on the statute books of the province. By the hundreds of thousands the people declared what was good in war was also good in these great days of reconstruction. Three years later the people again declared in favor of the prohibition law, by a smaller majority it is true, but the majority declared against it. "Notwithstanding that our government has brought the question into politics and my appearance here is not a question of your personal habits or mine, wise or unwise, or a man or a woman taking a glass of liquor if they so desire—but a man never knows how strong his powers to resist are. I have no quarrel with the man who takes a glass—some of my best friends do. The question at stake is, in the interests of our economic, moral and social life in this province of Ontario, should we make it harder to obtain liquor legally, or open up the flood gates and make it easier to obtain" declared Mr. Donald.

These days, people hear a lot of what the Ontario Temperance Act has not done. There has been a very clever and persistent campaign put on by those who oppose the Ontario Temperance Act, with some success, I admit, but they have convinced some of the electorate that the Act is not perfect. They claim that bootlegging is prevalent; that it is teaching young people to break the law; that more beer is being sold. No doubt some of the charges are true. It has not accomplished some of the things we thought it would, but who ever heard the claim that the Ontario Temperance Act would bring about the millenium in a few short years, he asked. Temperance advocates do not deny that the law has been broken in some respects, but ask the man who knocks the Ontario Temperance Act this question, he continued. In the old days did he ever hear of illegal sale. "In those days all you had to do was to enter a bar, place your foot on the rail, and stay there until the bartender threw you out." The law was broken in those days, when booze was as plentiful as water. What about the liquor that was sold after hours; what about the Indian list; what about the sale of liquor to minors, he asked.

"I spent ten years on the staff of a newspaper; I saw the liquor traffic from the inside as a police reporter and as only those on the inside could see it, and the cry then was as it is today "we want the law changed because so many are breaking it." Why, declared the speaker, "they were calling for a change in 1913."

It was only when the people of the province rose up and said "It shall not be" that we got the liquor legislation which resulted in the forward step that the province took.

Speaking on the arguments of the opposition that the law be swept away because the people break the law; defy the government; defy the majority of electors, Mr. Donald quoted figures showing that during 1922, 13 822 people had been convicted for infractions of the Ontario Motor Vehicles Act. "Does any sane person say that because of these lawbreakers we should wipe the law off the statute books and let the speed demons control our highways", asked the speaker. The same thing applied to the law against smuggling, he said. Each year thousands of people break this law. "Should we pull down the barriers against smuggling because of that?"

"If the argument holds good for the Ontario Temperance Act, then it holds equally good for every other law', he declared.

"Mr. Nickle and Mr. Raney, men who had more to do with the act than any of us, tell us that if returned with a sufficient mandate, they believe that throughout the years this act can be enforced." "That is good enough for me."

The Ontario Temperance Act has accomplished something, he continued. Drunkeness has decreased during the period it has been in existence. Those who can remember back ten or fifteen years need no figures to prove this. It is a very occasional thing to see a drunk man on the streets today. "I have been downtown in the ward—in the centre of Toronto—I have visited the billiard and pool rooms mingling with the men in the auction rooms, trying to see something of the awful conditions that the opposition claim, exists, but I have come to the conclusion that they are just as hard to find as needles in haystacks. You know it, and I know it that there is much less drunkeness because of the Ontario Temperance Act."

During three years under the license system 21,000 people were jailed. In 1924 under the license system the convictions were 303 persons per 10,000 of population. In 1922 under the O.T.A. there were only 76 persons per 10,000 of population. Yet the enemy lays all crime at the door of the Ontario Temperance Act, he said.

"I maintain that the manufacturers, teachers, and ministers are the people who ought to know whether the act is a success; whether it has helped business, or created happier homes, and brought new life to many a weaker brother."

"They have been taking sly digs at the ministers for their stand. As far as I an see the time has not yet come when the Christian church has sold out to the liquor traffic which has dammed many a home in this and other lands."

"I want you to do something—go to the pool rooms; hear their stories; get the viewpoint of those who visit these places from time to time. Listen to them, then go to a minister or a public school teacher and get their viewpoint. Then choose your side and mark your ballot in the best interests of the Province of Ontario" he said in concluding.

The Rev. Murdock MacKinnon.

"I am glad of the opportunity of appearing before you tonight, knowing the interest of the citizens in this important question," declared the speaker. "This is the first time in a generation that you have the Premier of a Province working in the interests of the liquor traffic," he said.

While government sale has been adopted in four provinces, not in one instance was it instituted by the government. Whichever way the referendum went, the government was free to act. "Now for the first time we find the Premier of a province, acting in flat contradiction to the policy of his party, now working for a change of policy to permit the sale of spirituous liquors as a beverage.

"I am not a party man—those who know me know the truth of the statement—but I am interested in everything that makes for good citizenship; a law that makes for the removal of as many temptations as possible from the citizens"

"For the second time I appear on a political platform. Once in 1917 when every person was for the one thing—to beat the enemy—you have just heard one of the men who placed his life on the altar; who preferred faith, honor and truth to staying at home. We honor him; we honor them. To make doubly sure of winning the victory all party differences were buried, and while Union government may not have given us everything we wanted, nothing can give us all that we want. I now appear for the second time on a political platform this time against the bootlegger and the brewer who have made common calls with the Prime Minister of this province, and I am going to do my best to beat them." (Applause).

"I know Canada well; I come from the Maritime Provinces; I am a graduate of an Ontario University; I have spent fifteen years in the west; therefore I am a one hundred per cent. Canadian, interested not only in Ontario, but in the Dominion of Canada, and I say this—If Ontario stands true, the next thing will be a vote in British Columbia, in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan. We will win, but it is conditional largely on the action of the good people of the Province of Ontario."

"In regard to this matter, Canada is largely made up of Ontario people. I can tell you as a man who has spent fifteen years in the west that they in that part of the country look for the lead of Ontario in every great moral issue that comes before the people. If Ontario win the Western provinces will take up the cudgels again. I am therefore anxious that Ontario will do its duty when the opportunity presents itself."

"I am glad to think that there is enough spunk in our young people to resent the insult that has been thrown in their faces, and in their mothers and fathers as well, that the young people of Ontario are going to the dogs."

"Show him where you are, and what you think, and let him have his answer."

"We don't need to ask what the situation is; we know they are better than under a license system."

"Prohibition has no fetish for me; if government sale was the best I would say vote for it; but the best thing is the prohibition of liquor traffic. You wont get one hundred per cent results from it, but you will get greater results than from any law yet devised."

"The significant thing is that when the opportunity was given to the people of Saskatchewan, they said that dispensaries must go, and they went. It was brought on by the most aggressive campaign I ever saw. They bought up the newspapers in Regina and Saskatoon—they probably paid no money at that time—but we had no chance, no voice to make a protest."

"I have seen those circulars that say it is unfair to say that the issue is wet or dry but that is what it is, and because the Prime Minister of this Province has allied himself with the liquor interests."

"The question is: Whether Government sale will improve conditions; whether we want to engage in the liquor traffic. Do you think it is a respectable business for a government? Going further, do you think that you and I should be engaged in the buying and selling of liquor. I don't want it—do you?"

"The leaders on the other side say we should be engaged in education. Premier Ferguson says once he starts to buy and sell liquor, he will start and educate the young people the use and abuse of liquor. The same promises were made in the West by the Moderationists and the bootleggers. It is amazing to find the similarity between the Premier's speeches and those made by the liquor people and moderation league."

"They kept their promises—you're surprised—I'm not. I'll tell you how they kept them. I suppose you think the did it through the school books shoying the ill effects of liquor on the human body, but it was not that way. They began in the newspapers in the cities that they could buy space in. I cut out nine advertisements out of one daily where the brewers were showing what a fine thing it was to drink beer and strong liquors, such as Sandy MacDonald and Corbys. Space that would have cost you or me, for a religious cause as high as $300 a day. That was their effort towards education."

"I wonder friends, is that the kind of educational programme that will be indulged in in this province?"

"They say Government sale will get rid of the bootleggers. Who is he He is the product of no particular law—he is the personal embodiment of the spirit of law and greed for which the liquor traffic stands, first last and all the time."

The speaker described at some length conditions that had come under his personal observation while in Winnipeg, "under the government control law that Ferguson says will cure all the ails of the province." "Instead of government control it is in danger of getting control of government", he declared. "Don't believe that government control has solved one single problem in the Province of Manitoba."

"In Saskatchewan great promises were made that the bootlegger would be eliminated. The situation as it exists now is not an improvement on what they had before."

Mr. Heffernan, of Regina, who is a police magistrate and an old English soldier, and who formerly was an ardent advocate for government control two years ago, declared in his court on the first day of this month that 60 per cent of the drunks were from "canned heat". They were as bad as drug addicts, and some of them were losing their eyesight."

"It seems a strange thing that the bootlegger should not be got rid of when you can buy the liquor at the stores. One reason is that he is able to undersell the government. He can smuggle it in and escape the $9 a gallon customs duty. Another reason is that the government sells 8 hours a day while the bootlegger sells 24.'

"How much does whiskey cost in Saskatchewan? I don't remember—but every person connot afford it—but instead of going to the government store and paying fi or six dollars for a bottle, they go to a boot legger and pay 15c or 25c for a shot. These are not the only reasons because after all the government cannot have a store everywhere. The government store is not on wheels, but the bootlegger hos a store that is on the wheels. The bootlegger is still doing his work.

"Last year in Regina there was a 127 per cent. increase in drunkenness in the first year under government control. The law is a backward step as far as morality and temperance is concerned."

"When you are buying and selling legal, you put liquor selling on a higher plane—you give it an enhanced status."

"Janey Canuck's views on the question have been quoted. Her brother is solicitor for the Canadian Distilleries. Another brother is interested in Gooderham's; the family is interested in liquor."

"They tell you that the permit is a great thing—it is a joke—none took it seriously—you can get all you want in Saskatchewan or Alberta. As for British Columbia it is known as the bootleggers' paradise."

"Quebec has the largest number of business fail ures in the last five years; British Columbia comes next. Do you want these conditions reproduced in Ontario."

"Do you want your roads built with broken hearts? Your school teachers paid by money earned from a traffic that destroys human life?"

"Premier Ferguson never lived under the system—I have—I've seen it, and I protest any government engaging in a business that destroys integrity of government, that undermines the morals of people, that destroys life, that cheapens citizenship."

"I join with you in protesting forcibly the proposal for government sale in this Province of Ontario."

ANOTHER CHANCE FOR RURAL VOTERS.

Rural voters are reminded that although their names may not be on the voters' lists, they will be able to use their franchise on December 1st if they are qualified to vote.

Residents of cities and towns of 3,500 population or more can only vote if their names are on the list, but the restriction does not apply to rural electors, who are entitled to be "sworn in" on election day if vouched for by an elector in the same polling division whose name is on the list.

For some years this provision on behalf of rural voters has been in force in Dominion elections, but as it is now applying for the first time in a Provincial campaign, those entitled to benefit by it may not be aware of the new section of the Act.

The Examiner calls attention to this feature of the campaign in the hope that it may be of service to rural voters, who knowing that their names have not been added to the list may be under the impression that they will be unable to exercise their franchise next week.

AN OLD RESIDENT GONE.

Among older residents of Peterboro in particular the death of Thomas Fortye has caused keen regret.

His name had so long been associated with this city in his capacity as manager of the Peterboro Lock Company and other business responsibilities, and as a citizen who took a keen interest in Peterboro's affairs generally, that the knowledge that he has passed on conveys a sense of loss to all who knew him.

Widely known throughout the city, a man who enjoyed the affection and regard of a very large section of Peterboro's population, Thomas Fortye was a citizen of a type that can ill be spared.

One by one the older residents, men who bore the burden when Peterboro was a much different and much smaller centre than at present, are joinging the great majority, and their going takes something out of the community that it is difficult to replace.

The men who have grown up with Peterboro are fast becoming a very small company.

THROUGH STREETS NOT SPEEDWAYS.

It cannot be too emphatically stated for the benefit of motorists generally that the bringing into force of the full-stop plan does not mean that through streets are to be turned into speedways.

The fact that motorists coming into such streets will be required to stop does not relieve the driver on the through thoroughfare of obeying the traffic regulations.

Crossing intersections faster than the legal limit for such points will not be condoned because of the obligation of drivers entering through streets to stop at the corners.

This should be thoroughly understood, for if motorists are allowed to use the main streets as speedways our last state will be worse than our first.

In fact, the whole usefulness of the plan will be destroyed if the driving on through streets does not conform with the regulations.

The Police Department recognizes that fact, and offenders are likely to find themselves checked up closely if they continue to violate traffic rules at the intersections.

THE FIGHT IS ON.

The official nomination proceedings on Saturday and developments that have followed since have given the Ferguson Government an early lead in the Provincial sweepstakes.

No opposition to Hon. Chas. McCrea developed in Sudbury, and the Minister of Mines has been declared elected by acclamation.

In Addington the former member, W. H. Black, Government candidate, also received a technical acclamation when the returning officer refused to accept the nomination papers of his prohibitionist opponent, claiming that the Act had not been complied with. The decision is the subject of protest from the prohibitionists.

In North Essex the unusual situation has developed, that of the three candidates nominated on Saturday two have retired from the field, leaving the seat to the Government nominee.

The prohibitionist candidate retired on Saturday night and Edward Tellier, the former Liberal member, who had been nominated as an Independent Liberal, favouring Government control, withdrew from the contest yesterday.

As to the rest of the Province there is no dearth of candidates.

Altogether the Government put a candidate supporting its policy of Government control in every riding, save South Waterloo, where the fight lies between the former member, Karl Homuth, running as a Labour candidate and endorsing Government control, and Levi Master, prohibitionist.

Against the Government candidates the opposition consists of 52 Liberals, 28 prohibitionists, 21 Progressives, 10 Liberal-Progressives, 8 Independent Conservatives, 7 Independent Liberals, 3 Labour candidates and one Independent.

COMPULSORY VOTING.

The approach of Provincial and municipal elections serves to revive the old argument regarding compulsory voting.

It is a well-known fact that in every case where the people are asked to go to the polls and record their choice as to who shall govern them in the future, a large percentage, sometimes a majority, of the eligible electorate, fail to vote at all. This is particularly noticeable in municipal contests, sometimes less than a quarter of the voters registering their views. In Federal and Provincial battles, of course, the percentage is always much higher. The difference, though, is due largely to the fact that there are usually only two candidates in a constituency. This focuses the discussion on two individuals, each of whom invariably has a strong organization behind him. The chief purpose of this organization, aside from presenting the views of the party it represents and endeavoring to get a majority of the people to accept them, is to "get the vote out." Party organizations go to great expense to secure this result. In municipal contests this keen element is often lacking and the voters are consequently more indifferent.

In Australia the principle of compulsory voting has been adopted. This means that the state has decided that every eligible person must participate in the system of government. Those who fail to do so are penalized unless they can produce sound reasons to show why they did not visit the polls. Australia, of course, is carrying the theory of democratic government to the extreme. Indeed it has introduced something that flavors strongly of autocracy in order to strengthen the chief and, indeed, the only weapon of democracy—the ballot. To date, the experiment is said to have met with success and to be enjoying popular favor. How it will work out as the years go by, remains, of course, to be seen.

There is something repugnant about the idea of forcing a man—or a woman—to vote. It does not fit in with the ordinary idea of freedom of individual thought and action, especially in times of peace. It cannot be denied, however, that in practically every democracy there is need for bringing home to the people, in a strikingly forceful way, the necessity of taking a keener interest in public affairs. It is one of the strange contradictions of life that the prize for which our grandfathers fought and suffered is now held so cheaply by their descendants. Men and women are so busy with other things, with their own work in life, with their homes, their golf courses, their bridge clubs and a thousand and one other things, that they often pay scant attention to—if they do not overlook entirely—the thing upon which their whole political security rests, namely, the selection of fit and proper representatives to make the laws and administer them.

People often complain of their public representatives, only to admit, on questioning, that they did not cast a ballot at the election at which the representatives in question were chosen. Indeed, politically, as in most other ways, we get out of a thing just what we put into it. If we are careless, indifferent voters we are likely to have a careless, indifferent government. If our government is bad it is our fault for making such a government possible. Speaking in a broad way, every government is a reflection of those who place it in office. We get just what we deserve and nothing more.

The election campaigns that are to culminate with voting on December 1 and December 6—the first for the Ontario Legislature and the other for Windsor's various civic offices—will decide a number of important matters. Both dates are of more than ordinary voting interest. Let us hope that the ballot, on both occasions, will be really representative. —Border Cities Star.

TOLERATION.

(From The Stratford Beacon-Herald)

In a Toronto pulpit on Sunday the pastor, in a discussion of the coming Provincial vote, made an attack on Sir Joseph Flavelle, because the latter had expressed the opinion that Government sale of liquor was preferable to the present O. T. A.

The minister is reported as saying, "The fat-fingered millionaire says, 'Here is $25,000 to take care of your slums.' I hope the day will come when the church will say to that fat-fingered millionaire, 'Keep your money in your pocket. We don't want anything from you.'"

In a somewhat similar case at Brantford, The Expositor, of that city, which is giving consistent support to the Liberal party in this contest, felt it necessary to rebuke those who were making personal attacks on a minister of the gospel there who has accepted the Conservative nomination.

Not many days ago a very enthusiastic political worker in this district referred to Hon. W. F. Nickle as a "traitor" to his party because he resigned as Attorney-General over a difference with the Premier on his liquor policy.

The plain truth is that Sir Joseph Flavelle, the minister-candidate in Brantford and the Hon. W. F. Nickle are all sincere in their views, and they are entitled to respect for them on that basis.

The present situation is one that brings with it sharp differences of opinion. But that is no reason for assigning to men improper motives or for refusing to admit that one is just as seriously in earnest as the other.

It is time for serious individual thought, because Ontario is about to make a decision with which it will have to live.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—With the lightest funs of cattle for some weeks, trade opened good and active yesterday morning. Prices soon scored advances in the export and choice butcher classes. One load of choice export steers, fancy quality, sold at $7.20. The general run of heavy export steers ranged from $6.40 to $6.80. The demand for export store, probably affected by an increase in rail freight rates, is very quiet, practically no cattle in this class being taken for export this week.

A good active demand for choice butcher cattle, and with the light offerings, prices 25c to 30c higher.

Good demand for fat cows.

Baby beeves weak and lower, very few of choice quality offering.

Export steers firmer at $6.40 to $6.80.

Choice butcher steers and heifers higher at $6.25 to $6.75. Fat cows and canners in good demand.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—Better export bids at the Gulf of Mexico helped give an upturn to wheat prices yesterday at the last. Crop damage reports from Argentina were also current, and there was 1,068,000 bushels falling off in the domestic wheat visible supply total. Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1 to 2c net higher, with corn 3-8 to 7-8c off; oats 3-8 to 1c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 37 cents.

Selling of corn against buying of wheat tended to depress the corn market. Besides, the corn visible supply increased 830,000 bushels, an amount less than expected, but lifting the total to 30,103,000 bushels, compared with 1,512,000 bushels last year. Oats followed corn.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 17,000; best weighty steers $10.75; show yearlings $12.60; practical top yearlings $12.35; bulls steady; bulk $5.75 to $6.00; vealers $10.50 to $11.00; outsiders $11.50; few $12.00.

Hogs 45,000; top $12.00 paid for choice heavy butchers; bulk desirable hogs scaling 170 to 250 pounds $11.55 to $11.90; most packing sows $10.40 to $11.00; bulk desirable packing pigs $11.70 to $12.00.

Sheep 14,000; top natives and fed westerns to shippers and city butchers $13.75; packer top $13.50; bulk fat lambs $13.00 to $13.25; bulk fat ewes $5.00 to $6.50; top $6.75; fat yearling wethers up to $11.00.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday was again very quiet, there being practically no demand from foreign buyers. A fair amount of business was done in coarse grains. The market for Canadian western grades of oats was firm.

The feature of the flour trade was the stronger feeling that developed in the market for Spring wheat grades and prices were advanced 20 cents per barrel. Busines was quiet even at the lower levels.

Prices for winter wheat grades of flour were firmly maintained under a good demand.

The millfeed market continued moderately active and values were firm. A fairly active business was transacted in standard grades of rolled oats and prices were steady.

The domestic and export trade in cheese continued inactive but values were steady. The receipts were 2,791 boxes.

The butter market was quiet but firm. The receipts were 243 packages.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for fresh extra eggs and prices were marked up 2 to 5 cents per dozen. The demand was fair. The market for storage eggs was active and steady. The receipts were 904 cases.

There was a fair demand for beans and values were firm. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were offered at $2.75 per bag, and smaller quantities at $3 per bushel.

A moderate amount of business was done in potatoes and values were unchanged. Sales of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were made at $1.80 per bag, New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.70 per bag, and Quebec White stock at $1.55 to $1.60 per bag of 90 pounds.

Editor, The Examiner:
Dear Sir:

"At the last meeting of the sewing groups of our Ladies' Aid the women discussed the likely prospect of greater distress of the kind they are trying to relive if the easy buying of liquor methods displaces the O.T.A.

"Mr. Ferguson evidently foresaw this effect of his proposed policy in many homes when he conceived the idea of a Wives' Complaint Committee. He says in effect that when a wife knows that her husband is spending home-needed money on drink or that when she forsees the destruction of her home or the wreck of domestic happiness through the grip of the drink appetite she may make a comlaint to a police officer or some such official who will forward it to Toronto to his Complaint Committee, who will look into it and do something about it. It is well-known that in the years preceding the adoption of the O.T.A. sensitive women died of a broken heart rather than seek protection through the similar and simpler Indian-listing of their dear ones.

If the women of Ontario would only just pause and ponder for a few minutes the significance of Mr. Ferguson's own proposed Wives' Complaint Committee they would work and pray that he may never have the opportunity to form it. Mr. Ferguson said he wishes a very decisive verdict, and no doubt he does wish it in his own favor and that of the liquor interests but let the women remember that the previous day he had said that he would smash the O.T.A. if he had one of a majority in parliament even if there were a majority against him in the Province."

Yours very truly,
MILLIE C. GRANT.

DR. ALLEN REPLIES.

Editor Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The Ferguson Tories seem disturbed that I should call myself a Conservative because I sometimes voted against my party on moral issues chiefly. I believe with Hon. W. F. Nickle and have maintained for at least twenty years that temperance was the greatest issue before the people because it affects everyone.

When Sir Wm. Hearst appealed to the people I supported his candidate, Mr. R. J. Soden. This, I'll venture to say, not many of those who are strong for Ferguson now did. But those men still call themselves Conservatives. I am not a Ferguson Conservative. That is plain, but I have never posed as a Grit, though if the Ferguson party is successful and pose as Conservatives, I would still claim they are only a wing, and I would have the best of company with Hon. W. F. Nickle as leader. The Conservative who does his party most harm is the hide-bound one. Last Dominion election is a splendid example when Meighen took the advice of that class and now realizes his mistake. I could not conscientiously support him on his false claims. I believe in fair play and no office grabbing for the sake of office, so now I find myself in the class with Hon. W. F. Nickle. It is good Conservatism and I am delighted with my new Conservative leader and with the new Conservative recruits to our wing. I believe in fighting fairly, and my break from the machine is on the temperance issue almost altogether.

I invite the Conservative committee to stop ruining the Conservative party. Howard Ferguson had us all when he got into power with his false promises. If he kept faith he would be Premier for life. I knew him of old as regards temperance and only hoped he would be held by Nickle. We see how it is.

A. H. ALLEN.

CONDITIONS COMPARED

Editor, Examiner: I have read with interest letters in The Examiner telling us what good times (?) our province would enjoy were Mr. Ferguson's Government Control Act to become law; how quickly the temptation to drink would be removed; and how peace and sobriety would reign.

Then I remembered a homely old proverb, "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," and I wondered why, in these glowing pictures of this happy state, there was no mention made of benefits gained in the homes of the "Common People" in these lucky provinces where Government Control has been in force for some time.

We know that in British Columbia there is great dissatisfaction. Manufacturers say they are losing greatly; that they cannot get the men (paid Saturday night) back to work till Tuesday afternoon! They had been carousing since Saturday!

And Quebec; speaking to a man recently about conditions in British Columbia he said (he was a Ferguson man, too): "Well, I'm afraid that's true of Quebec too. I took a gang of men myself from Toronto to Quebec to do some work, and we could not get them back till Tuesday afternoon."

Would there be much happiness in the homes of these men? Would the children be better fed, better clother under Government sale?

I was introduced to a strange lady a few weeks ago. I said to her, "You live in Quebec, I believe." She said: "Well, not quite. Our village is a few miles from Quebec. It used to be a very well-behaved little place, but its sadly changed now. Our lads can go over into Quebec and get all the drink they want, and the toughs from Quebec come to our village. Oh! it's no place to live in now. It is not safe for a woman to go out at night." I expressed my sympathy with her, and she said, "O, I wish I lived in Ontario. It's like Heaven to be in Ontario!"

CHURCH UNION.

Lakefield, Nov. 20, 1926.

The changes in our history in little more than a year may be summed up as follows: First, a Presbyterian community and congregation with church and manse and other requisites, prosperous, united, happy, dis-union enters, introduces divisions under the name of Union, divides our congregation, takes from us Presbyterians unjustly, by undue ministerial influence and adverse vote, our church and manse, hands them over to an alien corporation, leaving us without a church home. The vote was two to one for Union. Many are now sorry. The Presbyterian Church has been carrying on in Lakefield sixty-three years. I became a member of the Presbyterian Church at 16 years of age, and have continued my membership 68 years. The Presbyterian group are carrying on, seven months worshipping in the Baptist Church at 2.30 p.m.; the last six months are worshipping in the theatre at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Last Sunday we held our first Communion service: Rev. Mr. Ross, minister. We were favored with four officials from St. Paul's Church, Peterboro. We had a delightful service, with 42 present. We believe the Master was present with us. We know we are right, and that God is with us. But those who introduce divisions into the congregations have much to answer for. We greatly appreciate the many courtesies of Anglicans and Baptists in the use of their buildings. Shut out from our own church, the true spirit of Christian unity was shown by these sister denominations.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

HAPPINESS
By Dr. Frank Crane.

One trouble with telling people how to be happy is that everybody does not understand just what happiness means.

Happiness to one man may not be happiness to another.

It is happiness to a swine to find a trough full of swill, and there are human beings whose idea of happiness is plenty to eat.

But most human beings have a different kind of nature, and the mere eating of hunger does not make them happy.

In fact happiness seems to be the fulfillment of a desire, and of course what happiness is depends on what chances to be your desire.

A person shipwrecked on a raft in mid-ocean, or a traveler lost in the Desert of Sahara wants most of all a cup of water. In fact he gets to the point by and by when he would give all he has for something to drink; and that is his supreme desire.

Man's desires, however, are always springing up anew. In a sense he can never be satisfied because he is always wanting something.

Carlyle says somewhere that if you pour into the soul of a bootblack, suns, stars and galaxies, he would still cry for more.

The human soul is the original bottomless pit.

Therefore our kinds of happiness run from the lower to the higher.

One kind of happiness may mean simply a cessation of pain, as to a man with a stomachache a dose of paregoric brings happiness.

Then there is the satisfaction of having a thrill, which comes from adventure, and so on.

Besides this, there is the happiness that comes from things which appeal to our risibilities.

Then there is the supreme state of happiness boasted of by the religionists, and called bliss.

Something along this gamut we are all striving to obtain.

Hedonism is that philosophy of life which claims happines s in one form or another to be the supreme end of man. Needless to say, there is also a philosophy which places as the chief end of man the rejection and renunciation of all forms of happiness.

Nature's wonderful gift

Wonderful what Nature did for man in making the whole wheat grain! It contains every element the human body needs, and in the right proportion. Equally wonderful is the process by which SHREDDED WHEAT is made. No one has ever been able to improve upon our process—or even approach it—for making the whole wheat grain digestible. Each crisp, flavory shred of wheat is full of health and strength. Nothing so good for youngsters as these little loaves of oven-baked shreds of wheat, toasted and served with butter. Children like SHREDDED WHEAT porridge—made this way: Place the Biscuits in a small saucepan, add salt and enough water to cover the bottom of the pan; stir and boil until it thickens. Serve with milk or cream.

FALL-DOHENY FACE CHARGES OF CONSPIRACY

Opening of United States' Government Cases in Washington Court.

OIL SCANDAL INQUIRY.

Defense Asks Prospective Jurymen If They Have Read "Revelry."

(By Herbert Little—United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—One of the United States' greatest state trials opened solemnly here yesterday, when a former member of the Harding Cabinet and an oil multi-millionaire faced the bar of justice, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government.

Flanked by a score of attorneys, Albert B. Fall, grizzled ranchman, politician, former United States senator and Secretary of the Interior from 1921 to 1923, and Edward L. Doheny, international petroleum financier and operator, quietly watched Justice Adolph A. Hoehling carry out the legal formalities preparatory to picking a jury of 12 men in the district of Columbia Supreme Court.

More than half the 250 seats in the little court-room were taken by newspapermen and lawyers.

Harry Sinclair, oil magnate, under indictment with Fall in a similar case, was represented by counsel, George B. Hoover.

The defence sprang a surprise when it asked prospective jurymen if they had read "Revelry," a novel by Samuel Hopkins Adams, which deals in part with a governmental oil scandal similar in some details to the Elk Hills-Teapot Dome case. The defence also asked members of the jury panel if they had heard a radio address by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, on the oil cases.

Five Indicted.

The trial is expected to last at least one month, perhaps several. The indictment was returned 18 months ago. It is one of five against the principals in the scandals divulged by the Walsh Senate Committee in the 1923-24 investigation.

Former Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty, four United States senators and one former senator, Edward B. McLean, millionaire publisher of Washington and Cincinnati; Miss Mabel Willebrand and Theodore Roosevelt are among more than 100 witnesses summoned by the Government.

The defence will be built around an effort to show the transaction was entirely a friendly one, growing out of the two men's alleged association of 30 years, since they met as struggling oil man and miner.

Negro Chosen.

One of the talesmen picked was a negro.

Clinton Carver, steamfitter, said during his examination by Frank J. Hogan, attorney for Doheny, that his brother had been "approached" a week ago Friday.

SAYS FORD HAS USED WEALTH SLANDER JEWS

Slashing Attack is Made By Nathan Strauss at Conference.

IS INFLUENCED.

Makes Offer To Prove the Charge to the Millionaire.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 23.-(Canadian Press).—Charging that Henry Ford has engaged his wealth "in a campaign of slander against the Jewish people," Nathan Straus invited the manufacturer to select eight members of a committee of ten which would prove to him that "some of the sycophants in his surroundings, for their own personal reasons, misinformed and deceived him" on Jewish questions.

Speaking here at an annual conference of the United Palestine appeal, which opened the year's drive for $7,500,000, Mr. Straus asserted that Jewish millionaires who fall in their duty to aid the cause "are not the only offenders by not employing their wealth properly.

"Malicious Lies."

Among the Christian millionaires there are some who use their wealth for the benefit of mankind and others who use it for destructive purposes, for breeding trouble," he said. "For example, the Rockefellers, both father and son, are devoting their millions to help the welfare of mankind, to promote science and advance civilization, while a man like Henry Ford, who has become one of the richest money kings of the world, has engaged in a campaign of slander against the Jewish people, has spread malicious lies about them and stirred up trouble, mischief and hatred here and Europe."

HON. J. R. COOKE WILL CONTEST NORTH HASTINGS

Member of Last House To Seek Re-election in Riding.

CONSERVATIVE.

Association Holds Convention at Madoc—Officers Elected.

MADOC, Nov. 23.—The North Hastings Conservative convention opened on Saturday morning at 10.30 with a remarkably good attendance.

Dr. Eagleson, President of the Conservative Association, welcomed the delegates and members, who had gathered to select a candidate to represent this riding in Toronto. George West was called upon to read the minutes, as the Secretary, Hugh Wiggins, had passed away. Mr. West explained that he had been unable to secure the book, so that it would be impossible to give the minutes at this meeting.

Owing to the lateness of the hour and the necessity for having the hall in readiness for nominations at 12 o'clock, Dr. Eagleson said they would proceed with nominations for candidates for the local Legislature in Toronto.

Mr. W. Martin, of Stirling, nominated Hon. R. J. Cook as candidate in the coming election, and in doing so remarked that this is one of the most important times in the history of North Hastings. North Hastings has never had a representative that has done so much for the riding, said Mr. Martin. Mr. Cook has always been a friend to the riding. He has been a friend to everyone, not making particular friends in his own party, but a friend to everyone regardless of party. Mr. Martin also felt that this riding should have a farmer to represent it, and spoke of the successful farmer Mr. Cook had been for twenty years. "In fact," said Mr. Martin, "I sometimes think he has been a farmer for over twenty years by the look of his hair," which caused some good-natured laughter. "If ever there was a time when we should have a temperance candidate it is today, and in selecting Mr. Cook we have a true temperance candidate," said the speaker, and hearty applause showed the agreement of the audience. Mr. Martin said, in looking back over the years, he would defy anyone to say there had been a temperance act in which Mr. Cook had not taken his part, and he appealed to those present not only to endorse Mr. Cook as candidate at the convention but also at the polls. He has helped to produce legislation in the interests of temperance, and "if we want a man we want a man who has been tried."

Mr. T. Burnside, of Madoc, seconded the motion, and in doing so said he wished to co-operate in everything Mr. Martin had said. They would crown the "Hon. Bob" with victory. Mr. Burnside spoke of the opposition. "They couldn't get a man in this riding and had to go outside of the riding to get one who would stand against Robert Cook." Mr. Burnside said he himself had never given anything but a temperance vote, and that was what he was going to do now. He believed in supporting Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Cook and did not think they could better the latter in Toronto.

Hon. Mr. Cook was then called to the platform amid much enthusiastic applause.

Hon. J. R. Cook.

Mr. Cook said it had given him much pleasure to represent North Hastings in the Legislature during the past fifteen years, and that now one of his most pleasant recollections would be that nobody could be found in North Hastings to oppose him this election. He felt it was the greatest compliment he had ever had. Mr. Cook said he would speak briefly as there was much he wished to say at the afternoon meeting, but he wished to mention an amazing article that he had seen in the newspapers a few days ago to the effect that at a meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. in Sault Ste. Marie J. B. Cunningham had been chosen as candidate, and this had been endorsed later by the W.C.T.U. Perhaps to men who had not had a chance to observe closely this would carry no significance, but he had sat in the Legislative Assembly for four years, and J. B. Cunningham was the man who defeated Sir William Hearst. He considered it brazen hypocrisy on the part of a prohibition committee who would select as candidate the man who had crucified Hearst.

Mr. Cook said he was proud of the men who had endorsed him. They were true to the temperance cause. Before the day was over, Mr. Cook said, he hoped there would have been a clear record and exposition of the temperance of this constituency, and after it was over he would ask everybody to vote as their consciences dictated.

Dr. Eagleson then tendered his resignation as President of the Conservative Association and called for nominations for officers. These resulted as follows:

President—Harry Connor, of Marmora.

1st Vice—Walter Martin, of Stirling.

2nd Vice—Mrs. T. Montgomery, of Stirling.

3rd Vice—Mrs. Charlie Rollins, of Coe Hill.

Secretary—Mr. W. T. Bateman, of Springbrook.

Treasurer—Thomas Burnside, of Madoc.

A vote of confidence in the policy of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson was passed, moved by George West, of Madoc, seconded by Walter Wiggins, Reeve of Taraday.

GIRL GUIDES MEET AT CAMPBELLFORD

Regular Meeting Held, But Speaker Unable to be Present.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 23—The Girl Guides held their regular meeting on Tuesday evening in St. John's Sunday Shool room. Owing to adverse circumstances, Mrs. Dr. Eustace Forrest of Port Hope was unable to be present but next Tuesday evening Miss Catherine Heaton, Brown Owl, from Toronto will be present. Miss Heaton is an expert in Brownie Work and was at Foxlease, England, during the summer. She will address the Brownies in the afternoon and the Guides in the evening.

The Young People of St. Andrew's held their weekly meeting on Monday evening. After the devotional period and business was over Mrs. H. T. Scott, convenor of the programme presided. The topic "How Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," ably taken by Miss Violet Patrick, and was enjoyed by all. The captain of the Red side, Miss F. Nelson, and Mr. J. Campbell, captain of the Blue, took count of their sides and the Blue side was found to be in the majority. After an interesting contest the meeting closed with the Benediction.

Mrs. G. Glenn Ellis of Brantford is visiting her mother, Mrs. C. L. Owen.

Mr. Thomas Rowe of London spent a few days of the past week in town.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hammond who have been visiting in Belleville returned home this week.

BORDEN PORTRAIT GIFT TO DOMINION

Brother of Lord Northcliffe Makes Presentation To Premier.

LONDON, Nov. 22 (By Cable from George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—As a gift to Canada, Sir Leicester Harmsworth, brother of the late Lord Northcliffe, to-day handed to Premier Mackenzie King a portrait of Sir Robert Borden by Sir William Orpen.

Premier King expressed the pride that the Canadian people would feel in having this "splendid work as a national possession," and the great pleasure it gave him to have the honor of accepting it.

Detroit's new traffic ordinance besides forbidding "one-armed driving" and front sea crowding, also prohibits any one to drive with another person sitting in his lap.

Victoria County Council Opposes Lighting By-law

LINDSAY, Nov. 23. — The County Council closed its November session yesterday, and went on record as opposing any bylaw compelling vehicles of all kinds to carry lights at night while on the highways of the county. They will memorialize the government, however, to introduce legislation to make such a law general throughout the province.

There was strong opposition to the subject when it was introduced in council. Some of the reeves characterized it as an imposition on the farmers and would tend to make him liable for any accident that might occure.

WARKWORTH NOTES.

WARKWORTH, Nov. 23.—Mrs. B. Blake is visiting relatives in Oshawa.

Mr. William Hawkins of Trenton is spending a few days in town.

Mr. F. M. Brintnell of Colborne was in town on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hawkey entertained a number of friends on Friday evening.

Mrs. Lorne Hutchinson and children spent the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Somerville, Morganston.

Mr. Lorne Hutchinson attended the Winter Fair in Toronto.

Misses Minnie and Kathleen Gallagher are visiting their sister, Mrs. A. Cleminson, St. Lambert's, Que.

U. S. RAILWAY AUCTIONED OFF

BID $140,000,000

BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 23 (Canadian Press).—The greatest foreclosure proceeding in history was carried through here yesterday when the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad was offered at public sale and drew one bid of $140,000,000.

The bid was made by representatives of the reorganization committee headed by Kuhn, Loeb and Company, and the National City Bank, New York City, and will be submitted to the Federal Court in Chicago on December 13 for approval.

A half-hour was required for a transaction which ultimately means the transfer of property worth three-quarters of a billion dollars.

The road was offered in five lots: $42,500,000 being bid for the lines west of Mobridge, South Dakota; $67,500,000 for the lines east, or $110,000,000 for the entire property. $12,500,000 was offered for the road's investments and securities, but instead of limiting the bid to the upset price of $126,000,000, the bidders offered $140,000,000. The offer was made by Robert T. Swaine and Donald C. Swatland, representing the reorganization committee, to whom they will assign their interests in the bid.

What is THERMOGENE?

Use Thermogene Medicated Wadding for Lumbago
Rheumatism Neuralgia
Neuritis
Grippe
Sore Throat
Chest Colds
Bronchitis

THERMOGENE is a dry, sanitary, medicated wool that induces warmth immediately when applied to the human body. THERMOGENE entirely supersedes the old-time mustard plaster—which quickly turned cold and clammy, was always a nuisance to prepare and "messy" to apply. THERMOGENE is clean, dry, effective—available at a moment's notice. In every household, especially at this season, THERMOGENE is indispensable. For chills, apply THERMOGENE. For sore throats—for lumbago—for grippe—apply THERMOGENE to the affected parts. The penetrating warmth which THERMOGENE creates quickly gives comfort and relief. THERMOGENE is world renowned. It is recommended by physicians and used constantly in the famous hospitals of the world

PROHIBITIONISTS MEET AT WELCOME

Large Audience at Meeting To Hear Many Speakers.

WELCOME, Nov. 23.—On Tuesday evening a large audience was present at the temperance meeting held in the Welcome church. The speakers from Bowmanville were unable to be present on account of the condition of the detour.

After devotional exercises by the pastor, Rev. D. R. Clare, Mr. Rowe, president of the county branch of the Prohibition Union, took the chair.

Mr. W. A. Walker, of Zion, vice-president, was also on the platform.

Mr. Rowe dealt with the organization in this constituency. He told of the meeting in Orono, when pledges were prepared and presented to the nominated candidates, also the response from each. Mr. Bragg pledged himself to stand behind the O.T.A. and support it in every way possible. Mr. Chalk announced he was a supporter of the Ferguson policy of government sale. He then told of the later meeting at Orono at which the Prohibition Union pledged themselves to stand behind Mr. Bragg, on account of his stand on temperance. He also described the organization work in the different polling divisions.

Rev. D. R. Clare, of Welcome, was the next speaker. He said some thought the minister should not speak in this election, but it was not as a politician he spoke but because of the greatest moral issues of the day.

He read a letter from Dr. Ernest Thomas, in response to Dr. Cody's statements re government control in Western Canada. Mr. Thomas has made a thorough study of conditions and gave facts to show that Government control was not an improvement. Mr. Clare touched on many other arguments put up by the wet side regarding bootlegging and gave statistics to show the facts to be different from those put up by the other side.

Rev. J. Lane, of Canton, was the next speaker. He spoke of conditions before the O.T.A. was passed and said that conditions then were much worse than at the present time, that alcoholic poisoning was reported in those years in higher figures than under the O.T.A. in spite of all the bad whiskey. He spoke of Government control in Quebec and of the conditions there. He repudiated the statement made by Premier Ferguson regarding the pocket flask and the young girls of the present day. He said it was an insult to the young womanhood of Canada. He said that a recent investigation showed that the pocket flask was unknown to thousands of the high school boys of the present day. He also said that as a minister he would stand out and speak on this issue because it was a temperance campaign and not a political one, although the other side was using all kinds of smoke screens to hide the real issue.

Mr. Bragg, Liberal nominee, arrived during the meeting. He spoke a few minutes on the temperance issue of the day and voiced the hope that the temperance people of the country would stand firm for the right.

PERMIT GRANTED NURSING OUTPOST

Solicit Subscriptions For Building of Outpost at Apsley.

APSLEY, Nov. 23. — The good news came on Saturday that the Rev. C. A. G. Spence's application for a nursing depot at Apsley had been granted by the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, the work to start this year if the outpost budget permits. Steps will at once be taken to solicit subscriptions for a building to be used for a hospital and nurse's residence. As soon as the building and equipment is procured the nurse will be ready to start organizing the work. The residents are enthusiastic over the project and a meeting to discuss ways and means will shortly be held in St. George's Institute.

Schools Closed.

A case of smallpox was discovered in the village ten days ago, and so far no other cases have been reported. It is hoped that an epidemic has been averted.

Two of the local schools were closed as a precautionary measure. Col. T. D. Johnston, the Conservative candidate, came on Wednesday to address a meeting, but on account of the existence of the disease, in the interests of the public health decided not to hold the meeting. His considerate action will not likely adversely effect his prospects.

While deer have not been very plentiful this season, fairly good luck has been secured by local sportsmen. The best hunting was secured by Mr. Tom Tanner's party, consisting of himself and three sons, Harry, Frank and George, Glen Nicholls, Will Johnston and Rev. C. Spence. Each man got his deer, the entire kill consisting of seven deer and one bear. Roland Tucker also secured a huge bear, weighing, it is reported, about 400 lbs.

SPECIAL OFFER TO RHEUMATICS

NORHAM NEWS

NORHAM, Nov. 23.—Rev. J. F. Everson, Allan Platt and Mrs. Lorne Evans attended the Sunday School Council held in Campbellford on Wednesday.

The Boys' Conference for East Northumberland is to be held in Wooler on December 3, 4 and 5. Rev. Charles Plowman, of Toronto, is to be the special speaker for the occasion.

Miss Mulhall, of Cobourg, is waiting upon her aunt, Miss Amanda Stone, who is seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Glover, of Morganston, and Rev. James E. Beckel, of Castleton, were in Campbellford on Wednesday attending the Sunday School County Council.

Mrs. Frank Meneilley and Misses Henretta and Amie are in Toronto visiting friends.

The side roads are becoming very bad as a result of the excessive rains, and it is a common occurrence to hear of someone being hauled out of the mud.

DISCOVERIES AT GLASTONBURY

Mr. Frederick Bligh Bond (Oxonian), ecclesiastical architect, archaeologist, and author of several books, was the speaker to the Women's Canadian Club and their friends, to the number of about three hundred, in the Canadian Legion Hall last evening, giving his lecture, "Discoveries at Glastonbury," with lantern slides illustrative of the subject. The lecture was interesting and unusual in its subject matter, dealing, as it did, with discoveries of long-lost foundations of buildings, by the aid of messages received from monks dead centuries ago, through the agency of automatic writing, practised by a friend of the speaker, working in mental conjunction with himself.

Mr. Bond startled archaeologists of England some years ago by his discovery, after years of unsuccessful search by brother antiquarians, of the King Edgar Chapel and the Chapel of Our Lady of Loretto, in Glastonbury Abbey, whose exact locations had been subjects of controversy for generations among English antiquarians, and had been the matter of varied speculation and widely diverging opinion among learned delvers into the past and its secrets.

The speaker, who was introduced by the President of the Women's Canadian Club, Mrs. Forbes Allan, prefaced his discourse with a brief outline of his personal belief, strengthened by these discoveries, of the immortality of Mind, Memory, and Personality.

"There is a large part of our mental makeup that we are not fully able to control in our waking life," he said. "Memory plays some stronge tricks with us. Little experiences of childhood are constantly cropping up in our mature minds, without our active volition, and it is well known that a drowning person, or one under the influence of ether or chloroform, will have the scroll of his whole life suddenly unfolded before him, almost in the twinkling of an eye. There are many latent powers of the mind also in the way of telepathy and thought transference. We are just emerging from a wave of great materialism into a realization of the fact that spirit is superior to body and that psychical realities are greater than material values. Therefore anything that tends to lift people out of the rut of materialism which is a source of such great unhappiness to many is, in my mind, a boon to humanity."

Speaking of the belief held through many ages of what was called by the Greeks and Romans the "genus loci" of a place, and was also given popular approval in mediaeval times by the holding of pilgrimages to sacred spots, Mr. Bond said that Glastonbury Abbey was a peculiarly fitting place in which to carry out such experiments, as, in religious history, its influence dated back farther than any other spot in the British Isles. "As Jerusalem was to the Jews, Athens to the Greeks, Rome to the Romans, and Mecca to the Mohammedans, so was Glastonbury in the old days to this race of ours."

Mr. Bond, with the aid of a series of interesting slides, then illustrated the progress of the discoveries made at Glastonbury, showing the plans of the ancient building, glorious in its time, later to fall a victim to the demolition orders of Henry the Eighth, with many other of the famous monasteries of the day, as they were mentally projected by antiquarians who had little data for their imaginary reconstructions.

The Chapel of King Edgar was the source of much animated controversy for many generations among antiquarians of England. Its dimensions and exact situation were bandied back and forth, and it remained for Mr. Bligh Bond to excavate at the exact spot where ruins of the ancient foundations still remained, in 1907, after receiving minute instructions from his friend, Captain John Allen Bartlett, known as "John Alleyne" in the speaker's later books on the subject. Sitting with his friend in mental communion from time to time, messages in automatic writing, mainly in Latin and in obsolete French, were received from "William the Monk," who told in curious fashion, some of the happenings in the ancient Abbey and gave directions to the two friends as to how to proceed in their investigations. Later, when these investigations were carried out, the instructions were found to be correct in every detail, overturning, in many instances, some of the long-held and cherished theories of leading antiquarian lights.

Sketches of the ancient Abbey were shown and of the ruins which still remain, giving glimpses of the long-lost splendors and architectural beauties of the great edifice, which stood on what was called the Island of Avalon in former times, an isolated spot surrounded by locks and fens which hemmed it in from the outside world.

The record of the messages was very interesting, showing, as it did, the differences later, smoothed out by actual discoveries, between the written directions of the long-dead monk and the actual ideas held in modern times by authorities in archaeological circles, whose cherished theories were in many instances rudely dispelled forever by the light of truth which emanated from these spiritual directions. Mr. Bond spoke in humorous fashion of his own conflicts with existing ideas, as personified in the authorities who now control the Abbey and its purlieus, when he attempted to carry out the instructions so received, but he finally triumphed in this case and also in the case of the discovery of the long-lost Chapel of Our Lady of Loretto, which followed a few years later, through the same agency.

Interesting views were also shown of the extremely old pillar of St. David, erected over the church which was supposed to have been built by Joseph of Arimathea himself, with the construction, as followed out in those days, of a circular row of huts, conforming to the lines of the zodiac, around the edifice. Foundations of some of these early erections were also discovered by Mr. Bond, on directions received from a lady who has the gift of automatic writing and who was directed to forward her messages to him by the spiritual envoy who gave her minute directions as to their situation and dimensions.

A vote of thanks to the speaker for his interesting and instructive address was moved at the conclusion of the programme, by Miss A. M. Lancaster, and seconded by Mrs. W. R. Morris. A vote of thanks was also tendered to Mr. V. R. Henry, who operated the lantern for the slides.

An involuntary addition to the silent appreciation of the audience last night, probably inspired by the somewhat occult nature of the programme presented, was the more than usually audible procession of squeaks from the seats in the Canadian Legion Hall, which signified their approval or possibly it was disapproval of the theory advanced by the speaker, by loud manifestations from cranky joints.

NEW YORK, Nov 23. — Resumption of the upward movement of prices in to-day's stock market was featured by a series of bullish demonstrations in special issues that give promie of favorable dividend action in the near future or hold prospects of unusually heavy holiday business. With only a slight increase in brokers' loans reported by the Federal Reserve Bank last week operators for the rise saw nothing in the credit situation to interfere with their campaign for higher prices.

United States Steel and General Motors continued to receive good buying support but Baldwin was in rather heavy supply as a result of reiteration of official denials that an early sale of the Philadelphia real estate was contemplated. Rails also were in greater demand following the publication of a series of Oct. earnings statements, making favorable compariosn with the same month last year.

Apprehension over earnings and dividend outlook for New York Canners and Moon Motors undoubtedly inspired further liquidation of these stocks, which sent them to new low levels for the year. On the other hand, Studebaker was marked up seven points above yesterday's final quotation and some of the other automotive shares moved up a point or so.

Heaviness of Baldwin did not dampen the bullish enthusiasm for other equipments, American Brake Shoe and Foundry, Westinghouse Airbrake and General American Tank Car, each climbing at least two points, the strength of the last named being associated with unconfirmed merger reports.

Fishing Again Features Toronto Market Session

TORONTO, Nov. 23.— (Canadian Press.) — British Columbia Fishing was again the feature in volume of trading on the Toronto stock exchange to-day, with more than 1,300 shares changing hands and the issue registering a gain of 1-4 at 96 3-8. The market was very active and gains outnumbered losses. Brazilian Traction, another busy issue, advanced 1-4 at 104 3-4. Atlantic Sugar was 5-8 higher at 27 1-2, Industrial Alcohol up 1-8 at 24 1-4, and Consolidated Smelters up 1-2. International Nickle declined 3-8 at 37, Page Heresy common was 1-8 down at 54 3-4, and the Preferred was down 3-8 at 115 5-8. In the unlisted market, Gooderham and Worts was down 1-4 at 33 1-2, British American Oil up 3-8 to 69 7-8, and McColl Bros' Oil up 1-4 at 22 1-4.

Mine Trading Slow Prices Average Lower

TORONTO, Nov. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—Trading was slow on the standard mining exchange today, only 294,947 shares being dealt in and prices being lower in the majority of cases. Argonaut Consolidated was down 1-2 at 56, Barry Hollinger down one at 89, Canadian Lorraine down 3-4 at 69 and Dome Mines down five at 10.75. Castle Trethewey was up one at 118. Kirkland Lake down 3-4, Lake Shore down ten at 14.20, and McIntyre, down 15 at 23.60, were among the lower issues. Nipissing registered a gain of five at 555 and Teck Hughes was up three at 493.

Wheat Prices Lower On Grain Market To-day

CHICAGO, November 23. Canadian Press. — Selling on the part of houses with connections in the north west, did a good deal to bring about lower prices early to-day in the wheat market here. Argentine reports of seasonable weather had a contributing bearish effect. Starting at 3-8c decline to 1-8c advance, wheat underwent a moderate general downturn. Corn, oats and provisions were also easier, corn opening unchanged to ⅛c off and subsequently showing losses all around.

Opening prices were: Wheat Dec 1.35¼, May 1.38 7-8, corn Dec 69 7-8, May 78 7-8; oats Dec 40 7-8, May 45 3-4.

SALVATION ARMY YOUNG PEOPLE HOLDING RALLY

Delegates and Speakers Coming From All Over the District.

250 TO ATTEND.

Meetings Will Be Held on Saturday and Sunday.

Between two hundred and two hundred and fifty of the young people of the city and district are expected for the Monster Rally of Young People which will be held here under Salvation Army auspices over the coming week end. Among the leaders of the Salvation Army who will be present for the occasion will be Colonel Robert Henry of Toronto, chief secretary for Eastern Canada, who will be in charge of the week end meetings and will be assisted by Colonel Adby, Territorial Young People's Secretary, Brigadier Bloss, Staff Captain Ritchie, Staff Captain Spooner, Adjutant Ellery, and Ensign Deboivse, editor of "The Young Soldier." Others from out of town who expect to be present are Captain and Mrs. Gage of Cobourg, Captain Wiles of Port Hope, Captain Murgatroyd, of Lindsay, Adjutant and Mrs. Rix of Fenelon Falls, Captain Wright of Campbellford, and Mrs. (Commandant) Squarebriggs of Belleville.

On Saturday evening, a demonstration will be given of young people's activities in the Salvation Army. The Cobourg Scouts and the Young Peoples' String Band from Fenelon Falls will be in attendance and a group of local young people from the city and from Brownton will also take part. The Peterborough Senior and Young People's Bands will provide the music, and the finale will be a tableau, with the various sections of young peoples' activities participating in it.

The meetings on Sunday will be held in the Canadian Legion Hall at 10.30 a.m., 2.30 p.m. and 6.30 p.m., and will be of an inspirational and spiritual character. In the afternoon, reports on young people's work will be given by leading officers and also local members of the Salvation Army. These meetings will be of a private nature, open to young people of the Salvation Army, from the ages of thirteen to twenty-five years.

The usual Sunday meetings of the Army will be held in the Temple, with Captain Gage of Cobourg, in charge of the morning service, Captain Wright of Campbellford, in the afternoon, and Captain Murgatroyd of Lindsay, in the evening. Luncheon will be served on Sunday in the Young People's Temple on Aylmer street.

WEDDING BELLS.

TELFORD—MILSTEAD.

St. James' United Church Parsonage was the scene of a quiet wedding on Saturday evening, Nov. 20, when Edith Elizabeth, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Milstead, was united in marriage to Robert Bruce Telford, son of Mr. Robert Telford and the late Mrs. Telford.

The ceremony was conducted by Rev. J. D. Richardson, M.A.

The bride wore a dress of blue flat crepe, coat of muskrat and fox and small black hat, and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. After a reception held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Ruth, 450 George street south, the happy couple left on a motor trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Telford will reside at 78 McDonnel street.

LEE—HUTCHINSON.

The wedding was solemnized at Trinity Church Parsonage last evening by the pastor, Rev. D. Wren, M.A., B.D., of Raymond Joseph Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Lee of Otonabee Township, and Viola May Hutchinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Hutchinson of Fraserville. Attendants were Miss Irene Todd and Mr. R. D. Fuller of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Lee will reside at 500 Chamberlain Street.

OBITUARY.

THOMAS GRIFFITH WILSON.

There pased away in Toronto last night Thomas Griffith Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman M. Wilson, at the age of four months. Funeral in Toronto to-morrow.

ANDREW ALLISON.

There passed away early this morning an old resident of Peterborough, in the person of Andrew Allison has lived in this city for 875 Water street. The late Mr. Alilson hs lived in this city for about 50 years. He is survived by his wife, four sons, W. A., of London, Norman of Brantford, and R. H. and E. H. of Peterborough, and one daughter, Mrs. H. L. Reeve, of Port Hope.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon at 2.00 o'clock, from the family residence, 875 Water street, to Little Lake cemetery. The Rev. J. E. Todd, of George street United church, will officiate.

MRS. RALPH ROSS.

The death occurred at Wellesley Hospital, Toronto, of Ella Louise Wrighton Ross, beloved wife of Ral. J. Ross, of Georgetown, Ont, on Monday afternoon, Nov. 22nd.

Mrs. Ross was the elder daughter of the late William Hall Wrighton, and Catherine May Wrighton, and granddaughter of William Henry Wrighton, Clerk of the Peace, and Deputy Clerk of the Crown for Peterborough. Her home was in Peterborough until her marriage to Ralph Ross of Brockville, now of Georgetown. She was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church in Dr. Torrance's time. She was a talented musician, educated at Loretto Abbey, Toronto, and during her stay in Pembroke, Ont., was organist of Calvin Presbyterian Church. Her grandparents came to Peterborough, from Demerara, B.W.I., in 1839, when so many English families settled here. They lived in what was then known as "The Haunted House," which still stands near the Oval, in East Nicholls Park. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Ralph Ross, of Georgetown, a son, William Wrighton Eustace Ross of Toronto, a daughter, Mrs. Clarence Tuer, of Halleybury, Ont., and an only sister, Mrs. Burton H. Brooks, of Plattsburg, N. Y.

The funeral will be in Georgetown, Ont.

"Certain of the Ferguson clan seem to be pretty strong on the side of the wets in this campaign. There is, first and foremost, the Premier, Hon. J. Howard Ferguson, and then there are Mrs. Emily Murphy of Edmonton and her brother, Mr. Harcourt Ferguson, K.C., of Toronto, who is a director of the Gooderham & Worts Company, and lastly Mr. R. T. Ferguson, lawyer, of Winnipeg, who appeared in 1920 for his clients, the Canadian distillers, before a committee of the Ontario legislature which had been appointed to enquire how to improve O.T.A. enforcement."—The Star, Toronto, Ont.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN

(Contributed.)

"Should a promise, that ought never to have been made, be kept?" was a question that was asked and answered from the pulpit of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Sunday evening during the prelude which has been a feature for some weeks of the evening services, to the regular sermon. Rev. Mr. Allan stated that he had been informed frequently since coming to Peterborough that in the heat of the moment following the vote on Church Union many members of the congregation had been induced to sign a document binding themselves not to worship in St. Paul's Church. At first he could scarcely credit it, but there are some among those who signed it who do not hesitate to say that they are not happy in their new connections, and who express their regret that they signed it. When people have a doubt as to whether or not something they have done is wrong, it at least indicates that it was. The guilt for such a situation rests primarily with those who seized upon such a moment of controversy to induce people to sign something which they realized these people in calmer moments were likely to regret. Promises given under such circumstances, and where such regret was felt, should not be kept. The best method of rescinding their action would rest individually with those who took it.

New Organ

Those who have been attending St. Paul's Church during recent weeks have been somewhat amazed at the intricate character of the immense new organ that is being installed. For three weeks sections of the pews on one side of the church have been occupied by thousands upon thousands of parts for the new organ, which it is expected will be completed within less than three weeks. The choir loft, which is being completely altered and enlarged, will, it is expected, be completed about the same time as the organ. There is to be a new pulpit, new Communion table, and in fact so many changes connected with the organ, pulpit and choir loft, that it will make a great difference in the church. Last Sunday those who attended were interested to find that a large window had been cut in the south wall of the church, allowing a flood of light to come through from the large windows in the tower.

The purpose of this window is to prepare a place for the echo part of the organ, which is to be installed in this section of the tower. The window finally will be covered by a grating, which will admit freely the music from the echo part of the organ.

Great Bible Teacher Coming

Next Sunday the pulpit of St. Paul's Church will be occupied by one of the world's greatest Bible teachers, Dr. Ford C. Otman, Dean of the Stony Brook Boys' School, New York, who will speak morning and evening, and address special services for five days in the week following. Great halls in various parts of the United States, Australia and Canada, including Massey Hall, Toronto, have been crowded for days at a time to hear this noted speaker, who is also a well-known author, having written a number of books dealing with prophetic subjects. A cordial invitation is being extended to attend the services and hear this noted speaker.

Sunday Services

A question that is often asked: "Is it possible by a single act, to be saved for time and Eternity?" was answered in the affirmative by Rev. Mr. Allan at last Sunday evening's service. Mr. Allan stated that as soon as a person recognizes him or herself to be a sinner, and by a single act of faith accept the Crucified Christ as their atonement for sin, and the Risen Christ as their Saviour, they are as ready to enter the Kingdom of God as though they had lived a godly life for fifty years. Salvation comes through faith in Jesus Christ, not through right living.

The sermon proper dealt with the subject, "Are all men born equal?" The speaker pointed out that the Declaration of American Independence makes such a claim, and that for many years it has been widely accepted as true in the United States. Yet, he claimed that it was untrue. Doctors, he pointed out, have no hesitation in stating that people are not born with equal physiques. Teachers know that children are not born with minds of equal capacity. Politicians know that some men have much more power than others to influence the policies of governments. At the Cross of Christ, however, all men are equal. There they may receive forgiveness, freely, fully, and forever. Many people who have had the greatest advantages will receive the greater condemnation because of their refusal to accept the Salvation so freely offered them by God. Sovereign Grace can perform miracles in the lives of any who will give this Grace but half an opportunity to operate in their lives.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

Taking his text: "And they shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with great power and majesty" from the Gospel according to St. Matthew, 24:30, Rev. K. Corkery spoke at the half past ten o'clock Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday. He adjured his hearers to take advantage of the coming time of Advent to "redeem the faults of the past, to set ourselves right in the present and to resolve to prepare ourselves for that great day when we shall meet our God as our Judge."

Rev. Father Corkery drew a graphic word picture of the Last Day, when the beauty and grandeur of the physical world shall have passed away forever, and the trumpet of the angel shall summon the people of the world to meet their Judge. "We are fortunate indeed to have at hand the means to prepare ourselves for this meeting" said the reverend speaker, impressing on his congregation the necessity for fervent prayer, for attendance at the Blessed Sacrament, and for continuance in the proper modes of life.

Next Sunday, the third anniversary of the re-dedication of St. Peter's Cathedral, will be Observed by special services. Four morning Masses will be said, at seven, eight, nine-fifteen, and ten-thirty o'clock.

Propaganda, Like Liquor Running Wild

PROPAGANDA in opposition to the Government plan of dealing with the liquor problem seems, as the Peel magistrate said about liquor under the O.T.A., to be running wild."

Some friends of the O.T.A. in the local campaign are guilty of tactics that dovetail very poorly with the pretensions that all the Christianity and temperance and decency are to be found in their camp.

THE SPECTACLE OF A MAN who has fought against Conservative candidates in one campaign after another posing as a life-long Tory who is reluctantly forced to oppose his party now because of the O.T.A. issue, and allowing that impression to be broadcast throughout the province to influence voters who do not know the facts IS NOT A PRETTY ONE.

The publishing of an absolute and unblushing falsehood, that Judge Murphy is a relative of Premier Ferguson and that she constructed and coloured her opinion of Government control on his behalf "because blood is thicker than water", was an act that deserves the condemnation of every elector who puts any value upon truth.

Equally questionable and inexcusable is the attempt that is being made to fool the electors by the circulation of literature picturing the consequences of the establishment of beer parlours in Ontario.

The people who authorized those circulars to be distributed must know the truth.

They must know that the Government's policy, the issue to be voted on on December 1st, has nothing to do with beer parlours; that it proposes only the sale of liquor and beer in sealed packages by Government vendors.

The must know that the question of beer parlours is as irrevelant as the colour of the candidates' hair.

Yet, knowing all this, they seek to convey to the electors the impression that if the Ferguson Government is returned, the old bar-room conditions will be restored.

This unpardonable attempt at deception is on a par with the failure of the Prohibition Union to deal in its propaganda with the real question: "Would Government Control AS PROPOSED FOR ONTARIO be an improvement over the O.T.A.?"

They attack Government Control in other provinces—in spite of the fact that the majority of people in those provinces seem to be satisfied with the results—and the flaws they find in the control system in almost every case have been eliminated from the Ontario Act.

What is the sense of harping about the sale of beer by the glass?

The Government does not propose to sell beer by the glass in Ontario.

What is the sense of telling the people that beer parlours are a failure in Quebec?

The Government does not propose to establish beer parlours in Ontario.

Remember these points, for judging by the nature of the propaganda used on behalf of the O.T.A. so far in the campaign, a flood of arguments either irrevelent, dubious or grossly inaccurate may be expected.

Attractive Programme Given By Property Committee on Monday Evening.

LAKEFIELD, Nov 23. — The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Church celebrated their fifteenth birthday on Monday evening, November 15th, when the property committee (Mrs. Trude Waldon, Mrs C. C. Stenner, and Mr. Walter Chappell) provided a very attractive programme which began at 7 o'clock with a supper which might easily be termed a banquet, so generous and varied were the viands provided. The room was decorated tastefully, in the A.Y.P.A. colors, blue and white, with lampshades to match and the table also was decorated with blue streamers and centered by a beautiful birthday cake ,with the dates inscribed on its decorated icing, 1911-1926, and decorated with fifteen blue candles. The cake was baked by Miss Amy Watson, and iced by Mr. C. C. Stenner.

A feature of the happy occasion was the presence of four of the original members of the society who have remained members for the entire period of the society's existence, Mrs. Trude Waldon, Misses Amy Watson and Blanche Graham and Mr. Reg. Murduff. After the major portion of the supper was concluded the candles were lighted on the cake and it was cut by Mrs. Cox and passed amid much merriment, for it contained several charms which were eagerly sought for.

Following this the gifts which formed part of the shower to the A.Y.P.A. by its members were opened, and a very fine addition was made to the equipment of the society: spoons, knives, tea towels, a pail, creamers and sugar bowls, etc., were contributed and will add not a little to the properties.

An informal presentation of a pipe in a case was made to Rev. Mr. Cox by the men of the society with the hearty wish that "All your troubles will go up in smoke," and the lady members presented Mrs. Cox with a linen tea cloth, made and embroidered in China, as a remembrance of many happy occasions when Mrs. Cox worked with the society, in their preparations for the numerous parish events in which the A.Y.P.A. bore a part.

Mr. Cox replied for himself and his wife, assuring them of their appreciation, not only of the gifts but of the kindly wishes which prompted them. Their relations with the A.Y.P.A. had always been pleasant, and would remain cherished memories.

The business of the evening was then put through. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. Cox, was read by Mr. Cox, which showed a splendid balance on hand after all the expenses in connection with the redecoration of the Sunday School had been paid.

Mr. Ernest Robertshaw was appointed to succeed Mrs. Cox as treasurer; Miss Hazel Crawford, the secretary, tendered her resignation as ,owing to present conditions she has not time to attend to the duties; Miss Grace Watson was appointed to succeed her.

The remainder of the evening was spent in contests, one especially was very amusing. Squares of white cotton were distributed and each person was given a needle and black thread and told to embroider the semblance of the animal whose name was written in their square; no pencils to be used. Every one was busy for the next few minutes, as the contest taxed one's ingenuity. Some remarkable results were pinned up, but the judges, Messrs. White and Robinson gave the prize to Miss Hazel Crawford, who design of a weazel was really splendid.

A picture puzzle contest was won by Mr. William Hamblin, and a "buzz" contest by Mr. T. A. Simpson.

Befort breaking up, that time-honored "good-bye song" was sung in the manner brought from Old Scotia, and copied by Canadians of every race: "Auld Lang Syne."

The occasion was a happy one, as the A.Y.P.A. in fifteen years has a long record of accomplishments behind it, as a community society as well as a parish organization. A remarkable record is, that in all the fifteen years, the society has only seen three presidents, viz., Rev. H. A. Ben-Oliel (now of Collingwood), 1911-1915; Mrs. Trude Waldon, 1915-1921, and Mr. C. C. Stenner, 1921-1926.

A sad note was the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Cox, who have been identified with the branch very closely, and who have been faithful in attendance both at the branch meetings and at district gatherings, where they have made many friends.

Euchre Party

The ladies of St. Paul's Church held a very successful euchre party on Tuesday evening in the rotunda of the Lakefield House, when fifteen tables were played and a very jolly evening was spent. A competent committee of ladies was in charge and the large crowd had a very jolly time. Miss Odell Watson and Mr. Reg. Murduff won the first prizes and Miss Yvonne Stuart and Mr. John Charlton the consolation prizes.

Mrs. George Charlton is president of the Catholic Women's League and she and the other officers and members deserve to be congratulated on the success of the affair which is the first held since last May on the eve of Mr. and Mrs. Lawless' departure for the Old Land.

Afternoon Tea

The Young Women's Auxiliary of the United (Presbyterian) Church held a successful afternoon tea and sale of home-cooking and candy in the rooms formerly occupied by the Paris Cafe on Saturday afternoon last. Mrs. Bailey was matron in charge. The girls wore neat uniforms consisting of blue skirts with white middies and were a very attractive group of happy Canadian girls. Misses Mary Tanner, Marion Payne and Helen Burgess were in charge of the candy and cake stall, and Misses Phyllis Morrison, Beatrice Charlton ,Helen Porter and Margaret Tanner served tea. The afternoon neted a very creditable sum, and the girls were delighted with their success.

Baptist Services

On Sunday morning, at the 11 o'clock service the pastor will speak on "Mountain Peaks of Life," or "What Does Jesus Say About Himself," and in the evening, at the 7 o'clock service, the subject will be "The Big Four," the subject being illustrated by the use of beautiful oil paintings.

The aniversary services of the Lakefield Baptist Church will be held on Sunday, November 28th and Monday, the 29th. Services will be held at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Sunday, with special thankofferings at both services.

At the morning service Rev. W. Spencer will speak on "The Measure and Motive of the Service of the Church," and in the evening, Rev. Gordon M. Holmes, B.A., B.T.H., of Lindsay, will give the anniversary message, and as he is a pleasing speaker, the congregation is assured of an inspiring sermon.

On Monday evening the choir of Murray Street Church, Peterborough under the direction of Mr. Francis Sutton, A.T.C.M., will give a sacred concert in the church, which promises to be a real treat. The concert will begin at 8 p.m.

It is more than probable that the autumn season in the rink will close with a Sports Night, with an attractive programme of sports for old and young, and several novelty numbers. It will be arranged in the near future at the close of the hunting season.

C. P. R. DANCE

Auspices of Recreation Club in Town Hall, Havelock.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 23. — The dance held in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Havelock C. P. R. Recreation Club was a very successful event. The hall was gayly decorated with the C. P. R. colors, green, blue, red and white, and an engine headlight mounted on the stage was used by means of slides to announce the programme, which consisted of round and square dancing. Mr. Harry Wagner and his associates, of Peterboro, supplied the music for the round dancing, while Messrs. Joseph Little, Ray Peters and Harry Sexsmith furnished the music for the square dances, with Mr. Heron McMullen as floor manager. During the evening a splendid demonstration of the charlston was given by two small girls, Misses Isabella Plunkett and Verlen Thompson, age eight and six, respectively.

Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies of the club, and the proceeds amounted to about $98.

Annual Dinner.

The annual dinner in the basement of St. John's Anglican Church on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the St. John's Parish Guild, attracted a big crowd in spite of the very inclement weather, and the ladies had their hands full in handling the large number that came to partake of the good things provided for them. Decorative touches of yellow fringed crepe paper made the school room present a very attractive appearance. Owing to lack of accomodation, there was no program. Rev. W. R. Archer, of the United church, was called on by the rector to address the gathering. The proceeds were about $90.

Mr. Frederick Bligh Bond, who was the speaker at the Women's Canadian Club last evening, was guest of honor at small affairs given for him by his hostess, Mrs. F. M. Dela Fosse, and Mrs. F. D. Kerr.

A group of friends of Rev. Harold Young, pastor of St. Paul's United Church, Avenue Road, Toronto, and former pastor of George Street Methodist Church here, gathered on Friday evening and presented him with a sedan car, as a token of their esteem.

Mr. Boddington of Toronto, who was guest soloist at Trinity Church on Sunday, singing at both services, made a splendid impression on his audiences with his rendition of several beautiful solos in his fine lyric tenor voice.

Mrs. Alex. Darling was hostess on Saturday evening at a bridge party and cup and saucer shower, given in honor of Miss Jean Wilgar, whose marriage takes place soon.

Mr. Thomas Poole, formerly of Toronto, who has purchased a farm in this district, where he will reside in future, was presented by his fellow-employees of the Ward Street Works of the Canadian General Electric Company's Toronto plant, with a handsome cheque, prior to his departure for Peterborough.

The twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. J. Hillier, 98 Lansdowne Street, was fittingly observed recently when about seventy-five of their friends gathered at their home, which was prettily decorated for the occasion with autumn leaves and roses. A miniature bride and bridegroom, Gladys Cowan and Lucille Hillier, brought in a basket of beautiful gifts, to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Miss Marguerite Cowan. The bride's bouquet was caught by the Misses Myrtle Bradley and Lillian Gregory. After the presentation of the gifts to their hosts, refreshments were served, and the evening spent in dancing, to music supplied by Stevens Orchestra of Harwood.

Q.—Who was Sam Slick?

A.—Sam Slick was the pen name of Judge Haliburton, of Windsor, Nova Scotia, who wrote many humorous books over a generation ago and which are still popular. Their success lay in their accurate portrayal of certain New England and Maritime types of his day which are still cognizable there and elsewhere as racy of the soil.

HOROSCOPE

"The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24 1926

Mercury, Venus and the Sun are in benefic aspect to-day, according to astrology. Mars and Uranus are adverse.

This is a rule most auspicious for every sort of publicity and especially for advertising theatres and places of amusement.

Women should benefit particularly while this sway prevails, for it appears to promise them support in public movements.

Many new campaigns for civic righteousness and political reform are prognosticated and in these women will be prominent.

This is an auspicious day for seeking employment and women should be unusually lucky.

This is one of the rarely auspicious wedding days in which they who plight their truth may be reasonably sure of harmony and prosperity.

Mars to-day menaces certain lines of work and appears to forecast much trouble over municipal improvements, especially where streets are concerned. Many cities will be affected by the rule of the stars.

Contests of opinion and even of political strength may be expected over armaments, the seers foretell.

Oil and shipping interests are to profit greatly and new discoveries of the earth's resources are to be expected.

A blaze of criticism may kindle in Europe concerning the foreign policies of the United States, the seers again prophesy, and it will be fanned by new misapprehensions.

Water and air are to be the mediums of more disasters. It will be recalled that at the beginning of the year great floods were foretold.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the prospect of an active, profitable year in which land and other properties should be extraordinarily productive.

Children born on this day probably will reach eminence in any vocation which may be selected. Girls have the augury of advantageous marriages.

WHAT'S IN A NAME ?

(By Mildred Marshall.)

Facts about your name, its history; its meaning; whence it was derived; its significance; your lucky day, and lucky jewel.

LOLA

(By The McClure Syndicate.)

About the time that Carmen and Juanita came into vogue in country, the Spanish favorite Lola was also introduced. Somehow, it seems, less foreign than the other two members of the trio and it has had more widespread usage. Though the most feminine of names and generally associated with the Spanish coquette idea, with flashing black eyes and slender ankles and the click of the castanets, the name signifies "man." This meaning, however, is easily accounted for since Lola, far back in her early history, was associated with old Karling Romances.

It is rather curious that a Spanish name should originate in Germany, yet such is the case in this instance. Lola's earliest ancestor was the great Carlo Magno of romance and ballad. But the evolution of the name into Lola is really no more curious than the manner in which the Teutonic lay-figure hero received his title. According to the story, he was put out to nurse as an infant, and when brought home much grown, his mother exclaimed: "What great carle in this?" Thus, he came to be called Karl, instead of David, which was his baptismal name.

After the wave of Karls and Charles' had overspread Europe, Carlota made her appearance in Spain. Carlota of Savoy, who married Louis XI of France, rendered the name famous. It was used by all manner of maids throughout Spain, and, when it was contracted, Lola was considered more euphonius and more Latin than Lota.

The moonstone is Lola's talismanic gem. It is said to bring her the love she desires and it is particularly efficacious in securing admiration for her. Monday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number.

LOVE LETTERS THAT MADE HISTORY

(By Joseph Kaye.)

FREDERICK SHIELDS AND A MODEL

(By The McClure Syndicate.)

A highly cultured, religiously minded man of forty and a beautiful, life-loving, untutored model of sixteen made a match of it and regretted it for the rest of their lives. The man was the world-famous artist, Frederick Shields; the girl was a model of his whom he had known from childhood. He had attempted, in his own rigorous way, to educate her. The fact that the little model was becoming a woman and that some talk was being heard annent their relations brought on the marriage; or perhaps Shields was afraid of their relations, assuming involuntarily a closer intimacy than his conscience would permit.

The following are some extracts from Shields' letters to his wife before and after their marriage, and serve, to some extent, to show the disparity between them:

Sunday, August 4, 1873.

"My beloved: I am anxious about you; surely I ought to have heard from you this morning, if letters were delivered in London on Sunday—but they are not—the postman rests on this day, and so I must wait until to-morrow. You knew how much I dislike writing letters. Yet, for you, look how I have written this week. You might have spared me a few poor lines. I have just returned, having had to walk six miles to Chapel and back, and am too tired to write more than God Bless You. Take care of this poem, please; a good lady gave it to me and you will like it. Ever your own, Frederick."

Paris, May 19, 1876.

"My dearest Wife: First, my thanks are due to God on reaching Paris safely; my next duty and pleasure is to write you.

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder and when I am away from you I love you more and more, for I can think of you best without being vexed at those rude little ways and sayings which so often cut me deeply when we are together. I feel as if I had been parted from you a year already and I shall be as impatient as you can be to see your face, my sweet one, in peace.

"Paris is a city of wonders. Deluged with blood only four years ago, it bears scarcely a mark of the awful struggle now, so hard have they worked to restore it. I hope you are as happy as you can be in my absence. How strange it was that I should open, the first morning I was here, at the xviii chapter of Revelation and cast my eye upon the 15th verse—'For if any city in the world lives as Babylon, without God, it is surely this. . . .'

"The Lord preserve us both from the worst evil, a sinful disobedient will; all will then be well here and hereafter, come what else will. Ten thousand kisses, my own love. Ever your true husband, Frederick J. Shields."

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

THE GREAT OUT-OF-DOORS

By Alma Whitaker.

People who write can be extraordinary humbugs about their love of "the great out-of-doors." I have been checking up on a few literary "great-out-of-doors" lovers lately and most of them abide very much indoors.

In fact, I believe the best poems and stories about Nature and the joys of the open air were written by gentlemen who live in apartment houses and eat in stuffy cafes, and use most of their leisure frequenting indoor shows and parties, and I suspect them of even sleeping with their windows closed at night.

There is one actor in particular who shines at great-out-of-door roles, who ought to live on a ranch and sleep at least on an open porch, and rush far from the madding crowd whenever he gets a chance and back in the simple life and back-to-nature stuff. But he does not. He lives in a stylish bijou bungalow, crowded with furniture and draperies and objets d'art—and he doesn't even know what is growing in his own back garden. When he does have to go on a great open-space location, he insists upon living in the nearest hotel, driving back and forth in a closed car, and having all his trunks along.

Nature From a 10-story Hotel Room.

A poet I know who can write perfectly sweet things about the superior joys of Nature and God's great open spaces and communing with his soul far from vulgar cities, lives in a ten-story hotel back-room—and is quite the worst guest on a picnic we ever encountered. No one is more tortured by a chilly breeze, or the mosquitos or the ants or the flies—than our great-out-of doors poet. And he once told us feelingly that he sure hated eating off his lap—and seeing things fried over a camp fire.

Of course, it is fashionable to love Nature and the joyous open air nowadays, but very few people really do. It is one of those things to talk and dream about in a modern flat with all the latest conveniences, or round a cafe table with the band jazzing away. We have become altogether too much addicted to good plumbing, comfortable chairs and fancy table adornments to appreciate Nature anywhere but in motion pictures.

The Simple Life in Small Doses.

When we feel we positively must have the great-out-of-doors, we prefer to get to it in a comfortable closed car, and find a first-class modern resort at the other end, and proper dressing rooms in which to change our clothes for bathing, and a course dinner awaiting us after an hour's hike in rather fancy hiking suits. Our idea of basking in Nature's majestic ocean charms, is to have a beach tent that protects us from the sun and wind, or to go speeding in a fancy boat, fitted with an awning, arm-chairs, and preferably with a good chef on board. Even then, one day of it satisfied our ardent yearns.

Of course, if we really loved God's great-out-of-doors, there is nothing cheaper and easier to enjoy—unless we just have to have all the modern conveniences as well. There is any amount of God's out-of-doors left to bask in. But without plumbing, gas cooking, electric light and soft mattresses, very few of us can stand it for long. Most of us prefer our great-out-of-doors in snatched weekends, preferably visiting somebody with a nice modern country place and a first-class cook, and where it is advisable to take our evening clothes along.

I know one great-out-of-doors exponent who, invited to a rustic beach cottage, spends all his time in the room playing poker and listening to a radio. But he will swell his chest and stand in the doorway and rhapsodize "This is the life! Give me the great open spaces." And he writes beautifully about it.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

This Roumanian peasant blouse is of white crepe de chine embroidered in bright colors and tied at the arms and neck with red cord and tassel. It is worn with a black velvet bolero.

Enterprising merchants sometimes avail themselves of first page newspaper advertisements without paying for it. There is nothing unfair about it and it really is clever. Take, for instance, the Roumanian episode. For weeks every newspaper displayed the name of Marie of Roumania in bold letters in prominent places. That focussed the thoughts of the public on Roumania. At the same time clever merchants displayed advertisements in less prominent sections of the papers, telling of this, that or the other Roumanian novelty. These advertisements have only to re-echo the notes that have already been trumpeted very loudly.

If a merchant should have tried within the past few weeks to interest people in novelties from the Punjab or Afghanistan, very few people would even notice the announcements. But their eyes are open to everything Roumanian.

There is much to be admired in Roumanian art and costumery and we may indeed thank Queen Marie for having popularized this sort of thing among us. The heavy, wide-sleeved blouse, full skirt, coarse apron, unwieldy sheepskin coats and other details of the real Roumanian costume no American would want to wear, but there is much that may be adapted, especially the colorful rich embroidery.

In a way we are well prepared for this Roumanian influence. Ever since the war there have been Russian exiles in Paris who have brought their knowledge of native Russian arts to bear on the making of lovely embroideries. Public events have also popularized the art of Czecho-Slovakia. And there is much of the Roumanian costume and embroidery that suggests the products of these other countries of eastern Europe.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

The amethyst is today's talismanic gem. It is declared to make its wearer astute, shrewd in business, and logical. The traveler and the soldier should adopt the amethyst as a charm, since it is sure to bring them good luck.

The natal stone for today is the lapis-lazuli, which protects its wearer from melancholy and morbid thoughts, and brings courage and determination.

Rose color is today's fortunate hue, especially for those who seek social preferment, since it attracts to them those whom they would know.

Today's flower is the zinnia, potent in creating an atmosphere of peace, affectionate comradeship and beauty.

RAILWAY MEN VOTE TO STRIKE

INCREASE REFUSED.

MONTREAL, November 23. — Canadian Press. — The vote of the railway trainmen and conductors, the count of which has been concluded in Montreal, on the question of acceptance or rejection of the report of the Board of Conciliation, which refused to accede to the men's demands for an increase in wage rates, is overwhelmingly in favor of a strike. This was given out this morning by S. N. Berry, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors.

No figures were announced, but it was stated that these would be issued at noon to-day.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

It is rather terrifying to be caught out in the rain or wet snow in a new fur coat. You feel fearful lest the fur is ruined, and probably you don't know what to do about it. The less you do the better. The fur that is wet should be hung up to dry in a cool, but not cold, place. Never put it in a warm place or before a radiator or fire to dry. Don't think anything more about it until it has become thoroughly dry. Then take a fairly stiff, rather fine brush and briskly brush the fur. You may even comb it with a coarse-toothed comb. Some women have very coarse-toothed metal combs of the sort sold to brush long-haired dogs. Carefully comb the fur with a comb of this sort when it has become slightly matted through exposure to moisture.

However, if your fur seems really injured by its wetting don't try anything else, take it to a good furrier. It is remarkable what he can do to restore the beauty of fur. But then this need not surprise you when you consider how different the finished fur is from the unattractive looking skin that is known as the raw pelt of even a high-class fur.

Some furriers recommend occasional combing and brushing at home for good furs. It is, of course, highly desirable to keep them free from dust and to keep the fur from matting down. If you have a fine fur coat it is a good plan to get your fur dealer to tell you just what sort of treatment that particular sort of fur should have to kepe it in first-rate condition.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PUMPKIN PIE

(By Howard R. Garis.)

Such a wonderful pumpkin pie as it was! Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy had baked it for Thanksgiving, and Uncle Wiggily Longears, whose pie it was to be when Thursday came—why, the rabbit gentleman could hardly take his eyes from it.

"Oh, I just know I am going to enjoy that pie very much!" said Mr. Longears as he stood on the back stoop looking at the light brown crust and sniffing the delicious smell.

Now it might seem strange, unless I told you why, that a pumpkin pie should be out on the back stoop, as if waiting for the milkman's horse to come plop-plopping along. But the reason was that Nurse Jane had just baked the pie and it had been set out to cool.

"I can hardly wait for Thanksgiving to come!" laughed the bunny rabbit as he twinkled his pink nose at the pumpkin pie. "I think, to make the time pass more quickly—I think I shall hop along, look for an adventure and tell all the friends I meet about the treat I am going to have. Oh, you pumpkin pie!" and Uncle Wiggily waved his paw at the pie on the stoop.

Over the fields and through the woods he hopped.

"Why do you look so jolly to-day?" asked Mr. Stubtail, the bear gentleman, who was shuffling along through the forest, looking for a warm hollow tree in which to curl up and spend the winter.

"I am happy because I am going to have pumpkin pie for Thanksgiving," answered the bunny. "And I am also thankful."

"I wish I had a pumpkin pie," sighed Mr. Stubtail.

"You are quite welcome to come to my hollow stump bungalow and have some of mine," invited Uncle Wiggily, who was the most generous rabbit in all the world.

"Thank you, I'll come," growled the bear gentleman. He did not growl because he was cross, but because that was his way of speaking.

On hopped Uncle Wiggily, and pretty soon he met Mr. Twistytail, the gentleman pig. The bunny told the pig about the pumpkin pie and also invited Mr. Twistytail to come to the Thanksgiving feast.

"I'll come and I'll bring my wife and Curly and Twisty and Squeakie Squeeler, my little pigs," grunted Mr. Twistytail. "We are all fond of pumpkin pie."

When Mr. Twistytail had waddled along, Uncle Wiggily began to scratch his pink, twinkling nose.

"I don't know about this," murmured the rabbit gentleman to himself. "Here I've gone and invited Mr. Stubtail to have some of that pie, and I've invited Mr. Twistytail, and he's going to bring his whole family. Though I didn't invite them, I couldn't tell him not to let them come. And there is only one pumpkin pie. Whew! I'm afraid I have gotten myself in trouble. And bears are always so hungry! And pigs, too! What shall I do?"

"Oh, you pumpkin pie!" and Uncle Wiggily waved.

Then Uncle Wiggily looked across the field and, growing amid some shocks of corn, the bunny saw a large yellow pumpkin. At this his eyes glistened.

"I know what I can do!" said Mr. Longears. "I'll roll that big pumpkin to my bungalow and have Nurse Jane and my wife make a lot more pies. Then there will be enough for Mr. Stubtail, Mr. Twistytail and his family and for me and my forty 'leven little bunnies."

No sooner said than done. Uncle Wiggily nibbled the big yellow pumpkin loose from its stem, and began to roll it toward home, for it was too heavy to carry. But, oh, such troubles as he had!

The pumpkin rolled away from him and he had to chase it. Once it toppled over on his paw and he could hardly pull himself loose. And another time the pumpkin nearly bumped into Aunt Lettie, the goat, and made her nervous. And toward the end the bunny got the pumpkin to the top of a hill near his bungalow and let it roll down. And the yellow vegetable for pies smashed all to pieces against a big rock.

"Oh, dear! Alas! How unlucky!" sighed Uncle Wiggily.

"Why did you roll that pumpkin down hill?" asked Nurse Jane.

Uncle Wiggily told her about inviting the bear and pigs to help eat the pie. "I knew one pie wouldn't be enough," he said. "So I——"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the muskrat lady housekeeper. "As if I would only bake one pumpkin pie for Thanksgiving! Look here!" And she showed Mr. Longears where, in the pantry, there were a dozen pies.

"Well, I'm glad!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "Even if I did have all my work for nothing." And if the poodle dog doesn't get the comb so tangled in his fur that it won't come out, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily's molasses candy.

CAVAN NEWS

Mrs. H. Bigelow and daughter, Elinor, Grass Hill, were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Swain, on Monday.

On Monday Mrs. J. Swain had a family gathering at her home in honor of her mother's (Mrs. David Hunter) ninetieth birthday.

Besides the sons and daughters, there were grand-daughters and great-grandchildren. Besides those of the family who reside in this district, two daughters, Mrs. R. Swain, Valentia, and Mrs. G. Wallace, Alberta, were present.

Mr. James Foster held a sale of farm stock and implements on Thursday. He will reside in Cavan village, and Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will work his farm.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

FATHER'S CORNER

Father's corner, Father's chair,
There they are right over there.
That's the chair he likes the best,
That's the place he likes to rest.
When the day's hard work is done
There is one place, only one,
Fathers want when fathers tire,
Just a corner by the fire.

And how good it always seems
When the lamplight throws its beams
On his paper, on his book,
There within the inglenook.
Sometimes Father turns to say,
"Saw a funny thing today"—
Many lessons I have learned
While the cannel cracked and burned.

Some folks like to wander nights,
Join the dancing, see the sights,
But the boys and girls have found
It's a joy to join around
Father's chair and watch the flame,
Read a book, or play a game.
Love has made our house divine,
Father's corner for its shine.

Father's gray, and Father's years
Fill my mind with sudden fears,
Fears that time may leave them bare,
Father's corner, Father's chair.
But the memory would remain,
Heal the sorrow, still the pain,
One thing never can depart,
Father's corner in my heart.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.)

That smiles are the only things that do not go up and down in price; they are free—smile!

That the man who can smile all the while is always seeing the bright things in life.

That smiles bring happiness and happiness brings contentment, and where you find a contented people you find progress and plenty.

That smiles chase troubles away. Keep troubles moving fast!

That smiles help to make better business.

That people like to do business with stores who have clerks who know how to smile.

That people who smile are usually obliging and courteous as well.

That smiles help the growth of a city.

That strangers looking for a location, who are greeted with a smile, always get a good first impression of a city and a few more smiles usually lands them.

A city where the people know how to smile is usually a fine place in which to live and do business.

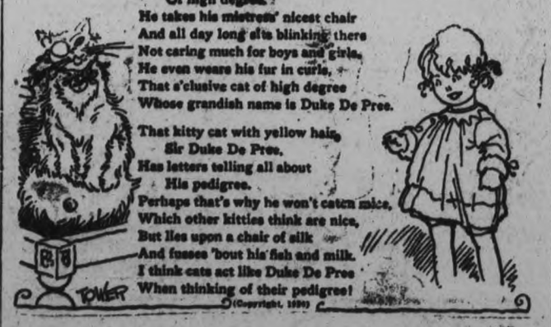
Sir Duke De Pree

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

TO be well born is one of life's finest gifts. To consider oneself superior is an acquired trait which is not commendable. The world's greatest folk have been its most gracious and simple mannered. A true aristocrat is never a snob, for he is too well bred to deliberately try to make others uncomfortable. I always smile a little at grown-ups who are haughty and snobbish as they're old enough to have learned how silly it is, but it seems a pity for a child to start the business of life with a haughty air. Everyone loves a kindly person while even a superior acting person resents similar behaviour in another.

THE kitty cat who lives next door,
Sir Duke De Pree,
Is certainly a s'clusive cat
Of high degree.
He takes his mistress' nicest chair
And all day long sits blinking there
Not caring much for boys and girls,
He even wears his fur in curls,
That s'clusive cat of high degree
Whose grandish name is Duke De Pree.

That kitty cat with yellow hair,
Sir Duke De Pree,
Has letters telling all about
His pedigree.
Perhaps that's why he won't eatem mice,
Which other kitties think are nice,
But lies upon a chair of silk
And fusses 'bout his fish and milk.
I think cats act like Duke De Pree
When thinking of their pedigree!



The Natural Way to Health

Modern life, with its rush and nervous strain, fast eating and soft foods, causes weakened digestive powers. Much illness and disease results.

The body needs "roughage" in its food. Tillson's Natural Bran supplies it. Eaten in the form of bran muffins, bread, or cookies, it supplies the bulk necessary for complete elimination and its vitamines assist in the digestion of other foods. Eat it regularly. It's the natural way to health.

THIS CANADA OF OURS

MANUFACTURING IN QUEBEC

Q.—What is the extent of manufacturing in Quebec?

A.—Quebec is making steady industrial progress. A report for 1924 shows 6847 establishments reporting with an invested capital of $1,044,113,069, over twenty thousand employees, and net value of production totalling $390,351,418. No less than 1,095 saw mills indicate the importance of the timber industry together with 50 pulp and paper mills having a capital of $220,000,000. The importance of the dairy industry is also shown in 3563 butter and cheese factories. The marked development in the Pulp and Paper industry will greatly increase the above totals.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

(By C. N. Lurie.)

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

"MOST SUPERLATIVE PERFECT"

Beware of exaggeration. Do not "overshoot the mark" in attempting, in speech or in writing, to describe something. Remember that restraint, the use of few but telling words, fixes the attention of the hearer or reader better than many words "spread all over the subject."

An instance in point was noted recently in the catalogue of a dealer in sporting goods. In describing the golf clubs which he offered, the dealer said that they are "the most superlative perfect golf clubs manufactured."

In the first place, many good authorities hold that you cannot qualify the word "perfect"—that is, if a thing is perfect it cannot be "more perfect" or "most perfect." In the second place, what the advertiser meant to say, simply, was that his golf clubs are the best manufactured. Why did he not say, then, "the best golf clubs manufactured," and let it go at that?

FOOD AND HEALTH.

A WORKING PLAN FOR MAKING MEALS BALANCE.

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

Not many housewives have leisure to devote long periods of time to abstract theories governing nutrition. A working program for these women should be made up of straightforward practical suggestions as to how best to serve balanced meals.

The first suggestion is to provide your self with certain lists of showing different food values.

First, list the foods especially rich in body building, that is, the amount of body building material to be found in each definite serving. Second, list of the foods especially rich in lime, in iron, in phosphorus, and the principal vitamins. Third, make a list of foods with acid re-action and finally, one of foods with an alkaline re-action.

This may seem a tremendous undertaking. Actually, it is not difficult. In another article I will give more details about it. After that there will be a paper on how to use them.

Here is a list of foods especially rich in body building material. The measures indicated will give in the cases of each group, one-quarter ounce of body-building material and from 150 to 300 calories or measures of energy.

Food	Amount	Calories
White bread	2 slices	175
Whole Wheat bread	2 slices	150
Beans, baked or fresh lima		150
Cottage cheese	1-4 cup	200
American cheese	1 ounce	125
Eggs	1	80
Lean meat or chicken		100
Milk	1 cup	150
Shelled nuts		25 to 30

Planning the meals with only this one thing in mind, namely, body building food, we can select from such a table as this an ordinary serving of oatmeal with one-half cup of top milk, two slices of whole wheat toast and an egg and we shall have three-quarters of an ounce of this body building material, or protein.

A luncheon consisting of two slice of white bread and butter, a glass o milk, an ordinary serving of cold meat with a piece of ginger bread will give slightly more than three-quarters of an ounce.

At dinner two slices of bread and butter, a serving of fish, a choice of desserts and a small cube of cheese will bring the daily ration of protein or body building material up to two and one-half ounces. This is the quantity required by an adult man.

Finally, remember that this is only the first step in making a balanced diet, namely, that of showing how to select the necessary quantity of body building material.

OLD MASTERS

Art thou poor, yet hast thou golden slumbers?
O sweet content!
Art thou rich, yet is thy mind perplex'd?
O punishment!
Dost thou laugh to see how fools are vex'd,
To add to golden numbers golden numbers?
O sweet content! O sweet, O sweet content!
Work apace, apace, apace, apace;
Honest labor bears a lovely face;
Then hey nonny nonny, hey nonny nonny!

Canst drink the waters of the crisped spring?
O sweet content!
Swimm'st thou in wealth, yet sink'st in thine own tears?
O punishment!
Then he that patiently want's burden bears
No burden bears, but is a king, a king!
O sweet content, O sweet, O sweet content!
Work apace, apace, apace, apace;
Honest labor bears a lovely face;
Then hey nonny nonny, hey nonny nonny!

AUTO-SPINAL TREATMENT

This article has nothing to do with the treatment of a spine injured through an automobile accident, but is going to be a lesson on how you can correct spinal weakness by self-treatment.

Doctors have been able to help relieve the suffering of their patients by giving treatments to the spine with various kinds of manipulative therapy. Nerves issue from each of the vertebra and branch out to various parts of the body. The physician, skilled in physical therapeutics, understands how to affect these nerves by treatment, thereby directly increasing or decreasing the nerve impulse to certain parts of the body. This treatment, of course, can, at best, be only temporary, as the original fundamental cause must be corrected before the patient can expect to remain in perfect health.

An important factor which leads to the development of different diseases is weakness of the muscles attached to the vertebræ of the spine. Because of our highly evolved civilization and the fact that we find it no longer necessary to labor with the hands, all of the muscles of our body have deteriorated. This, of course, weakens the spinal muscles, which hold the body upright, and keep the bones of the spine together in their normal position.

If these muscles are weak, as yours are likely to be, they can never become strong, except by vigorous physical culture exercise. Practically any kind of work which we do at the present time is incapable of developing a normal spine; even the ditch digger usually overstrains his back and acquires round shoulders.

No matter from what kind of spinal weakness you are suffering, you will find the following exercises helpful in correcting and strengthening the spine:

Lying Face Downward.

(1) Clasp hands behind neck—then raise head, shoulders and elbows as high as possible, at the same time raising both legs, keeping knees stiff.

(2) Raise and lower right and left legs alternately—keeping the knees stiff and bending the legs backward at the hips.

(3) Arms extended straight over the head—raise the arms, head and shoulders, at the same time raising the legs and keeping the knees stiff.

(4) Hands pointing out straight over head—raise arms, shoulders and head, also raise the legs, keeping the knees stiff. Inhale as you raise to this position, and exhale upon returning to original position. Next, separate the hands to the distance of about two feet, and raise and lower as before. Then extend the hands straight out from the shoulders and repeat as before. Hands at the sides—repeat as before. Reverse the exercise, going back to the original position. As the strength of the back muscles develops, you may make the exercise harder, changing the position of the arms only a few inches at a time. In the exercise, as described, you will have only four different positions of the arms, but this can easily be increased to fifteen or twenty by making a slight change in the position of the arms.

Take these exercises both in the morning and eveping, slowly at first, doing ..ch one two or three times, and increasing as you are able. Do the exercises before an open window.

After several weeks, fifteen minutes of hard exercise in the evening will be all that you will find necessary to keep your spine in perfect condition.

Conveys Opinion That Ireland Is An Entity, Says Down, M.P.

BELFAST, Ireland, Nov. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—Opposition in the British Parliament to the change in King George's title as proposed by the Imperial Conference, was forecast to-day by David Reid, Conservative M.P. for County Down. Decrying the proposed change, making the title read King of "Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions Beyond the Seas," instead of the "United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland," as at present, Mr. Reid said:

"The proposed alteration abolishes one erorr to substitute another. The new form conveys the impression that Ireland is an entity, whereas it is two states as distinct as Canada and Newfoundland.

Neglected Coughs

Often lead to serious trouble—Are quickly relieved by Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Many people regard a cold as a simple incident. But Coughs and Colds when neglected lead on to pneumonia and consumption—the most dreaded diseases common to this Northern temperature.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is well-known as a most effective treatment for coughs, colds bronchitis, croup and asthma. For many years it has held its place in the homes of Canada as absolutely dependable and was never so popular as it is today.

Composed of simple and yet powerfully effective ingredients it is suitable for children and adults alike and is found constantly in most homes for use in case of emergency. Prompt treatment is half the battle when fighting colds.

ST. ANDREW'S MEN HEAR FINE PAPER

Mr. R. F. Downey Gives Fine Address on Democracy.

On Monday evening, the men of St. Andrew's held their regular meeting. Mr. T. H. Gillespie presided.

After an excellent dinner furnished by the Ladies' Aid Society, Mr. J. W. Bryan, accompanied by Mr. John Crane, sang several solos, which were most enthusiastically received and appreciated. Mr. Bryan possesses a fine resonant tenor voice.

Mr. F. H. Dearborn presided at the latter part of the meeting and introduced Mr. Downey who gave a paper on Democracy.

Democracy means the rule by the common people as oposed to rule by aristocrats. Perhaps the latter are better prepared for governing. Many things enter Democracy. There are two principles underlying it—the number and variety of the interests consciously shared, and the fullness and freedom of these with other forms of association. Democracy is a mode of associated living, ethical, spiritual. It involves Christian service. It is a mobile organism, undergoing constant reconstruction, developing the personnel. It nurtures and socializes its children. It takes our inheritance and heritage and develops the potentialities of its children. It aims to lift the world to higher planes of living. Democracy looks after a shared service, equality of opportunity, with the idea of the greatest good for the greatest number. It cares for the weak, takes individual gifts and turns them to the advantage of the State. Democracy looks after self-expression and self realization. Dr. Banting is worth many ordinary doctors. One Marconi has given more than many others in the field of science. Each person should impress some little on the world; he must be self-expressive. Each one should find out what he likes to do. Democracy sees in the individual the hope of the nation. There is a place for every man to exercise the gift he has. The variety of individual gifts must be used for the betterment of society.

Does Canada measure up to the ideals set forth. Canada has many advantages in education and social standing.

Canada needs a purged press better and freer means of communication the best men in the political field and in other lines of activity.

Our business is to socialize the individual. Education is necessary. The mob is often led by mob rule, and is apt to follow bad leadership, and leads to license too frequently. The democracy must come through the home, church, charitable societies, and especially through the medium of the school. Education is the chief means of promoting democracy so that children may grow mentally and spiritually in a natural manner under direction. Waste should be eliminated. There is great waste in education. Diversified schools and systems are necessary. Irregular pupils waste the time of regular ones. Equipment is often lacking. Initiative teachers are the most useful. Too many are imitators merely. If a plan works, work until you get a better. That is good philosophy in any line of labor. Children should be fit in health. Medical and dental inspection are a great assistance.

A hearty vote of thanks moved by Mr. M. T. Breckenridge and seconded by Mr. George A. Gillespie, was tendered to Mr. Downey for his able and thoughtful address.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THANKSGIVING.

A paper prepared for the Women's Institute, by Mrs. S. L. Terrill, "Thanksgiving for Prosperity and Welfare of Canada":—

Again Canadians are called upon to celebrate our National Thanksgiving. Again we look back over a year crowded with great and kindly mercies. There has been woeful destruction of life and property in many countries caused by strikes, wars, food shortage, tornadoes and disease. Why our Dominion should escape these dire calamities, we know not. But we do know of, and appreciate our exemption from such.

With every human soul is borne a sense of appreciation, and, as an individual comes to maturity and sometimes to develop, so this sense—as with every other sense—must be developed, in order to assist that individual, in making his life a good example, of a true follower of Christ.

The gift of appreciation is always the mark of a noble generous nature, just as a constant habit of depreciation is the sign-manual of littleness.

In every part of our vast Dominion at this time people are attempting to express publicly their appreciation to God for the present welfare and prosperity of Canada.

This is the time when most of us sit down with a sigh amidst the good things of the harvest gathered all around us, and with satisfied mind feel secure for sustenance at least for the coming winter, but how many ask themselves the questions: how have I managed with so little exertion to obtain all the blessings of another year. At the heart of all this is our Father in Heaven continuing to ring out the challenge which has rung all down the ages.

The callenge that our forefathers answered when they fought their way through the virgin soil of Canada and made possible beautiful homesteads which are so much in evidence today and the challenge we in our turn must answer and our children after us.

That Canada has prospered, is prospering, and will continue to prosper has for its reason the fact that it has from the time of its earliest settlers been a nation of God-fearing people. Canada is no small part of that new found continent. It covers an area of 3,500,000 square miles, which is considerably larger than the United States and Alaska; as large as 30 United Kingdoms, or 18 Germanys.

The Canadians, too, are a people who seek after the highest and best they can attain in domestic, social and industrial spheres, and who above all seek to make themselves instruments in God's hands for the promotion of Christ's Kingdom on earth.

Does this not illustrate in a very practical way, the obedience of His command and the consequent fulfilling of the promise contained in the words: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and all these things shall be added unto you."

He promises the seed time and the harvest, and if people live in fellowship with him and are not afraid to own Him, He will not forget thee. We have sown the seed and have reaped our harvest and now we would turn to the Great Giver and offer feeble thanks for the blessings He has ungrudgingly showered upon us. Yes, blessings which far exceed our requirements and enable us to supply our less fortunate fellows of other lands which are not self-supporting.

From the vast stretches of wheat in the West the hungry multitudes of Europe are being sustained and from the ranks of Canada's sons are drawn every year men who are willing to risk all in the mission fields of the East to satisfy the hungering of the souls of the heathen; we have hope that all these efforts of ours will prove successful, but our faltering faith too often proves a stumbling block and we fail far short of enacting our goodly intentions. It seems appropriate at this point to quote from the beautiful metaphor: If then God so clothed the grass which is today in the field and tomorrow is cast in the oven, how much more will He clothe you, O ye of little faith. Our faith is weak and yet we would take for granted that year after year we will draw in the harvest without a single hitch, but hold sometimes the crop fails; sometimes we have sown seed and have reaped not the harvest; sometimes we have made plans or formulated projects never doubting but that success would crown our efforts and yet we have failed. It is when we fail and are plunged into confusion that we grope around desperately for last resource. What does this last resource so often prove to be?

Is it not the re-assuring voice of the Master over troubled waters, calling gently but sternly: Peace be still.

If we had no standard of comparison we would not realize what is good and what is not; so when hard times comes they surely make the prosperous times stand out as something to be truly appreciated, and here again we find a craving in the heart to thank Him who bestows the blessings which are the attributes of the prosperous times.

What will our fellow men be thinking who have suffered loss and privation, pestilence and disease, and the terrible storms and upheavals which have torn civilized comments from the very roots and scattered them weak and helpless, dependent on sister countries. Here again the feeling of gratitude filling our hearts urges us to extend to suffering humanity some of the necessities of life, of which they stand sorely in need. In our own community it is noticeable that some of those are are fairly comfortably off would gladly share with and minister to the less fortunate. In our homes everything is shared between Father and Mother, brother and sisters; but in our own lives we have often much joy and happiness which we would like to keep to ourselves, but if it is true joy and true happiness it must be shared and we must share it with the donor, and the donor is none other than God Himself, and all He asks is the simple expressions of gratitude which has evidences that what has been done has been appreciated.

The welfare of Canada in temporal and spiritual matters is dependent on one factor, and that factor is that every settler, every individual who lives in the Dominion play his part as a Canadian, and by Canadian we mean something more than merely bearing the name and taking credit for the country's prosperity. We mean rather that when we would be considered as Canadians behind the name we are essentially carrying the banner of Christ and under His flag we are marching on with thankful song, greeting the world with a hearty smile and as a young nation full of hopes and ambitions to accomplish greater things under the most vigorous leadership.

In closing, at this Thanksgiving time let us not forget to heartily and with deep sincerity, Praise God for His wonderful gifts to man:

The waning year grows brown and dull
And poets sing of Autumn bleak and sere;
But, from the bounteous garnered harvest store,
With grateful hearts we draw
Thanksgiving cheer.

MRS. VANDERBILT GETS ANNULMENT

Sister-in-law of Duchess Also Appeals To Rota Tribunal.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.— (Canadian Press.)— Society, which is still discussing the annulment of the marriage of Consuelo Vanderbilt to the Duke of Marlborough, was startled to-day by information that Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt second, is having her marriage nullified by the Sacred Rota, the Supreme Court of the Catholic Church in Rome.

This information was contained in a despatch to the World from Beatrice Baskerville, staff correspondent in the eternal city. The despatch said that Mrs. Vanderbilt has made a plea for annulment, alleging coercion was used at the time of her marriage in 1899 to Mr. Vanderbilt, oldest son of the late William Kissam Vanderbilt, who also was father of the Duchess of Marlborough.

The plea, the correspondent asserts, has been thoroughly examined by the Rota and a decision reached to grant the annument, but the decree is being withheld for a time because of the great publicity which has surrounded the Marlborough case.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who at present is in Paris, is understood by the correspondent in Rome to have been requested to deny annulment for the time being, and it is asserted that there would be no untruth in such a denial as the actual sentence has not yet been set down in writing, although the three Rota judges have decided to grant the plea.

When the World's correspondent in Paris last night informed Mrs. Vanderbilt of the news from Rome she declined to see the correspondent but sent out a message saying: "Mrs. Vanderbilt has nothing to say."

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

We do not wish to create any animosity, by giving to the public short writings from time to time, under the above heading. Surely all will admit that error cannot accomplish any good, while truth that appertains to our eternal welfare is of priceless value. Why should we cling to erroneous creeds and teachings of men, when we can have the truth by seeking diligently to know it? Surely it bespeaks candor and good judgment to accept truth, whether it upsets cherished creeds and teachings or not. — M. T. Butcher. 1d-122-1289

SIR JOSEPH FLAVELLE'S VIEW ON NEW TEMPERANCE POLICY

Accepts Government Control Plan of Mr. Ferguson as Probably Best Obtainable Change Enforceable Under Existing State of Public Opinion.

"You ask me what comment I will make upon the statement of the Prime Minister that the previously announced policy of selling beer by retail in public houses had been abandoned and that in substitution the Government proposed "that no sale of beer by the glass will be allowed; that beer, as well as other liquors, will be sold through Government agencies only."

"In my statement to the press ten days ago, concerning the Government's then announced policy, there was the following paragraph:

"'There is, however, an impressive body of public opinion, whether wise or unwise, which favors the adoption of Government Control, and a hesitating body of public opinion for the enforcement of the existing law. Under these circumstances I would have abstained from protest to the substitution of Government sale under a system of permits as proposed for the method of sale under the O.T.A. if the Government policy had not included the private sale of beer in hotels.'

"The now amended policy of the Government does away with the sale of beer in hotels, consequently 'I abstain from protest to the substitution of Government sale under a system of permits as proposed for the method of sale under the O.T.A.'

"I will further add, if the responsibility were mine I would not choose Government control as now stated as a reform for existing evils.

"I believe, however, there is a weight of public opinion which demands a change in the existing law, and which will not be set aside by the present hesitating body of public opinion for its enforcement. Therefore, with the elimination of the legal sale of liquors in public houses of entertainment, I accept the sale of liquors through Government agencies only, under a system of permits, as probably the best obtainable change enforcible under the existing state of public opinion."

PETERBORO PROHIBITION COMMITTEE (ADVT.)

BRITISH GOVERNMENT POWERS ARE DIMINISHED AS REGARDS TO CONTROL OF NEW PACIFIC CABLE

Under New Agreement Made at Premiers' Committee on Saturday.

DOMINIONS INCREASE.

Two Members Will Be British Representatives on the Board.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—Powers of the Dominion Governments are increased and powers of the British Government are diminished as regards control of the Pacific cable under the new agreement made at the Premiers' committee of the Imperial Conference in London on Saturday. Two instead of three members will represent the British Government on the board, and the chairman will be appointed by agreement between the partner governments instead of by the British Government solely.

The revision of the agreement marks the end of a dispute which has been going on for years regarding the management of the Pacific cable between Canada and Australasia. The various Dominion governments interested are represented on the board and will share the profits on operation of the cable. Coincident with the revision of the agreement, a new cable between the west coast of Vancouver Island and New Zealand and Australia, has been opened, doubling the facilities.

The main points in the new agreement are:

The British Government will have two instead of three members on the Pacific Cable Board, reducing the personnel of the Board to seven members.

The chairman of the Board will no longer be appointed by the British Government solely. The Board will appoint for three years after consultation between partner governments, a chairman who need not be necessarily already a member of the Board. If by this arrangement the Board membership

Dead Man Drives Car Through Detroit Street

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 24.—An automobile with a dead man at the wheel skidded and bumped through the heavy traffic on Cass Avenue yesterday until finally it was wrecked against a signal light at Alexandria Avenue.

When pedestrians and other motorists, who had been endangered by the zig-zag course of the car, reached the wreckage they found William R. Blair, 56, of 154 West Alexandria Avenue at the steering wheel dead.

It was first thought the collision had killed Blair but at Receiving Hospital it was discovered he had no injuries. Physicians said the driver's death was caused by apoplexy.

HUMANE SOCIETY HEARS ADDRESS

Rev. J. E. Todd is Speaker at Regular Quarterly Meeting.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Peterborough Humane Society was held last evening, with a good attendance, in the board room of the Chamber of Commerce. Owing to the absence from town of the president, Mr. C. H. Ackerman, the chair was taken by the ex-president, Mr. E. S. Martin.

A letter of regret was read from Magistrate Brown of Toronto, who had been asked to speak at last night's meeting, expressing his regret at being unable to be present.

The secretary-treasurer, Mr. J. S. Chandler, gave the financial report, showing a balance of $86 ?3 in the bank at present.

An interesting address on Humane work was given by Rev. J. E. Todd, pastor of the George street church, who spoke of the advance made by civilization in the way of better care of animals. A man who is cruel to animals makes a poor husband and a poor father, said the reverend speaker.

"Life is sacred and w th while, but many fail to recognize its beauty." The advances made by invention and science in the discoveries of steam, telegraph and radio have practically annihilated space r d brought

Hurled Over 200 Feet Two Men Will Recover

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 24 (Canadian Press)—Albemy Desjardin, 29, and Ernest Chauvin, 27, of Tecumseh, who were hurled more than 200 feet when a Wabash train struck their stalled car at the railroad crossing in Tecumseh Monday evening, are both expected to recover. Chauvin had both legs and his right arm fractured. Desjardin's scalp required 42 stitches to close the wounds. He also suffered a fractured skull.

Charges Queen Marie With Begging Money To Force War

WITH RUSSIA.

Berlin Meeting Decides To Submit Charges To League.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.— (United News.)—Charges that a reign of terror exists in Rumania and that "Queen Marie is in America begging money with which to drive the peasants to war with Russia," made here last night at a meeting of the League of the Rights of Man, will be sent to all Powers signatory to the League of Nations.

The Rumanian rulers are engaged in killing off 15,000 persons in Bessarabia alone, according to Dr. Manfred George, noted author, who made the other charges at the meeting.

"The policy in Rumania permits squandering of money for persecution of political enemies," said Dr. George. "Only the strictest censorship prevented the outside world from knowing the truth of conditions in Queen Marie's country," he declared, adding that "such incidents as the recent expulsion of the United Press correspondent from Bucharest gradually will reveal the truth about Rumania."

The meeting then voted to prepare the accusations for submission to all League powers.

BRITISH ENGINEER TO MAKE REPORT

CITY'S PAYMENT CUTS DOWN SUM TO BE BORROWED

Treasurer's Report To Council on Addition to County Buildings.

FINAL MEETING.

Building Is Not Going To Cost Estimated Amount.

With Warden Curtis in the chair the third and final regular session of the County Council got under way yesterday afternoon. The treasurer had a very pleasant report to make to the council, re the new building which soon will be completed at the north end of the present county buildings. At the June session it was announced that debentures would have to be issued for $30,000 to cover the cost of this new addition, but since then the City of Peterborough, which has to pay part of the cost, decided to pay its share in cash when the work was completed. The city has to pay in the proportion of 21.5 to 19 which means that the Council will not need the required amount to finance the project. County Clerk Elliott also announced that the building was not going to cost the estimated amount.

Communications Read

The communications were read and allotted to the various committees to deal with. The Canadian Red Cross Society asked for a grant of $100 to help build the new outpost hospital which they are at present constructing at Apsley at an estimated cost of $1,200.

The Department of the Provincial Secretary sent in a report on the Government's inspection of the House of Refuge. The report said that the discipline and management of the home was satisfactory, but they recommended some changes for the comfort of the old people there.

The County of Halton asked help of this county in petitioning the government to have indigent hospital paients charged to local municipalities instead of the county bearing part of the cost, as it is at the present time.

Reeve Rye of North Monaghan complained about there being no county or suburban road to link up the Keene road, part of which is under the Suburban Area Commission, and the main thoroughfares of

ENGINEERS TOLD OF IMPORTANCE OF PROFESSION

Steps Taken To Improve Status Are Recounted By Speakers.

ANNUAL BANQUET.

Local and Visiting Members and Guests Hold Happy Gathering.

That the engineering profession is one of the most important in the country was stressed by all the speakers at the annual dinner of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada held last night in the Empress Hotel. The ocasion, as is usual with all functions of the local engineers, was marked by happy speeches, hearty singing, and a general air of jollity. There were present many leading members of the profession from other branches, while prominent citizens of Peterborough were also guests of the branch. B. L. Barns was chairman.

In his opening remarks the chairman touched upon the value of the annual dinner in bringing the members together. He recalled upon the purpose of the institute, readiug the aims and objects as printed in the journal. The secretary, W. E. Ross, read messages of felicitation, or of regret at being unable to attend, from the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, Fraser S. Keith, Lt.-Col. Le Pan, Professor Gillespie, and others.

N. E. D. Sheppard.

N. E. D. Sheppard, assistant general secretary of the institute, was the first speaker, being introduced by W. E. Ross. He brought greetings from others at headquarters saying that he had been told he would have a wonderful time, and that these prophecies had been borne out. He urged the members to visit headquarters.

"The only way in which the Institute can advance and prosper, the only way it can fulfill its objects," said Mr. Sheppard, "is by creating a bond of good fellowship, of mutual esteem, and of confidence, among the members. That bond has its genesis in gatherings such as this, and the Peterborough branch should be proud of its reputation for hospitality and splendid banquets." Many problems were being faced by the Institue, he continued, and efforts were being made to solve them. Mr. Sheppard gave a short resume of Institute affairs. There are about 5000 members and twenty-four branches. The finances are in good shape, and the headquarters staff is kept busy, with much detail work, particularly with regard to information, assistance, and employment service to the members.

Encouraging in the extreme was

Silent "Cussing" Cited As Grounds For Divorce

PREMIERS MADE FREEMEN TODAY AT EDINBURGH

PROUD OF DESCENT.

Refers To Appointment of Scot as Minister of Immigration.

EDINBURGH, Nov. 24 (By cable from George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent of The Canadian Press).—Edinburgh today welcomed the Dominion Premiers who have been in attendance at the Imperial Conference in London. With the exception of President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State, who is in Ireland, and Premier Hertzog of South Africa, who left today for Portugal, all the Dominion Premiers were present.

This morning, the Premiers received the freedom of the city.

Premier Mackenzie King, speaking as a "new citizen" of Edinburgh, laid emphasis on the fact that throughout the years the relationship of Scotland and Canada had been very near. He spoke of Abraham Martin, the Scottish pilot with Samuel De Champlain, French explorer, colonial pioneer, and first governor of French Canada, whose name is remembered in the Plains of Abraham, Quebec.

Premier King related the story of the first white woman in Western Canada, who came from Scotland. In all parts of Canada, he said, Scotsmen had been pioneers in the development of the country and leaders in all kinds of activity.

"I am proud to say," Premier King continued, "that my maternal grandfather, who was born in Scotland, was chosen as first Mayor of Toronto when that municipality became a city. I regret to say that I fear no descendant of his could be elected in Toronto today. In many respects it is among the finest of cities but from a Liberal point of view, unfortunately, it is now almost hopelessly Tory."

Premier King referred to Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, who left Scotland 44 years ago, "whose Scottish accent is as distinct today as when he left Scotland." He sail he hoped that in the appointment of Mr. Forke as Minister of Immigration the people of Scotland would recognize the heartiness of the welcome awaiting Scottish migrants upon their arrival in Canada.

The Canadian cities, Premier King, proceeded, had not yet adopted the custom of conferring their freedom, and he added: "But I am prepared to say this much: knowing what a large part of our national life traces its origin to the old hills and glens of Scotland ,that we will gladly confer the freedom of Canada itself on whoever may come to our shores from this Old Land. I hope my remarks may be sufficient to reveal that to one of Scottish descent the freedom of Canada means freedom to any man to rise to the highest position in any sphere."

All persons willing to volunteer automobiles for assisting Mr. Bradburn's candidature, for election day, are requested to leave their names and addresses at his committee rooms, 'phone 2800.

STRESEMAN REPEATS DEMANDS OF GERMANY WHILE DEFENDING HIS POLICY AGAINST COMMUNISTS

Says Without This Pacification of Europe Is Impossible.

IN THE REICHSTAG.

Receives Vote of Confidence From Socialists and Government Parties.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press.) — While Germany's demands for the abolition of allied military control and the evacuation of 80,000 allied occupational troops have not yet been fulfilled, Gustav Stresemann, the foreign minister, defending his foreign policy against Nationalistic and Communist attacks in the Reichstag yesterday, again expressed the hope that Germany's pleadings would be gratified.

"Without this," he said, "the pacification of Europe is impossible."

The Communist leader, Walter Stoecker, shouted: "Never has Herr Stresemann appeared before the Reichstag with such empty hands," and the Nationalists attacked his programme as futile. Nevertheless, the minister received what amounted to .. vote of confidence, being supported by the Socialists and Government parties, which constitutes the Reichstag majority.

Government circles expect a Franco-German agreement regarding military control before the meeting of the League of Nations council in December, which Dr. Streseman and Herr Von Schubert will attend. Germany cannot agree to permanent or periodic military control by the League of Nations, the foreign minister declared, because that would amount to the shifting of the control from one body to another, but Germany would accept League of Nations supervision as outlined in the Versailles Treaty.

The alarming reports of secret military organizations, continued Dr. Stresemann, were without foundation, although some psychological unrest existed because Germany alone had been forced to disarm.

"This demolition of our fortresses and destruction of arms and munitions would have been a monumental work of peace," he went

Woman Blackens Up To Look For Husband

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 24 (United Press). — Blacking her face and hands with shoe polish and armed with a revolver, Mrs. Salvatrice Delie, of Middletown, started in a search of her husband whom she suspected of being attentive to another woman. Arriving here, the Black began to fade under her eyes and police became suspicious. She was held on a charge of carrying concealed weapons and breach of the peace.

ANNULMENT IS NOT CONFIRMED

W. K. Vanderbilt Denies Knowledge of Action Towards Separating.

ROME REPORT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (United Press).—William K. Vanderbilt II. yesterday maintained he had no knowledge whatever of the reported annulment of the marriage between him and Mrs. Vanderbilt, which was reported yesterday in special copyrighted Rome despatches to the New York World.

This report, which followed so closely the announcement of the annulment of the marriage of the former Consuelo Vanderbilt to the Duke of Marlborough, created a stir in social circles here.

It was learned Mrs. Vanderbilt left New York on the liner Leviathan in November, and since has been in Europe, spending most of her time in Paris. It was previously rumored she had gone to Paris to seek a divorce, but this was denied by the Vanderbilts and by their friends.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was the former Virginia Fair, daughter of James G. Fair, one of the California bonanza kings, and sister of Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, who died on Monday at Newport, R.I. She and William K. Vanderbilt II. were married in 1920, at the home of Mrs. Oelrichs in New York.

Rev. Father Thomas Francis Murphy performed the ceremony.

"The bride and groom seemed happy and delighted," he was quoted yesterday as commenting when told of the reported annulment.

Questions for Mrs. Fallis

WILL Mrs. Fallis, chief speaker for the Ferguson candidate's rally, answer the following questions:

1—When did the Conservative party, in convention, adopt Government Control of liquor as a plank in their platform?

2—When did the Conservative party meeting in convention, abrogate the principle of the people ruling?

3—By what authority did Premier Ferguson tell the Distillers, Brewers and Hotelmen that there would be no more direct votes of the people of Ontario on the prohibition question?

4—Since Premier Ferguson has broken his promise given repeatedly, both to the Conservatives in convention and to the people in his public addresses, what proof have we that he will not establish under his Government Control Act bar rooms, club licenses, etc.?

5—Mrs. Fallis, do you believe in democracy? If so, how do you reconcile Premier Ferguson's autocratic action of loading the Conservative party with a policy that the people pronounced against in 1924 by over 34,000 of a majority, and that in spite of the fact that the Toronto voters' lists, where a large part of the wet vote was cast, were padded by the wets by tens of thousands of votes?

THE BOOTLEGGERS' MARKET

Government sale creates a special market for the bootleggers' wares. Their customers include:

(1) The young man of good family who would not want it known that he had asked for a permit—but who is bound to secure liquor.

(2) The man who has abused his permit and has had it cancelled.

(3) The youth under 21 who can not secure a permit.

To these three classes and many others the bootlegger will sell his stuff.

Why expect Government sale to do in Ontario what it has utterly failed to do elsewhere

PREMIER FERGUSON'S POLICY

PREMIER FERGUSON IN EFFECT SAYS: "The bootleggers are too much for us; as our temperance policy we propose to have the government sell so much liquor the bootlegegr won't be able to sell it."

Off with Her Head!

Poor Judge Murphy!

First the Prohibition Union explained that she had given her famous endorsation of government control because she was a cousin of the Premier's.

The bottom having dropped out of that explanation when it was found that she was no relation whatever of Mr. Ferguson's, alibi No. 2 is that while she didn't colour her story to help her "cousin" the Premier, she manufactured it to keep her brothers who are stated to be interested in distilleries.

Poor Janey Canuck!

If her brothers are interested in distilleries you'd have thought that she would have received the more applause from prohibitionists on that account because of her herculean efforts on behalf of temperance.

But having said something that endangers the sacred O.T.A. it's a case of "Off with her head" at Prohibition headquarters.

RUSSIAN ENVOY DIES IN LONDON

Leonide Krassin Had Respect of Britain's Leading Men.

WAS MODERATE.

LONDON, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press). — Leonide Krassin, Soviet Charge d'Affairs in London, died this morning.

Friends who saw Krassin a few days ago were shocked at his death. He appeared in good spirits and seemed to be shaking off the pernicious anaemia from which he had long suffered.

The death of Krassin will not interrupt any important negotiations with Britain. Only last week the Charge visited the Foreign Office, continuing his efforts to solve the problem of Bolshevik propaganda which Sir Austen Chamberlain told the House of Commons was keeping Britain and Soviet Russia apart.

At the Foreign Office to-day tribute was paid to M. Krassin as a sensible and responsible diplomat who, if he had not died, undoubtedly would have brought about improved relations between Britain and Russia. It was said his greatest value to Moscow was that he commanded the respect and confidence of the British financial world.

Krassin was known as the "Bourgeoise Bolshevik," and was one of the few moderates to be given a place in the governmental machinery. His relations with Lenin were cordial and he accompanied Lenin and Trotsky to Brest-Litovsk to negiate the peace treaty with Germany. During his early tenure of four Ministerial offices, he worked for the restoration of plain Bourgeoise methods of commerce. He was all for Bourgeoise peace, and it was his desire to lead Russian Sovietism into the normal ways of democracy. He did not believe in the theories of Lenin or Trotsky and considered them too sweeping.

MISSION WORKERS SURVIVE ATTACKS

Canadians Were on Vessel Visited By Many Chinese Pirates.

HONG-KONG, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—Father W. A. Fletcher and seven Canadian nuns survived raids made by 21 different gangs of pirates on the steamer Waihoi, bound from Kongmoon for Yeungkong. The priest and the nuns were robbed and locked in a small state room for sixty hours. The vessel was looted.

Twelve well - dressed Chinese, posing as passengers, shot and killed the Chinese soldier guards, the purser, cashier, and clerk of the Waihoi, beached the vessel, robbed the passengers and treasury, and removed the cargo of kerosene.

After the first party of Pirates left the Waihoi, twenty other gangs of robbers boarded the vessel at different times for loot. The last gang was reduced to stealing the shoes worn by the nuns, and Father Fletcher's hat and coat. The nuns and the priest are from the Mary Knoll Mission.

Although the piracy occurred on November 11, the news was only published to-day with the safe arrival of the missionaries at Kong Moon.

FERDINAND BETTER.

King of Rumania's Condition Is Somewhat Improved.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—Late accounts of the condition of King Ferdinand say that he has taken a turn for the better. It is reported that he is developing something like an appetite and is able to digest his food more freely. He is suffering from intestinal trouble.

RUSSIAN ENVOY DIES IN LONDON

Leonide Krassin Had Respect of Britain's Leading Men.

WAS MODERATE.

LONDON, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press). — Leonide Krassin, Soviet Charge d'Affairs in London, died this morning.

Friends who saw Krassin a few days ago were shocked at his death. He appeared in good spirits and seemed to be shaking off the pernicious anaemia from which he had long suffered.

The death of Krassin will not interrupt any important negotiations with Britain. Only last week the Charge visited the Foreign Office, continuing his efforts to solve the problem of Bolshevik propaganda which Sir Austen Chamberlain told the House of Commons was keeping Britain and Soviet Russia apart.

At the Foreign Office to-day tribute was paid to M. Krassin as a sensible and responsible diplomat who, if he had not died, undoubtedly would have brought about improved relations between Britain and Russia. It was said his greatest value to Moscow was that he commanded the respect and confidence of the British financial world.

Krassin was known as the "Bourgeoise Bolshevik," and was one of the few moderates to be given a place in the governmental machinery. His relations with Lenin were cordial and he accompanied Lenin and Trotsky to Brest-Litovsk to negiate the peace treaty with Germany. During his early tenure of four Ministerial offices, he worked for the restoration of plain Bourgeoise methods of commerce. He was all for Bourgeoise peace, and it was his desire to lead Russian Sovietism into the normal ways of democracy. He did not believe in the theories of Lenin or Trotsky and considered them too sweeping.

MISSION WORKERS SURVIVE ATTACKS

Canadians Were on Vessel Visited By Many Chinese Pirates.

HONG-KONG, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—Father W. A. Fletcher and seven Canadian nuns survived raids made by 21 different gangs of pirates on the steamer Waihoi, bound from Kongmoon for Yeungkong. The priest and the nuns were robbed and locked in a small state room for sixty hours. The vessel was looted.

Twelve well-dressed Chinese, posing as passengers, shot and killed the Chinese soldier guards, the purser, cashier, and clerk of the Waihoi, beached the vessel, robbed the passengers and treasury, and removed the cargo of kerosene.

After the first party of Pirates left the Waihoi, twenty other gangs of robbers boarded the vessel at different times for loot. The last gang was reduced to stealing the shoes worn by the nuns, and Father Fletcher's hat and coat. The nuns and the priest are from the Mary Knoll Mission.

Although the piracy occurred on November 11, the news was only published to-day with the safe arrival of the missionaries at Kong Moon.

"How quickly we now get Long Distance connections"

"I AM surprised and delighted," said one of our largest users of Long Distance, "to find how quickly we are now able to get a Long Distance connection. This marked speeding up of the service enables us to call our dealers twice a month to check their stock and book their orders, and to make a score of contacts on the instant."

Changes in equipment and intensive training of our staff have made speedy Long Distance service an accomplished fact. There are only a few localities where the changes have not yet been completed.

¶ Has your business been quick to profit by this almost revolutionary speeding up of Long Distance Service?

If you are able to give the Long Distance Operator the distant number, she will appreciate your co-operation, but whether you know the distant number or not the Long Distance Operator will do her utmost to get the party you want while you hold the line.

HASTINGS DAIRY MEETING HELD

Instructors Report Fine Condition of Factories in District.

MANY PATRONS.

MARMORA, Nov. 24.—Under the auspices of the Provincial Department of Agriculture and the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario, the annual district dairy meeting for the County of North Hastings was convened in the Town Hall, Marmora, on Tuesday afternoon with a representative attendance. Angus Nicholson, county director, occupied the chair. Having expressed pleasure at the good attendance, he mentioned that the dairy meetings were among the most interesting held in Eastern and Western Ontario. Their object was not only to direct attention to better achievements but also to introduce the principles essential to the making of an article saleable on the English market.

C. F. Linn then gave his fifteenth annual report as instructor. He was able to mention, among other things, that all of the twenty-four factories in his district were in the best sanitary condition, and he congratulated the officers on the interest shown by them as well as the cheese-makers on their splendid work. Patrons in his district number 1,041, and the number of cows total 8,900. The yield per cow was 4,500 pounds. Seventy-five milking machines were operated and 95 per cent. of the milk which was wrong could be traced to machines not properly cared for. His advice was to get the right make, keep the factory clean, and see that the right milk is brought.

Instructor G. H. Bailey's report, which followed, dealt in similar fashion with improvements and defects of dairying.

He also briefly touched upon the success of John Finnegan, local cheese maker, in securing his bronze medal this year. Twenty-five factories with 822 patrons and 8,549 cows, feature in his group. He divided his group into three sections in a competitive way to increase interest. Last year, he pointed out, was one of the hardest to get curds firmed up.

James Cowan, Government grader, who spoke next, said that such a meeting as that was a good place for a government dairy produce grader to come to. While Prince Edward County headed the list last year, he thought Hastings County would come back this year and top the map. Dealing with dairy problems he pointed out that many would get grading and instructional work confused. He then gave statistics to show that each year showed an improvement in quality of cheese. Continuing he elaborated in a most interesting way upon the mechanical defects and deflects of flavor. He advocated the use of reliable standard rennet against the use of the untried and remnant stock. He advised that coloured cheese be not made until the market called for it. Poor boxing of cheese, indistinct marking of boxes, and poor finishing of cheese also came under his observations.

John McCaffrey, salesman, spoke briefly expressing the hope that they would always have officers to take the interest as the present ones were taking.

G. G. Publow

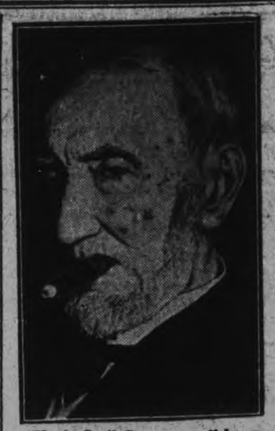
The speech of the afternoon was furnished by G. G. Publow, chief dairy inspector, who touched on the dairy situation as a whole, summing up salient points of preceding speakers. He remarked that these meetings were two fold in their object. First, they had the instructors and grader to give their reports so that as in all other concerns they might take stock. There was wisdom in their taking stock. Secondly they met for the purpose of electing a director to serve on the Eastern Ontario Board. At one time they had thought the annual convenion to be sufficient, now they felt they could be more at home in meeting in each county.

The greatest problem facing them today was to reduce the number of undergrades. The Dominion Government in grading cheese and butter was concerned with the protection of Canada's name in one of the markets of the world. The outstanding defect of cheese is its flavour. Milk and its products are never constant; they are always changing. Cheese made from reasonably sound milk and under sanitary conditions should go on improving until it becomes ripe. The cheese maker was said to be the greatest factor in the cheese industry. No matter how skilled he may be it is impossible for his factory to show a product better than its raw material.

Two things are necessary on the part of the producer to ensure first-grade cheese. He must have milk arrive at the plant in suitable condition. He must give it uniform care every day. Cheese makers have failed in the past to take producers into their confidence, when by pointing out defects better results might have been obtained. Mr. Publow stated further that it was proposed next year that all cheese makers should be enforced to make applications to the Department of Agriculture for certificates. This would not affect many for cheese factories were never kept better than to-day and makers never put forth greater efforts. If the reputation of Canadian cheese is lowered or not maintained, the cheese makers will be held responsible.

Concluding, he mentioned that he hoped to see the day when receiving stations would be established where cheese could be stored to the satisfaction of grader and producer until old enough to take care of itself.

Mr. Angus Nicholson, the retiring director, then called upon Mr. Publow to receive nominations for director for 1927, thanking all present for the honor of his own election for the past two years. Mr. George Bailey of Harold was duly nominated which nomination Mr. Publow promised would be sustained at the annual conventions to be held in Renfrew, Jan. 5th.



"Uncle Joe" Cannon, well known United States' politician, whose death took place recently.

WARSAW NEWS.

WARSAW, Nov. 24.—Mr. Robert Miller returned from the hospital on Tuesday.

Mesdames T. H. Crowe and Thomas Cooper left on Monday evening to attend the Women's Institute convention in Toronto. Mrs. Cooper was called home on Wednesday evening on account of the illness of her daughter, Mrs. O. B. McIlvena, who is now in Nicholls Hospital.

Rev. H. B. Herrington was called to Blairton on Saturday to attend the funeral of an old parishioner. He remained over Sunday to take Mr. Brown's charges on that day.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be dispensed on November 28 in the Presbyterian Church.

The road builders' huts are moved away from near McIvor's hill, but unless something more is done there is going to be a great hindrance to traffic on that hill. It is springy anyway, and with the rains, the ruts are very deep. Gravel is being put in spots to patch up the Dummer road. People using the boundary here long wished for something to be done there. Part from the top of Gordon Payne's hill is very much cut up and has been bad all summer and fall. Even where the gravel was put on last fall there are some deep ruts. The use of a grader for one-half day would do a great amount of good.

Mrs. Thomas Cooper has been appointed representative of this district on the Confederation Board in place of Miss Haycroft, of Bowmanville, who has resigned.

BAZAAR..

The ladies of the Warsaw Circuit, are holding a bazaar in the basement of the United Church, Warsaw, on Tuesday afternoon and evening, December 7th, commencing at three o'clock. Afternoon tea, sale of useful and fancy articles, home made cooking and candy. Programme in the evening. 1d-123-804

MARMORA PERSONALS.

MARMORA, Nov. 24.—Messrs. R. Bonter, H. R. Pearce, R. Hunter, W. Derry and W. R. Reynolds journeyed to Belleville on Friday to hold conference with Bishop Seager concerning the appointment of a rector to the Anglican parish of Marmora.

Mr. W. Wightman is on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Boyd and family are moving into the Campion residence.

A pleasant dance was held in Deloro Hall on Friday evening, under the auspices of the Church Committee.

Mr. Charles Auger is visiting in Smith's Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Robson, accompanied by Mrs. Bert Boyd and Mrs. D. Hawley, visited Peterboro on Saturday.

Mr. John Gibbs spent the week-end at his home in Belleville.

Dr. Stewart, of Belleville, was a visitor to town over the week-end.

ORANGE LODGE THREE YEARS OLD

Members of Duchess of Clarence Lodge Celebrate Birthday.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 24. — The Duchess of Clarence Lodge held their third anniversary supper on Friday evening, Nov. 19th, in the Parish Hall. There was a sumptuous supper, followed by an excellent programme and dance. About 350 guests were present, among them Mayor McArthur, of Cobourg, Mr. Sheppard, of Toronto, and Mr. Graham, of Kingston, Provincial Organizer of the Orange Association.

Mr. J. A. Anderson, of town, was chairman for the evening and opened the programme with a few suitable remarks. Six young ladies gave a very pretty costume drill, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. R. Ayrhart. Mr. H. Cubitt favoured the audience with a comic song, which was followed by an encore.

A humorous play, "The Rumpus on Gingerbread Hill," was ably given by Mrs. B. McArthur, Mrs. E. Wilson, Miss Scott, Miss Nicholas, Miss Tripp, Miss Wilkes and Miss Southern.

Mr. Graham then gave an address, speaking first on the organization of the lodge. The first Orphans' Home was founded at Picton by a few women and later was moved to Richmond Hill. Since then this institution has cared for thousands of children until they are twelve years of age. They are then placed in suitable homes, but are under the guardianship of the home until they are eighteen years of age.

The speaker gave a short sketch of his trip to the Old Land. He spoke of the people of Holland as being of the finest. Throughout Amsterdam there are statues of many of the old leaders of the Orange Order. King William himself was a Dutchman. Mr. Graham also visited the battlefields and said the Canadian cemeteries throughout France were well cared for. Around each cemetery is a green hedge, inside of which are flowers and crosses. On each cross is a maple leaf and the soldier's name and regiment engraved on it. He gave brief sketches of his trip through Belgium, Scotland, Ireland and England. In England, he spoke of many old buildings, built as early as 948. One of these was Westminster Abbey, started in 972 and finished in 1100. Mr. Graham closed his address with best wishes for the success of the local order.

Mr. Elliott, who has spent seven years with Marks Bros. show, favored the audience with several selections. Some of these were humorous and "The Bridge of Sighs" a touching monologue. All were enjoyed by the audience.

A large three-storey cake, nicely iced and decorated, was raffled off, Mrs. H. Carter holding the lucky ticket. The programme closed with the National Anthem, after which the company enjoyed the dance, music being supplied by a six-piece orchestra.

Personals.

Mr. W. Free left for Peterboro last week, where he has accepted a position.

Mr. Jack Blute, of Toronto, is visiting his brother, Mr. James Blute.

Mr. James Saunders, who has been critically ill in Peterboro, has so far improved as to be able to return to his home.

MAKING PROGRESS IN PLANS FOR FAIR

Merchants Agree To Assist —Dressing Instructions Repeated.

At a conference held recently at which were present, F. H. Buker, District Poultry Promoter, F. C. McRae, Agricultural Representative and the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, final details in connection with the Dressed Poultry Sale to be held in Peterborough, December 8th and 9th were disposed of.

The machinery is running smoothly and considerable interest has already been manifested by poultry producers nearby and also from outlying districts.

To date 8,500 circulars announcing the event and containing information concerning killing and dressing poultry have been distributed covering a thirty mile radius of Peterborough.

Considerable valuable advertising has been given by The Examiner, and the merchants who have agreed to boost the event are expected to advertise and put on special sales.

Attention is again called to important details re preparing poultry for the market:

All fowl and poultry must be undrawn.

Chickens and fowl should be dry-plucked and bled at mouth—heads left on.

Heads MUST NOT be removed from turkeys.

These are instructions forwarded from the wholesale buyers who are coming, consequently observance of these simple rules will ensure higher prices.

ABANDON SEARCH FOR DROWNED BOY

Those Who Know Bay Say Body of Bruce Keys Won't Be Found.

LINDSAY, Nov. 24.— All hope has been abandoned for the recovery of the body of Bruce Keys, who with his brother, went to his death in the waters of Big Bay (Sturgeon Lake) about a month ago. Friends of the boy have never relaxed in their search since the day of the tragedy, but it is now believed by those who know the waters and the conditions in the bed of the bay, that the body is held fast in the weeds or other encumbrances, and will never be found. Searching parties made their last search Sunday in the snow storm without success. The bay is expected to freeze over any day before giving up its dead.

WEDDING BELLS.

LANCASTER—RUTTY.

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday November 6th, at the George street Parsonage, when Miss Alice Rutty was united in marriage to Harold V. Lancaster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Lancaster.

After the wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home.

HUNTER—MANN.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 24.—A wedding of interest locally took place at Bracebridge on Saturday, October 30, at the noon hour, when Eleanor Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mann, became the bride of Robert Eric Armstrong Hunter, son of Mr and Mrs. S. J. Hunter, Cavan.

The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Dr. Smith, took place at the home of the bride's parents, Miss Florence Taylor playing the wedding march.

Autumn flowers and foliage were used in the decorative scheme for the living-room, and about forty guests were present. The bride was becomingly gowned in ivory georgette, with swansdown trimming, and wore the conventional veil and orange blossoms. Her sister Miss Ethel May Mann, was bridesmaid, wearing coral pink georgette, ribbon trimmed. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Aubrey Hunter. Little Miss Viva Clarke, in dainty pink frock, and carrying a basket of Killarney roses, was the flower girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter left on a bridal trip to Detroit, following the wedding-breakfast, and will reside on the groom's farm, where he has recently built a new home, east of Millbrook, and will be "at home" to their friends early in the New Year.

OBITUARY.

BERNARD McGEOUGH

DOWNEYVILLE, Nov. 24.—The death occurred at the residence of his son, Bernard, of an old and respected resident of Ops in the person of Bernard McGeough.

The deceased gentleman was ninety-two years of age and resided in Ops all his life and was highly esteemed. His wife pre-deceased him some years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss one son, Bernard, and five daughters, Mrs. George Murphy of South Ops, Mrs. Frank Kirley, West Ops, Mrs. J. T. O'Connell, Peterborough, Mrs. Edward Costello, Downeyville, and Miss Lucy McGeough of Buffalo, N.Y.

The funeral took place Friday morning from the family residence to St. Mary's Church, where requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Father Black, and interment took place in the parish cemetery, where prayers were recited by Rev. Father Carroll and Father Galvin of Downeyville. The pall bearers were Messrs. Daniel Murphy, James Byrne, P. J. Murphy, Charles Ford, Patrick Murphy and J. Keogh of Brechin.

Mrs. Edward Costello here is a daughter of the deceased.

THOMAS SHOULDICE.

The death occurred yesterday, at the House of Refuge, of Thomas Shouldice, formerly of Harvey.

LINDSAY, Nov. 24.—The death occurred at Troy, Ohio, of a noted airplane designer, and nephew of Mrs. W. Miller, of Peterborough, in the person of Edward J. Junkin, who has also other relatives in Peterborough and Victoria Counties. A tribute to the late Mr. Junkin's skill as a designer was given by Fokker, the largest builder of airplanes in Europe. He stated at Dayton, Ohio, that "Mr. Junkin was the best designer of light powered planes in the world." As proof of this, in the Ford tour, three of his planes had a perfect score, and took prizes, repeating the previous year's performance. It was confidently expected that the late Mr. Junkin and his associates would become to the aircraft world what Ford has so long been to the automobile world in the production of an airplane, and the only one, within the means of all, and meeting more than others the requirement of successful flight.

Tossed for Hours Unable to Sleep

About the surest indication of exhausted nerves is sleeplessness. You may have headaches and indigestion. You may be nervous and irritable. But the most distressing symptom is lying awake at night unable to rest or sleep.

Mr. Fred Ross, Dresden, Ont. writes: —"I certainly can sympathize, with anyone who suffers from nerve trouble. For many months I was afflicted with nervousness, and after going to bed I would toss about for hours unable to sleep. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food was recommended to me, so I gave it a trial. I found it a splendid treatment as I can now enjoy a good night's rest. For the nerves, the best password I can give is 'Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.'"

She was in her sixty-third year and was a lifelong resident of Marmora Township, being the youngest daughter of the late James J and Isabella Bailey, pioneer settlers in North Marmora Besides her husband she leaves to mourn her loss three children who reside on neighboring farms Mrs William Pack, Mrs. John Goodrich and Mrs. Irwin McCoy. Two brothers and three sisters also survive her in the persons of Mr. James Bailey of Marmora Township, Mr. Joshua Bailey of Marmora, Mrs. William Jones and Mrs. John Lough of Marmora Township and Mrs. John Bell of Marmora. Two sister and a brother predeceased her some years ago. Deeased was of a very active nature, with unexcelled interest in her children and for many years an ardent follower of the Free Methodist faith. Because of her bright and winsome disposition, she virtually became a pillar of the church of her membership.

The funeral took place at Beaver Creek church on Monday afternoon at 1.30 p.m. in the presence of a large congregation of relatives and friends.

MRS JOHN CONWAY.

There passed away in Ennismore at the family residence on Tuesday, November 16 Mary Sullivan, beloved wife of John Conway, after a few days illness. The deceased had been in poor health for the last couple of months, but until a few days before her death no immediate danger was anticipated.

The late Mrs. Conway was a life long resident of Ennismore and had lived to celebrate her golden wedding two years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her sorrowing husband, three sons, M. F. of Windsor, and William J. and Leo of Ennismore, two daughters, Mrs. Edward O'Donnell of Lindsay, and Mrs. Matthew Foley of Kirkfield, and her niece, Anne Sullivan at home; also one brother Cornelius Sullivan of Victoria Road and Mrs. John Connelly of Toronto.

The late Mrs. Conway was possesser of an extremely kind disposition which endeared her to many friends, who on different occasions enjoyed her ever ready hospitality. She was always endeavoring to cater comfort and consolation to the sick, and those who failed to enjoy the normal happiness of life, of which so many are frequently deprived. Her funeral was largely attended by people of the surrounding districts from Peterboro, Lindsay, Windsor, Walkerton, Victoria Road and Otonabee.

The Requiem high mass was chanted by her esteemed pastor, Rev. J. V. McCauley. Pall bearers were: M. F., William J. and Leo Conway, Matthew Foley, Elward O'Donnell, and John Collins.

Among those present from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Donnell, Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Matt Foley of Kirkfield; Mr. and Mrs. Con Sullivan of Victoria Road; Miss Lizzie Sullivan of Walkerton; Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Conway and daughter, Nellie, of Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. James Conway and daughter, Mildred, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred McIntyre of Otonabee. A further testimony of her many estimable qualities and sympathy held for the bereaved were evidenced by the beautiful floral tributes and numerous spiritual offerings received as well as letters and telegrams of sympathy.

MRS. ALBERT GRAHAM.

YOUNG'S POINT, Nov. 24.—A gloom was cast over the village and entire surrounding district on Saturday last owing to the sudden death of Jessie Cummings, beloved wife of Albert Graham, Jr., formerly of Lakefield, but who now resides near Hall's Bridge.

Deceased, who was in her twentieth year, had spent her childhood days in the village attending the local school, where she was always a general favorite.

She leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing husband and two little daughters, Yvonne and Betty; also her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cummings; two sisters, Mrs. Norman Hurl and May; also five brothers, Milford, Wesley, Arthur, Maxwell and Elmer.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

The pall-bearers were childhood friends of the deceased, and were as follows: Roy McIlmoyle, Roydon Harvey, Wallace Blewett, Walter Graham, Leonard Wilson and Rufus Bullock.

MRS. RALPH ROSS.

The death occurred at Wellesley Hospital, Toronto, of Ella Louise Wrighton Ross, beloved wife of Ralph Ross, of Georgetown, Ont, on Monday afternoon, Nov. 22nd.

Mrs. Ross was the elder daughter of the late William Hall Wrighton, and Catherine May Wrighton, and granddaughter of William Henry Wrighton, Clerk of the Peace, and Deputy Clerk of the Crown for Peterborough. Her home was in Peterborough until her marriage to Ralph Ross of Brockville, now of Georgetown. She was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church in Dr. Torrance's time. She was a talented musician, educated at Loretto Abbey, Toronto, and during her stay in Pembroke, Ont., was organist of Calvin Presbyterian Church. Her grandparents came to Peterborough, from Demerara, B.W.I., in 1839, when so many English families settled here. They lived in what was then known as "The Haunted House," which still stands near the Oval, in East Nicholls Park. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Ralph Ross, of Georgetown, a son, William Wrighton Eustace Ross of Toronto, a daughter, Mrs. Clarence Tuer, of Haileybury, Ont., and an only sister, Mrs. Burton H. Brooks, of Plattsburg, N. Y.

The funeral will be in Georgetown, Ont.

Nerves

Nervous depression and irritability are very often the result of under-nourishment. The nerve tissues are not being built up as fast as the strain of your daily duties wears them away.

Let delicious "Ovaltine" supply the concentrated nourishment that you require. It contains an abundance of natural phosphorous nutrients for building up a healthy nervous system. "Ovaltine" contains no drugs. It is prepared solely from ripe barley malt, rich milk and fresh eggs, flavoured with cocoa. It makes no undue tax on the digestion. It has a delicious flavour, and is quickly and easily prepared. Make it your daily beverage from now on.

SUCCESSSFUL TAG DAY.

Held In Aid of Children's Aid Society at Lakefield.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 24.—The annual tag day for the Children's Aid Society was held on Saturday last and resulted in the creditable sum of $62.00 being collected for this splendid cause. Mrs. Laurence H. Grahame was in charge of the work and a bevy of bright young girls canvassed the village and vicinity. The results were as follows:

Misses Marie and Margaret Allen	$14.54
Misses Constance Stuart and Barbara Dench	13.07
Miss Lilian Stauart and Max Hamilton	12.77
Misses Margaret Tanner and Annie Crawford	5.68
Misses Marion Wagar and Mildred Purdy	3.75
Miss Florence Mackenzie	3.70
High School	8.49
Total	$62.00

Rev. A. W. Mackenzie was in charge of the morning service in St. John's Church on Sunday. No service was held in the evening.

The Catholic Women's League are holding an At Home in the Lakefield House on Friday evening, November 26. These At Homes are always popular events which attract many from both the village and the surrounding country.

Anniversary Services

The anniversary services of the Lakefield Baptist Church will be held on Sunday, November 28, and continued on Monday, the 29th.

At 11 o'clock service, Rev. William Spence ,the pastor, will speak on "The Measure and Motive of the Service of the Church," and at the 7 o'clock service, Rev. Gordon M. Holmes, B.A., B.Th., of Lindsay, will be the preacher. Mr. Holmes is a delightful speaker and will have a real Anniversary message. Special thankofferings will be taken at both services.

On Monday evening a secred concert will be given in the church by the choir of Murray Street Baptist Church, Peterborough, under the direction of Mr. Francis Sutton, A.T.C.M.

The fifth of the series of Euchre parties under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A., was held on Thursday evening and, despite the wet evening, ten tables were played and a very pleasant time spent. The prizes were won by Miss Ida Webster and Mr. George Pearson and the consolation prizes by Mrs. George Charlton and W. A. Barker.

The Lakefield Rink Company are holding a Sports Night at the Rink on Thursday evening, November 25, at 8 oclock. A programme of races will be run off and some novelty stunts and also a softball game between Lakefield and Selwyn.

This will close the autumn season and will be an outstanding event.

The Charlton party returned last week from their hunting trip to the head of Eels Lake; they secured seven deer and a fox. Those in the party were Messrs. J. C. Strickland, D. H. Charlton, S. J. Charlton, Bruce Charlton, W. Bickell and C. E. Strickland of Lakefield ,and Mr. J. W. Allen of Rochester and Mr. Sidney Crickmore of Toronto.

The various hunting parties have returned to the village and while luck varied, one and all report a good time. With the return of the hunters, things will settle down to the rountine which will only be broken by the election, the Christmas festivities and the opening of the curling season.

Mrs. Sutton of Newcastle, who has been visiting Mrs. W. W. Leonard, has been the raisin d'etre for several very pleasant social gatherings in the village.

Personals

Mrs. F. G. Burgess spent a few days in Peterborough last week visiting her daughters.

Among those from out of town who attended the nomination on Saturday last in the Lakefield Memorial Hall were Dr. D. Munro of Warsaw, Messrs. William Thompson and Cecil P. Sherwen of Mount Julian; Mr. W. A. Richardson of Norwood, and Messrs. J. A. Sexsmith and A. C. Denike of Havelock.

Mr. Fred Dore of Toronto was visiting friends in the village last week.

Mr. J. R. Church of Toronto was in the village on Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Dever and family have returned from a four months' visit to friends in Western Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. De Lafosse of Peterborough were in the village on Friday

Mr. A. O. Lampman, who spent the past fortnight in the village, left for Toronto on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Crickmore and Master Bruce of Toronto were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Strickland at "Uplands" last week.

Cough Caused Constant Coughing

Mrs. D. M. Nolan, Douglastown, N.B., writes:—"Two years ago I had a terrible cold which settled in my bronchial tubes and caused constant coughing, and I could not sleep day or night. I read about and thought I would give it a trial. After taking three bottles I was completely rid of my cough, and have never had a cold since."

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past 38 years, and its timely use may save you from suffering from some serious bronchial or lung trouble.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 24, 1926.

. . . MIRROR OF THE PUBLIC MIND . . . INTERPRETER OF THE PUBLIC INTENT . . . TROUBLER OF THE PUBLIC CONSCIENCE.

THE ELECTORAL MACHINERY.

One resolution that is to come before the U. F. O. convention next month that should command general support is that suggesting that the electoral machinery be taken out of the hands of the political parties, and that the appointments in connection therewith be non-partisan and permanent as they are in Great Britain.

Under the present system political parties seem to attach an undue importance to having control of the electoral machinery.

It is regarded for one thing as a piece of patronage through which party workers can be rewarded for the services.

Even looking at it from the purely party standpoint, it is of doubtful value even as patronage, while there is not the slightest doubt that the public confidence in the fairness and honesty of election methods would be considerably strengthened were the machinery to be controlled by non-partisan officials, in accordance with the method followed in the Mother Country.

MAKING TRAVELLING SAFER.

The County Council of Victoria County has declined to pass a bylaw compelling vehicles of all kinds to carry lights at night, but will memorialize the Provincial Government to introduce legislation to make such a law general throughout the Province.

The Examiner is glad to see a county body declaring in favour of such legislation, even if it refused to adopt it as a local measure.

The opposition in rural Ontario to this safety first proposal has been difficult to understand, especially as so many farmers now own cars and understand that the unilluminated horse-drawn vehicle is a menace on the roads of the Province.

For their own protection farmers who own such vehicles might be expected to be heartily in favour of such a regulation, but so far the contrary has been the case, and the Legislature has hesitated to adopt the necessary legislation because of the unpopularity of the proposal in rural parts of the Province.

However, there is evidently an awakening to the need of action, and before long it is hoped the carrying of lights on all vehicles will be made compulsory.

A RED CROSS OUTPOST.

It is definitely announced that the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross Society will establish a nursing outpost at Apsley, and that the work will start this year if the outpost budget permits.

This will be welcome news to the people of the whole Apsley district.

Such a depot will find a very useful field of service at this point, and the benefit of Red Cross nursing will be a boon to many families.

The action of the society in selecting Apsley as a headquarters will serve to call public attention to a fact that is not as well known as it should be, and that is that the Red Cross is not merely a war organization.

Its work never ceases; in peace or war its helping hand is extended to help those who need its services.

Splendid work has been done in outlying parts of the Province by such outposts as is to be established at Apsley, and there is every reason to expect that the depot to be located in Peterboro County will be of invaluable assistance to the people over a wide stretch of country.

A FREE CLINIC.

Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health, is to be commended upon his decision to provide facilities for free vaccination for Peterboro citizens as a protection against smallpox.

There is no excuse now for anybody not obtaining immunization against this disease, as vaccination will be done throughout the day at the Provincial Laboratory, Simcoe street, and for those who are unable to be vaccinated during the day, there will be a chance on Wednesday and Friday evenings at the same place.

The advice of the health authorities to the citizens generally is to be vaccinated.

This applies particularly now to adults, for the school children of the city have to a large extent been protected.

Smallpox exists in various parts of the city, and the wise citizen will decide that he is not justified in running the risk of contracting the disease when immunization can be obtained so readily.

A general compliance with the Health Department's advice will speedily stamp out the disease here.

THE DEAN IS AT IT AGAIN.

The gloomy Dean Inge has been out of the headlines for some weeks, and it seems that his soul has grieved. As Britain's national hair shirt he feels he has a mission—a mission of gloom, depression and pessimism. He wrote a book to prove that England is declining and the Empire disintegrating, and the publicity he received from it was very extensive, even if not particularly flattering to the Dean.

Now the sage of St. Paul's arises to remark thoughtfully that the English "are a lazy people, not only our workmen but the employers, right on down through the nation." The unfairness of indicting a nation means nothing to him. This, from Dean Inge, is a mild and pleasant comment, however.

The news from England these days impresses most people as being distinctly favorable. The miners' strike obviously is in process of conclusion, whether by formal settlement or by individual miners taking matters in their own hands and going back to work. Many thousands already are working, and it is announced that their spirit is good and that they appear to be harboring no resentment. A British firm has been awarded an Admiralty contract for the construction of a huge dry dock in connection with the naval base at Singapore. It is to be built in England and then towed to Singapore, and it will provide employment for thousands of men for months.

A British company has every expectation of securing, against world competition, a contract for building a network of underground railways in Buenos Aires, the Argentine capital. A Lancashire firm is to manufacture a large quantity of cotton mill machinery for Melbourne, Australia.

The Gloomy Dean probably will interpret these incidents as dying kicks of a doomed giant. Most people will see in them indications of the awakening of a giant which has been but dozing in its strength. —Ottawa Journal.

KEEPING HIGHWAYS OPEN IN WINTER.

With the extension and completion of motor highways and the very general use of the automobile for business as well as pleasure travel, the possibilities of extending the annual period of use—so largely restricted by snow in Canada—has become a matter of considerable importance. In the cities, where the streets can be kept in condition for wheeled traffic, there is very general year-round use of motor vehicles. To this the increasing numbers of closed cars and the evolution of simple heating devices has largely contributed.

Winter use of motor cars would become more common if the main highways, or the more heavily travelled portions of them, could be more generally kept open throughout the winter. The cost of this has been generally accepted as an obstacle, especially in those parts of this Province where fairly heavy snowfalls and steady winter conditions are to be expected over a considerable period. As a result the effort to keep the highways open throughout the winter have been confined mainly to the regions of milder weather. The extension of this work would meet considerable appreciation. Some points in a statement in favor of such a programme in Quebec by the Royal Automobile Club of Canada indicating that added revenue from the gasoline tax would meet the cost of the work are, therefore, of very real interest.

According to this statement, the tax in Quebec yields an average monthly revenue of $100,000, the peak of revenue being much higher in summer and dropping much below this figure in winter, when consumption is restricted practically to towns and cities. The officials of the club believe that the maintenance of some of the highways for winter travel would mean the operation of many motors now laid up for several months and that the increased gasoline buying would add to the gasoline tax revenue about $75,000 at a conservative figure. In Michigan and northern New York the roads are kept open at a cost of $60 to $100 per mile, they state, and allowing a generous margin of $150 for Quebec about 200 miles of highway could be maintained there for less than half the estimated additional revenue. Motorists, they point out, get only seven to nine months' use out of their investment. There is likewise only partial use of the great investments in highways by the public. And they contend that the maintenance of winter roads would lessen the deterioration of road surfaces arising at the time of the spring thaw from the effects of accumulated ice and snow.

In Ontario there is more general ownership of motor cars than in Quebec and the increase in tax revenue consequent upon open highways in winter should be proportionately greater. On the other hand, the cost of keeping the roads in shape for wheeled traffic should be for the most part somewhat less as the snowfall and severity of winter are not generally so great. If the estimates of the Automobile Club as regards increased revenue from winter motor traffic hold good there appears sound reason for the extension of highway activity to make possible the year round use of highways. The argument in favor on economic grounds has very real value. As regards the cost of such work reliable estimates must be available, but only experience will determine the revenue results. It is a development which appears as a future certainty on a very wide scale.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press)—Rail strike possibilities in Canada together with car movement restrictions now enforced on one Canadian line, led to lower prices here yesterday. Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 7-8 to 1 5-8c net lower. Corn finished 1-8c off to 1-8c up; oats 1-8c to 3-8c down; and provisions varying from 25c decline to 5c advance.

Likelihood of smaller receipts of corn for some time to come tended to steady the corn market and oats as well.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 14,000; yearlings in best demand at new high prices, extreme top yearlings $12.90; best heavies $10.75; vealers closed 25c to 50c higher at $11.50 to $12.00.

Hogs, 46,000; closing active generally 10 to 20c lower than Monday; to $1.75; bulk desirable hogs 240 pounds down $11.40 to $11.65; most packing sows $10.10 to $10.65; slaughter pigs upward to $11.75.

Sheep 18,000; generally steady on all classes; top natives and fed westerns to shippers $13.75; packer top $13.50; bulk fat woolled lambs $12.75 to $13.25; bulk fat ewes 500 at $6.50; top $6.75.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press). — There was practically no demand from foreign buyers for Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday and business was extremely dull. The local trade in coarse grains was also inactive and prices were unchanged.

Extreme dullness marked the flour trade, but prices for Spring and Winter grades were well maintained.

The demand for millfeed continued fair and a moderate amount of business was done at unchanged prices. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was moderately active and firm.

Prices for all grades of butter were well maintained, but the demand was light. The receipts were 333 packages.

The local and export trade in cheese was extremely dull but values were steady. The receipts were 2,755 boxes.

A fair amount of business was done in eggs, and prices were firm. The receipts were 1,442 cases.

A Thought For To-day

HER BOY.

Two men came back to the old home town,
One of them wealthy—of great renown,
The other as poor as the day he went,
Branded by men—incompetent.

The first came back 'mid blare of band,
Honored and cheered—they grasped his hand,
Called him 'their own" and spoke of when
He was a lad—and they knew it then—
That honor and glory and wealth and fame
Would some day be written before his name.
They followed him past the village square
Till they came to an humble cottage there.
They hated to leave, but he went inside
Where some one was waiting in fear and pride,

And there in his arms, through her tears of joy,
His mother was sobbing, "My boy! My boy . . ."

The second came home in a shame-faced way,
His step was slow and his face was gray.
None to take notice—his way forlorn—
His manner shrinking, his clothing worn.
He thought as he walked the careless street
Of fame that is mocking, of riches fleet—
And dreamed of the battles he'd lost —and years
Of struggle and failure and pain and fears.
He stopped at a gate; then he went inside
Where some one was waiting in fear and pride,

And there in his arms, through her tears of joy,
His mother was sobbing, "My boy! My boy . . ."

FROM W. H. MERRELL.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Would you allow me space to make just three statements.

1st—That I am a Conservative of the school of that great statesman, Sir George Foster and W. F. Nickle and willing to follow in their footsteps.

2nd—That I am proud to support a candidate who is endorsed by two hundred and forty electors that (exempting myself) no one can point a finger of scorn at.

3rd—I would say of the young people that they are the nation-builders of to-morrow.

Be true.

Thanking you, I remain, yours, etc.,

W. H. Merrell.

Editor, The Examiner:

A recent news item in The Examiner carried an account of Peterboro County honey produced by William Thompson of Indian River, having won first prize at the Crystal Palace Colonial Exhibition, London.

In this connection you may be interested in knowing that at the London (Eng.) Dairy Show, where dairy products, fruit, and honey are shown, Ontario honey won first and second prizes in competition with the entire Empire. The prize winners in question were Robert West, Thornton, Ont., and William Barrett, Inglewood, Ont.

At these exhibitions Ontario honey has consistently won the highest awards during the past four or five years. In fact the Ontario product is freely admitted to be the finest produced in the world.

Very truly yours,
ALLAN T. BROWN,
Smith Township.

To the Editor, Examiner, Peterboro.

Sir:

The electors are likely to vote on December 1st next, not knowing the provisions of the Ferguson proposed panacea or his plan to make this a law abiding and temperate province. The Premier has been careful not to make light of the O.T.A. inasmuch as it is of his own creation, but this he admits that with all the power of his Government, his Provincial police, local police, license inspectors, magistrates and other important officials, he cannot enforce, which is to say that I am supported by a parcel of weaklings. But in this the electors refuse to be hoodwinked. They first look to the Premier and his Cabinet where they find little sympathy with enforcement of the Act, and although the Premier has been careful to point out that larger sums are paid for enforcement the money is wasted on salaried officials who are without the backing of a sympathetic administration. True, the Cabinet made a what then seemed to everyone, a wise provision when they placed the M.D. in charge of sales or distribution. As the medical profession were of A-1 reputation, honorable men, and of necessity men of education and refinement, who were instructed to permit liquor to be used by their customers when necessary, as a medicine, and not for beverage purposes. Now the Premier says that a very large number of doctors have been unfaithful to the trust reposed in them, and have made themselves bartenders. The Premier has excused them inasmuch as it was not a criminal offence. At the same time many who are opposed to the O.T.A. say that the Act has made liars and lawbreakers of the people. This is not so, they were in that class before the Act was passed. May as well say that the law against theft will make an honest man steal, or that the law is responsible for all the purveyors of poison and vice that infest this fair Province. It is not so, and the remedy is in placing men in power, preventative officers, who without fear or favor will hew to the line, backed by a sympathetic administration.

Yours truly,
J. F. LILLICRAP.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir:

I am much surprised at the light way in which so many people are telling us that one of our laws cannot be enforced. If we conclude that any one of our laws is a bad law, surely the right thing to do is to repeal it for the reason that it is a bad law. But of course this is very different from saying that a law cannot be enforced and therefore it should be repealed.

The moment that we take this foolish and unpatriotic position we have started down the road that leads to anarchy. We are now confronted with this position. On the one hand we are told, with a great air of authority, by a number of prominent gentlemen, journalists clergymen, bankers, teachers and etc., not one of whom has ever occupied the position of Attorney-General, that the O.T.A. cannot be enforced.

On the other hand we have the positive assurance of two former sworn ministers of the Crown, both men of outstanding ability and high character, members of different political parties, and both of whom have occupied the position of Attorney-General, that the O.T.A. can be enforced if the government is sympathetic.

Between these two conflicting opinions, the one given by trained and experienced experts, and the other by men who have no right whatever to be considered experts, inaelligent people should experience no difficulty in deciding.

Nevertheless it must honestly be conceded that the enforcement of the O.T.A. has left much to be desired, and this fact has greatly puzzled many good people. But there is now no mystery about this because the Prime Minister has himself let the cat out of the bag, by stating that every member of the Cabinet, excepting Hon. Mr. Nickle, is a Government Controller! What we have done is simply this: By the various plebiscites we have declared strongly in favor of the O.T.A. and then we have faced right about and elected a lot of Government Controllers to enforce it.

Now this is what the old darky would call "foolishment." At present we have a law against burglary. If it became known that every member of the Cabinet except one was opposed to this law, will any sane man say that we would not have a lot of burglaries? The only surprising thing about the present situation is that under such circumstances the O.T.A. was well enforced as it was, for which fact we undoubtedly have to thank Hon. Mr. Nickle, who was certainly a dry oasis in a very wet desert. The Prime Minister says that the O.T.A. has done a great amount of good, and has brought happiness to a great many families.

I call that a good law. But I agree that it has defects but these could be removed by a sympathetic government.

I am for amendment and enforcement of the O.T.A.

DON'T MISPLACE YOUR CLAUSES

(By The McClure Syndicate.)

"The sandwiching of a clause between a subject and a second verb often gives amusing results," says "Handbook for Newspaper Workers," by C. M. Hyde. The book gives the following examples:

"Faulty.—Bud dropped into the trench where the wounded German lay and kicked open the dugout barrier.

"Better.—After dropping in the trench where the wounded German lay Bud kicked open the dugout barrier.

"Faulty.—William Reeder, a farmer was fatally injured when his house collapsed and died a few hours later.

"Better.—William Reeder, a farmer, died a few hours after receiving fatal injuries in the fall of his house."

"BLUE"?

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

A fit of "blues" is as much a physical ailment as a fit of any other kind.

When the world begins to get "blue—violet—indigo," there is something the matter with your body—not your eyesight or the world.

A case of the "blues" is as much an intoxication as a drunken spree. The body is drunk with the poisons in the system.

Efforts of the will to be cheerful are only partly successful until the poisons have been eliminated.

When you are blue, don't:

1. Make important decisions until the spell is passed.
2. "Speak your mind" to your friends.

But do:

1. Watch your posture. Stand up straight. Sit up in your chair. Don't slouch. Bad posture gives rise to congestion of the kidneys and excitement of the adrenal glands brings on an excess of their secretion in the blood.

2. Eliminate. Get up a good perspiration. Be sure the bowels are in good condition. The blues are almost universally association with constipation. Drink large quantities of water. Clean out the system as much as possible.

3. Exercise. A sedentary life allowing an undue accumulation of waste tissues is fallow ground for the blues. Any form of exercise—work in a gymnasium, a tramp, working in the garden—that is vigorous enough to induce a good "sweat" is beneficial. Exercise that brings the large muscles of the legs and trunk into active use and sets the lungs into full play is of the greatest value.

4. Beware of loss of sleep, the use of drugs and the too free use of condiments and highly seasoned foods. They are often responsible for depression of the spirits by causing overaction of the adrenal glands.

"The best mental remedy for the 'blues'," says Dr. J. H. Kellogg, to whom I am indebted for these suggestions, "is to turn the face resolutely toward better things and wait for the poison wave to pass, just as one holds his breath in the surf until the foaming crest has passed over, at the same time endeavoring to remove the causes."

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN IN UNITED COUNTIES

Candidates Are Working Hard in Northumberland and Durham.

COBOURG, Nov. 24.—There is only one issue discussed by the electors of Northumberland and Durham Counties in the present Provincial campaign, and that is the temperance one. Never before were all other issues so completely overshadowed. Dr. W. G. Robertson, the Liberal candidate, who is a former Warkworth boy, is being heartily supported by the prohibitionists. His meeting here next Wednesday night is to be addressed by Rev. John Coburn, Toronto, who addressed the Northumberland prohibition convention at Warkworth a few weeks ago.

The prohibitionists of Durham County are very active, and a joint meeting of Liberals and the members of the Temperance Association was held a few days ago at which the Durham Ontario Temperance Act Association was organized to work for the retention of the present Act and the election of W. J. Bragg, Liberal candidate. Plans for the campaign were outlined. Following officers were elected:

Chairman—J. G. Jackson.
Secretary—Harold Fulford.
Asst. Sec.—J. H. Rosevear.
Treasurer—Mrs. G. V. Strong.

Equally active are the Durham County Conservatives in this campaign. Miss Clara Field and Mr. F. M. Field, K.C., of Cobourg, are among the speakers who are to take part the coming week in the political campaign being put on by Mr. T. B. Chalk in Durham County where he is the Conservative standard-bearer. A meeting held at Kendal was addressed by C. J. Thornton, Orono, F. W. Bowen and the candidate. On Saturday meetings were held at Mount Pleasant and Cavanville, where Capt. Lawson, Miss Clara Field of Cobourg, ex-Warden J. L. McCamus and Mr. F. W. Bowen, with the candidate, gave addresses.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson is billed to speak at Bowmanville on Saturday, Nov. 29th, at 2 p.m.

In Northumberland County May. or F. J. McArthur, of Cobourg, is carrying on an aggressive campaign. He has been out getting acquainted with some of the electors in the northern part of the county and helping to effect organization for the campaign. In Colborne and vicinity Mayor McArthur is quite well known as he has carried on business there.

A Cobourg citizen was heard to remark the other day that he would not bet 25c on the probable results of the election, either Provincially or locally, and that appears to be a general opinion.

FEATURES ON JOINT REPORT OF ENGINEERS

Concerning Problems For Deep Water Development of Great Lakes.

FAIL TO AGREE.

Joint Board Consists of Canadian and American Engineers.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 24 (Canadian Press)—The main features of the report of the joint board of Canadian and American engineers which has been studying for twenty months the problems of deep water development of the Great Lakes—St. Lawrence Waterways are as follows:

The Canadian and the American sections failed to agree.

The American section propose a full single-stage power development in which all the practical head available in that section of the river would be concentrated in one high dam below the Long Sault rapids at the foot of Barnhart Island.

The Canadian section contemplates the development of power at Ogden Island near Morrisburg, and at the Long Sault, in a double-stage scheme.

The total installed capacity of the two schemes:

Single-stage (American plan), 2,730,000 horsepower.

Double-stage (Canadian plan), 2 619,000 horsepower.

The estimated cost of the development of power alone in the St. Lawrence under both scheems:

Single-stage, $290,172,000;

Double-stage, $308,972,000.

The estimated cost of improving the St. Lawrence for navigation alone is $167,720,000 under either scheme.

Lake Ontario to Montreal only; estimated cost:

Single-stage, $39,000,000;

Double-stage, $423,600,000.

Head of lakes to Montreal estimated cost:

Single stage, $394,000,000.

Double-stage, $582,000,000.

All costs are presented without interest during construction.

A twenty-five-foot waterway is proposed from Lake Ontario to Montreal involving 25 miles of restricted canal navigation, 9 locks and eight bridges. The locks proposed would be 859 feet long, 80 feet wide, and 30 feet deep; to have an estimated traffic capacity of 24,000,000 tons. The estimated cost of improving the Great Lakes connecting channels is set at $44,000,000. The time to complete all works is forecast as eight years.

Cost to restore the effects of Chicago water diversion:

At outlet of Lake Huron, $1,350 000.

At foot of Lake Erie, $400,000.

At and below Montreal, $4,608,000

The effect of the diversion on the levels of Lake Ontario and St. Lawrence above Montreal would be removed by the works projected for the improvement of the river.

The report is signed by Major-General Jadwin, chief of the United States engineers, William Kelly,

Convention and World Defied By Two Elopers

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 24 (United Press).—A daring Italian war hero and a socially prominent woman, who together abandoned their homes and mates in a sudden elopement yesterday defied the world and convention in justification of the step they took.

"I am ashamed of nothing," declared Mrs. Isabelle Keyes Burch, wife of the grandson of the late Bishop Charles Sumner Burch, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York."

"It was love at first sight," chimed in Captain Arnoldo Marson, Italian war hero and husband of Mr. Burch's mother.

SAYS THAT HE KNEW NOTHING ABOUT MURDER

NOT EPILEPTIC.

Finger Marks on Card Found on Body Again Discussed.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press). — Willie Stevens told a Somerset County jury yesterday that he had "absolutely nothing at all" to do with the murder of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills and the Rev. Edward W. Hall, and knows "nothing at all" about it.

The defendant on trial with his brother Henry, and his sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, on a charge of murdering Mrs. Mills, told his story on direct examination in twenty-five minutes and was cross-examined for fifty-five minutes, when court adjourned for the day.

The defendant testified in his own behalf in the afternoon after all the previous testimony of the day had been concerned with a calling card of the Rev. Mr. Hall, introduced in evidence by the State as found near the body of the slain minister and which, according to State experts, bears the imprint of the left index finger of Willie Stevens.

A trio of defence fingerprint experts testified that the imprint on the card is not that of the defendant.

With huge enlarged photographs of the print in evidence, and Willie Stevens' own fingerprint, J. H. Taylor, of the Navy Department, Frederick Sandberg, of the Washington police, and Gerhardt Kudne of the New York police, pointed out to the jury discrepancies in the two prints as they have found them.

Willie Stevens walked to the witness stand as if he could not see very well, and early in his testimony said that he had worn eye-glasses since he was a boy and he could not see without them. He was mistaken in his first answer, but corrected himself in response to a question as to his age by saying "fifty-four" when his first answer had been "forty-four."

He quickly denied that he was in

ANOTHER MAN LEAPS TO DEATH

Negro Laborer Jumps From Top of Washington Monument.

SECOND IN WEEK.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (United Press).—Another man, a negro laborer, jumped from the top of Washington's monument yesterday, the second in three days. Blonnie Ward, yesterday's victim, 35 years old, went to the top with sightseers and remained there when they went down, in the same manner as Henry C. Anderson, Spanish-American war veteron, who plunged from the tiny window at the top last Saturday.

Park police said that Ward had cut his throat before he made the jump. There have been two other men go to their deaths from the monument, a painter who slipped from a scaffold in 1903, and a young man who leaped from the top in 1923 Several years ago a woman fell down the "well" inside the shaft.

Iron gratings may be placed across the windows at the top or a guard may be stationed there as a result of the two recent deaths.

FINGER PRINT NOT STEVENS'

MADE LATER.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., Nov. 24 (Canadian Press) — Three finger print experts testified at the trial of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, here today that a finger print appearing on a calling card of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, found near his body, is not that of Willie Stevens and one gave an opinion that it was developed at a later day.

The three defendants are charged with the murder of Mr. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, a choir singer, at New Brunswick, N. J., on Sept. 14, 1922.

J. H. Taylor, of the Navy department, Frank Sanberg, in charge of the Bureau of Identification of the police force of Washington, D.C., and Gerhard Kuhne, supervising finger print expert of the Central Bureau of Identification, New York, all testified that the fingerprint on the calling card was not made by Willie Stevens and gave their technical reasons why they had reached this conclusion.

Kuhne added that he had reasons for believing that the print was made on the calling card at a date later than that of the double murder because there was charcoal or graphite overlaying the lampblack or bone black used in developing the fingerprints that were originally on the card.

This is the first time such a stunt has been attempted. Sir Alan plans to assemble the plane, which has folding wings, on the ship's deck.

CAVAN W. I. MEET

Held at Home of Mrs. J. W. Perrin on Thursday Last.

CAVAN, Nov. 23. — The Cavan Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. J. W. Perrin on Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. D. J. Hunter, conducted the meeting.

Among the correspondence read by the secretary was a letter of thanks from the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, for a donation of preserved fruit, which had been sent to that institution.

It was decided to contribute ten dollars for use at Christmas time at the Christie Street Hospital, Toronto.

Another seven dollars was voted to be used in making some children comfortable and happy at the Christmas season.

Readings were given by Mrs. I. Keegan, Miss Muriel Matchett and Mrs. J. W. Perrin.

After the meeting adjourned a lunch was served by Mrs. Perrin, assisted by a committee of ladies. During lunch a social time was enjoyed.

Mrs. Lloyd Sutton invited the Institute to meet at her home in January. As is the custom, the December meeting will be omitted.

Among those present were Mrs. D. J. Hunter, Mrs. I. Keegan, Miss Frances Hunter, Mrs. Ray Syer, Mrs. R. Swain, Valentia, Mrs. R. S. Staples, Mrs. Lloyd Sutton, Miss N. Sutton, Miss L. Telford, Peterboro, Mrs. C. Carr, Mrs. Rowen, Mrs. D. White, Mrs. F. M. Staples, Mrs. E. Syer, Miss Lillie Syer, Mrs. R. Matchett, Miss Muriel Matchett and Miss A. Kelly.

Mrs. G. Wallace, who for the past month has been visiting her mother, Mrs. David Hunter, and other friends, started for her home in Alberta on Monday, intending to visit friends in Toronto and Brantford en route. She was accompanied as far as Toronto by her niece, Miss Hazel Hunter, who will resume her work there as a nurse, after a couple of weeks' vacation in Cavan.

Mrs. Milligan is visiting her sister, Mrs. Fisher in Cobourg this week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Touchbourn, of Peterboro, visited Miss Bertha and Mr. Eugene Touchbourn, Ida, on Sunday.

There was a dance in the Parish Hall, Ida, on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Matchett visited friends in Toronto and attended the Royal Fair, going on Saturday and returning on Wednesday.

Mr. David White and Mr. R. S. Staples attended the Royal Fair in Toronto.

Mrs. Hamilton, Bethany, is visiting her niece, Mrs. I. Keegan, of Cavan.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Paul were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Beer, Eighth Line, Manvers, on Sunday.

HURL SNOWBALLS AT VICE-PRESIDENT

EVANSTON, Ills, Nov. 24 (United Press). — Vice-President Dawes now knows how one feels when his audience decides to throw things in the speaker's direction. Last night Dawes spoke to some 15,000 people here, gathered to celebrate Northwestern University football team's sharing of the Big Ten title with Michigan. The Vice-President was telling the students: "Your football team has put you on the map; if you're worth the powder and shot it would take to kill you, you'll keep it there——" Bam! A good-sized snowball crashed against the platform; then another. Dawes shifted his underslung pipe to the other side and kept on talking. No more snowballs came his way.

FIRE HINDERS RESCUE TEAMS

No Hope Entertained For Eight Men Trapped in Mine.

TWO RECOVERED.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The McGillivray Creek Mine, where an explosion early yesterday entombed ten miners, is now on fire, and Mine Inspector Johnston has ordered rescue teams not to go into the workings. Two bodies have already been recovered. Rescue workers located a third body but were unable to bring it to the surface on account of dense gas and recurring explosions. No hope is entertained for the eight men trapped in the mine.

It has been definitely established that there were 28 men in the slope when the first explosion occurred.

Frequent Explosions

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—Ten miners are believed to have had their lives snuffed out by deadly gas, following an explosion early yesterday in the McGillivray Creek Mine, near here. Fire was sweeping the workings last night, preventing rescue work.

Twenty-eight men were in the mine when an accumulation of coal gas and dust exploded. Eighteen made their way safely to the surface. Rescue crews later recovered two bodies, located a third and announced that little hope was entertained that any of the seven men unaccounted for would be found alive.

The known dead are:

A. Leitch and R. Farrell, miners.

An unidentified miner.

The missing:

S. W. White, fire boss; Tom Young, M. Yurik, W. Piky, J. Ukrainetz, Alex. Morris, D. Meek, G. Johnson. (One of them known to be dead).

The theory that the men met death from the deadly after-damp was advanced, when rescue crews reported that the three bodies were found is positions which indicated that the men had been making frantic efforts to reach the surface when overcome by gas.

Recurring explosions which lasted until early last night prevented an extended search by rescue squads. Dense clouds of gas permeated the workings and the mine took fire following a particularly heavy explosion yesterday afternoon. Mine Inspector Johnson immediately ordered rescue teams to remain at the surface.

Crowds of relatives and friends of the missing men remained at the head of the shaft last night.

The McGillivray Creek Coal Mine is one of the largest in the Alberta bituminous field. The damage to the mine was not extensive.

Further light on the operations of the bootlegging machine which is organized all through Western Ontario, was thrown yesterday, when The Star made a find of over a quart of what is thought to be alcohol along the road that runs past the home of George Gill. The find consisted of a full bottle ... Gill property. The house is well back off the highway, and the scrubby land that surrounds it on every side, would seem to have afforded the most likely place of concealment.

DEATH IS BLAMED ON POISON ALCOHOL

Police Seek Vendor of Liquor Said to Have Taken Man's Life

(Special Despatch to The Globe.)

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 12.—The lifeless body of Walter L. Miller, 53 years of age, this city, was found on the back seat of his automobile in a garage owned by Richard Phillips. Death is believed to have been due to alcoholic poisoning, and warrants are being issued for the people where the liquor is believed to have been sold, at a place near Thorold.

The police found tonight that there had been an all-night drinking party at the place near Thorold and that the decedent was so drunk that he was taken into the Phillips barn early this morning. A teamster going into feed his horses tonight saw man and shook the car, but got response and called the police Coroner. Miller is survived by widow and two daughters. Dr. ...man, Coroner, has ordered an inquest for tomorrow night. The man had apparently been dead for some

Trading On the Past

Within the last few months several applications have come from widely different points across the line, the persons writing asking to be supplied with copies of, what they hope to obtain, a history of the town and city of Peterborough. In what is penned, the writer makes vague references to interest growing out of associations by some predecessor who lived in or about the locality, as a reason for his application. The farther back the record, if obtained, would reach, the better it is to be esteemed. Information of what has taken place during the last twenty or thirty years is not desired.

The thought will obtain why should people, living in widely different situations, seek to obtain information in which, it may be inferred, they would have little or no interest. For it is not stated that the writer has had residence in the town many years ago, or, indeed, has family or personal connection with those now living in the city. What is the explanation, if one there be. For these enquiries always center on the fact that some one has, in the long ago, been prosperous and has made money. To make the matter clear, and to guess at the motives, will call for a little ancient history, if reference to the lives of men living three generations back be history of that character.

Money was gained three or even two, generations ago in the exploitation of the natural resources of the country, and which operations have now practically ceased. A generally favored enterprise was to devour the abundant forests that covered the broad acres of the district. The country around Peterborough, for instance, produced large quantities of wood products, lumber, timber, masts and such desirable materials for export. Along the shores of Rice Lake and down the banks of the Trent River were almost inexhaustible quantities of prime oak timber. A trade of a considerable amount was done in export of oak-barrel staves to the producers of rum, gin and such liquors in the West Indies. Hundreds of thousands of such staves were whittled out in the long winter days by settlers, using a stave-horse and drawknife. Collected along the shores of the lake and river, the product was carried by water (a sort of raft being utilized) to Trenton and sent forward to Oswego or Montreal. Dr. John Gilchrist, of Peterborough-Keene fame, a man who had varied interests as physician, farmer, lumberman, distiller, also dealt in staves, and once brought suit in court against the Upper Canada legislature officials, claiming large logs on a shipment of staves, which went adrift down the Trent River, all on account of the dam at Hastings not being in usual working order to put through his stave-loaded raft. From all such sources, money accumulated, and when the owner of the wealth passed away, what was left, came to relatives, or those of the families in connection. Such activities were carried on over the lands to the east as far as Perth and in the County of Lanark, and in territory now penetrated by the line of the C. P. R.

Our United States friends are reported to be ingenious in ways and means and promoting schemes to gain a living and make money, without so much regard as to how the pelf is gained. With fertility of resource, individuals turn a hand to any plan that promises to further their efforts. Quite a business has been cultivated by men who endeavor to extract money from people who do not wish to be annoyed in holding on to what they have and which may have been bequeathed to them. Folks, now in the third, or even second, generation, may have inherited from their predecessors and been serenely enjoying an income undisturbed. Presently, alone comes a letter that causes consternation and much anxiety, and opens up a long vista of trouble.

Having secured some printed record, the older the better, it is very carefully scanned to note who was prominent in the locality in earlier years. Now, history is a detail of the lives of men who did things, and in any retrospective narrative would likely be found reference to the business activities, community prominence and extent of possessions of men who had pushed themselves up from among their fellows. If the individual were labelled as prosperous and well-off, and had possessions of value in lands and business accumulations to hand down to family successors, he would be a marked man. Scrutiny as to the ordinary man received no attention, for in such cases there would be little to leave to others.

It being settled that one or possibly two of the men, as mentioned, would make good prospects, the "approach" is decided upon and the wheels set in motion. A letter may be constructed, written on any old sheet of paper, ruled or unruled, possibly torn from among the pages of an account book, and addressed to some public official in the locality to be investigated. Village or town clerks go on forever. The reeve of a given township is like the King, never out of action. When one goes out of office, his successor is appointed.

The letter is brief and not notably inquisitive. Would the clerk or reeve kindly inform the writer of some person who would be able to recollect facts and incidents among citizens who lived in the locality, say, fifty years or more before. And as a stamped envelope is enclosed (American stamp), the information is written and despatched, friendly, even if international, courtesy would be appreciated. I am, yours very truly, etc."

This letter came from a point in the State of Massachusetts, and was addressed to Hon. J. R. Stratton, who passed away many years ago. Now, if one be so willing, he could take this enquiry and, by substituting real names and credible facts, give exactly the information looked for. The whole thing points to a careful study of circumstances, operations and personalities of two generations ago. The reader will notice the rather clumsy plausibility that the man "died intestate," after the inference that he died without making a will. This statement is not an error, but a mis-statement which it is hoped the person writing a reply will correct and give the real facts.

If a letter, such as the enquiry above, be answered in good faith, then the real seige begins. More detailed report is sought, and now some one may be employed to make a survey, detailing much more of the life, habits, associations and personality in regard to the man, or men, to whom the enquiry relates. Who are now living of the family in immediate connection? How are they fixed? What may be left of the "immense estate," and in whose hands can the residue, if any, be found. If the man who, it is assumed, made the money had, during his life, made a false step, such a fact is carefully treasured as valuable ammunition. It might be converted into a veritable bomb. Well and adroitly handled, it is just what is sought for.

After the train has been laid, may come another letter, typed on a paper headed by the names of some firm of attorneys, solicitors or agents. It is the first momentous shot out of the locker. It will probably tell that a client of the attorney has placed in hands a claim involving a case for re-distribution of an estate wrongly divided and possibly consumed. Briefly, it tells enough of the substance of the claim to thoroughly alarm the recipients. It is a bolt from the blue and most disconcerting. It is suggested that, possibly, the matter can be arranged without publicity and further communication is invited. In alarm, an answer to the letter is written and despatched, being couched in terms of warm denial, and, like as not, further particulars are unwittingly disclosed. Presently, another communication arrives, this time much more positive in its tenor. Hints that the man led a double life, with a family in Canada and another in some western state. Nothing is stated definitely but only by implication.

Dreading publicity and consequent comment, and jealous that the slightest inkling of the allegations may leak out, further correspondence is entered on, always a highly imprudent proceeding. The advantage is on the side of the conspirators, for so much may be advanced by them in the way of assertion, and wholly not to be substantiated, that it may seem hopeless to resist, and, in any event, there is prospect of a legal bill of some dimensions.

[illegible] ther letter, this [illegible] tone. A com- [illegible] thus avoiding all bother and disclosures that might follow on legal proceedings. The attorney advises that he is positive that his client has a case that can be easily proven, but the client wishes to be reasonable. Perhaps, he suggests, it would best meet the wishes of all parties if the matter were adjusted as amicably as possible, and he is instructed to write that his client would accept $5,000.00 and call the proceedings off. His client, he adds, has a strong feeling that his rights have been impunged, but is sensible that his claim may be disputed, regrets to take legal action to enforce the same, and awaits a kind and agreeable reply.

This sort of enterprise is akin to the Spanish prisoner's letter, now worn threadbare. But we have with us the high-powered oil-stock salesman and his running mate of the gold-mine-prospect allurements. All of such rapacious schemes play on the element of human dread of publicity and a fear that, once statements disclosed, no matter wholly false and untenable, they may never be overtaken. Of course, where, on the first definite approach, the matter be placed with a legal adviser, the hunt is promptly dropped and efforts transferred to some other locality. But the serene, peaceful and quiet lives of sundry people have been broken, never to be restored. What has happened once may happen again. The reckless and untruthful assertions leave behind a haunting impression that something has been that they never knew and never suspected.

Other letters of enquiry come in which the motive and enquiry bear evidence of being honest endeavor to get in touch with some one who knows. Here is a copy of one from Hankinson, North Dakota, U. S. A. The writer writes:

Dear Sir: I am seeking touch or trace of some of my father's relatives who resided in or near Peterborough, or a village called Lindsay, around sixty-five or seventy years ago. My father's name was Joseph Little. He had no living brothers but had two or more sisters. He left here when a lad of 13 or a little older, some time in the sixties.

If you could give me the names of some of the older residents or the name of the oldest bank, I should consider it a great favor. Couldyou tell me the name of or what official to refer to in trading them as he never received his share fo the family property.—F. J. Little.

Those who vicariously play the family game of "Lost Heir," in which, we are informed, the Bad Boy lives in Winnipeg and the King of Tarts in Port Hope, will sympathize with the above intimated distress to get on the track of an alleged estate. It may be added that the enquirer was referred to the County Registrar, for Victoria County, at Lindsay, in whose care the records of land and property transfers are placed. A directory of Lindsay in the year 1857 say little about any Little. Nor does a directory of Peterborough for the same year (1857) give any such name as resident. But boys and girls were not taken notice of in such publication, being no doubt considered accidental [illegible] to the number of a fa

Following is such a letter, received a few months ago, in which, in part, the writer writes:

"I am writing to you as the only possible source of information I know of regarding the matter I have in hand, and I am trying to sift out. Could you advise me how or where I could get information regarding the will of a Mr. Gibson, better known as the lumber king of some western state, who died many years ago?

"He was my grandmother's brother on my father's side. I believe he died intestate and never having been married. I am interested to know what became of his estate, which must be immense.

"Any information on this matter

Tim, Tim-a-lim, Tim-a-lim, Tim, Tim

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS.

CHILDREN love jingles—just words which may or may not mean something. Often little children will be heard chanting seemingly meaningless syllables which give pleasure by jingling. The chant, 'Tim, Tim-a-lim, Tim-a-lim, tim, tim, for instance, dominated our childhood. We had an old horse, Hanse, who would dance and roll his eyes as we clapped our hands and chanted; a big rooster would strut and crow to our delight, and the rhythm afforded a basis for all child chants. Grown-ups often rebuke a child, "Don't keep saying that nonsense!" and fail to recognize that that nonsense has definite significance to the child and affords him distinct pleasure.

the whole of mankind together, and people everywhere are looking for improvement in conditions of life.

Mr. Todd thought that animal stories, although exaggerated at times were of great assistance in helping children to realize that animals had ideals and hopes and had also as great a right to life as humans. "We must be idealists to belong .. the Humane Society, and have a love for humanity and for the lower creation."

The vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. Todd was moved by Mr. W. H. Roberts and seconded by Mrs. E. S. Martin.

The chairman announced that a membership campaign will be held in January, also that Mr. Jack Miner will speak here under the society's auspices, sometime in February next.

The report of the Inspector, Mr. R. C. Smith, was as follows:

Horses examined, 33; horses humanely detroyed, 3; horses brought to shelter 2; dogs brought to shelter, 14; dogs humanely destroyed, 11; dogs placed in homes, 13; dogs claimed by owners, 2; cats humanely destroyed, 42; other animals examined, 4; summons issued, 1; dismissals, 1; complaints investigated, 37; warnings issued, 21; emergency calls, 4; tables inspected, 16.

COMMITTEE MAY PURCHASE PIANO

County Council Authorizes Securing Instrument For House of Refuge.

The question of furnishing some form of musical instrument at the House of Refuge came up before the County Council this morning, and after much discussion the committee was given the power to secure an organ or piano as it saw fit. The committee, which was appointed at the June sessions reported that it was unable to secure a piano or organ at the amount which the council had apportioned for the same. Reeve Strickland of Lakefield offered his player piano which is in first-class shape for $250, and guaranteed it to be satisfactory or he would take it back. Mr. Strickland is leaving Lakefield next month and he said his piano was too large for the house in which he is going to live in Toronto.

Every Sunday a minister goes out from Lakefield to hold a service at the Home, and with no musical instrument it has been found rather difficult to get singers to go out. The young people of Lakefield are often willing to give concerts at the House of Refuge, so as to give the old people a little entertainment, but they have been unable to do this for the past year.

Messrs. Flood and Lillico moved that Mr. Strickland's offer be accepted, and Messrs. Smithson and Breckenbridge moved an amendment that the matter be left to the board, which carried.

The report of the property and building committe about the court house addition, was read by the chairman, Reeve Parker, as follows:

The committee decided to employ Mr. James Finnie, giving him 10 per cent of cost. The estimate and tender of the architect after provision for inspector would be made, not being lower than the estimate secured by the committee, was the deciding point to employ Mr. Finnie on the stated terms.

Up to November 20, there has been the sum of $12,726.55 paid out and after estimating what would have yet to be met, I am satisfied that the total will come well within the estimate.

I might say that economy and speed in the work prevails, consistent with absolutely necessity.

The yard and storing shed have been narrowed up as a result of the new building. I would recommend the removing of the woodshed that stands so close to the new building. Sheds for material and road machinery could be provided by extending the same all along the north side of yard. The cost of same has been estimated to be in the neighborhood of $1,100. The road commissions might be consulted as to the pro rata of such improvement each would assume.

A driveway can be made off Murray Street to yard, Mr. Nesbitt having kindly agreed to allow such across the corner of his back vegetable garden. Ordinary repairs and caretakers' supplies have been procured throughout the year as required.

The inspection of all of the Council as well as the City Council is respectfully accorded.

I also refer to the removal of trees that is desired by the incumbents of the different offices in order to lessen dampness and afford more light. When completed the driveway from Murray Street will, I am sure, be appreciated by all who will have occasion to use such driveway.

I would recommend where water is heated in the buildings from the radiator that they be connected with stoves, thereby saving much coal that is now wasted and detracted from the buildings. I am under the impression that such change must be made to heat the new additions properly.

WILD DOG PACKS TO BE WIPED OUT

Residents, Endangered By Fierce Animals, Use Many Weapons.

ASHBURY PARK, N.J., Nov. 24.—(United Press.)—Lethal gas, revolvers, and shot guns were called into use this morning by residents of the Shrewdsbury river district in Ocean township, to exterminate packs of wild dogs living in the Indians' caves near here.

For many years wild dogs have inhabited the caves named for the Indians who once used them as homes. During the winter months it has been dangerous for residents of the district to walk past the caves and only recently a man was injured by a pack of the vicious beasts, while cattle on the nearby farms have been attacked by them.

John Kendricks, Ashbury Park agent of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is arranging to kill the dogs off as painlessly as possible.

SMALLER AREA OF FALL WHEAT

Large Tracts Set Apart For Sowing Were Too Wet.

PROSPECTS FAIR.

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press)—It is estimated that 733,000 acres of Ontario's farm lands have been sown in fall wheat this year as compared with 928,000 acres last year. The unfavorable weather was responsible for the lessening of the sown acreage this year. Large tracts of land which had been set apart for the fall sowing were under water or so wet that efforts at cultivation were abandoned for this season.

Officials of the Ontario Department of Agriculture consider, however, that prospects are very fair considering the adverse conditions. W. Bert Roadhouse, deputy minister, said that the situation, while not as satisfactory in this particular as at the same date last year, was not at all alarming.

Ontario's total area under summer cultivation for all purposes is normally about 12,000,000 acres.

RIVER UNDERMINES VILLAGE IN FRANCE

Twenty People Killed When Houses Collapse—Others in Danger.

NICE, France, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—Twenty persons were killed to-day in the town of Roquebilliere, in the Department Alpes Maritimes, when more than a score of houses collapsed, their foundations having been undermined by a torrent from the Vesubie River.

Neighboring villages in the mountains inland from Nice are threatened by landslides and floods. Parts of the mountain above the town of Belvedere were reported to be sliding toward the town. Landslides blocked several roads and interfered with communications with Nice. Rescue parties have been sent to the affected districts.

Alligators Leave Water To Terrorize Inhabitants

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Nov. 24 (United Press).—Inhabitants of Corrientes River valley were terrorized by schools of alligators which were left in tributaries of the river when flood waters receded here. The alligators were large enough to kill and devour calves, and expeditions have been organized to destroy them.

MAN INJURED BY MOTOR CAR

Roy Young, 19, Has Left Leg Broken When Struck Down.

IN HOSPITAL.

Roy Young, 19, had his left leg broken when he was knocked down by a car on Hunter Street East last night.

The accident occurred almost in front of Boorman's store. The driver of the car told the police that he was travelling about 15 to 18 miles an hour. On nearing Boorman's store he noticed a man starting out to cross the road. The man, however, turned back and was struck down.

The driver applied his brakes, with the result that his car skidded toward the curb, damaging two wheels beyond repair.

Dr. W. A. Baker was called, and after rendering first aid had the injured man removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Stock Exchange Members Refuse Shorter Holiday

LONDON, Nov. 24 (United Press). — Ordinarily dignified members of the Stock Exchange took a twenty-minute recess to boo and cat-call the aged Sir Charles Fulley, who had suggested that the Exchange weekend holiday should be curtailed to permit the members to work on Saturday mornings. Sir Charles was compelled to leave the building.

ENGINEERS WILL REMAIN AT WORK

Will Observe Contract With Railways, Says General Chairman.

MONCTON, N.B., Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Whether any strike of railway trainmen and conductors on the Canadian Railways would be taken in by the railway engineers is a question that was settled by George A. Stone, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, here to-day, when he said that his Brotherhood is bound by contract with the Canadian Railways and the executive officers of that union have announced that the engineers will at least observe the contract, irrespective of what action other unions may take.

Nevertheless, the engineers must have regard for the safety of the passengers on trains, and of the other employees, and this would doubtless be considered should the trainmen and the conductors decide to strike. Mr. Stone pointed out that conditions in Canada were more severe than elsewhere, and that trainmen were paid at a lower rate in spite of the hardships they had to undergo, particularly in the winter time. It would seem, he intimated, that the railways could afford to pay the men the same rates as prevailed in the United States, where the work was less difficult. He admitted that many factors entered into the case, and that the cost was greater to the Canadian railways.

Mr. Stone noted that the trainman making an international run, if he were domiciled in Canada, although running to a United States point, would be paid Canadian rates. But if he were living across the border, and running into Canada, he was paid United States rates.

BASKET SOCIAL.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's Church held an enjoyable silhouette basket social last evening, when baskets were brought by the ladies attending, and the evening spent in a social way, with silhouettes thrown on a screen and a musical programme which included pianoforte and vocal solos by Mr. W. CONSERVATIVES AT ROSENEATH

Superiority of Government Control Advanced By Several Speakers.

PARTY RECORD.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 24.—Several speakers, including the candidate, F. J. McArthur, of Cobourg, upheld the policies and record of the Conservative party at a meeting held here last night.

Mr. Shepherd, of Toronto, said Government control had been introduced as a temperance act, and that the Conservatives were the temperance people of the Province. He mentioned the statements of Archbishop Thornloe and said that the Archbishop would not give advice he didn't believe right. He urged his hearers to think about conditions today and to remember that it was the Conservative party which took away the bar and which wished to reform the O. T. A.

Mayor McArthur asked that it be not considered a wet and dry campaign. He said the issue was what was the best method of controlling the liquor traffic. The O. T. A. had been in force for ten years and had not lived up to the standard set for it. That was why the Conservative party was asking the people to try something else.

He spoke of the great number of people making home-brew. That, he said, was under the jurisdiction of the Government at Ottawa, and the Ontario Government could not prevent it.

Mrs. Richards spoke on the achievements of the Conservative Government towards reducing the deficits and debt of the Province, while Mr. Arnold, of Kent, advanced Government control as more efficient than the O. T. A.

SAYS THAT HE KNEW NOTHING

or near North Plainfield, the night of the slaying of his brother-in-law and Mrs. Mills, as was testified to by two State witnesses, and then said that he had never worn a derby hat, had never suffered from epilepsy and did not wear a gold watch, characteristics of the man described in the testimony linking the defendant with North Plainfield.

He explained at the outset of his testimony that he was not a member of the church of which his brother-in-law was rector, but was a communicant of Christ Episcopal Church, New Brunswick. He said that he knew Mrs. Mills "very slightly," and that his relations with Mr. Hall were "very cordial."

The witness gave his answers in an emphatic voice, but during his direct examination showed extraordinary vigor, only when he told of what he described as a "severe grilling" by detectives, when he declared the investigators "cursed me and did everything but strike me."

Stevens said he had observed nothing unusual in the relations between his sister and her husband. He told of retiring to his room in the early evening of September 14, 1922, and remaining there until aroused by Mrs. Hall about 2.30 o'clock in the morning with the news that Mr. Hall had not returned home and a request that he join her in a visit to the church to look for him.

No lights were found at the church, he said, and the pair continued to the Mills home, as the minister on leaving the house in the early evening had said that he was going to see about the "Mills' bill," referring to a hospital bill. No lights were observed at the Mills' home, he said, and with his sister, he returned home.

Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, opened his cross-examination by speaking in almost a conversational tone in contrast to the near-shouts he has used to phrase his questions directed at some defence witnesses. The defendant seemed very much at ease and as the cross-examination developed he leaned forward in his chair with his chin resting on his hand and gazing intently at the prosecutor. Several times he politely corrected the State's lawyer, notably when Simpson referred to "Dr. Hall." The defendant explained that "Mr." was the proper designation and persisted in his correction when the lawyer said "Rev. Hall" to explain "the Rev. Mr. Hall." Once he explained that he had misunderstood the question and turned to the court with "I request permission to withdraw that answer."

When asked if a fire house was his club, he said it might be so considered. Asked if he had run errands for the firemen, he said that he had for years.

The prosecutor stressed the fact that when the defendant went with his sister to the Mills' home and found it dark, they did not knock, and asked the witness, "Don't you think that sounds fishy?" "I do not think it sounds at all fishy," was the reply, given with some spirit.

Mr. Sheppard's statement that the list of engineers seeking employment was almost depleted, and that there were calls for men which could not be met. This he said, was a reversal of the conditions existing a year ago.

"Why can't something be done to improve the status of the engineer?" asked the speaker. "He isn't recognized; he doesn't occupy the place he should in the activities of the nation." The fault for this condition, the speaker said, was not with the educational institutions, nor with the general public, but lay with the engineers themselves. If the engineer was to be appreciated he must properly appreciate and place a higher value on himself. Mr. Sheppard reminded his hearers that the engineer's training fitted him to take almost any position in the industrial world and to occupy a position directing the affairs of the nation. "If he is to obtain such a position," said the speaker, "he must set himself to take a much more prominent and active part in public affairs. If by taking part in public affairs he becomes known he has a chance of recognition but what chance have any of us to be appointed to important posts if those having the appointing don't know us?"

The speaker advanced as a means to this end the necessity of the engineers taking a more active part in municipal, provincial, and federal government. He said that the president and others had preached this from coast to coast but that it was of sufficient imporance to be repeated.

Lt.-Col. H. J. Lamb, D.S.O.

Something of the efforts being made by the Ontario Association of Professional Engineers, of which he is President, was told by Lt.-Col. H. J. Lamb, D.S.O., Superintending Engineer of the Ontario Department of Public Works. This association is endeavoring to get legislation putting the engineering profession on the same status in the Province as law and medicine, by means of an act similar to that in force in Quebec and several other Provinces.

The speaker paid tribute to the Engineering Institute of Canada, of which he is a member, stating that the Ontario body owed its very being to the E. I. C. He urged the co-operation of the two bodies and that every engineer should join in the effort to get legislation through the Ontario House, in which case the effort could not fail. No drive had been made for members, but the engineers were realizing, he said, the value of the work, and were joining the association in great numbers, there being now about twelve hundred.

Col. Lamb gave the objects of the Association of Professional Engineers as being to raise and maintain the standards and morale of the profession to provide protection for the public and to get legislation to give the profession such protection as is enjoyed by the law and medical professions. The present act, he said, lacked one thing, in that it didn't control. His association had perfected organization of the whole Province in an effort to show the engineer the necessity of working together, and to reach the younger men, impressing on them the heritage that is theirs, trying to get them to live up to their profession, and to realize the good fortune it is to belong to it.

Col. Lamb was introduced by A. L. Killaly.

George H. Mickle.

Formerly head of the Department of Mining Engineering in the University of Toronto, and now with the Department of Mines of Ontario, George H. Mickle, who was introduced by Ross L. Dobbin, told about the importance of the mining industry in Ontario. Gold and nickel he placed as most important, and said that both these industries had recovered from very poor business conditions which existed a few years ago.

Professor Haultain.

Professor H. E. T. Haultain, a former resident of Peterborough, now head of the Department of Mines at the University of Toronto, was called upon, as being almost a member of the local branch, to introduce R. B. Wolsey, Secretary and Registrar of the Association of Professional Engineers. He told of Mr. Wolsey's work in connection with the various engineering bodies of Toronto. Mr. Wolsey said a few words of thanks for the invitation to join in such an enjoyable evening.

A. B. Cooper.

A. B. Cooper, formerly of the Canadian General Electric Company and now of the Ferranti Company, was introduced by W. M. Cruthers. He said that he had been in touch with a number of Canadian engineers now resident in the United States, and that they had all seemed anxious to get back to Canada. He urged Mr. Sheppard to try and place them, in view of the situation existing at headquarters with regard to employment.

Arthur Hull.

Max Sauer of the local branch introduced Arthur Hull of the H. E. P. C. Mr. Hull advised the Engineers to study the constitution and by-laws of their branch, and to assist their officers by making suggestions and backing them up.

George Clark.

The possibilities of the engineer, with his technically trained mind, obtaining executive positions not purely engineering in character was stressed by George Clark, manager of the contract department of the Robert Simpson Company. He said that it had been remarked that the engineers were not well paid, and urged them to remember these other possibilities of the profession. He was introduced by Claude Rogers.

Mayor Holloway.

Claiming kinship with the engineers in that, as a dentist, he had built many bridges, His Worship Mayor Holloway said that the speeches made would lead to the belief that the engineers were pessimists. He asserted that they ought, with the great opportunities for discovery and advancement, to be among the brightest and most interested citizens of the community. He commended the work undertaken by the local branch for the younger engineers, and tendered the visitors the freedom of the city.

E. A. Peck, M.P.

Mentioning the fact that there were few engineers in Parliament, while there were many lawyers, doctors and others, E. A. Peck, M.P., urged the engineers to keep up their efforts for improved professional status. Their profession was fully equal to the others; in fact it was constructive, the others being reparative, patching up body, conscience, or business. He said that the engineers were the makers of Canada, the doctors of her natural resources, and that everything they did was for the advancement of the prosperity of Canada.

F. H. Dobbin.

Encouragement was given the younger men by F. H. Dobbin, who was greeted with cheers. He urged them to put their best into their daily duties, and to study to equip themselves better, assuring them that their progress would be watched and that they would advance in their profession if they did so.

During the evening banjo trios were played by Messrs. Wickwire, Ryan and Gore, while Ian McKenzie presided at the piano. All these young men are student members of the local branch, being employed in the Test Department of the C.G.E. Paul Manning acted as leader for the community singing.

the city. At present the suburban road comes as far as the Lock's bridge, and then there is that stretch of about two-thirds of a mile between there and Lansdowne Street which is a township road and is very difficult to keep up. It is expected that before the session closes Morrow street from the Lock's bridge to Lock Street and from Lock street to Lansdowne street will be put into the county good road system, thus joining up the Suburban Area road and the City of Peterborough.

The Council has received no notice as yet to the taking over in the Provincial Highway system of the Chemong road and the Fourth Line of Smith as far as Fowler's Corners. When this road is taken in, the County will be required to pay 20 per cent of the building and upkeep and the city will be required to pay a like amount.

on, "had all the nations disarmed. But it has been only the humiliation of our nation by other powers."

Earlier in his speech the foreign minister asserted that it would be incompatible with Germany's entry into the League of Nations and the operation of the Locarno Agreements, to make the minor technical questions still at issue an excuse for continuation of the foreign control commission.

Dr. Stresemann praised the United States for promoting peace, disarmament and friendly relations with Germany. He denounced the Nationalists' attacks on Baron Von Maltzen, the German ambassador at Washington who flew the German flag on Armistice Day, saying: "The ambassador did not hoist the flag on orders from Berlin; he acted alone. I thanked him for what he did."

FEATURES ON JOINT REPORT

Colonel of the United States Engineering Corps, and Lieutenant-Colonel G. B. Pillsbury on behalf of the United States. It was signed by the following Canadians: Duncan W. McLachlan, Engineer in charge of St. Lawrence investigations for the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa. Oliver O. Lefbevre, chief engineer, Quebec Streams Commission, and Brigadier-General Charles H. Mitchell, C.B., C.M.G., Toronto.

"The report in the main, is inconclusive and bequeaths to the governments of both countries, and to the national committees which will likely be called upon to advise these governments, a perplexing problem as to which the engineers themselves, after an intensive study of all the factors involved, were unable to agree."

This paragraph from the official summary of the report of the Joint Engineering Board on the St. Lawrence waterway sets forth the present difficulty.

The joint board of engineers which, for the past 20 months has been engaged in a study of the problems connected with a deep water development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, held its concluding sessions in Washington last week, and yesterday D. W. McLachlan, chairman of the Canadian section of the Board, placed the completed report in the hands of Hon. J. A. Robb(acting Prime Minister. A duplicate original has been delivered to Hon. Herbert Hoover, U.S. Secretary of Commerce, by Major-General Edgar Jadwin, chairman of the American section. The report is a voluminous document covering more than a hundred typewritten pages and running to upwards of 32,000 words. It is accompanied by seven illustrative plans and the conclusions embodied in the report proper will be supported by seven appendices which, when complete, will form a useful complementary source of information for those who require to give consideration to the more technical aspects of the problem.

The instructions received by the board provided for a review of the Bowden-Wooten report of 1921 but enlarged the scope of that inquiry. The re-examination by the present board embraced a survey of the problems presented by the entire system of inland navigation from the gulf of St. Lawrence to the head of the Great Lakes.

The report presents a difficulty in that, unlike the smaller board, the enlarged board of engineers found itself unable to reach a unanimous conclusion as to the most suitable method of dealing with the international section of the river. In consequence, the report presents a single-stage proposal by the American section and a double-stage scheme by the Canadian section.

Under the United States plan a full single-stage power development is proposed in which all the practical head available in that section of the river would be concentrated in one high dam below the Long Sault rapids at the foot of Barnhart Island. It would carry the level of Lake Ontario through to this point and maintain maximum height. With this proposal the Canadian section could not agree. The views of the two sections are divergent upon works required to control the flow out of Lake Ontario under both ice-covered and open-river conditions. Other considerations are those of flowage or flooding, which, while not inconsiderable under any plan of development of the international rapids section of the river, would be particularly severe on the Canadian side under the single-stage scheme. It would mean that the people of the riverside communities from Barnhart Island for 23 miles up stream beyond Morrisburg would be living behind a 17-foot embankment with the water level ranging from 6 to 11 feet above present street levels. The water level under the Canadian scheme would be 13 feet below present street levels.

is increased to eight, equal voting is met by the provision that the chairman will have a casting vote.

If any difference of opinion arises as to the chairmanship, the partner governments have agreed that the chairman shall be appointed by majority vote, the number of votes to be exercised by each government to be fixed on a basis of partnership proportionate ratio.

The Board has the power to appoint one of its members deputy chairman to act in the absence of the chairman, and any member of the Board is to have the power, in the event of his absence, to appoint a substitute to act in his behalf with full power as a member of the Board.

Remuneration is not to exceed £1,000 a year for the chairman and £300 for other members, plus travelling allowance. Nothing to be paid to chairman or any member who holds a position of profit under the Crown.

Beginning with the fiscal year 1927-1928, £10,000, or ten per cent. of annual profits if that is a greater sum, must be set aside as a reserve fund. The Board may set aside larger sums at its discretion. The reserve fund will be used for repairing breakages in cables and other unforeseen expenses.

Subject to the unanimous approval of the partner governments, any deficits on working cost of the cable or any extension of the system may be defrayed out of the reserve fund.

Between April 1, 1927, and April 1, 1929, all profits remaining after meeting expenses and reserve will be divided as profits accruing to partner governments in agreed proportions; thereafter one-half of all surpluses will be paid to the British Government in repayment of outstanding capital and the other half will be divided as profits accruing to partner governments. This arrangement will remain in force until outstanding capital is repaid to the British Government. This done, all profits again will be divided between the partner governments.

The Board is to have complete freedom and responsibility in conducting its regular business and in all questions of ordinary management, including rates, but any proposals for material extensions or other large new capital expenditure or any proposal involving changes in the statutory position of the Board, must be referred to the partner Governments.

The British Government is to introduce confirming legislation as soon as possible The other partner governments will bring in legislation if necessary to give effect to the arrangement.

SAINT AND SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE is utterly different from her sister, FAITH, who stays at home and does all the work for the family of six, including—

Her semi-invalid, mother her father, who is a carpenter and contractor in a small way; her brother, JUNIOR, or "Long" Lane, 21, and JOY, nine.

Cherry, the flirt, is carrying on affairs with a dozen admirers, including CHESTER HART, formerly a suitor of Faith's; BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect; ALBERT ETTLESON, a married traveling salesman; old MR. CLUNY, Cherry's present employer, and CHRIS WILEY, over whom a girl has committed suicide.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich man's son and amateur artist, falls in love with Faith, but she cares only for Bob Hathaway, who is infatuated with Cherry.

Pruitt showers Faith with attentions and the famil y badgers her about him. She protests that she does not love George and will not marry him if he asks her. Preparing for an all-day Sunday date with George, Faith, in hunting for a hat in Cherry's closet, finds Cherry's suitcase packed with nearly all her clothes and locked. The memory of a mysterious telegram received by Cherry from Albert Ettleson fills Faith's mind with tormenting suspicions, but since George has arrived, she has no time to talk with Cherry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV.

Snatching up the white felt hat that had been crushed under a corner of the heavy suitcase, Faith adjusted it at Cherry's mirror and hastened to the living room to rescue George from the embarrassing questions of her mother.

"Hello, George!" She gave him a comradely handshake. "Where's Junior, Dad. I want to speak to him before I leave."

"Out in the back yard, tinkering with his Ford," her father told her.

"Want to come with me and see Junior's store on wheels?" she invited George. "He's awfully proud of being an automobile accessories salesman. He sells to the garages all over the county, direct from the wholesalers, on a commission basis. Be sure to tell him his truck body is artistic. He painted it himself."

What is your title to this picture—it contains 10 words.

They found Junior, in khaki overalls, industriously assorting his stock, which he carried in a big green-and-red striped box, set on the stripped chassis of an old Ford touring car. After George Pruitt had paid the requested compliment, Faith drew Junior aside, with a smile of apology to George.

"Junior, promise me, you'll not say a word to Cherry or to anyone else about this," she began in a low voice, then told him of the packed and locked suitcase in Cherry's closet. "I want you to get that suitcase out of the house without anyone seeing you, and lock it up in your car until I get home this evening. You're not going to use the car, are you?"

"No, going out with Fay in her bus," he told her, frowning with bewilderment. "Say, what's the kid up to? You'd better tell Dad—"

"No, there may not be a thing wrong, and I hate to have her mad at me," and Faith shook her head determinedly. "Just do that for me, won't you, 'Long'?" she coaxed calling him by the nickname he adored.

She was very silent and thoughtful as Pruitt drove out Myrtle street to the state highway. He glanced at her once or twice, his small, bright brown eyes a little uneasy at first; then some of her calmness and bigness of spirit seemed to enter his own turbulent heart. Once she caught his eye and smiled slowly, first wit'i her wide, mobile lips, then with her eyes, that met his so frankly—too frankly.

"There's peace in just being with you," he told her after a long while, during which they had not spoken. "Do you know, I've never been really at peace before in my life? Ever since I was a homely, red-headed freckle-faced little kid, I've been like a rat gnawing at the bars of a trap. Wanted to get away, do big things, feel big thrills, see strange sights—away, always away.

"I galloped around the world when I was twenty-two, just out of college; then I fretted away a year in New York, trying to paint great pictures, finding out I couldn't— He brushed his free hand across his eyes, then looked at the girl beside him with a sudden vivid smile that made his homely, strong face almost handsome. "And so I came back to sell wholesale groceries. And then I found what I had been rushing all over the world for, looking for like a crazy person—"

"You found yourself," Faith said gently. "That is the only real peace. You took the true measure of yourself, and have come home to live—to live really, deeply, from within, not to rush about, chasing will-o-the-wisps. You may sell wholesale groceries, or radio receiving sets, or Ford parts, or do any one of a hundred things, but if you hold fast to yourself, feed dreams to your soul, worship beauty prayerfully—"

"How did you know?" he asked wonderingly, his freckled, broad hands gripping the wheel hard. "I wonder if you know something else—that I found myself by losing myself?"

"Hasn't that been the way, from the beginning of time?" she asked gravely, though she knew very well what he meant, what his eager eyes and his trembling hands and husky voice were trying to tell her. "Do you mind if we don't talk for a while? I want to think—there's something I have to work out, if I can, alone."

She was thinking of Cherry, of that mysterious packed and locked suitcase, but George Pruitt thought she was searching her own heart for the exact truth about her feeling for him.

When they arrived at Sulphur Springs, a popular resort in the mountains, George ordered lunch served at a secluded little table on the veranda of the rambling, rustic hotel. She found herself studying him intently as he gave the order to the waiter, in his friendly, courteous way. He knew so definitely what he wanted, but there was no ostentation in his manner. He spent money intelligently, like a man who has always had it, whose family had always had it.

While they were waiting for their food, he drew a thin, leather-bound book of Shaw's epigrams from his pocket and read aloud to her, his rather thick lips tasting the salt of the humor with relish, his small keen eyes boring into hers occasionally, as if anxious to see if she "got" it.

"You know—" he threw the book down as the waiter came up with a covered plate of fried chicken. "—I wanted to read poetry to you today, but I didn't dare. These potatoes au gratin look good, don't they? Do you know, I love to see you eat! You never make coy remarks about calories and starches and carbohydrates and all that rot. You never fish for compliments, do you? Every other girl I know remarks prettily that she oughtn't to touch potatoes or white bread, and that's my cue to say, 'Oh, my dear! Why should you diet? You're exactly the right weight!' I don't have to listen for cues when I'm talking with you. Lemon for your tea? We're going to have some deep dish green apple pie and cheese for dessert, if that suits you. I know their cook here—she used to work for us—and until you've eaten some of Elsie's green apple pie, you haven't really eaten pie."

How comfortable it would be to live with this man, who had made an art of living, who had money, had always had it, would undoubtedly always have it! How kind and thoughtful he was! What a charming companion he made!

He treated her as a mental equal, despite the fact that he had traveled, had gone through college, had lived in Paris and New York, while she had spent her life in a small inland city, with only a few high school honors to prove that she had any brains at all.

No one else had ever read Shaw to her, or had dreamed that she would be interested in him. No one else knew that she had read countless books in the public library, that she was starved for someone to talk books with.

"You look as if you're doing a weighty problem in mental arithmetic," he told her.

"I was—a problem in addition," she said slowly. "And now I have to do another in subtraction."

"I hope your heavy mental labor isn't going to keep you from your fried chicken and asparagus. He kept his voice gay but his eyes were startled, apprehensive.

"He is all that—a companion, a mental stimulus, a charming, cultivated man, able to give me all the things I've never had and that every girl wants—and—I don't love him." She concluded her problem in "mental arithmetic" by making that fatal subtraction. "And it's all nothing, if I don't love him. Oh, I wish I had never met Bob Hathaway?" she told herself with such fierceness that she was afraid for a moment that she had spoken out loud.

"Was the answer—wrong?". Pruitt laid down his fork and leaned across the table to gaze compellingly into her eyes.

"No, I got the right answer. I'm sure it was the right answer." Her voice shook a little. "Oh, George, we're playing a foolish game of cross questions and crooked answers. Let's be sensible. Where are you going to sketch this afternoon?"

"There's a little mountain stream and a three-foot waterfall, about a mile up that road." He pointed off to the right. "Good enough for sketching. But what I'd like to do is to start a portrait of you—sitting on a great bald rock, perched on a mountainside—can you see it over there?"

She strained her eyes, shaded them with her hand. A boulder that looked as if it had merely hesitated on its plunge down the mountain-side, was etched sharply against the intense blue of the sky. She shook her head slightly.

"Cherry needn't know," he urged. "I'll even paint her, to keep her from being jealous. Oh, she's pretty, beautiful, I suppose you'd say, but she simply doesn't appeal to me. Sorry! Now my idea of a picture of you—like this—" he sketched rapidly on the back of an envelope.

She leaned forward to watch him, so far that her sleek brown head almost touched the rust-red shock that made his big, squarish head look bigger than it really was. He breathed deeply at that threatened contact, and his hand shook a little as he guided his pencil rapidly.

"I look like a feminine edition of Rodin's 'The Thinker,'" she laughed throatily.

"My idea was something like that," he acknowledged, "but more specific. You see—the pleasant green mountains of adventure—girlhood's adventures—in which she has been happy, carefree. She has come to the jumping-off place, literally—marriage, you know. And as she sits there, on the rock, her last foothold, she broods, yearns toward what lies below and beyond. Children, fulfilment of her nature, the lush green meadows of motherhood and wifehood and complete womanhood, provided she doesn't break her fine, splendid body to bits in the plunge.

"Do you see? I'm not much good at putting things into words, or into colors, either, for that matter. But I believe I could do this picture as it should be done, but there's only one model in the world that could make the picture come alive under my hands. Please, Faith, please? His voice rose on a pleading, questioning note.

Again she shook her head, dumbly. If she allowed him to paint her—like that—she would be giving him the answer he wanted, and which she knew she could never give.

"I want to see you sketch the waterfall," she told him compassionately. If she had not met Bob Hathaway—

Two hours later he kicked over his easel furiously and came striding to where she was sitting in the grass, her strong, straight back against the trunk of a tree, her great, serene eyes drowsy with content, her pale face dappled with sunshine filtering through the busy, whispering leaves.

"Faith," he said, dropping down beside her, leaning so close that his breath was hot on her face, "I'll die if I can't kiss you. But it's got to be because you want me to. I don't understand—any other girl I should have kissed as soon as I wanted to—Faith, Faith! I can't stand it any longer—"

One of her big cool hands curled gently about his hot cheek. Without a word she lifted her face, offered her steady lips to his trembling mouth.

CONSERVATIVES AT MOUNT PLEASANT

Several Speakers Uphold Candidature of T. B. Chalk.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Nov. 23.—On Saturday evening, November 20, a meeting in the interest of Mr. T. B. Chalk, the Liberal-Conservative candidate for Durham, was held at Mount Pleasant in the Temperance Hall.

Mr. Robert McCamus was in the chair. The Conservative platform was well upheld by a number of speakers.

Miss Clara Field of Cobourg was the first speaker, and in a very pleasing manner told what the Hon. Howard Ferguson's Government had accomplished for Ontario in the last four years. Under the Hon. Mr. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, it had materially aided in developing new markets for the products of the farm, such as butter, eggs, honey, fruit, etc. Miss Field's arguments were very convincing with regard to liquor control against prohibition. She showed very clearly that liquor control was an advanced temperance policy and that it was through the Conservative party that any advancement was ever made in the temperance cause. She also told of the school which had been built for the mentally deficient at Bowmanville, how rural schools are better looked after, and how in the outlying districts in Northern Ontario, education is brought to the children three days a week by the school on wheels which all goes to show that the Ferguson Government has the youth of Ontario at heart.

Mr. F. W. Bowen, M.P., of Durham, was unable to be present, whose place was very ably taken by Mr. P. L. Brown of Port Hope, who spent some time in discussing how, during the Drury Government, everything had been left in a muddled condition, the province contracted a deficit of fifteen million dollars which had been reduced to practically nothing by the Ferguson Government. This, he said, was sufficient reason for the return to power of the Ferguson administration. He declared himself as being absolutely in favor of the Ferguson Government as to their policy of government as well as their temperance policy.

The next speaker was the candidate, Mr. T. B. Chalk, who declared himself a strictly temperance man, and expressed himself as a man who did not know the taste of liquor, and looked upon Government control as an advanced temperance law.

The next speaker was Captain Lawson of Toronto, who spoke of conditions in Toronto and all urban centres which were brought about by the O.T.A. Act.

Some of the defects he mentioned were people disregarding the law, youth becoming lawless. This caused the bootlegging business and the evils of the permits that were issued in many homes. He justified his speech by giving concrete examples.

Owing to the late hour, ex-Warden J. L. McCamus made only a few remarks on the Ferguson Government. The Ferguson Government is working to the best interests of the province, and also in the interests of true temperance, he said in conclusion.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

NORWOOD UNITED CHURCH.

NORWOOD, Nov. 24.—Anniversary services were held in the United Church on Sunday when Rev. D. Solandt, of Toronto, preached two very eloquent sermons to large congregations. In the morning he took for his text the words, "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed on us!"

The choir of thirty-six voices, under the leadership of Prof. Edwards, sang an anthem, entitled, "O, Worship the King," and a solo was also rendered by Mrs. R. G. Lawlor.

At the evening service Dr. Solandt took for his theme, "The Teachings of Jesus," and at both services his discourses were enjoyed by all present. An anthem by the choir, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes Unto the Hills," a solo by Mrs. E. C. Squire and a male quartette by Messrs. K. G. Thomson, E. C. Squire, J. Alf. Finlay and Gordon Wright composed the special musical numbers.

This anniversary service commemorates the 87th anniversary of the advent of Methodism in this district, the 35th anniversary of the opening of the present beautiful edifice and the 2nd anniversary since the congregation became a branch of the United Church of Canada.

WESLEYVILLE

WESLEYVILLE, Nov. 24.—Anniversary services were held in the Wesley Church at Wesleyville on Sunday, November 14. The church has been closed for several weeks on account of extensive decorating

The walls and ceiling of the auditorum were painted and decorated very prettily, the seats re-varnished and the windows re-glazed; the basement has undergone a thorough cleaning, had a new coat of paint, new seats were put in, and the windows prettily curtained.

The exterior of the church is also brightened by a new coat of paint.

The anniversary services were also the re-opening services for the church. At the morning service Rev. F. W. Anderson of Port Hope was the special speaker, while music was provided by Mrs. Van Alstine and Mr. Shay of Port Hope.

In the evening the service was taken by Rev. Thomas Wallace of Newtonville, and Welcome choir led the music. At both serviies large audienres were in atetndanee.

On Monday evening an excellent fowl supper was served by the ladies of the congregation. Afterwards an excellent programme was rendered in the auditorium of the church.

The male quartette of the United Church of Port Hope accompanied by Mr. Stanley was much appreciated. Mr. Taylor of Port Hope was also much enjoyed in several well-rendered solos. Mrs. Cawker of Bowmanville, who is well-known in this locality, delighted the audience with the solos she gave.

Mrs. Scott of Port Hope was the elocutionist of the evening and was much appreciated both for the variety and excellent rendering of her selections. At the close of the evening Mr. Hayden voiced the appreciation of the congregation in a few well-chosen words of thanks to all assisting.

UNABLE TO SLEEP, UP HALF THE NIGHT

"The great relief I have had from HERB JUICE is simply wonderful. I never dreamed that any medicine could possibly do so much in such short time. It is worthy of the highest praise," said Mrs. A. Smith, 326 Bridge Ave., Windsor. "I suffered from acute indigestion. I was continually vomiting and had acute pains in my stomach. I was losing weight at the rate of two pounds per month and was awake half the night. Imagine my joy and happiness when after taking one bottle of HERB JUICE the vomiting stopped and I had no pains after eating. My appetite is now splendid, I am gaining considerable weight and what is more I can sleep at night. I am indeed thankful for the wonderful remedy HERB JUICE."

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1926.

Mercury, Venus and the Sun are all in benefic aspect today, according to astrology. Jupiter and Saturn are adverse.

This is a day propitious for the pursuit of the finer interests of life. Music and the arts are well directed.

The theatre should benefit from this planetary government whic indicates the rise to fame of actors and actresses now little known.

Changes are to be definite in the management of theatres, it is foretold and they will reach a new eminence in public esteem.

Again women benefit from the aspects, for Venus smiles on the people of Earth and encourages romance as well as the lighter forms of hospitality.

This should be a particularly happy wedding day since it appears to presage many benefits from the families of brides and bridegrooms.

Persons prominent in the world of society or finance should profit greatly under this sway. Many honors are indicated for those already in the Sun.

Reactionary influences are detected by those who read the stars, and it is foretold that there will be a period of religious fervor and moral aspiration.

The Sun and Mercury are in aspects indicating a period of big achievement in religion, science, law and inventions.

This is a time in which all should use supreme energy in developing talents or performing public service for all the planetary influences aid intellectual achievement and large undertakings.

Men must use all their best eenrgies, the seers warn, or women will occupy all the seat s of the mighty.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid hasty decisions in the coming year and should be careful in making journeys.

Children born on this day probably will be generous and high-minded. They will prosper but they will desire to follow their own impulses and taet will be necessary in guiding them.

MARCELLA

A most popular French name which has gained great vogue in this country is Marcella. It is a name with a distinguished origin and history. It comes from ancient Rome directly, though its earliest origin is found in the Greek word meaning soft or tender yet by curious twist this word signifies "of Mars" and hence should be regarded as a term denoting strength or an iron-like quality.

In early Rome Marcius was a name belonging to a noble gens of Sabine origin which gave a king to Rome and later named the high spirited Marcius Coriolanus. The daughters of this gens were called Marcia or Marzia and later from the same origin sprang Martina. The last mentioned was made famous by one of the young Roman girls who endured martyrdom under the Emperor Decius.

There was a saint Marcellus among the Romans. He figured among the warrior sex of Venice and had a French namesake called Marcel. The feminine counterpart Marcella made its first appearance as the name of a pious widow whose friendship with saint Jerome took the fancy of the French. Though they prefer Marcelle the other spelling is much used by them and Marcella is extremely popular in England and Ireland.

The topaz is said to be Marcella's talismanic gem. It will protect her from evil influence and guard her from worry. Sunday is her lucky day and 3 her lucky number.

LOVE LETTERS THAT MADE HISTORY

(By Joseph Kaye.)

THE EMPRESS MARIE LOUISE, COUNT NEIPPERG AND NAPOLEON

Of Napoleon's many loves, there was one in which he was not the conqueror—and curiously enough it was in his alliance with the Austrian Marie Louise, the successor to his hotly loved and later spurned Josephoine, that he lost out.

When Napoleon's days of might waned and he was in exile at Elba, it was his consort, Marie Louise, who was the first to prove unfaithful to him—and her act of faithlessness was one calculated to wound Napoleon more than anything else; she was due to become a mother, and the father of the unborn child was Count Neipperg, an Austrian wounded and blinded in one eye by the French and in consequence Napoleon's bitterest enemy.

The excuse for Marie Louise's infidelity was the fact that her marriage to the emperor was one of political expediency; she was forced into Napoleon's arms and she no doubt dreaded the event of her marriage more than the outward circumstances would have made her fear seem necessary because at the Austrian court Napoleon was spoken of with bated breath as an ogre, ready to pounce on innocence and devour it.

The Princess' first experience with the great conqueror did nothing to allay the fears she had had instilled in her. Napoleon was fresh from his separation with Josephoine and,as some historians have it, among the women with whom he had entertained himself there was none who could boast of girlish innocence; Marie Louise could and Napoleon was therefore eager for such novel society. Impatient of waiting for the day of the nuptials, Napoleon met his bride a day before on the road to Paris and in the hostelry where the royal pair put up for the night, Napoleon rudely exercised the privileges of the husband. Her yielding to the Count may be traced to this episode perhaps —certainly it ought to have left a lasting impression of repugnance.

In the letter quoted below Napoleon addresses the girl he might have chosen for a bride and between its restrained lines can be felt the burning love passages which Napoleon wove into the mass of his love letters, and of which he was such a master:

"My cousin:

"The brilliant qualities which adorn your person have inspired in me a desire to serve you and to pay you homage In making my request to the emperor, your father, and praying him to entrust to me the happiness of your imperial highness, may I hope that you will understand the sentiments which lead me to this act? May I flatter myself that it will not be decided solely by the duty of paternal obedience? However slightly the feelings of your imperial highness may incline to me, I wish to cultivate them with great care, and to endeavor to so constantly please you in everything, that I flatter myself that some day I shall prove attractive to you. This is the end at which I desire to arrive, and for which I pray your highness to be favorable to me."

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

By Alma Whitaker.

COLLEGE PROFESSORS

College professors have a weighty responsibility. If they can make learning interesting and vital and inspire their students with enthusiasm, they can turn out a race of educated people.

If they are dull old, dry-as-sticks and make their subjects tedious and boresome, they simply waste four years of a youngster's life and turn out discomfitted ignoramuses.

One of the great difficulties of modern college life are the huge classes. In State universities in particular, classes often number hundreds of pupils. yet the high schools have agreed that 30, or at the most 40, is the maximum number that can receive proper attention.

This means that lecture halls have to be large, the acoustics are often poor, so that the students sitting farthest back often cannot hear distinctly, especially if the professor does not happen to have a clear voice—which he often has not.

If, in addition to this, as so often happens, the professor presents his subject in a dry academic manner that cannot hold attention, his pupils are not going to shine in his subject.

Also, owing to the size of the classes, there is small opportunity for personal expression. And we can never gain any benefit from merely absorbing—we must be able to give out what we have taken in. Nothing does us any good if we keep it stored up—whether it is food, money, clothes, talents or knowledge. We must be able to use and express what we have acquired.

One of the most important ways of whetting interest in any subject is discussion, debate, controversy, the consideration of opposing views. And I have noticed that the most successful college professors realize this and leave time in their class hours for some discussion.

Then again, although the students have to write some sort of a composition, a sort of digest of what they have gleaned from the lectures in these big classes the professor has not the time to read all these papers himself, so other students are deputed to the task. It is therefore largely a matter of luck what marks a student receives, and his respect for the judgment of fellow students is not apt to be high. This alone does not make for the essential enthusiasm.

A pet method of instruction by professors is to read from books compiled by themselves. They are not necessarily interesting books, nor exceptionally clear. Without the privilege of asking numerous questions and debating points; I don't see how students can be expected to maintain any enthusiasm in the subject.

I know a boy who started college with a keen zest for learning. He was all set to devote himself passionately to study. But he finds that out of six professors with whom he has to deal, only two make their subjects half way interesting, one of them is completely inaudible at the back of the hall, and most of them have a passion for long involved sentences and didactic ultimatums. This boy graduated from high school with success, but he sees himself for a possible "flop" in college, not because his mentality is inferior, but because his professors are stodgy, old long-winded bores who wilt every bit of enthusiasm he had.

I should say that it is more important for professors to make their subjects interesting and attractive than for mothers to make their cooking wholesome and tempting in taste. Professors often make public speeches reproaching parents for unsatisfactory home conditions.

WHAT TO DO FOR INVALID

Don't jar the bed by leaning or sitting upon it.

Don't allow stale flowers to remain in the room.

Don't appear anxious. People who are ill are very sensitive.

Don't rattle papers. Nothing gets on a patient's nerves more than this.

Don't have a carpet in the sick-room if it can be avoided; use matting instead. It may be kept clean by throwing damp tea leaves over a part of the room at a time and quietly brushing them up with a hand broom.

Don't shut out light from the sick room when the patient is able to tolerate it. Make the sick-room the most cheerful and best ventilated room in the house.

Don't let bad air remain in the sick-room. Pure air is imperative. Avoid air from the kitchen or clothes closets.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL.

A bow of white velvet ribbon provides novel trimming for this black taffeta evening frock, which is further embellished with white lace and embroidered with rhinestones.

You may think of taffeta as being more appropriate for summer than for winter but a visit to the dressmakers' and shops where smart afternoon and evening gowns are sold will show you that taffeta is much in evidence for late autumn and winter wear. There is every reason to believe that much of the finer, softer sort of taffeta will be Palm Beach and other Southern resorts.

The black taffeta evening frock has many possibilities. One attractive black taffeta dance frock has a fairly short, full skirt with a five-inch, transparent hem of black net. It is one of those clever compromises between the shorter and longer skirt lengths. The gathered skirt is attached to a long-waisted, closely draped bodice of the black taffeta which has a transparent yoke of the black net. There are enormous designs on the skirt of padded silk flowers in shades of pink, mauve and green worked around the edge with gold thread. One such flower on the right side extends from just below thes hips well down over the skirt, with the tip of one of the petals extending over on the net. A smaller, padded silk flower is placed somewhat higher on the left side.

While there is nothing at all stiff or heavy about the new taffetas it must be remembered that taffeta is not suited to any of the draped frocks. It is really not especially well adapted to pleated frocks since the constant creasing of this rather stiffer silk may before long cause it to crack. It is first and foremost for the gathered frock that taffeta is well suited and since gathered frocks now are for the most part evening or rather picturesque afternoon types, we must consider taffeta as one of the so-called dressier silks. Then, too, the gathered frocks are not usually so well suited to older, more substantial figures as to those who are young and slender—therefore we must add the adjective "youthful" when describing taffeta.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

Jet is the talismanic gem for today. Worn against the flesh it protects its wearer from sorrw and bad luck, unless it is broken or chipped, then it should be thrown away at once, as it loses its power for good.

Those born on an anniversary of this date should wear an emerald, the stone sacred to Venus goddess of love. Those who wore it were thought to have unusually clear vision.

Violet should be worn today.

To-day's flower is the yellow aster, symbol of youth and hope.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

Does the radiator in your living-room, or in any other room of your house, annoy you? Sometimes the first thing one sees on entering a room is the radiator. It sticks out like a sore thumb, as they used to say. It is the first and foremost thing one sees on entering the room.

Now if you feel that way about your radiator, by all means get to work and do something about it. Don't just grin and bear it. Remedy the trouble.

One way is to paint it a color you will find less conspicuous. Perhaps the color of the wall. Perhaps one of the metallic colors.

Another way is to regroup the furniture. Maybe by placing a chair in front of the radiator and a picture well above it you can attract the eye so that it will not first see the radiator.

Another way is to place a low screen in front of the radiator. You can buy most attractive radiator screens, in leather or in burlap or in paper, on which historic scenes are painted. Get a screen that harmonizes completely with the other furnishings of the room and you will have an added beauty, as well as a practical camouflage, to your credit.

OLD MASTERS

Four seasons fill the measure of the year;
There are four seasons in the mind o man:
He has his lusty spring, when fancy clear
Takes in all beauty with an easy span:

He has his summer, when luxuriously
Spring's honey's cud of youthful thought he loves
To ruminate, and by such dreaming high
Is nearest unto heaven: quiet coves.

His soul has in its autumn, when his wings
He furleth close; contented so to look
On mists in idleness—to let fair things
Pass by unheeded as a threshold brook.

He has his winter too of pale misfeature,
Or else he would forego his mortal nature.

RECEIPES

INSTEAD OF TURKEY

Boiled Chicken.

When the fowl is ready for cooking, fasten the legs and wings to the sides of the body with very small wooden skewers; put to cook in just enough boiling water to cover, to which add a tablespoon of lemon juice, a palatable seasoning of salt, and a small piece of a red pepper pod. Boil until thoroughly well done, then remove to a hot platter. Serve with white sauce.

Chicken Pot-pie.

Two cups of bread dough when ready for the tins will be a sufficient quantity. Work into it a piece of butter the size of an egg, and one-quarter of a teaspoon of soda, dissolved in a very little hot water. Roll, cut into squares, and set aside to rise, to be ready for the chicken, which prepare as for fricassed chicken, and cook until within twenty minutes of being done; then drop the squares of dough into the kettle, and do not remove the cover until quite sure they must be done, when take out the chicken and dumplings upon a hot platter. Thicken the liquor, and season with butter, pepper and salt; pour over the chicken and dumplings, and serve.

Chicken Pie.

Cook chicken until it falls from bones and cut into fine pieces. Line a pan with a not very rich crust and put in chicken seasoned with salt and pepper and several crackers broken into small pieces. Pour broth over this and dot with bits of butter. Put on top crust and bake until very brown.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE THIRD STONE

Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty were hopping through the woods. It was the same day they had picked up the three stones, one red, one white and the other blue. Baby Bunty had said the stones were magical, or fairy-like, and had teased Uncle Wiggily to go adventuring with her to see what would happen.

Well, as I told you in the story last night, the red stone stopped a baby pig from crying, and whatever can do that must be magical, as Baby Bunty said. The blue stone was given to Squeakie Eekie, the poor cousin mouse, for a locket, and it changed her sadness into gladness. That, too, was magical.

"But it's just like the time we had the three sticks," said Baby Bunty as she hopped along with Uncle Wiggily. "We thought the third stick would do no magic, and now we're afraid the white stone which we have left will not do any tricks."

"I don't see it doing any yet," spoke Uncle Wiggily, taking the third, or white stone out of his pocket and looking at it. I mean he looked at the stone, not his pocket. Goodness! Why would he want to look at his pocket? He could do that any time. Besides, a pocket is very dark. Haven't you often heard it said: "As dark as a pocket?"

Of course you have! Anyhow, Uncle Wiggily looked at the white stone, shaped like an egg, and he wondered what would happen so it might produce a little magic, or give him and Baby Bunty a chance to give an adventure.

"Maybe you ought to roll the white stone along the ground," said Bunty. "Then it might do some magic."

"All right," agreed the bunny gentleman. He rolled the white stone on the ground, but all that happened was the stone nearly hit the leg of an ant lady crawling along the path.

"Here!" she cried. "Don't be rolling stones on me!"

"Oh, I beg your pardon!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "You see there was no magic in that," he told Baby Bunty when the ant lady had crawled away.

"No," agreed Bunty. "But maybe if you roll the stone the other way something will happen." So Uncle Wiggily did, but this time the stone bumped an old frog lady who was hopping to the one and two-cent store to get some watercress lollypops for her little girl.

"Please don't stone me!" croaked the frog lady.

"I'm sorry!" said Uncle Wiggily, and to Bunty he added: "You see there was no magic that time, either."

"Oh!" exclaimed the little rabbit girl, clapping her paws, "maybe if you rub the white stone on your pink nose something will happen."

"Always willing to please!" laughed Mr. Longears. So he rubbed the white stone on his pink, twinkling nose, but all that happened was a sneeze. "A-ker-choo!" sneezed the rabbit, and Bunty laughed. Then she exclaimed:

"Oh, toss the white stone up in the air and see what happens!" Up went the white stone, and when it came down on the ground with a thump, out of the bushes sprang the Fuzzy Fox.

"Oh, my dear!" gasped Bunty.

"Keep cool!" said Uncle Wiggily.

"What are you doing with my egg?" snarled the Fox.

"Your egg?" questioned Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes, my egg!" said the Fox, sneering like and impolite. "That's my egg and I'm going to have it! After that I'm going to nibble your ears!" and he made a jump for the round, white stone.

"Be careful! That isn't an egg!" warned Uncle Wiggily.

"You can't fool me!" sneered the Fox. And with that he bit hard on the round thing he thought was an egg, and he fooled himself. For it was the hard, white stone, and the bad chap broke off five of his teeth and part of another one. "Oh, wowzie!" he howled as, dropping the egg-shaped stone, he ran away. So he didn't get Uncle Wiggily's ears after all.

"I thought that third stone would be magical!" laughed Baby Bunty. "I'm going to keep it to scare foxes with," and she put it in her pocket. So now we have reached the end of the story of the third stone. But if the back steps don't run around front to hear the hand organ man's monkey sing the cat's cradle to sleep, I'll tell you again about Uncle Wiggily

(By Douglas Malloch.)

OTHERS MIGHT HAVE GIVEN HER MORE

Others might have given her more
Than you gave your wife,
Higher roof and wider door,
Lots of things in life.
But you never need to worry—
Get right over in a hurry
That idea women wed
For the things that I have said.

Others might have given her less,
And she knows it well,
Less of lasting happiness,
Less of joy to tell,
Less of love that you have told her,
Hands to help her, arms to hold her—
These the things that they recall,
Things they want the most of all.

Others might have given her ease,
Greater ease than you,
But the heart of her to please
Wealth will never do—
Wealth will never do a woman;
Gold is gold, but hearts are human,
And there's something more than gold
Women want as they grow old.

Others might have given her much,
You have given her more
Every time your lips would touch
At the open door
Gold allures when years are younger,
But a woman's heart will hunger
For your kindness, your caress—
Others might have given her less.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

THAT a whole lot of people get the habit of spending money too freely, without thought for TOMORROW!

THAT they indulge in too many luxuries which their incomes will not stand; they seem to have no thought for the future. Of course, it is their money and they have a right to spend it, but they have no right to forget TOMORROW!

THAT most of them are gaining much experience and what they call joy, but how about TOMORROW?

THAT if they would slow down, live within their incomes and save, they would be happier TOMORROW!

THAT the people cannot live beyond their means and put up a "holler" because they can't live that way TOMORROW!

THAT now is the time for these people to re-adjust their way of living and start in and spend their money judiciously. It may be too late TOMORROW!

THAT money made honestly should be spent honestly. Throwing it away to gratify every wish and to indulge in things that they cannot afford only brings trouble TOMORROW!

PEOPLE, LIKE CITIES, SHOULD BUILD FOR TOMORROW!

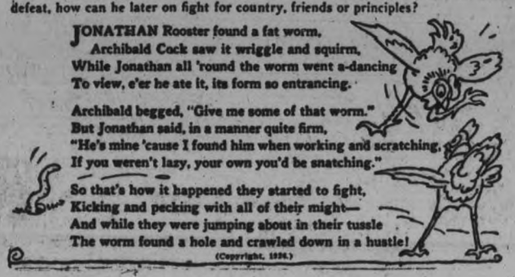
The Fight

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

THE instinct of fighting, pugnacity, is one of the strongest inherent tendencies. It's stronger in boys than girls, but it's always present. Often grown-ups view this instinct with intense disapproval, but that is because they fail to consider that it is the self preservation instinct, the instinct for leadership and power, the instinct which has made strong men and nations—that is, when properly governed. There are parents who go so far as to make the children promise on their honor they won't fight, never once considering that they are putting them in an unfair position. What would be a far wiser course would be to teach them to fight only for honorable things, to protect the weaker, to guard ideals and right and to learn to control this impulse for a purpose. If a child has never been permitted to defend his rights, to experience the sweets of success or the shame of defeat, how can he later on fight for country, friends or principles?



JONATHAN Rooster found a fat worm,
Archibald Cock saw it wriggle and squirm,
While Jonathan all 'round the worm went a-dancing
To view, e'er he ate it, its form so entrancing.

Archibald begged, "Give me some of that worm."
But Jonathan said, in a manner quite firm,
"He's mine 'cause I found him when working and scratching.
If you weren't lazy, your own you'd be snatching."

So that's how it happened they started to fight,
Kicking and pecking with all of their might—
And while they were jumping about in their tussle
The worm found a hole and crawled down in a hustle!

THIS CANADA OF OURS

THE UNDERGROUND RAILWAY.

Q—What was the Underground Railway in Canada?

A—The Underground Railway was the name given to the secret and mysterious organization formed during the Civil War in the United States by which negro slaves were assisted in their attempt to escape into Canada. Thousands thus reached what was to them a land of freedom and became permanent settlers in parts of Ontario where their descendents still live.

SHORT STORY

(By Dorothy Douglas.)

Jenny Winfield brushed a weary hand over her brow as the exacting customer made her way triumphantly out of the big department store. The bargain-hunter was highly satisfied with herself, having pawed over all the costumes on sale and emerging with a most inexpensive one under her arm.

But the tired saleswoman was left in a state of nervous exhaustion, and a moment later there was a summons for the nurse in charge of the department store hospital. Jenny had fainted.

Nell Grant arrived on the scene, and soon had Jenny carried up to the hospital on the fourth floor.

Jenny was soon restored to the conscious world though not to any display of vigor.

"I was going to have lunch with my brother," she told Nurse Grant. "He will be expecting me—is there any way I could let him know without alarming him?"

"If you give me his number I will call him up."

Nell Grant telephoned, and when Richard Winfield answered she told him gently: "Your sister has had a slight attack of dizziness and can't meet you for lunch—I am the nurse here at the store and am taking care of her. Yes—certainly you can come and see her."

When Dick arrived he was very much worried and told the nurse so.

"I have scolded Jenny for months now about working as she does—she's overdoing it, and it's not necessary."

"It was just that horrid woman, Miss Canvey—who upset me," said Jenny wearily.

"Miss Canvey! What Miss Canvey?" asked Dick quickly.

"I don't know her first name, but she has black hair, and those black eyes that I never like," answered Jenny, and was too ill to observe a certain tightening of her brother's jaw.

Nell Grant laughed. "There are plenty of women like Miss Canvey, who treat you girls like mechanical dolls wound up to do their bidding." She glanced at Dick with sympathetic eyes, "I think your sister will have to remain at home with good care for a while—she needs rest and nourishment—the right kind."

Dick looked blank and hopeless. "She and I keep house together—I don't know—unless she goes to a hospital what I can do."

"No, no!" put in Jenny. "I couldn't stand that, and we're both working so hard to save up a little."

Dick laughingly rejoined, "Yes, we're saving up for you to get a wedding outfit and leave me alone to do my dusting." Dick was laughing, but none-the-less he was worried. He turned amused eyes on the lovely nurse standing beside him: "We're just two little orphans, nurse," he said, "and I hardly know what to do with this half of us," and he indicated Jenny by tousling her sunny hair. There was deep love in the gesture.

Nell Grant saw the love reflected in the listless eyes of the girl. She thought swiftly and effectively. Then she said: "I have an aunt, with whom I live, who is just pining to mother some one, and since she can't work it off on me, suppose we take this overworked girl along to her. It would be a very happy arrangement all round."

A quick flush of joy flooded Dick's face.

"It's too good to be true," he said quickly, and in a way Jenny felt that something within Dick's thoughts was speaking, and that the "too good to be true" was not entirely associated with her immediate dispensation.

She slipped her hand into Nell Grant's comforting one.

"I would be as little trouble as possible and get strong very quickly," she said softly, "and it would relieve poor old Dicky. He could come to see me, couldn't he?"

"Oh, I say, sis! That's asking too much of them—I'd be bothering about every evening."

A little smile played about generally. None of the three knew exactly who started it.

"It would be most unbrotherly of you not to come," admonished the nurse, and glanced swiftly into Dick's eyes; "half the joy of being ill is having visitors who bring flowers and fruit and books. I don't mind either if this sweetheart of hers would like to come.

Jenny blushed brilliantly.

"I shall be glad that Miss Convey worried me into fainting if you are all going to spoil me so," she said.

Dick stopped laughing for a moment, then casting something entirely into the past, said quickly: "Now, since we are all three to be such close friends in the future I want to tell you that you two have been the means of bumping a young romance of mine right off the map. I was beginning to think myself in love with Jane Canvey—you women seem able to treat me differently than you do one another. I thought Miss Canvey a paragon, and was going to tell Jenny all about ——"

"Oh, Dicky, I'm so sorry—perhaps she was only in a bad temper or didn't feel well to-day—I had no idea you even knew her."

A shadow had crossed Nell Grant's eyes, too, "I am sorry also," she said, "she no doubt has a very good side to balance her bad one."

"There is no side in any woman good enough to make up for what I have found to-day, and the good side to Jane Canvey is the fact that she has been a stepping stone to ——" he broke off and laughed, "and I don't even know your name yet." And the little smile hovering about grew into a great radiance.

ANSWERS TO YESTERDAY'S QUESTIONS.

HEALTH AND DIET ADVICE

By Dr. Frank McCoy

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH & DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY DR. McCOY, WHO CAN BE ADDRESSED IN CARE OF THIS PAPER

© 1926 McCOY HEALTH SERVICE, LOS ANGELES, CAL.

EGGS NEEDED IN THE DAILY DIET.

Many kinds of eggs are used for food, but the kind most commonly used is the egg of the domestic hen.

Poultry raising and the production of eggs have become a science, and each year the production and consumption of eggs have increased. This is not only because of the nutritive value of the egg, but also because it is so easily utilized in such a variety of ways in the preparation of food. Eggs also supply a large amount of valuable nourishment at a reasonable price, so that everyone can afford to use them.

There is abundant evidence that primitive people have always used various kinds of eggs for food, such as they could secure from robbing birds' and even reptiles' nests. The first record we have of the training of the domestic fowl was in the fifteenth century, before Christ, when the natives in the natives in the jungles of India learned to catch the wild fowl and keep them in confinement, so that their eggs could be gathered more conveniently. By breeding and interbreeding the various types of fowls, we have finally cultivated the hen of the present age, and our modern ideas of housing them, keeping them warm, etc., have been instrumental in developing certain breeds which are capable of producing more eggs each year.

Turkey, goose and duck eggs are just as desirable as hen eggs from the standpoint of nourishment, and even the ostrich egg is occasionally eaten in Southern California.

The eggs of fish serve as valuable additions to the diet, being perfectly wholesome, if used fresh. Shad roe is the name given to the collection of millions of eggs taken from the shad, and makes a delicious proteid food.

Caviar is made from the eggs of the sturgeon, mixed with certain kinds of seasoning, but is too highly flavored and also too expensive to be made a proteid dish at a meal.

The egg of the hen may be used alike by the hale and the delicate, and when properly prepared made an excellent food for children. Some people who have a tendency to biliousness believe that eggs are bad for their liver. I find that this is true only when too many other nourishing foods are used at the same meal; or when too many kinds of proteids are used at the same meal, or on the same day that eggs are used.

The yellow of the egg contains a large amount of fat and sulphur. Many people will find that if they use several eggs a day that it will be necessary to discard the yolk of some of them. However, the white can always be used, even by those who have sluggish livers.

If "A Reader of The Examiner" who enquired regarding constipation will send his address, Dr. Mc-Coy's reply will be forwarded.

FOOD AND HEALTH.

THE DRAMA OF FOOD AND LIFE

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

Some one has spoken of the "drama of blossom and seed," commenting on the thrill that comes with the passing of the fact thateven such tiny travelers as bees and humming birds are actors in the drama staged by Nature.

A thrill even more intense is the reward of one who devotes himself in any capacity to the feeding of the race. Drudgery may follow drudgery; routine of food preparation may for a time distract the mind for contemplations of immortality (or was it intimations!) and then suddenly there comes a day when the food server awakens to the realizing sense of what he is doing!

He is property man, stage manager, dramatic director and more in a drama that deals with life itself!

What matter if he (of course it is probably she, but let us remember not to be too literal) has hankered after writing a play to be produced on Broadway! The drama of food and life is bound up with the eternal verities! For this author, this playwright who deals with life, while he writes only a fraction of the Great Drama, yet realizes that when he feeds people he makes or mars the chances for complete development of their immortal souls! Is not such realization better than mere box office returns?

And reflect for a moment upon the workers who toil to help in the asking of this drama! The farmers, the millers, the dairymen, the cattlemen, the packers and distributors, the salesmen and the chefs!

It is good on occasion to turn the mind away from the dry as dust facts of food and nutrition and to visualize these facts as they are translated into human values.

Stimulating and at the same time sobering is the thought that we who deal with food and nutrition are helping men and women and children to better enjoy both work and play! While we may ask ourselves the age old question: What is life all for?" Then we fall back on the only answer so far vouchesafed us, that this life is for the purpose of preparing for whatever is in next store for us.

Surely it takes no large fund of imagination to see the help that food and nutrition may be to us in this preparation.

So, if for a time our spirits drop; if we are weighed down by a sense of futility, it is fine discipline to resolutely turn our thoughts toward making our diet as nearly perfect as possible! With the preservation of a nice balance between body-building material and body-regulating material we shall soon find ourselves possessed of so normal and sane an outlook that we shall find scant time for worrying over the whys and wherefores of existence!

Seriously, to one who craves a "career," or to one who must have "self expression" this bit of advice—Strive with all your might to learn the facts of nutrition and then apply these facts and principles to the feeding of yourself and your family. Before you know it, your career will be assured and you will realize that you are both playwright and actor in the greatest drama ever written. That the drama of food and nutrition is but a prelude to the Great Drama that is to come is surely not an over-drawn conclusion!

BON AMI POWDER!"

IT'S the same soft, scratchless cleanser—in powder form, put up in a handy sifter-top can.

Like the popular Bon Ami Cake it doesn't scratch off the dirt, but blots it up quickly and harmlessly, with minimum effort.

Women find Bon Ami Powder convenient and time-saving on the bigger cleaning jobs—pots and pans of aluminium, copper, agate and tin, bathtubs and refrigerators, Congoleum and linoleum floor-coverings, and many other things.

But, of course, for windows, mirrors and painted woodwork there's nothing like the handy Bon Ami Cake.

Most housewives know that with both these "partners in cleanliness" they can most readily cover almost every cleaning and polishing need. And neither reddens nor roughens the hands.

Speaker at Pontypool Says That Booze is Being Handed Out in Port Hope.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Prohibition Union Holds Meeting in Support of Mr. Bragg.

PONTYPOOL, Nov. 24. — A meeting under the auspices of the Prohibition Union was held in the Orange Hall on Monday, November 22. The chairman for the meeting was Rev. A. J. Terrill, pastor of the United church here. The speakers for the evening were Mr. Rae, president of the County Prohibition Union, and Mrs. Strong of Port Hope.

Mrs. Strong in her introductory remarks explained that it was not her own wishes to be speaking but as a mother of children who understood the situation she thought it her duty to do her part for temperance.

She stated that she always had been a Conservative, but when Premier Ferguson had wavered from the temperance cause she told her party friends she could no longer support him. She had always heard that Pontypool was a strong Conservative place and had been proud of the fact. Mrs. Strong went on to relate how conditions were under the old license system and said that Government Control was not a success in other provinces and that there was as much bootlegging existing in British Columbia and Saskatchewan as ever because the bootlegger was under the Government. She stated that Mr. Ferguson had said that public opinion was not behind the O.T.A. and she couldn't see that public opinion was behind the bootlegger either, and his life and occupation were nothing to be jealous of.

She thought that if the O.T.A. was given a fair chance it would do wonders and that youth had answered Mr. Ferguson in the big meeting held in Massey Hall recently. True Conservatives had not asked Mr. Ferguson to take booze on his platform. She stated that she was a member of the English church and that when one of the rectors of her church favored the Government Control the Conservative press lauded him to the skies but when another pastor favored O.T.A. he was making the pulpit a political affair. Ontario will go back fifty years if the O.T.A. is not sustained, she stated.

Mrs. Strong went on to say that in her own town at the present time booze was passed around freely and at no expense to the consumer to make things appear worse than they were. She concluded by making a strong appeal to support the O.T.A.

Mr. Rae.

Mr. Rae in his opening remarks explained that he was chairman of the Prohibition Union and at their convention in Toronto that Rev. Albert Moore was sent as a delegate to interview the Premier in regard to the O.T.A. On his return he told them that the Premier had promised to retain the O.T.A. and enforce it. Personally, he said, he was well pleased for he thought the O.T.A. had done more for the interests of the people than any other Act. He stated that Sir William Hearst was the greatest leader of the Conservatives ever had. Personally he had been born a Liberal but had changed his politics and had voted Conservative. At the present time his politics were the best interests of the Province of Ontario.

A strange coincidence had occured when the Liberal convention had met the same day in Orono as the Prohibition Union. It was decided at this prohibition meeting that they would submit a resolution to any candidate of either party asking him to uphold the O.T.A. and opposed Government sale and they would support the member, regardless of politics, who would do this. A committee read the resolution to the Liberal convention and later in the day Mr. Bragg addressed the Prohibition Union meeting and stated that he was in favor of the O.T.A. and would do all in his power to retain it.

At the Conservative convention Mr. Chalk was interviewed by a committee of the Prohibition Union and he told them that whatever candidate got the Conservative nomination he would pledge himself to stand behind Mr. Ferguson and his policy. It was then decided that it would be possible for them to support only the candidate who pledged himself to support the O.T.A. and that was Mr. Bragg, the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Rae then explained the difference in condition in Orono now and under the old license system. He stated a lot of this bootlegging talk was just propaganda to make people vote Government Control and that when a thing is told so often it will be believed by hundreds of people. In conclusion he stated that it was not the wishes of the Conservative party to bring this into poitics, but the wishes of the distilleries and brewers and that Mr. Ferguson had been made a tool by them.

HIAWATHA NEWS

HIAWATHA, Nov. 24.—After the social evening last Wednesday, it was decided to have the combined Christmas entertainment of the Public School and Sunday School on Wednesday evening, December 22. The programme is to commence at 8 o'clock. It will consist of dialogues, readings, recitations and songs of a Christmas nature.

Mrs. George Paudash, Mrs. Rufus Garratt, Miss Lucy Paudash and Mr. E. Hinton were selected to be responsible for the programme. This concert will be held in the Community Hall.

News Briefs.

Dr. S. Y. Walsh, of Keene, Medical Officer of Health for the township of Otonabee, was in the village last week and took a sample of the water from the well of the Public School for testing purposes.

Miss Velma Crowe visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Crowie one evening recently.

Among the younger boys of the village an interest in the skunk family is being aroused. Several of the boys have succeeded in capturing some. It is a profitable pastime as a good hide is worth 75 cents or more.

Mr. Ambrose Doris, Township Road Superintendent, was in this part of Otonabee and in Hiawatha on Thursday. He was looking over the road to see what parts needed gravelling. The rainy, wet weather has hindered this work. Waggons loaded with gravel on muddy roads would do a great deal of damage.

TWO ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK-END

Cars Damaged in Collisions at Omemee on Sunday.

SLIPPERY ROADS.

OMEMEE, Nov. 24. — Owing to the icy condition of the pavement, two accidents occurred on Sunday. In the morning, while Mr. Melville Moncrief was motoring to church, his car skidded when turning Sturgeon Street corner, striking a tree, with the result that considerable damage was caused to his car.

Shortly after dusk, a collision occurred on the same corner. Mr. Cecil Mills was proceeding west in his sedan, and Mr. Harry Brown was coming down Sturgeon Street, and before either car could be brought to a standstill, they came together, sending the sedan over against the tie post in front of Mr. T. J. Parson's store. The steering gears of both cars were damaged considerably, as well as the running boards, etc., but both were able to proceed to the garage.

Breach of O.T.A.

An Omemee woman was charged with a breach of the Ontario Temperance Act, the result of a raid made a week or so ago by Provincial Detectives Storey and Porter, when they found two local men very much the worse of strong drink, and they also confiscated a quantity of home brew.

After a lengthy hearing before Magistrate Bradford of Lindsay, in which the defendant pleaded to just a social treat, the Magistrate imposed a fine of $200 and costs and one month in jail, and in default of payment, she will spend another three months in jail.

A.Y.P.A. Meeting.

The regular meeting of the A. Y. P. A. was held in Christ Church, with an attendance of twenty-seven members. After the business was finished, Mr. Hill, one of the delegates to the Dominion Conference in Toronto, gave a very full account of the meetings there, which were most enjoyable and profitable. H. Burgess read the treasurer's report, which showed much progress made. The secretary's report was given by Mr. Allan Adams.

On Wednesday evening of last week twenty members journeyed to Millbrook to attend the annual banquet of the District Council which was held in the Armories, when about 150 members of the A. Y. sat down. Mr. John Bent was toastmaster, and filled the office very acceptably. The toast-list included "The King," "The Church," "The A.Y.P.A.," and "The Ladies."

The speaker of the evening, Mr. Sproule, president of the Dominion, student of Wycliffe, took for his subject "Self Government for Members of the A.Y.P.A." The address was much enjoyed by all.

Ladies' Aid Meeting.

The Ladies' Aid of Trinity United Church met in their regular meeting in the Sunday School-room on Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. W. Henderson, conducted the meeting. The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. E. Bradburn, followed by prayer by Mrs. Rowland.

Reports were given by the treasurer and secretary, the former showing a nice balance in the treasury, after the recent fowl supper.

A few minor repairs needed in the church were brought before the meeting, and it was unanimously decided to have same attended to at once.

A committee of two ladies was appointed to purchase extra flowers for the large flower basket in the church.

A similar committee was appointed to interview a carpenter as to the cost of erecting a small woodshed at the back of the church.

Other business, including the arrangements for the annual Christmas tree, which they have in latter years provided for the Sunday School scholars, the date having been set for Wednesday evening, December 22.

A request from the Ontario Prohibition Union, asking for a cash donation from the society, was read by the secretary, and the ladies being much in sympathy with the movement, readily passed a motion that $5 be sent to aid in the work.

As in previous year, it was decided to remember the sick and the aged members of the church with flowers at Christmas time.

The matter of purchasing a cook stove from one of the members was discussed, and, if thought suitable, the same will replace the old one.

The meeting closed with a hymn, followed by the benediction by Mrs. Lamb.

Personals.

Miss Gladys Spiers, of Franklin, visited her cousins, Misses Marion and Evelyn Rea, over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cornell motored to Toronto on Saturday. Miss S. Millais accompanied them home and spent a couple of days.

Mr. Hillier Williamson, of Toronto, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Williamson.

Mr. W. D. Stinson attended the County Council in Lindsay last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Connell, Mr. and Mrs. R. Poast and Mr. and Mrs. R. Bannon attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Harry Seymour of Ida, on Friday.

Miss Ruby Feir is with her sister, Miss Olive, at the Kingston Hospital, who underwent a serious operation there last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cornell and daughters Dorothy and Helen and son Arthur, of Lindsay, visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lamb on Sunday.

Mr. Vernon Lang leaves on Friday to attend the Winter Fair at Guelph. Vernon will assist in the judging of the live stock and is well qualified to make the trip, his score in the county competitions having been among the highest.

Among those who attended the Ferguson meeting in Lindsay on Friday evening were: Messrs. J. Bushnell, R. Poast, T. J. Parsons, P. Parsons, Thomas Newman. Ralph James, Rev. A. T. Weir, H. McGinnis, L. Curtis, Charles Ivory, T. C. Ivory, H. Lamb, J. White, W. G. Stephenson, L. Adams, Mrs. T. C. Stephenson, Miss Annie Stephenson, Mrs. P. Parsons, Mrs. H. Lamb and many others.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Poast visited Mr. and Mrs. Thornbury in Lindsay on Wednesday.

Provincial Detective Storey was in Omemee on business last week.

Miss Priscilla Howden, of Bethany visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Howden, over Sunday.

Mrs. L. Wilson visited Peterborough friends on Saturday.

Miss Katie Weir, of Peterborough, spent the week end at her home here.

A community meeting in the interests of temperance will be held in the U.F.O. Hall on Wednesday evening.

McKay, Miss Field, C. J. Thornton, Bowen and Chalk. Tuesday, November 30, Port Hope and Bowmanville, speakers for the latter place to be announced; at Port Hope, J. R. MacNicol, Toronto, Messrs. Bowen and Chalk.

The dance, under the auspices of L.O.L. No. 79, held in the Town Hall on Friday evening, was well attended and proved a most successful event. The floor was in good condition and both square and round dances were indulged in, excellent music being furnished by Byam's four-piece orchestra.

Mr. L. S. Morton was floor manager in his usual capable manner.

D. Patton is Worshipful Master of the local Orange Lodge, and R. McDonald secretary. Over $60.00 was taken in at the door. Refreshments were provided by the ladies. Dancing continued after the supper hour and it was considerably past the midnight hour before the enjoyable event was brought to a close Byam's orchestra will furnish the music at the dance to be held in the Community Hall, Ida, on Friday November 26.

Dr. Reynolds and Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Jackson, of Toronto, motored from the city on Saturday and spent the week end with Mrs. F. P. Johnson. Mrs. Reynolds, who had spent the past week with her mother, returned with them on Sunday evening

Messrs. Wesley Brown, George McKnight, J. N. McGill, and J. L. Byam were among those from this vicinity who attended the Winter Fair in Toronto last week.

Miss Gertrude Spence, whose school at Malton has been closed for two weeks owing to an epidemic of whooping-cough, expects to resume her teaching duties this week.

Mr. and Mrs. McKee Bingham have closed their summer home at Gores' Landing, Rice Lake, and are living in the village for the winter, occupying Mr. W. H. Coombe's house, Anne street Mrs. Bingham was the soloist at the anniversary services of Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday, and will sing a number of songs in costume at the entertainment in the Armouries on Saturday, November 27, in connection with the annual bazaar under the auspices of the Women's League of Grace church Mr. Bingham finds this a convenient centre from which to reach his music classes at various points in the district.

Miss Olive Elson, of Belleville, was at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Elson, over the week end.

FASCIST MILITIA HAVE NEW DUTIES

Will Provide Firing Squads Under New Act—Guard Frontiers.

ROME, Nov. 24. — The death sentences for attacks on Premier Mussolini or royalty provided by the new law for defence of Facism, will be carried out by shooting, and the executioners will be members of the Fascist militia, according to the procedure drawn up by Minister of Justice Rocco. Except for the presiding officer, the military tribunal which will try cases will also be made up of militia officers.

Another task, formerly entrusted to the Royal Carabineer Force, has been given the militia— guarding the valleys and mountain passes along Italy's frontiers. Owing to the nature of the territory, it has been easy to cross without passport provided the fugititve had a competent guide. Large numbers of militia men will be placed on guard.

THE WET ROAD AND THE DRY.

To the Editor of the Examiner:
Ontario, Ontario, of Canada the pride,
A most vexed, but vital question, you needs must now decide,
Which of the two roads that before you, marked so plainly lie
Shall be your destiny making choice the Wet road or the Dry.

The Wet road is a broad road, and downgrade all the way
And beset with many perils—praise and puff it up who may—
'Tis full of deadly dangers and many an ambushed foe,
And with thieves as thick infested as the road to Jericho.

The traveller there runs fearful risk, to body and to soul,
For of life's most precious Jewels, Rum takes a ponderous toll;
Through scenes of vice and poverty full swiftly it descends
Until in wreck, and ruin, and wretchedness, it ends.

An awful place, that terminus, the Inferno, fell abode
Of those who make the mad mistake of taking the wrong road,
Where Rum has wrought the wreck of home, health, honor and fair name,
And left a record traced in blood, of suffering, sin and shame.

Yet some assure us, that the way to keep Ontario free
From the evils of Intemperance, and all the ills that be,
Is for her to take the We way, before it is too late
And to a debacle of booze, fling open wide the gate.

'Tis false, 'tis false, Ontario be wise, and heed them not,
Besmirch not your shining annals, with such vile black blot;
Harken, O harken, to the voice of those who love you well,
And shun the Wet road, if you would escape the snares of hell.

Be warned and take the Dry road, for it is the only way
That all may safely travel by, nor fear to go astray;
'Tis a good, old, well-worn highway, and pleasant, too, to see
Running through a land of Plenty, Peace and Prosperity.

Never hesitate to tread it, for 'twill guide your steps aright,
As it has so many others, up to honor's shining height,
For all who, on Fame's glorious roll, their names have written high Patriot, Poet, Soldier, Sage, that good road travelled by.

Boozers, beer bibbers, tipplers, Moderationists not a few
Will advocate the Wet road, but you will most surely rue,
Yes, bitterly, with scalding tears, the dire disastrous day,
When, warned by grim experience, you chose the rum-besodden way.

Well, my children, wives and mothers, to the God above us pray
That He may guide Ontario to choose the straight Dry way,
And so save them from the misery, want, squalor and heartache,
And all the hideous horrors, that follow in Rum's wake.

Strain every nerve, Ontario, press onward to the goal,
And down the baleful bogey of Government Control;
This be your sacred slogan, your befitting battle cry:
"Let who will take the Wet road, Ontario'll take the Dry."

HUNTERS REPORT WOLVES ARE BOLD

Great Havoc Made Among Deer By Large Packs.

LINDSAY, Nov. 24.—Hunters returning from the Haliburton district bring back stories of the great havoc wrought among the deer by wolves. A party of Americans, who captured a moose in Haliburton County, state that the boldness of the wolves surprised them. They even followed them to their camp and kept up a continuous howl during the night. They have devoured scores of deer, and have even chased the animals right into the villages and settlements.

Mr. Alex. McGahey, of Emily, who was with a hunting party at Stormy Lake, in Haliburton, stated that a pack of wolves followed the party from the run to their camp. They were destroying a great many deer, and unless the Government instituted steps to stop their inroads, it would only be a matter of a short time until the deer would be extinguished. He suggested the advisability of the Government organizing parties among the settlers to aid in the extermination of the wolf, which was becoming a serious menace in the north.

MARMORA CHURCHES

Supplying Clergymen Preach Eloquent Sermons on Sunday.

MARMORA, Nov. 24.—"The Relation of Young Life to the Living Church of Christ" was chosen as the topic at the United Church on Sunday evening by the Rev. B. S. Black, of Meadowvale, preacher for the day.

Selecting as his texts, "A little child shall lead them" and "Jesus took a child and set him in the midst," the preacher presented a strong case for the recognition by the church of its strong arm in its trained childhood. "The future of the race," he declared, "is in the keeping of the young folk. We have got to listen to the childhood of the world and to discover what lies within it." He then instanced the mothers of Benjamin West, Edison and Samuel as having discovered their children. Continuing, he remarked: "The study of child life is all absorbing, yet differing, delicate and puzzling. How stupid and clumsy grown-ups can be in the presence of their children. It is a sad thing when they fail to get the viewpoint of their child. Childhood is a vast unexplored country. The young have a good many secrets about them which we don't understand. Now is the time to reach the child before they fall into the stream. To win them is to achieve wonderful results. To lose them is to make an eternal mistake. In the relation of the child to the home, all that is best in human character is brought out."

Rev. Mr. Black then illustsated what children born into ungodly homes had been able to bring about in causing parents to make self-sacrifice and in some instances leading the parents back to a devotion to the God they had ignored and even outraged for years.

"The child has a value to society, to the nation and to the larger world. The home is the first school and the mother was designed to be the first teacher. It is not hard to understand Samuel when you think of his home. The same may be said of Timothy. The criminal question today is largely a question of the home. The majority of criminals today are mere boys. There might never have been a Sunday School if the home had not, to such a large extent, been unfaithful to its trust.

"Spiritual natures of so many children are farmed out to the church and Sunday School. The Sunday School is the chief nursery of the church. Eighty-six per cent. added to the membership of the churches come from their Sunday School ranks. The Sunday School cannot do everything for the young. They need the church. Guard against the idea that the Sunday School is the children's church. Christ wants the children in the bosom of His church. A Sunday morning service without children is like a garden without flowers or a choir without music or a great cathedral without windows. Jesus Christ wants the young people to strike hands with Him in the great enterprise of the ages."

During the service the hymn, "In the Garden," was choicely rendered as a trio by three lady members of the choir, Mesdames Wells, Bell and Prentice.

At St. Paul's.

Services at St. Paul's last Sunday were again taken morning and evening by Canon F. W. Armstrong, of Trenton. Preaching in the morning from Isaiah 25:1, he mentioned that the text expressed an act of faith more than a prayer. It was an expression of faith in which the will had its part. The will is the sovereign power of the soul without being despotic. We may regard the will in fallen nature as a blind grant dependent upon the other human powers, the judgment of intellect on the one side and the powers of affection on the other. Faith is simple, yet tremendous. It involves the operation of the whole soul. Faith brings the peace of God to the soul, not the peace that is freedom from struggle, but that which assures safety in struggle an act of faith proceeds from personal religion. The result is that God is given praise. What the world needs now is not merely eloquence of speech. The great stumbling block to present-day Christianity is not the lack of eloquent preaching, but the lack of saintly lives. The same reasons for the praise of God continue. God hath done great things for us and wrought mighty wonders in us. All God's wonders and counsels have been in faithfulness and truth. Faith has its objective and its subjective side. It helps us to believe that God is and what God is. It makes it possible for us to love God, to trust God and to live for Him.

The living of Marmora has been offered to the Rev. Mr. Caldwell, rector of a parish near Midland, and his acceptance is anticipated.

FIRST AID CLASSES START AT Y.M.C.A.

Two Courses of Study Being Conducted This Year.

The Y.M.C.A. first-aid classes meet to-night for the first time this season, and the prospects are bright for a successful programme. Two courses are being conducted this year. One is for first year men taking up the course covered last year by the large class at the Y, 22 of whom passed their examinations. A new class for advanced work will also be held for those who secured their certificates last year and any others who hold the first year certificate of the St. John's Ambulance Association and who desire to secure advanced standing. The managements of the different industries of the city recognize the value and importance of these classes, and last year endorsed the work in splendid fashion.

Advice For Young Mothers

Hamilton, Ont.—"Before the arrival of my little boy my health was very poor, my back hurt and my nerves were so upset I could not sleep. I grew very weak and miserable and suffered from morning sickness. Finally I saw Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in the drug store where I trade, so I decided to try it, and it did me a world of good. It relieved me of all distress in my back, built me up in strength and my nerves did not give me any more trouble. I got along fine the remainder of the time and I had a very strong, healthy baby. In addition to keeping a woman healthy and strong it relieves her of a certain mental strain, from which most women suffer during motherhood."—Mrs. Joseph Curto, 147 Bay St., North . How to Play BRIDGE

A new series of lessons by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1926, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 3

One of the most puzzling questions of auction arises when your partner has made a business double and you have a hand that is worthless except at the suit you have bid. Should you leave in the double in the hope of defeating the contract or should you go on with your own bid? That is the question and the answer must always be a variable one, dependent on the cards held in each hand. As a general proposition you should figure whether or not your hand can take tricks at the bid that has been doubled. If it can, then your hand and your partner's will probably defeat the contract. If your hand cannot take tricks at the bid that has been doubled, then you should rebid your own suit. The following hands are good illustrations of the rebid after partner's double:

Hand No. 1

: Y :
:A B:
: Z :

Hearts — 10, 8, 3
Clubs — Q, J, 9, 8, 7, 5, 4, 2
Diamonds — 7, 6
Spades — none

No score, first game. Z dealt and passed. A bid one spade, Y two hearts and B two spades. Z bid three clubs, A bid three spades, Y bid three no-trump and B doubled. Z bid four clubs, A bid four spades and Y doubled. If B passed what should Z now bid? Z should bid five clubs. His hand hasn't the sign of a trick with spades trumps, and his partner must, therefore, take four tricks to defeat the four spade bid, which is very unlikely. As a matter of fact, Z can make five clubs, losing only one club and one heart trick. At four spades, Y-Z can make only three tricks: two spade tricks and the ace of diamonds — quite a difference.

Hand No. 2

Hearts — Q, J, 10, 7, 4
Clubs — 10, 8, 4, 2
Diamonds — 7
Spades — J, 8, 4

: Y :
:A B:
: Z :

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one heart, A bid one spade. Y bid four hearts and B bid four spades. Z doubled four spades. If A passed what should Y bid? Y should bid five hearts. His hand is worth five or six tricks with hearts trumps, but probably is not worth one if spades are trumps. His only chance is to find his partner with the ace of diamonds and so be able to trump one diamond trick. If, however, his partner hasn't the ace of diamonds, Y cannot take a trick with spades as trumps. For that reason he should bid five hearts. Y-Z can just make five hearts, while at spades A-B can make a grand slam. A had the ace of diamonds and no hearts, and B had no clubs, so a cross ruff could be established. If Y had bid five hearts, neither A nor B was strong enough to bid five spades over the double, so a bid of five hearts would have been a big winner.

Here are three hands that came up in a game the other evening of which an analysis will be given in the next article. They are most interesting because the principles involved are common everyday principles that every player should understand and know how to apply. Think them over.

Problem No. 2

: Y :
:A B:
: Z :

Hearts — 7
Clubs — 8, 4
Diamonds — A, K, Q, 7, 6, 2
Spades — J, 10, 4, 3

Rubber game, no score. Z dealt and bid one diamond. A bid two clubs, Y passed and B bid four clubs. What should Z now bid?

Problem No. 3

: Y :
:A B:
: Z :

Hearts — 6
Clubs — 7, 4
Diamonds — 9, 8
Spades — A, K, J, 10, 7, 5, 4, 2

Rubber game, Y-Z, 10; A-B, 21. What would you bid if you dealt and held Z's hand? This hand is very interesting because Z made a trick bid and got away with it. Think it over.

Problem No. 4

Hearts — Q, 10, 4
Clubs — 10, 5
Diamonds — A
Spades — K, Q, 10, 9, 8, 6, 3

: Y :
:A B:
: Z :

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one no-trump. A passed, Y bid two spades and B passed. Z bid two no-trump and A passed. What should Y now bid?

HOCKEY TEAMS FIRST PRACTICE ON VARSITY RINK

College Teams on Artificial Ice at Bloor St. Arena.

O.H.A. SENIOR TEAMS.

Many Try-outs For Positions on the Various Teams.

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—There was plenty of activity around Varsity on Monday, and there is no mistake about that. While the rugby club was slamming the pigskin around in the Stadium, the hockeyists were out for the first time, and held their first practice on the splendid surface of the new Varsity Arena. Both the senior teams of the University were on hand, and there was a host of candidates out for both teams. The material was all good, too, and the "Grads," as the O.H.A. team will be known, have a team that will take some beating at any time.

Head Coach Conny Smythe was on hand and he watched the players work out from a rail seat. Joe Sullivan, his assistant, skated around and watched over them from the ice. Smythe has but few of last year's wonderful senior intercollegiate team left, and the only ones that appeared were "Wes" Richards and "Jim" Kirkpatrick, two forwards. He will have to rebuild that team from the bottom up. "Bill" Stollery will most likely get the goal assignment as "Stuffy" Mueller, the only other candidate, will not be able to play. Altogether 15 players turned out for the workout with the intercollegiate team, and there will be a team picked from them that will hold its own with the squads from Queen's and McGill.

The "Grads" Formidable.

That the "Grads" will be powerful is a foregone conclusion. It is seldom that such an array of talent has been out for the opening practice with any club, and all the players were experienced men that have been through at least one year of senior hockey. "Joe" Sullivan was in goal. Ross Taylor was on one defence and his mate of two seasons ago, "Red" Porter, watched the workout from the boards. "Red" is one of the most improved players in the game, and with him teaming up alongside Taylor, the two will form a combination that will be hard to beat. "Charley" Delahey, who played for the intermediates last season, has one of the most powerful shots in hockey, and he would make a real relief man for the Porter-Taylor pair. Dave Trottier, the clever centre, started in where he left off last winter and his summer in the north country appears to have put him in rare condition. Dr. Lou Hudson also appears to be ready to go at top speed and he should have another great season.

Others out included Bert Plaxton, Roger Plaxton, and Frank Fisher, all former Varsity players and last season with Osgoode Hall seniors; Horkins, former St. Mary's player.

Sandy Somerville is on his way back from California, where he has been on a pleasure trip and, as he will make Toronto his home in future, he is expected to be with the Grads. Also Hughie Plaxton, who spent the summer in Europe.

Varsity has a splendid arena. The ice surface is large and the seating accommodation could not be improved upon. The dressing rooms are not completed, but when they are they will be roomy and warm. Ted Marriott is the ice maker and Ross Workman the manager.

Parkdale and St. Mary's Out.

Parkdale Canoe Club and St. Mary's seniors worked out at the Arena on Mutual Street, and they will have strong clubs, contrary to reports that have been in circulation in amateur hockey circles. The Paddlers had a real squad out and when they are bolstered by players that are playing rugby, they will be feared by any senior club. "Harry" Watson knocked a lot of rumors for a row, by turning out with them, and there were also Jim Lount, Bruce Burry, Allan Camport and Fred Radke on the defence and McAllister in goal. "King" Cole, Careless, former St. Andrew's player, Catto, Jack Bond, McMaster and Heffernan, the last three from Osgoode Hall, and several others, made up the list of front-line candidates. "Shrimp" Morris is out of town, but he will be available again. Ross Paul and Fred Miller will not be able to turn out for some time. They are playing football with Parkdale.

Elson McKay, who starred with Aura Lee junior O.H.A. champions two years ago, turned out with Toronto Canoe Club. Goldsmith, from the K. & S. team of last winter; Joe Wright, Pugsley, and a host of others new to local senior hockey, were with the Red Ringers.

St. Mary's Have Large Squad.

The Harps had the biggest squad of the night in uniform and a lot of players that should go big in the senior ranks turned out for the Spanton-Selke-D'Alesandro tribe. Harris and Stark were in the nets, and the most prominent of the others were the McPherson brothers, "Shrimp" and John, Jack Smythe, Bert Hughes and Jack Leahman. Boyd, Grant and Art Smith of last year's T.C.C. juniors, and McCaffery of Newmarket and Adam Sellers and Jimmy Sanders of last year's intermediates. Underwood, the Markham flash, will also be with the Saints.

HELPED PUT OTTAWA SENATORS IN SEMI-FINALS

Here are the men who have stood the brunt of many a bruising battle in Ottawa's march to victory in the Big Four series and who probably are entitled to a major share of credit in the success that has attended the Senators' upward climb that has put this team in the Canadian semi-finals. Reading from left to right they are: McMillan, inside wing; Wright, inside wing; ——, snap back; Kealey, middle wing, and Cote, middle wing.

OTTAWA READY FOR THE FINALS

EASTERN CANADA.

OTTAWA, Nov. 24 (by Canadian Press)—If final approval from the Intercollegiate Rugby Union is forthcoming there will be a titular play-off with the winners of that Union and Ottawa's "Big Four" champions for the Eastern Canada honors. This was made clear yesterday by Charles Snelling, treasurer of the Ottawa Rugby Club, following reports that the local officials were considering disbanding the champion Senator squad for the season following the triumph over Balmy Beach here last Saturday.

"There never was any doubt that we were ready to meet the Intercollegiate champions," Mr. Snelling emphatically declared. He stated that he was in receipt of a letter yesterday morning from "Bobby" Hewitson president of the Canadian Rugby Football Union, asking that officials of the Ottawa club confer with him in Toronto this coming week-end to complete arrangements for the eastern play-off.

WINS DECISION OVER HUFFMAN

ROCKED IN SIXTH.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 — Tiger Flowers, world's middleweight boxing champion, won a referee's decision over Sailor Eddie Huffman of Los Angeles in a ten-round boxing match at the Coliseum. The contest was one-sided. Flowers won eight of the ten rounds. In the sixth, however Huffman rocked Flowers with a solid right to the chin and the negro was much more careful in the next round. Flowers weighed 168; Huffman, 178.

"Chuck" Burns, San Antonio, light heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Ad Allegrini, Los Angeles, in the sixth round of a scheduled eight-round fight. Allegrini was unable to continue. Bob Lawson, negro heavyweight, Birmingham, Ala., and Jim Savage, of Chicago, fought a ten-round draw.

Philaedlphia, Nov. 24—Al Webster, Billings, Montana, was given the verdict over Rocky Smith, Battle Creek, Mich. The judges were unable to agree.

Billy Wells, English boxer, put up a "game" battle, but lost the judges' decision to Jimmy Jones, Youngstown, in the semi-final. Wells was floored three times.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 24 — The crowd howled when Phil Goldstein was given the verdict over Tim Drexler of this city. It was a fast bout.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 24—Benny Schwartz, local bantam, was awarded a decision over Tommy Ryan of Buffalo after 12 rounds of fast boxing.

Boston, Mass. Nov. 24—"Mickey" Walker, former welterweight champion, won the decision over Jock Malone, St. Paul middleweight.

NEW GROUPING TEAMS IN EAST

No Prospect For Eastern Football Conference Out of Break-up.

IS MADE EASIER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—The popular idea that an eastern football conference might grow out of the break-up of the time-honored Harvard-Yale-Princeton triumvirate has no prospect of being realized at least for next year in the belief of college authorities who have canvased the situation, but the groundwork is being laid for it by the new grouping among major teams.

Most authorities admit that the path for a conference has been made easier by the end of the "Big Three." But other difficulties remain. Many barriers of tradition still exist. It is pointed out also that various sectional interests and the wide range of playing standards handicap any scheme to bring togethed an appreciable number of colleges in one common fold. Still another objection comes from those college officials who feel that any attempt to organize a conference would put too much emphasis on championships.

GROH UP WITH ROCHESTER CLUB

Veteran Major Leaguer To Play For Native City Next Season.

THIRD BASEMAN.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 24—Henry K. (Heinie) Groh, the veteran major leaguer, who learned the rudiments of the game on Rochester sand lots, will return to his native city with the starting of the 1927 season. Heinie has signed with Manager Stallings to play third base for the Tribe.

Groh started with the Giants last season, but was later sent to the Toledo Club, of the American Association, where he finished the season with one of the best fielding percentages in the circuit. Groh is making his home in Rochester this winter, as he has in the past years after the completion of the baseball season.

CHOSEN MOST VALUABLE MAN

Robert O'Farrell, Catcher For World Series Champions, Receives Honor.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (United Press)—Robert O'Farrell, catcher on the world's champions St. Louis Cardinals, yesterday was chosen as the most valuable player in the National League for the 1926 season.

The award, which carries a cash bonus of $1,000, was nearly unanimous the committee of baseball writers selecting O'Farrell by a vote of 79 out of a possible eighty points.

Critz, second baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, placed second, with 60 points, and Kremer, Pittsburgh pitcher, was third with 32.

O'Farrell, formerly a second string backstop on the Chicago Cubs, was traded to St. Louis a year last spring. Bob played in approximately 150 games this season, was rated as the best thrower in the league if not in the game this year, was a top-notch hitter, batting around .300 and his capable work behind the bat was considered one of the chief factors of the Cardinals' pennant victory.

He brings the honor to St. Louis for the second consecutive year, Rogers Hornsby having on it last year.

TRAINER GRANTED RELEASE

The announcement was made at Pimlico by Commander J. K. L. Ross of Montreal that he had granted the release to Trainer Henry McDaniel, at the latter's request, though the latter's contract had still a year to run. Jockey Pete Walls, the leading rider for the Ross stable, has also been given his release and has signed up for 1927 with the H. T. Archibald stable. This photograph was taken at Woodbine in September and shows Mr. Ross and his jockey and trainer in the saddling paddock after a race won by Tattling, the champion 3-year-old.

CANADIENS GET FIRST VICTORY

Beat New York Americans 2-0 at the Forum, Montreal.

FEW PENALTIES.

MONTREAL, Nov. 24. — Canadiens scored their first victory of the National Hockey League season here last night when they defeated Newsy Lalonde's New York Americans by the score of 2 to 0.

Outskating the Americans for two thirds of the contest, the Canadiens fully deserved their margin, though it was not until half way through the final period that the local team finally clinched the game. New York finished with a vicious attack, but superb goaling by Hainsworth blocked possible tallies. The net guarding at both ends was spectacular throughout the contest.

New York lost much of their punch when Charlie Langlois was knocked out in the second session, when he collided with the Canadien goal post, head-one, and had to be assisted in a dazed condition to the bench. He returned to the play, however. The teams:

N.Y. Americans — Goal, Forbes; defence, Langlois and Simpson; centre, Burch; wings, McKinnon, R. Green; subs, Randall, Reise, Bouchard, Scott, Roach, Holmes.

Canadiens—Goal, Hainsworth; defence, Gardiner, Leduc; centre, Morenz; wings, Joliat, Gagne; subs, W. Boucher, Lepine, Lafrance, Larochelle, Moran, Mantha.

Referee—Cooper Smeaton, Montreal.

The Summary.

First Period.

No score.

Second Period.

1—Canadiens, Morenz, 10.30.

Third Period.

2—Canadiens, Lepine, 9.30.

Final score—Canadiens 2, New York Americans 0.

Penalties—Moran 2, Langlois.

STEP FORWARD TO INDEPENDENCE

South African Paper Says Nationalists Can Continue Work.

PRETORIA, South Africa, Nov. 24.— (Canadian Press Cable Via Reuters.))— Ons Vaderland, the organ of Hon. Tielman Roos, Minister of Justice, commenting on the report of the Imperial Conference Premiers' Committee on Inter-Imperial Relations, says that what Premier Hertzog obtained at the Imperial Conference is only a step towards sovereign independence.

Ons Vaderland says: "Let there be no misty ambiguity about it, Article Four in the Nationalist Party's programme outlines our highest ideal, and this declaration of the Imperial Conference is a big step in that direction. We can now give our attention to the development of our economic independence."

MAROONS BEAT BOSTON BRUINS

Hard Game Decided By Soft Shot Near End of Third Period.

SCORE 2-1.

BOSTON, Nov. 24. — The world champion Montreal Maroons defeated the Boston Bruins in a National Hockey League fixture here last night, 2 to 1. It was a rugged battle, with honors even, and the tide was turned late in the third period when Nelson Stewart, Maroon centre, sent a soft shot over "Doc" Stewart's shoulder for the deciding tally. Stewart had scored Montreal's first goal in the first period. Cooper shot in the Boston counter in the second.

From the outset it was rough going, and after a hectic first period in which six minor penalties and one major were inflicted, Referee O'Hara harangued the two squads at mid-ice and ordered better behavior. The improvement was noticeable thereafter. Cleghorn, captain of the Bruins, drew the major penalty. He cut down Phillips with his stick in a mix-up near his goal, and the Maroon was out for the rest of the game. Boston had seven minor penalties, of which two went to Shore, while Montreal had six. Dutton, who played a hard game for the visitors, drew two penalties.

Although Herberts was missing from the Boston line-up through illness, the forward line was formidable. Shore, Keats, Galbraith, and Cooper displayed a dangerous attack, and gave promise of team-work later in the season. Nelson Stewart, leading the Maroon attack, was ably assisted by "Punch" Broadbent. "Babe" Seibert, and Dutton. The teams:

Boston—Goal, Stewart; defence, Hitchman and Cleghorn; centre, Keats; wings, Galbraith and Shore; subs, Caskey, Briden, Stuart, Oliver and Coutu.

Montreal—Goal Benedict; defence Noble and Munro; centre, Stewart; wings, Seibert and Broadbent; subs, Carson, Phillips, Dinsmore, Holway, Emms, Dutton.

Referee—W. O'Hara, Ottawa.

The Summary.

First Period.

1—Montreal, Stewart, 5.20.

Second Period.

2—Boston, Cooper, 10.08.

Third Period.

3—Montreal, Stewart, 14.09.

Final score—Montreal 2, Boston 1.

Penalties—Cleghorn 2 (major), Dutton 2, Keats, Cooper, Hitchman, Noble 2, Shore 2, Seibert, Coutu, Carson.

Says Buyers Enthuse Over New Essex Six 4-Door Sedan

An immediate and striking success has been scored by the new Essex Six four-door sedan—so much so indeed that sales activity has resembled that of the ordinary spring season, according to C. L. Brewer, Hudson-Essex distributor. He declared that this new model had caught popular favor more quickly and more strongly than any other car in his long experience.

"Ordinarily the introduction of a new body type is of great importance," said C. L. Brewer, "but in the case of Essex it meant a good deal. Up to the time of this car, Essex had built its whole sale record of 330,000 cars on its one body type, the coach. When it added the sedan, it doubled the variety of cars it offered the public, and gave motorists an opportunity to buy Essex value, economy and six cylinder performance in deluxe form.

"The result naturally has been to appeal to great numbers of motorists. Another interesting result is that the coach itself is actually increasing the hold which it has had in public estimation. The sedan is finished in lacquer duotone, while the coach may be had either in attractive shades, lacquered or in the lustrous and durable high-baked enamel finish.

"Both the coach and the sedan are steel built in Hudson's own body plant, and Hudson-Essex officials claim for them they are not exceeded in strength or durability by any motor car bodies in the world, price regardless.

"First with the coach and now with the sedan, Essex has punctured the old time theory that motor cars had to be expensive to be good. The present Essex cars are the best, in body and chassis, which the company has ever been able to manufacture—and they contain definite details of quality not matched except at levels several hundred dollars up—yet this extra value is passed along to the public at the most favorable price ever known. It is basic value which will alway bear the greatest appeal to the motor buyers. The present Essex activity proves that thought thoroughly."

MISSION WORK IS ILLUSTRATED

Trinity Young People Take "Trip Around the World."

An innovation, unique in character and very interesting in its demonstration, took place last evening in the form of "A Trip Around the World," made under the auspices of the young people of Trinity Church. Nearly three hundred of the members of the congregation gathered at the Reid street hall last evening, prior to embarking on "A Trip Around the World" which took them in turn to four different homes of members of the congregation, each of the homes representing a mission field of the church. The company was divided into four groups, all in charge of Mr. Cummings, of the Collegiate Institute staff, and captained by Messrs. Gordon Ham, Harold Rehill, Vernon Skitch, and Osborne Smith.

The homes visited were decorated elaborately in a fashion peculiar to the country represented, and addresses on the mission work done there, with a musical programme, were rendered with refreshments at each stopping-place.

Japan was represented at the home of Mr. Wilfrid Derry, McDonell street, and here an address was given by Mr. R. Manning, and appropriate vocal solos rendered by Mrs. H. F. Doig, with accompaniments by Miss Gwen Donley.

The home of Dr. M. A. Morrison, Hunter street, represented China and a large exhibit of Chinese curios was displayed here by Mrs. E. W. Coon. Miss Ila Giles gave a paper on the mission work in China, and Miss Doris Donley sang, with accompaniments by Miss Elizabeth Webber.

At the home of Mr. Fanjoy, on Simcoe street, an Indian wigwam and distinctive decorations simulated the mission work of the church in Northern Canada, and Mr. Fanjoy was garbed as an Indian chieftain. Here, Dr. A. I. Brown, Aylmer street, also in Indian costume, spoke of the mission work in Canada, and Miss Alma Blanchard sang, with accompaniments by Miss Mildred Greene.

Africa was represented at the home of Mr. W. G. Read, Gilmour street, where Mr. Reid spoke of the Challenge of Africa, and a quartette of "colored folks," the Misses Marian Deyell, Frances McFadden Sherwood Kennett and George Nicholls, rendered vocal numbers, with accompaniments by Miss McFadden.

The various exhibits, representing work in the countries depicted, were an interesting portion of the trip, and were supplied by several trunkfuls of curios sent by Dr. F. C. Stephenson of Toronto for the occasion. The trip, for which a charge of twenty-five cents was made, augmented by an offering toward the mission work, taken up at each of the homes, was designed to set before the young people in interesting style the mission work of the church and its challenge to the members.

DAMAGE SUIT IS DISMISSED

Claim Against Thomas Beatty Thrown Out By Jury.

PLAINTIFF'S NEGLECT.

WHITBY, Nov. 24.—The Honorable Mr. Justice Lennox, at the Whitby Assizes today, dismissed the action brought by William Cardinal against Thomas Beatty, of Beatty Bros. Cartage Company, Peterborough, for $25,000.00 damages.

The case was very vigorously contested. Mr. J. A. C. Swanson and H. H. German, the solicitors for William Cardinal, and the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterborough, acting for Mr. Beatty.

The trial occupied two days, and a large number of witnesses were examined as to the condition of the highway and also as to the condition of Mr. Cardinal, who was very badly injured.

The plaintiff claimed that on June 27th last, about 8.30 o'clock in the evening, while he was pumping up a deflated tire on his automobile two miles east of Oshawa, on the Provincial highway, Mr. Thomas Beatty ran into him and injured him. Mr. Cardinal had seven ribs broken on one side, five on the other, his collar bone and shoulder blade broken, and altogether twenty-eight bones were fractured, and he alleged that he was permanently injured.

On Mr. Beatty's defence, it was contended that is was after dusk in the evening when the accident occurred, and that Cardinal did not have his light lighted on his automobile, nor was the tail-light on, and Mr. Beatty did not notice the car until he was approaching it, and had just sufficient time to drive out to avoid the car, and his attention was attracted by Cardinal's car, so that he did not see Cardinal stooping over beside it, pumping up the tire.

Cardinal came into Court in a very badly crippled condition, but the defence succeeded in showing that all cars passing at the time of the accident, when traffic was very heavy, were lighted, and the light of one approaching automobile met Mr. Beatty just as he was passing the Cardinal car, and he could not see the automobile without lights immediately in front of him.

The Honorable Mr. Justice Lennox adjourned the Court last night as the jury could not agree on a verdict at six o'clock, so he gave instructions to the Sheriff to have the Jury bring in a sealed verdict, which was delivered at the opening of the Court this morning. They found that Mr. Cardinal had suffered no damages assessable against Mr. Beatty ,and that his negligence was the cause of the accident.

The Court room was crowded with Whibty people by reason of the local interest in the case, and two of the events of the Assize were the addresses given to the Jury by the Hon. Mr. Gordon and by Mr. Swanson of Oshawa.

Thomas Beatty gave evidence that he had driven automobiles for twelve years and had never had an accident, nor had ever been a witness in a Court case, and the Judge complimented him upon the manner in which he gave his evidence, and his record as a driver, in as much as he was driving frequently from six o'clock in the morning until eleven o'clock at night.

RANGERS HOLD FINE SMOKER

Many Members of Regiment Gather in Recreation Room.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

The smoker was preceded by a softball game between the officers and men, which was won by the latter after pitchers Lieuts. Dunkerley and Bolton had been knocked out of the box. The feature of the game was a home run by R. Dyer.

An excellent musical programme had been arranged which included songs by Major Park, Capts. Melton and Nichols, and Mr. Ted. Markham, also magician's tricks by Mr. McDermid. Lots of community singing was indulged in also. The Warrant Officers and Sergeants were given an opportunity to show their abilities as community singers but their efforts met with a rather mixed reception and undoubtedly they need more practice.

Bandsman Hesmond and Pte. Jones won the prizes in the bean guessing competition. Pte. Calladine and C.Q.M.S. Kitchen won the goose and chicken respectively, which will be presented to them for Christmas.

Refreshments were then served under the guidance of Capt. and Q. M. Whatley.

The evening concluded with an address by Lt.-Col. Hall, who also presented the prizes. Col. Hall expressed his pleasure for the excellent attendance and hoped that future social events would be well patronized. Brief speeches were also made by Majors Park, Winterbottom, Capt. Melton and R. M. S. Burrows. Other officers present were Major Mills, Capts. Nicholls, Monkman, Lts. Dunkerley, Bolton, Thompson and Melton. Capt. Monkman acted as chairman for the evening.

"FORLORN RIVER" DEALS WITH CATTLE RUSTLERS OF OLD WEST; HOLT IN CAST

Zane Grey's genius for story telling and Paramount's superlative skill in picturizing his colorful tales of the old West in all their gripping realism find celluloid expression in a new melodramatic thriller with the unusual title of "Forlorn River."

This is the very latest of Mr. Grey's adventurous tales and recently appeared serially in the Ladies Home Journal. The picture opens at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow for a three days run.

"Forlorn River" deals with a band of cattle rustlers who were the terror of the northwest cattle country when that section of the West was America's last frontier. Around this exciting clash between the desperadoes and the honest ranchers, the author has woven a dramatic romance that has an unexpected twist.

The principals involved are an outlaw, who is a fugitive from justice; a cattle rancher's daughter; and her boyhood sweetheart. Jack Holt has the picturesque role of "Nevada," the mysterious outlaw; Arlette Marchal, noted French beauty, is the appealing heroine; and Edmund Burns is the third angle in this three-cornered love affair. Raymond Hatton, whose comedy characterizations have made him a favorite with picturegoers, plays the party of a tramp cowpuncher in his inimitably humorous style.

The story was adapted by George C. Hull and directed by John Waters, who wielded the megaphone on another of Mr. Grey's stories, "Born to the West." Particular interest attaches to the remarkable scenic background, inasmuch as the entire production was filmed in Zion National Park, Utah, a primitive and majestic setting of great natural beauty.

Film fans, who have come to expect certain things in a Zane Grey photoplay, will find them in overflowing measure in this new opus. There is an abundance of hair-trigger action, stunt riding, gun fighting, in addition to an assortment of typical western thrills.

AT THE REGENT

'FOUR HORSEMEN' A SUPERB FILM

An epic tale of surging passion sweeping from the wide plains of the Argentine through the fascinating frivolities of pre-war Paris into the blazing turmoil of the German invasion of Northern France was unfolded last night at the Regent Theatre with Rudolph Valentino and Alice Terry in the leading roles. It was the triumphant return of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the $1,000,000 Rex Ingram production made for Metro-Goldwyn, which has been a screen sensation in New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Los Angeles. The picture, adapted by June Mathis from the great novel of Vicente Blasco Ibanez, has intensified the dramatic force of the original story and last night it held the spectators breathlessly intent as with swift, sure strokes it hammered home the terror and grandeur of the war—and a great deal of the humor and light-hearted gaiety that kept bubbling up through the turgid stream of struggling humanity when the world was in arms.

The director, Rex Ingram, succeeded in concentrating the great struggle in a series of unforgettable pictures that flash out the quintessence of life at white heat. "The Four Horsemen" is the fulfilment of the promise of a noble art in pictures.

Now feeling fine as a fiddle

Harry H. Buss of Egmont, B.C., suffered from a lame back for over 17 years. Every spring he was laid up from work. He tried many remedies, but could not obtain relief. He was advised to try Gin Pills and immediately obtained relief. Read his letter:

"There is nothing to compare with Gin Pills. I suffered unspeakably with a lame back for over 17 years. I tried almost everything, even to hot poultices. I could not sleep. After taking two and a half boxes of Gin Pills I am at work again and feel fine as a fiddle. I will not be without Gin Pills from now on. I am telling everyone in this settlement who has kidney or back trouble to give Gin Pills a trial. Publish my letter as I would like others to know what great relief Gin Pills gave me."

Pains in the back, constant headaches, swollen joints, painful urination, murky urine, brick dust deposits, scanty or too frequent voiding of urine are all symptoms of kidney trouble. Relieve your suffering and ensure a future free from kidney ailments. Get a box of Gin Pills today. 50c at all druggists. National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Canada. 124

WHAT GOVERNMENT SALE MEANS.

The claim that "Government Control," which means Government sale, is a Temperance measure, is all buncomb. Government sale involves:

Increased Sale of Liquor.
More Liquor Sold means More Drunkenness.
More Drunkenness Means More Drunkards.
More Poverty.
More Vice.
More Crime.
More Distress.
More Motor Accidents.
More Industrial Accidents
Decreased Industrial Efficiency.
More Expenditure on Liquor.
Less Money for Other Business.

How can a policy that will inevitably produce these results be described as a Temperance Measure?

EMPLOYEES GIVEN AWARDS.

Awards totalling $22,602 were paid to 2,172 employees of the General Electric Company during the first six months of the current year for suggestions which ranged from safety devices for the protection of workers to improved methods of manufacturing. In all, 7,080 suggestions were made, an increase of approximately 1,500 over the first six months of last year, showing a gradual increase in the interest by the employees in the company's suggestion system. For the first half of 1925, awards were made totalling $17,510 to 1,693 employees. The awards, which ranged up to $500, were paid at the option of the recipient, either in cash or G. E. Employees' Securities Corporation bonds, which yielded 8 per cent. as long as the original holder remains in the employee of the company. —Manufacturers' News.

POISON ALCOHOL AND THE O.T.A.

One reason urged for the proposed repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act is the supposed increase in deaths from drinking "poison alcohol." Premier Ferguson and many of his followers are ringing the changes on this tune and may be misleading some people who do not know the facts.

But here are the facts up to 1924, the latest figures that are available. They do not include the sensational deaths that took place some months ago in Toronto, Hamilton and vicinity, but even were these included, supporters of the O.T.A. may well be proud of the showing especially when we remember that during the 1919-1924 period under the O.T.A., the population of Ontario was over 200,000 greater than during the 1911-1915 period under legalized sale.

Deaths in Ontario from Alcoholic Poisoning

1919-1924	49	16	27	11	6

There is no truth in the claim that the Ontario Temperance Act has yielded an increase in the deaths from alcoholic poisoning.

DRY CANDIDATE SEEKS CONTEST

Asks Judge For Writ Ordering His Name Put On Ballot.

STATEMENTS MADE.

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—In an application which will be presented by Frank Anglin, Prohibition candidate in Addington, to Mr. Justice Rose at Osgoode Hall today, Mr. Anglin asks that a mandamus be directed to L. B. Cronk, returning officer, requiring him to accept the nomination of Mr. Anglin. The granting of the mandamus would mean that the returning officer's declaration that W. D. Black, Conservative, was elected by acclamation would be set aside and the seat would be contested in the coming election.

In his affidavit Mr. Anglin stated that he tendered the nomination papers in due time, but that the returning officer told him they were not properly signed, at the same time pointing to the attestation form.

"Thereupon, with a fountain pen which I picked up from the Returning Officer's desk," he continued, "I endeavored to write my name in the blank space, but found that the pen would not write, and while proceeding to take my own fountain pen from my pocket the Returning Officer stopped me by saying 'Time's up,' declaring the nominations closed, and announcing to the audience that Mr. Black was elected by acclamation."

Returning Officer L. B. Cronk claimed that "At two minutes to two I was shown the form of nomination paper of Frank Anglin. I immediately pointed out that the consent was not filled out. Between this moment and two o'clock the said form of nomination paper was handed to me folded up. At two o'clock nominations were closed and papers examined. In his opinion the candidate's consent, required by law, was not given and he declared Mr. Black elected by acclamation.

Mine Officials Plan To Flood Lower Levels To Combat Fire.

THREE BODIES FOUND.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., November 24. — Canadian Press. — With all hope of rescue abandoned and fire raging below No. 1 level, preparations were made this morning to flood No. 4 level of the McGillivray Creek Coal and Coke Company Mine, where ten men were entombed yesterday following an explosion of gas and dust.

Several explosions followed the initial blast of yesterday morning, and rescue workers were forced from the pit after locating three bodies, only one of which could be brought to the surface.

Officials of the mine, which is located in the Crow's Nest Pass field, near Coleman, Alta, officially announced to-day that it would be necessary to flood No. 4 level of the mine in order to check the fire which followed the numerous explosions.

They said rescue work was impossible below the No. one level.

CHINESE BIBLES ARE DISTRIBUTED

The Biblical literature of the city has been enriched recently by the acquisition of fifteen Chinese Bibles. Sergeant Mrs. J. H. Bettes of the Salvation Army, who sent to Shanghai for a number of these Bibles, which are printed partly in Chinese and partly in English, has just distributed the books to the Oriental establishments of the city, doing this as a portion of her mission work among the Chinese, who also have the Chinese War Cry taken to them by Mrs. Bettes once a month. The money for these Chinese Bibles was donated by Mrs. A. G. Dickson, Brock Street.

Atlantic Sugar Leads With Four Point Gain

TORONTO, Nov. 24.— (Canadian Press.) — Atlantic Sugar Preferred furnished the pyrotechnic display on the Toronto stock exchange to-day when it gained 4 1-4 points at 85 after first selling down at 81. There were 325 shares of the sugar issue dealt it. The common also showed a gain, being 1-4 up at 27 3-4. The market was bullish to-day, gains outnumbering losses and a wide range of issues being dealt in. Brazilian Traction was up 1 3-4 at 105 1-4, British Columbia Fishing up 1 7-8 at 94 1-4, and Industrial Alcohol up 3-8 at 24 7-8. Davies 'A' was down 1-2 at 29 1-2, Goodyear down 1-4 at 96, and McKay common up one at 126 1-2. Page Hersey common was up 1-4 at 54 5-8 and Gooderham and Worts, on the unlisted, sold up 1-4 at 34.

New York Price Move Continues To Be Upward

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The main price movement in to-day's stock market continued upward despite the usual pre-holiday profit taking and a selling attack on issues with large Mexican property holdings, based on the dispute over Mexican land laws.

Baldwin rallied about 5 points from its low to 151, the highest in several years. U. S. Steel Common and General Motors also pointed upward after an early interval of heaviness.

Rails gathered strength on the continuation of heavy freight traffic and the publication of additional favorable October earnings statements.

Banking, Shipping, Motion Picture, Equipment, Oil and Farm Implement shares also presented several points of strength. Commercial Solvents 'B,' which soared 11 points yesterday, fell from 235 to 224.

Business In Mines Brisk With Prices Mostly Firm

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press)—Business was brisk on the Standard Mining Exchange today, with 322,706 shares changing hands. Prices were firm in almost all instances, gains outnumbering losses. Dome Mines was 25 cents higher at $1.00, the issue having risen over $1.00 in the past three days. Beaver was up 3 1-2 at 62, Bourlamarque syndicate up two at 133 Coniagas, 5 cents higher at 4.45, Hollinger Consolidated up 10 at 18.80, and Kirkland Hunton, 3-4 higher at 29 1-2. Kirkland Lake was also higher, the issue registering a gain of four points at 75. McIntyre joined the upward movement with an advance of 15 cents at 23.75, and Vipond Consolidated was two higher at 162. Lower issues included Canadian Lorrain down 3-4 at 68, Castle Trethewey, one at 1.16, Cons. W. D. Lake 1-8 at 21 5-8, Teck Hughes five at 487, and Wright Hargreaves, two at 845.

Wheat Scores Advance After Weakness At Start

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press)—Wheat scored an advance here today after weakness at the start. Unexpected firmness of quotations at Liverpool, together with crop damage reports from Argentina, had a bullish effect.

Chicago opening prices 1-8 cent off to 1-4 cent up, were followed by moderate general decline and then by an upturn to well above yesterday's finish. Corn oats and provisions likewise developed firmness, corn starting at 1-8 cent decline to 1-4 cent advance and subsequently showing gains all around.

WEDDING BELLS.

TRUDE—BLEWETT.

The wedding took place on Nov. 3, at half past seven, of Lila Mae, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Blewett of Smith, to Walter Herman, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Trude, also of Smith. The ceremony was performed by Rev T. M. Wesley of Lakefield. The wedding march was played by Miss Eva McIlmoyle, cousin of the bride, who also played beautiful music during the signing of the register.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of pale yellow georgette trimmed with white swansdown, with stockingsand shoes to match, and wore a white bridal veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss Theressa Pearson, a cousin of the bride, looked charming in a dress of blue georgette and silver lace over pink satin, with shoes and stockings to match.

Mr. Willie Trude, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding supper was served to about 60 guests.

The evening was passed in music and dancing, after which the bride and groom left for Peterborough and Toronto.

The young couple were the recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts from a large circle of relatives and friends, including some pretty gifts from Rochester, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Trude will reside in Lakefield.

Public Opinion Is The Answer

If Mr. Ferguson can't enforce the O.T.A. how is he going to enforce the control Act is a question that is being asked by enemies of the Government.

Surely that question almost answers itself.

The O.T.A. can't be enforced because half of the people of the province don't want it enforced, break it with no qualms of conscience.

Infractions of the Government Control Act on the other hand can be dealt with because the people who now violate the O.T.A. will have no sympahy with law-breakers under that system.

The bootlegger, instead of being regarded as a friend in need as he is in many quarters now, will be looked upon as an unnecessary evil.

"Government control has brought me the co-operation of the public where formerly I got their taunts," is the testimony of Chief of Police Ritchie of Calgary.

The answer to the question with which this article starts is found in that statement.

Police Chief's Testimony Favors Government Control

At the Prohibition Union Meeting on Monday night an opinion of Government control in Alberta, and figures as to how it is working out there were given by Rev. Murdock McKinnon.

Mr. McKinnon is a fine speaker, a clergyman whose motives are above reproach and whose sincerity in the attitude he is taking is beyond suspicion.

But when the question of how any particular law has succeeded is being considered, from whom do you think the most reliable opinion is to be obtained; a minister whose environment is largely his manse and church, or the chief of police who is responsible for the enforcement of law?

WE ASK THAT QUESTION BECAUSE THE TESTIMONY OF POLICE CHIEFS IN ALBERTA IS IN DIRECT CONTRADICTION TO THAT GIVEN BY REV. MR. MCKINNON HERE ON MONDAY.

Chief of Police J. D. Shaute of Edmonton, who says he has voted for temperance all his life, declares that while he does not contend that the Alberta control system is the best that could be worked out, he feels that it is far in advance of prohibition.

His explanation is that the Government control system is workable and the other is not.

Chief Shaute gives the following yearly figures showing all infractions under the two systems for the City of Edmonton; 1925 being the only year wholly under Government control.

1922	966
1923	590
1924	642

In 1922 under prohibition there were 1,654 arrests for general crime as compared with 1,143 in 1925 under Government control

The Alberta act authorizes beer parlours which will not be permitted in Ontario, yet the Edmonton police chief says that the city police are having little trouble with drunkenness, and adds that if there were to be another vote on the question, Government control would win by a stronger majority than before.

Chief of Police David Ritchie, M.C., of Calgary, is even more enthusiastic in his support of Government control. "No man, outside the police force, can appreciate what the police had to endure in Calgary under Prohibition," says Chief Ritchie.

"Bootlegging,' he declares, "is through in Calgary except for an occasional taxi-driver."

Government control has brought him the co-operation of the public where formerly he had their taunts.

"The whole public tone of Calgary has improved to such an extent that I have no hesitation in recommending Government control for any province afflicted with Prohibition," is Chief Ritchie's advice.

We offer this testimony from the heads of the police departments in the two largest cities of Alberta as an endorsation of Government control that should be given the earnest consideration of every voter.

And remember that the Ontario Government control policy is better than that in force in Alberta.

Speakers Uphold Government Record And Liquor Policy

Large Audience Hears Mrs. Fallis and the Hon. George S. Henry, Speaking in Support of W. H. Bradburn, at Opera House.

LIQUOR ADS WILL BE FORBIDDEN; GOVERNMENT SALE NOT FOR REVENUE

Asserting that the government was not introducing the Government control policy for revenue, and promising to support legislation forbidding the advertising of liquor or beer to increase the sale, W. H. Bradburn appealed last night to the electors of Peterborough City for a second term in the Ontario legislature. The meeting was held in the Grand Opera House, which was well filled, and the other speakers were the Hon. Gorge S. Henry, Minister of Public Works and Highways in the Ferguson cabinet, and Mrs. Howard T. Fallis of Peterborough. V. J. McElderry, president of the local Conservative Association, was chairman. The record of the Ferguson government, and of the Conservative party, and the benefits of Government control were the main points taken up by all the speakers.

Mr. Bradburn said that the Ferguson government had been left a legacy by the Drury government in shape of deficit of fifteen million dollars in 1923 and a total of almost twenty-five millions for the four years of office. This the present government had been able to cut down, and this year the deficit is expected to be about one million dollars. "So that," continued Mr. Bradburn, if the present Governmen is returned, which no doubt it will be, (applause) 1927 will show a balanced budget." Asking if the electors were prepared to put Mr. Raney into office, with a return to the conditions of 1919-23, the speaker urged the vital necessity of returning a government which had given satisfaction to the people of the province. He said that the record of the government was not being attacked at all by the opposition, only the one issue being taken up.

Work done by the Department of Highways towards completing the roads included in the provincial highway system was recounted by Mr. Bradburn. In 1923 the Drury government had built 116 miles of roadway. In 1924-25-26 the Ferguson Government had averaged about 190 miles. This had been done at a lower cost for every type of surface, which in itself, he said, ought to commend it to the people.

35 Blind Rug Makers On Strike In Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (Associated Press). — A strike of 35 blind men and women all employed by the Chicago Lighthouse in the making of rugs and electrical appliances has been in progress here for three weeks. The strike followed the failure of the Lighthouse to take action on a petition signed by the 46 workers employed there. All are blind.

The help of the Chicago Federation of Labor has been asked by the strikers and John Fitzpatrick, president of that organization, has promised them his support. The lighthouse is run by the Improvement Association for Blind People.

The petition asks that one of the supervisors be dismissed. The disposal of certain sums of money supposed to have been spent in the benefit of the blind was also questioned.

COUNTY COUNCIL ADOPT REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

Money Spent For Upkeep of County Roads Amounts To $27,000.

NEW OUTBUILDINGS.

Reeve Brekenbridge Reports Over $9,000 Spent on Bridges.

At the afternoon session of the county council yesterday, the reports of the chairman of the County Roads Commission, the House of Refuge Committee, and the County Roads and Bridges Committee were adopted.

Reeve M. E. Smithson of the Township of Otonabee gave a very concise report of the work that the County Road Commission has done this year. About $32,000 was available by this committee to be spent on county roads, suburban area roads and the provincial highway. Up to November 1st about $27,000 has been spent. The largest item in the account is for maintenance, including truck ravages and the commission suggests that if truck traffic on the roads was more thoroughly regulated there would be a much greater amount each year for permanent construction.

Reeve J. C. Strickland of Lakefield submitted the report of the House of Refuge committee. This committee has built a new barn at the farm there this year to replace the old one which was burnt. To date $1,725 has been paid out for the superstructure of the barn, and $1,452.14 for the stables. There has been considerable extra expenditure at the house this year owing to new stoves, linoleums, and clothes having to be bought.

Reeve Breckenridge submitted the report of the Roads and Bridges committee. This committee has spent over $9,000 this year on bridges. The bridges rebuilt were the Douglas and Ford street bridges in Dummer at a cost of about $4,500; Deyell's bridge in Otonabee which cost $1,019.03; Brown's and Polock's bridges in Belmont at a cost of over $5,500, and Apsley bridge in Burleigh and Ansthruther for $1,005.78.

The Warden and Treasurer were ordered to sign a loan with the Canadian Bank of Commerce for the amount required to pay for the new building at the court house.

Reeves Rye and Parker moved a motion, which was carried, that in the case of indigent patients which were received into the hospitals, the county would only be held responsible for amount per day fixed by statue which at present is $1.50 a day. Reeve Smithson was not in favor of this resolution as, he stated, that some cases need treatment in the forms of serums, etc., and he thought that the county ought to pay for this treatment instead of having the local reeves authorize it. Reeve Rye thought that no precedent should be made and that the county should abide by the law, and that if a patient needed further treatment it was up to the reeve of the municipality from which the patient came to authorize the same.

A bill of $234.00 from the Children's Shelter was received for the keep of the Dwyer children last spring, but this was laid over for further discussion. Many other bills and accounts were dealt with, most of them being from school boards outside the county to which county resident pupils attended, as it was their nearest school.

County Roads Commission

Gentlemen:

The amount of money estimated as available for county road purposes (after providing for suburban area and provincial highway purposes) which is in the neighborhood of $18,230.00 adding the Government subsidy or estimated Government subsidy to the expenditures entitled to such, for you must also deduct for same, considerable for interest and general payments, which would make such subsidy about $16,230.70.

There has been expended up to November 15th instant $27,000.00 leaving $5,000.00, which will be required to wind up and provide for necessary petrol work. The rates struck amount to $27,480.70 deducting suburban area and provincial highway provisions, leaves, as stated, the amount for pure county road purposes, or some $32,000, including Government subsidy.

Your Commission have endeavored to attend to roads requiring the

3 $750 Swans Stolen Now Just Suppose, Maybe

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (Associated Press)—Somebody's Thanksgiving "birds" may have cost $750 apiece.

Peter Nielsen, superintendent of Beverly Cemetery, yesterday reported that three of the fat, imported swans brought from Germany at a cost of $750 each, to swim on the cemetery's artificial pond, had been stolen.

"And it's not the first time, either," he explained. "Last year, right around Thanksgiving, two of the birds disappeared.

"Do you suppose, now, maybe that somebody might be making a Thanksgiving dinner out of a $750 swan?"

The police supposed, now, maybe, that such might be the case.

TORY LEADER REVIEWS REPORT OF CONFERENCE

Raises Questions of Gravest Importance To Canada and Empire.

LONG DISCUSSION.

Has Had Only Time To Give It Hurried Consideration.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—Hon. Hugh Guthrie, temporary leader of the Opposition, has issued a statement on the report of the Imperial Conference.

Mr. Guthrie's statement, in part, is as follows: "I have read the report with deep interest. It raises questions of the garvest importance to Canada and the Empire. It took the delegates to the convention several weeks of discussion and consideration, and, no doubt, they had before them the fullest information before reaching a decision. It would be idle for one who had not been permitted to hear or to read the proceedings of the Conference to form any definite opinion upon the various matters which are dealt with in the report.

Feeling of Disappointment.

"My first impression upon reading the report was one of disappointment. I fail to see anything in the conclusions of the Conference as detailed in the report which would be viewed as in any way strengthening or consolidating Imperial interests. I feel the tenor is all the other way. It professes to confer upon the Dominions not only absolute equality with the Mother Country, but at the same time denies the Mother Country any directing power as the head and front of the Imperial Commonwealth. While the report assumes to bestow absolute autonomy upon the Dominions, not only in domestic but also in foreign affairs, I doubt very much if in practice, this affords anything more than the Dominions have actually enjoyed for many years.

"There has been an evident attempt to proclaim to the world that Great Britain is hereafter shorn of that authority in foreign affairs which, in association with the Dominions, she has always heretofore exercised and which in the practical working out of Imperial and world problems it is absolutely essential she continues to possess. There has been nothing substituted to take the place of the practice which has heretofore prevailed. If the resolution on this subject means anything the question immediately arises: What is to be the primary and active authority in the future in the consideration of foreign affairs of common Imperial concern? My prediction is that the practice which has been followed heretofore will remain unchanged, and that the pronouncement of the Conference in this respect was merely made to gratify the individual whims of one or more of the delegates.

Always So, He Says

"Some of the comments which have followed the press propaganda

Election Bulletin

NOV. 25, 1926 — PETERBOROUGH, ONT. — No. 10

The Premier's Relationship to Magistrate Murphy

A FEW DAYS ago we stated that Premier Ferguson and Magistrate Murphy of Edmonton were cousins. We intimated that this possibly explained why Magistrate Murphy gave "Cousin" Howard—just when he needed it—a letter saying how nicely Government sale has succeeded in Alberta.

This is the letter that "Cousin" "Howard" has had printed and distributed all over the province, which he has quoted from the public platform and which the local Conservative organization has been quoting and re-quoting in The Examiner.

Premier Ferguson now indignantly denies that he is a "cousin" to "Emily." He calls it a "falsehood."

But now we find a second reason why "Cousin" "Emily" should support "Cousin" Howard. It is on account of her brother, Harcourt Ferguson. Brother Harcourt is intimately connected with the liquor interests.

THE FERGUSON RELATIONSHIP EXPLAINED

New light was thrown upon the relationship between "Cousin" "Emily" and "Cousin" "Howard" a few days ago by Hon. W. F. Nickle, ex-Attorney General in Premier Ferguson's cabinet in a public address in Kingston, Ont. Hon. Mr. Nickle said:

"It does not seem to be known to people generally that Magistrate Murphy and Premier Ferguson are cousins. I do not say of a certainty that they are blood cousins, but they call each other cousin and they call each other by their first names.

"Magistrate Murphy's name, before her marriage, was Ferguson. She is a sister of Harcourt Ferguson, who is solicitor for and a director of Gooderham and Worts. I also am of the opinion that if you search the register of shareholders of O'Keefe's Brewery you will find that the family holds a considerable amount of stock in that concern.

"I do not know that these things have anything to do with the opinions expressed by Magistrate Murphy," commented Mr. Nickle, "but there they are."

There then are the facts. What do you think of them? When the local Conservative organization quotes Magistrate Murphy's letter why do they neglect to let the public know her close connection with important financial interests in the liquor business? But of course that would never do.

DR. McQUEEN AND MAGISTRATE MURPHY'S LETTER

But here is some additional light on Magistrate Murphy's letter. This is what Rev. D. G. McQueen, D.D., ex-Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, and for some 40 years a resident of Edmonton, says about it in a recent telegram:

Edmonton, Nov. 9, 1926.

"Magistrate Murphy's reported statement is misleading. It does not cover all the facts. Conditions are worse than during prohibition. Beer parlours in many ways are more demoralizing than the bar."

(Signed) D. G. McQueen.

MORE FACTS COMING

Watch the next few issues of The Bulletin. On Saturday we will prove to you how the liquor interests are pouring out tens of thousands of dollars to discredit the O.T.A. in just such ways as providing the money to pay for the lavish advertising the Central Provincial organization is running in papers all over the province, including the big Toronto papers and the Peterborough Examiner. Remember this when you read their advertisements. Ask yourself who pays most of these bills.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S BIG MEETING

Premier Ferguson has very little use for Mrs. Gordon Wright of London Ont. She knows too much about his policies and the failure of Government "Control" (?) where ever it has been tried. She faced him recently on the platform in his own constituency. She is a brilliant speaker.

Friday (tomorrow) night Mrs. Wright will address a monster mass meeting in the Grand Opera House. If you have any friends or neighbors who are not just sure how they should vote, bring them out tomorrow night. Incidentally, Mrs. Wright will answer Mrs. Howard Fallis.

INTRODUCING MRS. WRIGHT

The Peterborough Prohibition Union pays a doubtful tribute to the recruiting record made by this city in the World War when it brings here as an advisor in the issue that is to be decided next Wednesday a woman whose chief claim to fame is that she is a sister of Hon. Newton W. Rowell, and that she endeavored to prevent Canadian soldiers overseas from being supplied with tobacco and cigarettes.

Mrs. Gordon Wright, whose voice is to be heard here tomorrow night on behalf of the O.T.A. is the woman who, as President of the W.C.T.U., at the Dominion Convention of that body, June, 1918, deplored the fact that so many women in Canada still sent cigarettes and tobacco overseas for the soldiers.

"When will the women of Canada realize," asked this Champion of the O.T.A., "the destruction they are bringing the soldiers by sending them cigarettes. Too long has our government been inert in regard to this practice."

The people of Peterborough, proud in the knowledge that their city's enlistment in proportion to population was unsurpassed in the Dominion, want no advice as to how to vote on this or any other question from a woman whose tolerance, knowledge of conditions and breadth of mind can be judged by this attempt to take away the solace of tobacco from the soldiers who were facing death every hour and suffering untold hardship in defence of her and every other woman in this country of ours.

EXPOSED LEGS USED TO COLD

American Physician Believes Women Are Warmly Dressed.

BODIES WARM.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (United Press).—Winter winds, blowing on legs exposed from the knees down from Fashion's decree, do not chill American women, as the legs become accustomed to the cold.

This is the view of Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon-general of the United States. He believes as a general rule women are dressed warmer this winter than before, despite abbreviated skirts.

"Americans are wrapped up in fur coats, tightly tucked around their necks; from the knees down there is little covering, but that part of the person becomes accustomed to the temperatures, just as the face and hands do," Dr. Cumming said. "Women very seldom complain of being cold, so I judge that health and will power have a lot to do with it. There is very little warmth in silk stockings, but the Scotchman who wears kilts, with bare knees, shows conclusively that the lower limbs become accustomed to exposure at low temperatures."

7 out of 10 doctors said laxatives are harmful

IN a recent coast-to-coast investigation we asked doctors the plain question: "Do you consider cathartics and laxatives harmful?"

64.24% answered unqualifiedly "Yes." 8% more said "Yes, if taken repeatedly." Laxatives make the bowels weak by doing their work for them. If expulsion of waste matter is forced by pills or other drugs, the bowel muscles soon become powerless to do their work without help. In other words, laxatives bring on the laxative habit.

Doctors Advise Nujol

Nine doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons: 1. Nujol is not habit-forming; 2. A more natural method; 3. A lubricant is better than a laxative; 4. Does not gripe; 5. Is not irritating; and 6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Unlike Laxatives

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to frantically expel the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that pills and potions contain.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine. Its action is mechanical. It merely softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and lubricates the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given Remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is gentle in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it!

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today. Doctors advise it for constipation, whether chronic or temporary. Avoid substitutes.

MISSIONARY GIVES ADDRESS ON CHINA

Rev. G. Simmons Tells of His Work—Campbellford News.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 25.—The ladies of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ church held their meeting in the Parish Hall on Wednesday afternoon Rev. G. Simmons, returned missionary on furlough from Honan, China, being the speaker for the afternoon. Many ladies of the different societies of town took advantage of this opportunity to hear the splendid accoun of the work done in China. The president, Mrs. Archer, in a few brief words introduced the speaker, after which Mr. Simmons began his talk. He illustrated his talk by lantern slides, which proved very interesting.

Interesting views were shown of the trip inland, from the international city of Shanghai with its improved streets and modern hotels, churches, etc., and the native city of Shanghai typical of old China. Leaving Shanghai for Hankow, then to Nankin, old capital of China. Near Hankow stands the Orphan Island, at the top of which is a Buddhist monastery.

Pictures were then shown of the school of which Mr. Simmons has been principal for eleven years, boys in class costume, and the dormitories for boys. A picture taken in 1922 shows the improved school and boys who came from the wealthier homes of Honan. A picture of St. Mary's Hall for girls was shown to which the Woman's Auxiliary contributes its aid.

A splendid picture of the church was shown which was taken at Christmas time 1922 and of Bishop White of the Diocese. The hospital shown was founded and paid for by the congregation of St. Paul's church, Toronto.

The symbol of the old wall around China for 1500 miles was built to keep out the rest of the world. The symbol of new China has the impact of the occident in giving uniform soldiers, which Marshal Fung has given to China as head of the vast army.

Mr. Simmons speaks of being well treated by all Chinese, for a missionary bring to the people of China a message of love, "Do unto others, as you would have others do unto you."

Mrs. F. De F. Free sang a solo after which Miss E. Bedford moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Simmons for his excellent address, which was seconded by Miss Maynard.

The meeting closed with a hymn.

R.E.C. Meeting.

The County Council of the Ontario Religious Educational Council of East Northumberland was held on Wednesday, November 17, in the United church, Campbellford. The folowing programme was given:

Morning session, 10.30 a.m.

Devotional period—Rev. Wesley Elliott.

Welcome—Mr. G. A. Kingston.

Reply—Mr. C. F. Wessels.

Report of the county officers.

Round Table Conference—Rev. Manson Doyle, who is the young people's leader and who led the discussion of the groups in the convention.

Retiring president's remarks.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—C. F. Wessels, Wooler.

1st Vice-President—H. Reynolds, Morganston.

Secretary-Treasurer—Rev. H. B. Neal, Wooler.

Superintendent Children's Work—Miss S. A. Glover, Colborne.

Superintendent Girl's Work—Miss Helen Brand Brighton.

Superintendent Boys' work — Member elect for East Northumberland.

Superintendent Young People's work—Charles D. Daniel, Campbellford.

Superintendent Home Department—S. A. Clark, Morganston.

Superintendent Teacher Training —Miss Mary Mitchell, Colborne.

Superintendent Missionary—Mrs. S. L. Terrill, Wooler.

Superintendent Temperance— B. H. Becker, Brighton.

By motion these were elected and with the various denominational representatives in the county constitute the executive.

The next on the programme was Echoes from Peterboro, after which they adjourned for lunch.

Afternoon session.

Devotional—Rev. M. Forde.

Training school in the country.

Boys' Work Conference.

Temperance situation — B. H. Becker.

The following resolution was moved by G. H. Reynolds, Morganston and seconded by Mrs. W. H. Watters of Smithfield and carried unanimously:

"That in the opinion of this East Northumberland County Council of Sunday School workers assembled this day at St. John's church, Campbellford. It is most lamentable that the Premier of the premier Province of Canada should so stultify himself as to be identified with liquor interests of the country, and that he should use the support of the intelligent electorate of Ontario in the matter. We regret exceedingly that he cast such aspersions as he has upon the youth of our province; we deprecate strongly, the efforts of the Premier to open the floodgates of intemperance, to the young people, in direct conflict with the teachings of the Sunday schools, and all other agencies for the uplift of the populace. We pledge ourselves to support the principles of righteousness and temperance, and to use every effort at our disposal, to bring about the desired result in opposition to his platform which we believe, will result in the undoing of the work of years on our part, in the schools and churches of our province."

A provisional county boys work board was organized as follows:

County Boys' work superintendent—Member elect for East Northumberland.

The denomination representatives with an advising personal of three —Charles D. Daniel of Campbellford, Clark Lawson of Smithfield, James E. Beckel of Castleton.

This board already plans to hold a county convention of boys' workers at Wooler on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, December 3, 4 and 5. C. W. Plewman of Toronto will lead the convention. The closing address was given by Rev. Manson Doyle.

There were forty township and county Sunday school officers present.

Boys' Election.

The election of a representative for East Northumberland in the 6th Older Boys' Parliament will take place Saturday, November 27 Rev. Charles D. Daniel, Campbellford, is the returning officer, and at the close of nominations November 6 there were three candidates in the field, Will Brown, Brighton; Stuart Carr, Campbellford; Charles McColl, Wooller.

The lists closed November 16 and total about six hundred names of boys eligible to vote.

CARETAKER'S WORK PRAISED BY BOARD

Havelock Trustees Discuss Routine Business at Meeting.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 25.—The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Wednesday evening with the following members present: Trustees J. Moore, H. W. Roche, Chairman Dr. A. S. Thompson Secretary E. Fennell.

The truant officer reported in connection with his work that there was one case where he had permitted a boy to remain at home for the purpose of work.

A report was received from the caretaker that the work of the school was well up to standard in his department. The work in this department has been so well done that the school is to be congratulated on the efficiency of the caretaker. Principal Hildred also reported that the school was progressing as favorably as could be expected.

Accounts: A. J. Peeling, $80.63; A. J. Peeling, $1.50; J. A. C. Allen, $12.50; James Doughty, $57.13; A. C. Denike, $41.43; Moore Hardware Co., $20.40. Total, $213.59.

Moved by Trustees Roche and Moore, that above listed accounts be paid by treasurer if found correct. Carried.

Dr. Thompson drew attention to the fact that the new fence, between he school playground and W. J. Fraser's property, running north and south, appears to be built about twenty-four inches in on the school property at the south end. The matter was left over for the next meeting.

Mr. L. Hagerman addressed the Board regarding the line fence, suggesting that should the fence be moved a correct line should be established. Mr. Hagerman further suggested that the practice of fire drill be carried on in the school. This the Board agreed with and asked Principal Hildred to have the regulation enforced.

Caretaker Buchanan was instructed to test the fire extinguishers and refill if found deficient.

On motion by Trustes Roche and Moore the caretaker was instructed to place storm windows on the second story east rooms.

For Those Who Seek the Best

In the C-6 series, DeForest, & Crosley present notable refinements in a circuit already tried, tested and accepted as Canada's outstanding radio.

One hand, one dial, one control—the goal towards which radio manufacturers have been striving — is now perfected in the C-6 models. Other new features which make these sets amazing in their performance are: individual shielding of each amplification stage, shutting out interference and providing a remarkable degree of selectivity; a reserve power giving ample volume even on far away programs; a superb quality of tone made possible through the new D-C super transformer.

In performance and appearance, these models satisfy those who expect the best; in price, they sustain the DeForest & Crosley reputation of being able to give most radio per dollar.

COUNTY SHOULD HELP.

It is to be hoped that the members of the County Council will give sympathetic consideration to the request of the Red Cross Society for a grant of $100 toward the cost of the outpost hospital at Apsley, which will involve a total erection expenditure of $1,200

As The Examiner has already pointed out, there is a great need in the northern part of Peterborough County for such a hospital

The Red Cross outposts have been of the greatest assistance to people in other districts where the conditions are similar, and the work done at these points is ample jusification for asking assistance from the County Council to help supply Apsley district with a similar service.

There is no doubt of the need, there is no doubt of the value of the proposed hospital, and there should be no doubt as to the heartiness of the support given by the county legislators to the proposal.

A LIVE ORGANZIATION.

The annual dinner of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, featured by the presence of men who stand high in their profession, scored the success that is expected of gatherings held under such auspices.

The Engineers have the reputation of being excellent hosts, and their programmes are always distinctly worth while.

Incidentally in connection with its series of lectures ,which brings to Peterborough many distinguished speakers, the Institute has shown a splendid spirit in giving the public a chance to hear these addresses.

As a result of the hospitality of the local Engineers it has been made possible for many Peterborough citizens to gain the benefit of lectures on many subjects of general interest, delivered by men well qualified to speak on such subjects.

One of the livest, most progressive organizations in Peterborough is the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

A FAITHFUL SERVANT.

A most faithful public servant is being lost to the municipal service in the resignation of F. H. Miller, City Relief Officer.

For nearly 30 years—he was first appointed in January 1897—Mr. Miller has supervised the administration of relief by the municipality; and no department has been more economically or efficiently looked after.

It is a position which calls for judgment and the ability to read human nature and these qualities have been consistently displayed by the Relief Office during his long term of office.

In no department is there more danger of waste than in the relief department, where an official unable to distinguish the real case of need from the fraudulent application would speedily cost the municipality a pretty sum.

Mr. Miller's policy has been to make sure that no genuine case went unrelieved and that no impostor dipped into the public funds, and over a term of 30 years he has achieved a fine record along these lines.

He retires now with the satisfaction of knowing that he has discharged his responsible duties efficiently and contributed to the betterment of those in need.

THE ST. LAWRENCE SCHEME.

The plan suggested by the joint engineering board of the United States and Canada, for the development of the St Lawrence for power and navigation purposes, is large enough to take away the average man's breath.

Put in skeleton from the suggestion of the Board involves the development of about two and one half million horse power by the harnessing of the St. Lawrence and the improvement of navigation facilities that would make the head of the Great Lakes accessible to the commerce of the world.

The estimated cost of the whole undertaking is set out as approximately five hundred and twenty million dollars of which two hundred and seventy-five million dollars is the cost of the navigation project.

As an engineering feat the proposed scheme would rank, according to an authority, as second only to the Panama Canal

Involved in the two projects would be the raising of the level of the water of Lake Ontario, submerging many thousands of acres of land and, if the American plan were followed, bringing some towns on the Canadian side a dozen feet below the new lake level, making it necessary to protect them from inundation by dykes.

THE FIVE-DAY WEEK.

(From the Montreal Daily Star)

When Henry Ford announced the adoption of a five-day working week on a six-day wage basis there were scoffers who said that the plan was the dream of an altruist while the more cynical hinted that it was good advertising for the Ford Company. In the matter of wages and hours of labor, Mr. Ford has never posed as a philanthropist and he made it quite clear when his plan was announced that the success of his proposal rested upon the ability of the workers to cram six days of labor into five. A statement now issued by Mr. Edsel Ford shows some remarkable results after less than two months' working of the new plan. According to the figures he published, about one-third of the employees are now receiving approximately six days' pay for five days' work, another third are getting more than the five-day aggregate but less than the six-day schedule, while yet a third are receiving little more than their five days' pay for five days' work.

This is a practical application of the piece work principle of employment under which the energetic and skilled craftsman receives pay in proportion to his work, while the lazy, the unskilled and the "ca canny" are not carried on the payroll on the backs of their fellow workers.

It means that more than 30,000 workers in the Ford factory have so increased production that they are able to earn a week's wages by working only five days. Mr. Ford loses nothing by the scheme and the men have an added day of leisure. Whether they will be able to enjoy the added hours after the harder work at tasks which have always been onerous is something that time will determine. To give men an extra day, but to leave them so physically fatigued that there are unable to enjoy the holiday would be a mockery

Moreover, if the five-day week is to prevail men must learn how to use their leisure. To learn to play is quite as intricate a study as to learn to work.

THE MAGNA CHARTA OF AN EMPIRE.

(From the Detroit Free Press)

The British Imperial Conference now drawing to a close will be down in history as one of epochal import. Its outstanding achievement is the report of the committee of premiers refining "the position and mutual relations of the group of self-governing communities" which constitute King George's far-flung realm. We have here, in effect, the magna charta of an empire.

The charter, first of its kind ever formulated, outlines the framework of a new partnership of nations. In the words of the report, Great Britain and the dominion "are autonomous communities within the British empire, equal in status, and in no way subordinate one to the other in any aspect, though united by a common allegiance to the crown and freely associated as members of the British commonwealth of nations."

Under the proposed arrangement, "every self-governing member of the empire is . . . master of its destiny. In fact, if not always in form, it is subject to no compulsion whatever." Each of the members, while left unhampered to work out its own salvation, even to the extent of directing its diplomatic relations with governments not in the empire, undertakes to colloborate with Britain and the other commonwealths in matters of foreign policy and economic affecting their mutual or common interests.

Not among the least significant features of the new structure of empire envisaged by the report is the part to be assigned to the crown. More than ever, it seems, the throne is to serve as an active link of imperial unity, of which it has hitherto been a valuable symbol. In some essential respects, the king of England is indeed to be the decisive if not the sole, factor of cohesion, with the overseas dominions on a footing of equality under him in all of their relations with the British government.

The new status of the crown is evidence of the practical worth placed on it by the British democracies, even now that they are crossing the threshold to complete nationhood. The delicate question naturally arises as to how the king's primary character as constitutional monarch of Great Britain can be separated from his new rule as a symbolic link between his immediate dominion and nations which are not only fully autonomous but also fully equal with Britain.

The report appears to assume that no serious difficulty will be encountered in this regard, undoubtedly because, after all, it will be necessary for the burdens of initiative, leadership and responsibility to remain on Britain's shoulders. The more scattered the empire the greater the need for some measure of central guidance, and this need the other commonwealths realize.

The report inaugurates one of the most interesting experiments in imperial government that the world has ever witnessed. The novelty lies not so much in placing one common crown over a number of nations. This has been tried many times in the past. In the recent cases of Norway and Sweden, of Russia and Poland, for example, the scheme ended with separation at the first opportunity.

The British plan is remarkable for the degree in which force is ruled out as an auxiliary guarantee of preserving union.

The greatest existing empire is, according to the report, to repose on positive, no negative, ideals. Free institutions are to be its life-blood; free co-operation its instrument. Peace and progress are to be among its common ends. Mutual understanding of common interests, moral and material, should prove a potent argument for permanent union.

Much wisdom and moderation will be required to make the experiment a success. But a good augury is to be found precisely in the restraint and spirit of accommodation with which both British and dominion statesmen conducted the negotiations while the ideal was being brought to fruition.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—Active buying simultaneous with Argentine crop damage reports and with unexpected firmness of the Liverpool market carried wheat values upward here yesterday. Chicago closing prices on wheat were firm, 7-8 to 1 5-8c net higher; corn 1-2 to 5-8c up; oats at 1-4 to 3-8 and 1-2c gain, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 25c.

Likelihood of rain or snow throughout the corn belt gave firmness to the corn market and also to oats.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 25 (Canadian Press) — The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday continued dull. In the market for coarse grains, some business was done in corn, but the trade in oats was extremely dull.

A moderate amount of business was done in spring wheat flour for both domestic and export account and prices were steady. Prices for winter wheat grades were firmly maintained under a quiet demand.

A fair amount of business was transacted in millfeed and values were firm. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was active and steady.

The cheese market was without any new feature to note, business being quiet and prices unchanged. The receipts were 1,474 boxes.

The trade in butter continued fairly active and prices ruled steady. The receipts were 466 packages

Prices for all grades of fresh and storage eggs were well maintained under a continued good demand from all sources. The receipts were 4,192 cases.

There was a fair demand for beans and values were steady.

Car lots of choice white hand-picked were quoted at $2.75 per bushel, and smaller quantities at $3.00 per bushel.

The potato market was active and firm. Sales of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were made at $1.80 per bag.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.83 7-16.

Sterling cables $4.84.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

All communications on political questions must bear the signature of the writer for publication and must be received before 1 p.m. on the day before publication is desired.

WHAT IS YOUR OBJECTIVE?

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Would like to say to those who are called "The Drys" that Prohibition in the form of the O.T.A. came to Ontario, because you fought for it. It came as the result of a campaign reaching back many decades.

You have dreamed of a dry Ontario, free from political corruption, and social debauchery of the liquor trade. You have dreamed of an Ontario and a Dominion, where children would be safe from the menace of the saloon, and alcholic habits, a land in which earnings of the people would be devoted to the comforts and improvement of family life, a people free from the shackles of poverty, crime, and insanity, which are the natural sequences of alcholic indulgence.

You have shaped the laws of the Province, to give at least lip service to this dream. Its substance, in a large measure still lies in the future. If you will study the course of history, you will find that no dreams are entirely achieved. You will find that liberties are never won, that democracy is never attained, that no ideal is ever so secure that its opponents can be ignored and its possession ranked as a permanent asset. The war for liberty, democracy, and social ideals is a continuous war. It is a war in which many victories may be won, but a war in which there can be no final victory. Triumph perches on the banners of the leaders of this war, only so long as they remain on the firing line. Defeat is the portion of those who lay down their arms to rest.

In securing the O.T.A. "the dry" forces secured only a strategic point from which your fight for a dry nation might be advantageously continued. You will lose ground, if you refuse to recognize and to use such weapons as you possess, against the main object of your attack. The citadel you set out to storm was the political power of the liquor trade and the open sale of alcohol. Keep this objective in mind.

When you find the government allying themselves closely with the liquor trade in a partnership of manufacturing and vending, then you can be assured that there can be but one result—both will be out to increase sales, to make money. History will repeat itself, and our last state will be worse than the first. "Better have a trickle than a full flood." The trickle can be stopped bu the flood can't be controlled.

Don't waste your time on petty side issue, and abortive attacks, which distract the people's minds from the main objective. Get out and use your influence and your vote to stop this alliance, and this open sale.

The main claim for Government Sale and so called "Government Control" is the elimination of the "bootlegger", and the lessening of drink evils. All the evidence to date, in places where Government Sale and Control has been tried long enough to establish the facts is that the "bootlegger" is not done away with but in some respects his field has been made easier and more secure; that crime has not lessened but rather has increased enormously; that liquor consumption has increased as the facilities to get it have been made easier; the breweries and the distilleries have increased in numbers, and the share values of this stock have increased enormously and continuously.

This money factor; taken away from the channels of legitimate trade, extracted from a public that gets little value in return; is an economic waste second to none, hurting every line of enterprise by its diversion of cash, its unfitting of the individual to be and to do his best, besides the power it gives to this trade, which has, is, and can be exerted to subvert public opinion ,and to hold politicians and government executives within their will and to their purposes and plans.

To the so-called "Wets" let me say you can join Premier Ferguson in his plan for Government Control and Government Sale, if you believe it best. That is your right as members of our representative democracy. Beware, however, lest in any way you wage your battle along lines tending to destroy the rules of law and order under which your property, and lives are protected, and you yourselves are given a free hand to propose such changes as you desire to make.

If the principles of personal liberty and individual independence, which you have rediscovered since the passage of the O.T.A. are valid principles if they are inconsistent with the ideals for which the "drys" fought, you have an opportunity to convince the people of the soundness of your views.

If you believe that defying a democratic majority mandate of the people is true democracy; if you think that the avowed and open flaunting of a law on the statute books by any one, either as buyer or seller in the circle of the bootlegging business, is righteous; then this appeal to you will be fruitless—but as man to man, working and striving for the best in our nation's life, and in each individual life, I do not believe that you can face this situation frankly, and not support the candidature of G. A. Gillespie, for he stands for law, freedom from liquor alliances, and the suppression and restriction of evils that affect our social life; for after all, the only liberty or freedom that is worth having, is the liberty and the freedom to do right and to help others to do the same by removing temptation, even if it entails personal sacrifice—service above self.

Premier Ferguson proposes educational enlightment in the Public schools, on the evils and dangers of alcohol, which is good and receives the endorsement of every one that is striving for the best in life but what will the children think of a Government, controlled by their mothers and fathers, teaching these truths in school, and then offering and putting the temptation in their way on our main streets, through Government Stores, run by the very Government that warns them of its dangers? Will they not think them arrant humbugs and hypocrites, especially when told that they value the money revenue above human betterment? If you want your children to believe in you, have faith in their country, and build up a strong integrity of honest purpose. You must live this, or they will not.

The only way out from under the catastrophes of the two greatest evils that menace us today—war among nations, and the liquor traffic—is the quickening of the mind, and the enlarging of the heart, and the moral effort which can fling back into the jungle where it belongs, methods and habits that may have been fitted for man when he lived in the jungle, when he was an actual individualist but which is absolutely incompatible with his civilization, and his science, and his education, and his religion, today.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for kindly giving me this space, I remain,

Yours very truly,
THOS. BARRIE.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE NAME DAVID

By Dr. Frank Crane.

Some names carry a singular appeal and the flavor of character in their very sound.

A skilled short-story writer once opined that the best plot in the world would be spoiled by giving the characters names that didn't fit.

The name "John" suggests steady dependability.

The name "Mary" suggests sweet innocence.

You can't have a soulless vampire named "Mary," nor a suave villain name "John." Those roles are reserved for the "Carmens" and the "Desmonds."

This was his dictum.

Whether this holds true or not, it is certain that different names suggest certain characteristics to certain people.

To me, the name "David" always suggests the triumverate of sincerity, simplicity, kindness.

And, as I grow older, few things seem of greater worth than these three.

"Just David" is one of the most appealing novel titles that I can remember.

It brings to mind all the quiet, unassuming, straightforward men of the earth—the men you turn to in time of trouble.

I sometimes think that a man named "David" should feel a sense of "noblesse oblige" to embody the connotations of the word.

There is quiet music in the name and the overtones of unassuming and lofty nobility whisper through its syllables.

A friend of mine maintains that it is ridiculous to name babies at birth.

People ought to wait until they grow up and demonstrate what they are like before they receive a name.

Then they could be given a name that would really fit them.

One of my highest ambitions, which I cherish in moments of intense sincerity, is under such a plan, to embody qualities that would make me worthy to be called David.

ENGAGEMENT RUMOR EXCITES LINDSAY

Miss Aileen Hughes Reported Betrothed To Boston Man.

LINDSAY, Nov. 25. — Society circles in Lindsay are all agog over the reported engagement of Miss Aileen Hughes, daughter of the late Sir Sam Hughes and Lady Hughes, of Lindsay, to Mr. James Freeman Clark, a prominent resident of Boston. It is understood the engagement is the outcome of Miss Hughes' romantic trip to Africa, where she and Mr. Clarke were members of a hunting party which penetrated the jungles, Miss Hughes being successful in bagging a lion and other animals.

Miss Hughes has just returned from a hunting trip in Haliburton County, in company with a number of other young people, and where she was successful in bagging a deer. She is an expert shot, and the beautiful family lodge at Eagle Lake, Haliburton, has been the scene of many gatherings at which Miss Hughes has been the delightful host.

Recently Miss Hughes accompanied her mother on a trip to the Bahamas, but at present she is in Lindsay.

Mr. James Freeman Clarke is expected to arrive in Lindsay from Boston on Saturday.

LEONID KRASSIN SOVIET EMBASSY DIES IN LONDON

Was Russian Charge D'Affaires in the British Capital.

IMPROVED RELATIONS.

Commanded Respect and Confidence of British Financial World.

LONDON, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press). — Leonid Krassin, Soviet Charge d'Affairs in London, died yesterday morning.

Friends who saw Krassin a few days ago were shocked at his death. He appeared in good spirits and seemed to be shaking off the pernicious anemia from which he had long suffered.

The death of M. Krassin will not interrupt any important negotiations with Great Britain. Only last week the Charge visited the Foreign Office, continuing his efforts to solve the problem of Bolshevik propaganda which Sir Austen Chamberlain told the House of Commons was keeping Great Britain and Soviet Russia apart. Sir Austen added that he had been informed by the Charge that the Soviet Government would welcome better relations with Great Britain and that he had replied that Moscow first must cease Communist propaganda against the British Empire.

Had Britain's Confidence.

At the Foreign Office in Downing Street yesterday tribute was paid to M. Krassin as a sensible and responsible diplomat who, if he had not died, undoubtedly would have brought about improved relations

RAIDERS ATTACK IRISH BARRACKS

Twelve Men Exchanged Shots With Guards—Seize Records.

DUBLIN, Nov. 25 (United Press) —Twelve armed raiders attacked Knockanore civic guard barracks yesterday, seized the guard records and fled, after an exchange of shots. None was reported injured.

Knockanore barracks is in an isolated mountainous district in the west of County Waterford.

Similar attacks have taken place frequently during the past ten days. During earlier attacks there were several casualties, among them a police sergeant, who was shot dead. Saturday the Free State Government proclaimed a state of emergency to exist.

WANT COUSIN AS WITNESS

Defense Makes Efforts To Destroy Mrs. Jane Gibson's Story.

LAWYERS CLASH.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Clouds of argument hanging over the Hall-Mills case during the afternoon yesterday came to a head just before adjournment, and sent the trial into eclipse over Thanksgiving in a legal storm.

Efforts by the defence to use Henry De La Bruyrere Carpender as a witness to discredit Mrs. Jane Gibson's story, told as a State witness, precipitated a clash of lawyers that was not decided when court suspended over the holiday.

Carpender, a New York broker, is a cousin of the three defendants on trial, under indictment with them on a charge of murdering Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills. He is awaiting a separate trial.

A plan to place in the record and before the jury his statement that he was not on Phillips' farm or near De Russey's land on the night of September 14, 1922, when Mrs. Mills and the Rev. Edward W. Hall were slain, drew prompt and emphatic protest from the State.

Justice Charles W. Parker, presiding, took the problem of the competence of the testimony away with him, a decision being expected on Friday, when court re-convenes.

The State's objection was based on the fact that the witness is not a defendant in the present trial, although under indictment with the other defendants, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain clergyman, and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens. Another point stressed by the State was that Mrs Gibson did not place Carpender at the scene in her direct testimony, but under cross-examination.

Insistence by the defence that the testimony is competent included a claim that the fact that Henry Carpender has been identified by a State witness as "one of the men" at the scene of the double killing left an opportunity for him to show a divergence in the story by his testimony.

The jury was sent from the room during the heated discussion of the lawyers. Carpender had answered but a few questions which his examination was suspended to give the lawyers the floor. He had said that he was not at the murder scene, as stated by Mrs. Gibson, and had not been in the home of his cousin, Mrs. Hall, for several months prior to the death of her husband.

The defence sent 22 witnesses to the stand during the day, exclusive of Willie Stevens, who began testifying Tuesday and completed his testimony in seven minutes yesterday.

All of the defence witnesses yesterday were used to attack testimony of the State, efforts being made to show discrepancies in the stories told on the witness stand by a score of the witnesses put forward by the prosecution.

CHINESE PIRATES LOOT STEAMER

Posing as Passengers Attack and Kill Several of Crew.

HONG KONG, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press.) — Chinese pirates have murdered and looted aboard another passenger vessel in Chinese waters. Twelve of them, posing as passengers, on the steamer Waihoi, bound from Kongmoon for Yuengkong, attacked the ship's officers and Chinese soldier guards on Nov. 11, killed a number of them, ran the vessel ashore and robbed the passengers.

On the Waihoi were Father W. A. Fletcher of the Mary Knoll mission, and seven Canadian nuns. They were not only robbed of their personal possessions, but spent two and a half days cooped up in a narorw stateroom. Even the shoes worn by the priest and the sisters were taken. They were otherwise brutally treated and on their return to Kongmoon it was found that four of the sisters were in a serious condition.

After the Waihoi was abandoned by the original gang of pirates, other pirates boarded the vessels, leaving it a virtual wreck, but giving no aid or assistance to the passengers who had been made prisoners. Eventually the pirates fled to the hills, taking all the food and medical supplies with them.

ONE DOWN OTHER LOST

Two American Planes Attempting Non-Stop Flight To Canal Zone.

CRUISER ON HUNT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press) — With one of the navy's two PN-10 seaplanes, attempting a 2,060 mile non-stop flight from Hampton Roads Va., to Colon, C.Z., forced down on the Isle of Pines with an exhausted fuel supply, naval officials waited hopefully last night for word of the other, last reported 150 miles south of the Isle.

The cruiser Cincinnati, guard ship between the Isle of Pines and Old Providence Island, over which the No. 1 plane, commanded by Lt. B. J. Connell, should have passed around 11 a.m. yesterday reported she was proceeding north from her station to search for the PN-10 No. 1.

The last message radioed from Connell's plane, which was forwarded to navy headquarters here, about 8:45 a.m., said she was travelling at 76 knots, 150 nautical miles south of the Isle of Pines. Connell said the temperature of the oil in his starboard engine had mounted. Aviation pilots on duty here expressed some concern over this saying it was possible for engine trouble to develop from a defective oil feed.

At the rate maintained by the PN-10 No. 1 to her last reported position, 1,174 nautical miles from Hampton Roads, it was calculated by naval officials here that she should arrive at Colon around 4 p.m.

PASTOR ADMITS HOLD-UP FRAMED

Confesses When Bloodhound Leads To Home of Farmer.

TIED BY WIFE.

COLLINSVILLE, Ala., November 24. — United Press. — The Rev. I. Hugh Guyton confessed in a signed statement yesterday that he and his wife had "framed" a hold-up in which he was robbed of $97 and left lying tied beside a lonely road. He said they had perpetrated the "prank" because they were broke.

Unfortunately after the pastor had been "found tied" beside the road, blood hounds, following a scent to the home of J. C. Howard, a wealthy farmer, Howard was arrested in connection with the "hold-up."

Friends of Howard, refusing to believe that he had any part in the robbery, hired a detective. The investigation resulted in to-day's rather lengthy confession by the pastor. He said his wife had tied him up but that they had no idea that their little "prank" would result in the arrest of Howard.

IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN QUALITY OF CHEESE MADE IN THE DISTRICT; NORTHUMBERLAND MAKERS MEET

Chief Dairy Instructor and District Grader Are Among Speakers.

MUCH PROGRESS.

Alfred Merrill Nominated as Director—Attend - ance Large.

(Examiner Special Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, November 25. —Substantial improvement in the quality of cheese from this district, and county, was reported at the annual meeting of the dairymen of Northumberland here yesterday. Testimony to this progress was given by G. G. Publow, one of the chief instructors of Ontario, J. L. Irwin of Campbellford, who is a grader at Belleville ,and by J. A. Murray, inspector. Statistics quoted yesterday showed that the dairy industry is steadily moving upward to higher levels of merit, and while this encouraging progress was warmly commended by the speakers, they touched common ground in their appeals for still better quality. And they dealt at length upon phases of the industry that admit of immediate improvement.

Mr. Alfred Merrill presided with quite a large attendance of milk producers and cheesemakers, including George Wheatley, whose Woodland factory in Seymour township carried off first prize in the Farmers' Advocate competition for factories showing the greatest improvement to their premises. Mr. Merrill was nominated as director from the county to the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's board —he was the choice of the meeting in a contest with Mr. Alex. Hume, who moved that Mr. Merrill's election be made unanimous.

The dairymen in a resolution by Mr. Hume and seconded by Thomas Dilworth, expressed it approval of the proposed legislation to require certificates of ability from cheese - makers.

The Graders' Work.

Mr. Irwin in his report pointed out that were were graded at Belleville, Picton, Peterboro and Lindsay, up to Nov. 13 this year 139,805 boxes of cheese, of which 94.7 per cent. were specials and firsts, 7252 boxes No. 2, or 5.18 per cent., 992 boxes 3rd grade, or .7 per cent, and 35 boxes of no grade, or .5 per cent.

The evidence of improvement is shown by the following summary of grading:

1923, special and first, 86.32 per cent.

1924, special and first, 86.79 per cent.

1925, special and first, 94.10 per cent.

1926, special and first, 94.7 per cent.

This year's percentage is not for the full 12 months as are the others.

The figures fo. the whole of Ontario are as follows:

In 1923 there were 909,227 boxes, with 83.9 per cent. special and first.

In 1924, there were 1,096,326 boxes with 89.26 per cent. special and first.

In 1925 there were 1,289,540 boxes with 91.4 per cent. special and first.

And for 1926 the total number of boxes will be about the same as 1925, with at least 92 per cent., or 92.5 per cent. special and first.

"So you see," Mr. Irwin said, "we are gradually making progress, and while it may be that our record for an increased percentage of first grade will be slower from now on, yet there is no reason why we cannot improve and finally reach a standard of 95 per cent."

Undergrade Cheese

You will notice that 8 044 boxes were mentioned as being under first grade. I have classified these as follows: mechanical defects such as weak, open, gassy, poor finish, too high for boxes, combined with wrong flavors, 3702 boxes; defective flavor alone, not including those that were rancid 2,173 boxes; 1,056 boxes rancid. Defects in color alone 905 boxes, turnipy 208 boxes. These were 3,437 boxes lower than first grade for flavors alone and 4,607 boxes that were wrong mechanically."

Mr. Irwin said that rancid cheese was on the increase each year due to bad factory conditions, unclean factories, contaminated wells, unclean milk cans and whey tanks.

"Turnipy cheese are a small item in our undergrades this year as the 208 boxes reported were possibly 60 per cent. of a hang-over from 1925, when turnips were so prominent. It is very pleasing to know that the dairymen in the old turnip section have responded so well, and they are to be congratulated in their efforts to improve their respective districts.

We now come to the matter of mechanical defect. This includes cheese that are weak open , gas holes, poor finish, cheese too high for boxes. Of this type of undergrades we had 4607 boxes and there should be none. This is one part of cheesemaking that is under control of the maker, and very little sympathy can be held out to the maker who is unfortunate enough to have a large number."

Mr. Irwin discussed each of the defects he had mentioned and suggested methods of preventing them. Cheese that were gassy and open should have had an hour or so longer before salt was added to the curd. Drastic action seemed the only way to correct the making of cheese too high for the boxes.

Use Best Rennet

"Some of our defects are possibly due to a poor quality of rennet. It is should be the best that is possible to obtain and fresh. Do not use color that has been held over. When you finish up this season, destroy what is left and remove the temptation to use it next year.

The chief grader, Mr. Burgess, has asked me to remind you of that old trouble we have been discussing for years, the shipping of green cheese. It is possibly not such a serious problem in Central Ontario as in other parts of Ontario but we stil have it, and in Central Ontario at Belleville, Picton, etc., on some 8,000 boxes the grading was deferred. I am advised that this season the grading has been deferred on over 70,000 boxes in Montreal, that in the last week in October 200 lots were deferred and the same the first week in November, so you can see the magnitude of the problem."

The firing of cheese in the colder weather, the proper marking of boxes and the finishing details were all dwelt upon by Mr. Irwin.

Last year we had at one time 1,022 patrons delivering milk to the 26 factories. This year we had 1,161 patrons at the 27 factories, part of the increase being due to Roseneath having again opened up under different managament, which factory had a very successful season.

At 26 factories I did the testing. Including the November test I have tested about 6877 composite samples along with a number of individual tests, about 666 more composite samples than last year. The great problem in the cheese industry, in my opinion, is the milk flavors, not that I would say that those of us who are making the cheese do not make any mistakes ,for we do sometimes run too far in one direction, too acidy, too sweet or too open. When these defects appear on a grading certificate the defect practically suggests its own cure; but when a grading certificate says rancid, fruity, off or not clean, then we have a problem, and possibly milk of a fair quality has been rejected along with bad in an endeavor to clean up the defect."

The thanks of the district should go to Mr. George Wheatley, of Woodland, who though handicapped by extensive improvements last year was this year able to put a factory in this district in first place against provincial competition, also Mr. Anderson of Trent Valley, who, hindered somewhat by location, had this place proof against adverse criticism. This was not done at the expense of their cheese grading, for I expect they will grade higher than last year.

We had a good deal of discussion on turnip feeding last year, and this class of second-grade cheese has been very materially reduced, and although we lost quite heavy in some places where we had hoped for great things, yet the grading of the district as a whole will show much better than last year if the undergrades have been nearly all reported.

I think none need fear for the future of the cheese business. Last year a set of circumstances favorable to this country forced prices up, while this year a set of unfavorable circumstances kept prices down. Possibly an average of the two would be close to actual value.

If I were to mention one defect which seemed to give more trouble than usual, I would say fruity flavor. However, it was usually checked before getting too general. A good way to start next spring would be for those of us engaged in manufacturing to take a drive out around Woodland, and those engaged in milk production should see and enquire about the equipment and practice of some patron whose milk has not been faulted this year, for there are some in every factory. Then go and do thou likewise."

Need Better Flavor.

Mr. Publow said that the outstanding complaint against our cheese was in regard to its flavor, some taint that results in them dropping below first grade. Mr. Publow explained how this defect might be caused, and said, "We can't make our product better than the raw material, and we must depend on the farmers to supply the milk in suitable condition. Vigilance by the milk producers and cheesemakers in the strictest cleanness of their utensils was prerequisite in the making of high-grade cheese, and farmers should be the most concerned about such factors because it is their industry and they directly profit from it. The man who makes one hundred per cent. cheese or gets near to it is well worth keeping. There is no excuse, Mr. Publow said, for a man dropping below 95 per cent. The proposed legislation is aimed at the indifferent patron and maker for the purpose of forcing them to measure up to the best. Application for certificates would be made annually and new chief makers would be expected to have attended the dairy school.

most immediate attention, being somewhat handicapped as a result of heavy truck damage during spring opening, but I presume, judging by the notice over the signature of the Deputy Minister of Highways in the papers, we will be backed up in future efforts to properly regulate such ruinous traffic during such periods.

You will have observed the speed and satisfactory work of the tractor grader now being used by the suburban area commission, and I am of the opinion if the power is satisfactory and the operator the same, it will greatly add to keeping good surfaces on the roads.

Expended to above date on construction of roads and culverts	$2,097.20
Expended to above date on maintenance, including truck ravages	18,712.62
Expended to above date on machinery, tools, interest and general	6,190.18
Total to said date	$27,000.00

The maintenance item includes truck damage repairs, which if such were regulated would leave more for construction.

Thanking all for their patience and assistance in such work.

Respectfully submitted,

M. E. Smithson, Chairman.

Committee on Roads and Bridges

As per authority of Council, the following bridges have been rebuilt this season, namely:

Douglas and Ford street bridge in Dummer;

Deyell's bridge in Otonabee;

Brown's and Pollock's bridges in Belmont; Apsley Bridge in Burleigh and Anstruther.

The cost of such bridges to date is as follows, but some accounts are not in yet, which will increase the cost to some extent, but it will not be very great:

Douglas Bridge	$3,913.9
Ford Street Bridge	603,68
Deyell's Bridge	1,019.03
Brown's Bridge	4,984.87
Pollock's Bridge	632.52
Apsley Bridge	1,005.78
Estimated unpaid	500.00
Government subsidy on Brown's and Douglas Bridges, 40 per cent	3,600.00
Net to County	$9,099.87

One mill rate provided $9,613.62.

Of course we have the Government to deal with, and it is to be hoped that they will respond this time (which I have reason to believe that they will).

With regard to maintenance of other bridges, I will not attempt to report on same, knowing that the respective reeves are more familiar and in a better position to report.

Notwithstanding a backward season, all work has been carried out in a satisfactory way and the different reeves are to be commended for the close and interested manner displayed in the discharging of the duties that devolved upon them.

Respectfully submitted,

F. Breckenridge, Chairman.

House of Refuge Report

The annual report for 1926 is not due until the first session of 1927, but having, with you authority, built a barn together with basement for roots and stock, I take this opportunity of reporting same to date, together with a short reference in general.

There has been paid out on superstructure to date $1,725.00, the same covering barn contract with lightning rods and hay fork outfit complete. For eavestroughing, painting and minor requirments $186.76. For basement, cow stanchions, horse stalls, etc, $1,452.14. There are some other accounts not in yet.

Considerable extra expenditure by way of stoves, linoleum, clothes and hospital bills had to be met.

The same responsibility repeats each year, namely: Some, as a result of advanced age and failing health requiring extra attention, thereby increasing the duties of those in charge.

The Board are always desirous of getting the sanction and assistance of the whole Council and any matters you consider should be discussed would greatly assist in the conduct of such institution.

Thanking all for the encouragement given in 1926.

I am, Yours sincereley,

J. C. Strickland, Chairman.

especially directed at Canada are rather amusing. It is said, for instance, that hereafter the Governor-General of the Dominion is to represent His Majesty the King, and is no longer to represent the British Government here. From the day of Confederation the Governor-General has represented His Majesty the King, and His Majesty alone. The British North America Act, Section 10, declares that he acts here "on behalf of and in the name of the Queen." No Governor-General has even ventured to assume any other icle.

"It is also similarly asserted that the advisers of the Governor-General will henceforth be the Government of Canada, and not the Government of Britain. The British North America Act distinctly provided for this fifty-nine years ago. One would imagine that the authority of our Constitutional Act was at least as important as the resolution of the Imperial Conference.

"As a declaration of the actual status quo, as between the Motherland and the Dominions, the report may be of some value, but my fear is that the whole tendency of the document will be to loosen rather than strengthen the foundations of the Empire without conferring any practical benefit upon the Dominions.

"I fear the impression will be general that the result of the Conference has been more in the nature of a surrender than a compromise. However, I desire to mave much fuller information in regard to the proceedings of the Conference before offering any more definite pronouncement."

LEONID KRASSIN

between Russia and Great Britain. It was said that Krassin's greatest value to Moscow was that he commanded the respect and confidence of the British financial world.

Leonid Borisovitch Krassin first came into prominence in the Bolshevik regime as negotiator for an Anglo-Russian trade treaty. He was a Communist, but extremely moderate in his views. He was elected a member of the central executive committee of the all-Russia Soviet Congress in January, 1922.

For a long time Krassin was Soviet Commissioner for Foreign Trade and Commerce, and as such visited the various capitals of Europe in an endeavor to open trade negotiations between the European states and Soviet Russia. In this he was successful in a number of instances.

Krassin was one of the few "moderates" to be given a place of responsibility in the Soviet Governmental machinery. He was known as a "bourgeois Bolshevik."

Declined Portfolio.

After the Bolshevist coup in October, 1917, Krassin declined a seat in the Soviet Ministry, believing the theories of Nikolai Lenin were too sweeping. His relations with Lenin were cordial, and he accompanied Lenin and Leon Trotsky, the War Minister, when they went to Brest-Litovsk to negotiate the peace treaty with Germany.

When it became apparent that the Bolshevist Government would last, Krassin threw in his lot with it and became commissary of food in the Red army, although he is said to have had little, or no, belief in the aims of the Government. He was convinced, however, that nothing was to be gained by offering resistance to control of the workers.

During his early tenure of four Ministerial offices he worked imperceptibly for the restoration of the plain bourgeois methods of commence. To him the nationalization of commerce was one of Lenin's blunders.

Not a Socialist.

As for a world revolution, Krassin was a skeptic. He was all in all for a bourgeois peace. It was his desire to lead Russian Sovietism into the normal ways of democracy.

"Who believes in Socialism in Russia?" Krassin is reported to have asked, and then to have answered the question: "Not I, nor Lenin."

In 1922 Krassin was made Ambassador to Berlin. He later was made Ambassador to France, and still later, Charge d'Affairs in London. Early in the present year he was stricken with pernicious anemia in Paris, and had to undergo an operation and blood transfusion.

Krassin's exact status in England was never clearly defined. Moscow called him an Ambassador, and he occupied the old czarist embassy with a large staff, and entertained on a scale comparable with the other diplomats, but Great Britain never recognized his full ambassadorial status.

However, the usual governmental courtesies observed upon the death of an ambassador will be accorded him.

Liquor Traffic Intrigue Beats "the Strong Man"

Ontario has had one experience.
Mr. Ferguson's Mythical "Strong Man" Can't Succeed.
Read what Sir Joseph Flavelle said.
Two "Strong Men", Sir James Whitney and Sir Joseph Flavelle, together, could not control the trade.

MR. FERGUSON has told the people of Ontario that he has a "strong man" in mind to control the Liquor Trade, should he be called upon to put into operation Government Sale of liquor.

This Province had one disastrous experience when a "strong man" tried to control the trade.

Shortly after Sir James Whitney came into power he appointed J. W. Flavelle, now Sir Joseph, as head of the Toronto License Board.

Sir Joseph had the verbal assurance of the Prime Minister and a written statement from the Provincial Secretary that the Government desired "a fair, fearless and non-partisan administration of the License Act."

Behind Sir Joseph and his two colleagues was the authority of the Ontario Government, and a Prime Minister of undoubted force of character.

Sir Joseph, as chairman, was in earnest. He was courageous and determined. Could he control the liquor trade and the party workers? He could not. It took him only nine months to discover that fact. The liquor trade was successful in having the Chief Inspector dismissed. Sir Joseph and his colleagues resigned in disgust. They were not consulted.

READ these sentences from their letter of resignation, dated November 28th, 1905

"It was known to the Board that some party workers were engaged in intrigues against the Inspector and the Commissioners, but they refused to notice the intrigues or intriguers, as they considered it unthinkable that the Government, having committed to a body of men the enforcement of the law, would act upon the advice of such intriguers without consulting with the Commissioners, who were seeking to carry out the verbal instructions of the Premier and the written directions of the Provincial Secretary.

"The retaining of the Chief Inspector for nine months, AND THEN, WITHOUT A WORD OF CONSULTATION WITH THE COMMISSIONERS, DISMISSING HIM AT A TIME WHEN HIS EXPERIENCE, FIDELITY AND CAPACITY WERE SO MUCH NEEDED BY THE BOARD IN CARRYING OUT ITS POLICY, GAVE SUCH PLAIN EVIDENCE OF A DELIBERATE PURPOSE TO RENDER ABORTIVE THE NON-PARTISAN POLICY OF THE COMMISSIONERS, AND TO INTERFERE WITH THE COURSE OF A BODY OF INDEPENDENT MEN, who had no ends to serve but the impartial administration of the law, that no course was left open to them but to resign, and to place the responsibility for their action upon the government. . . .

"THE COURSE FOLLOWED SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN DESIGNED BY MEN INFLAMED WITH PASSION FOR OFFICE, OR FOR DISPENSING PATRONAGE, WHO DETERMINED TO GET RID OF COMMISSIONERS WHO REFUSED TO PLAY THE PART OF HIRED MEN, SUBJECT TO THE DICTATION OF PARTY FOLLOWERS."

The alliance between politics and the Liquor Trade showed its hand. It had an efficient and honest official dismissed over the head and without the knowledge of the "strong man," appointed by Sir James Whitney.

The Liquor Trade Can't Be Controlled— No "Strong Man" Strong Enough

DO you think that Mr. Ferguson's mythical "strong man" will fare any better?

Will this mythical "strong man" be able to control the liquor traffic?

No man has ever been able to control the liquor trade once it is legalized.

Won't the brewers, the distillers, the bootleggers and the rum-runners have friends in high places to thwart the "strong man's" efforts?

Assuredly they will, just as they had when Sir Joseph Flavelle was a Government official.

The liquor trade always mixes in politics when its profits are concerned.

The liquor trade will play the same old political game, play it night and day, play it hard and fast, and ruthlessly undermine the "strong man" who stands in its way to greater profits.

What chance would Mr. Ferguson's "strong man" have against liquor intrigues with "passions inflamed for profits?"

Mr. Ferguson's "strong man" would have no more chance than did Sir Joseph Flavelle—and Mr. Ferguson is not a Sir James Whitney.

No "strong man" can control an uncontrollable trade.

There can be no compromise, no partnership with the uncontrollable liquor trade. It must not be allowed to regain its foothold.

Banish the bootlegger and the Government that would do his work.

Don't be deceived by "the strong man" promise

Vote Against the Ferguson Candidate

The Ferguson Government Can't Be Trusted—It has broken its pledges to both drys and wets

CANDIDATE GIVES REASONS FOR ISSUING WRIT

Mayor McArthur Says He Had Hoped For Clean Campaign.

SPEAKS AT HASTINGS.

Says He Couldn't Afford To Let Slanders Be Circulated.

(Examiner Special Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Nov. 25.— Mayor Fred J. McArthur, of Cobourg, Conservative candidate in Northumberland, has issued a writ against W. A. Moore, grocer, of Colborne, for slander in the alleged circulation of a statement that Mr. McArthur was not a fit person to be a candidate.

This announcement was the high light of last nights Conservative rally at which Mayor McArthur was assisted by Reeve Hess and Dr. Wilson of town, Miss Richards, of Trenton, Alderman John F. Boland, of Toronto, and Gordon Sheppard, of Toronto.

"I said at the nominations that this was going to be a gentleman's game," said Mayor McArthur, who arrived from Harwood at 10.10 p. m. "I was very much surprised to learn that that was not the tactics of my opponents. At Colborne a few days ago I first heard of this rumor that I had been dragged out of a ditch dead drunk. I said 'let it go,' but I found that my workers were very much incensed. We realized that we had let it go too long. Mr. Moore is a grocer in East Colobrne. He is a church-going man, sings in the choir, with a hymn book in one hand and a dagger in the other. After hearing repeatedly of the rumor I went to Mr. Moore last night and found him very happily engaged at a party. I shook hands with him, and told him he had been saying things he shouldn't say. He was dumb.

I said: "Mr. Moore, we's got the goods on you. We have been following you for three days. Men you canvassed have got you cold, so you don't need to deny it." "I never saw you pulled out of a ditch," he said. "I know you didn't," I told him. "If you don't make a public apology I'll immediately issue a write against you," I said.

Mayor McArthur said that Mr. Moore stammered and replied that he could not make an apology that night.

'I went to Cobourg and issued a writ for $5,000 for defamation of character. My business is centred in Cobourg and I can't afford to let him make those slanderous remarks. That's the opposition tactics but we are going to be big enough to counteract it, and it will take more than Mr. Moore to prevent me from rolling up a big vote.

I also learn that ministers are going to women and asking them to sign pledges to vote against me. We are not asking anyone to sign a pledge to vote for the Conservative party. Men and women can vote as they see fit. We explain the issue and treat the public as the jury. Prohibition is one of coercion, and asking women to sign a peldge is another, and we're not in that category."

"Although Mr. Nickle said that the O.T.A. was not a workable act he says now that it is, and he thinks that if he jumps out of the Conservative ranks it might be a short way to become leader of another party. They all say that something has to be done. My answer is that it will be done by the Ferguson government.

Niagara wines contain 28 p.c. alcohol, just as strong as a lot of liquor. The illicit sale of liquor is what we are after. Mr. Ferguson says he means to deal severely with the bootlegger. I could get liquor now if I wanted it. Under the new law I would be just as liable for buying as the bootlegger for selling. The Prohibition Union says we are not the temperance party. They don't know what they are talking about.

Some men say we're going to make it easy to get liquor. At present if you've got the money you can get it. Bootleggers have no respect for ages. Even in the old bars liquor would not be sold to young men under 21. The bootlegger will sell to young men and women of any age, if they have the price. The Government sees this thing and Ferguson says put it on the level.

None of us wants to see our children go into disgrace. As Hon. Mr. Price said at Cobourg, the prohibitionists seem to think that they are the only ones who have children. If you people are prepared to walk hand in hand with Ferguson down the highway I'll grant you'll have sane legislation of which you will not be ashamed. Co-operation is all we need. If I betrayed the people of Northumberland it would be the first time I ever betrayed anyone."

In asking for the people's support, Mayor McArthur said: "On December 1st Fred. J. McArthur and Howard Ferguson will be glad to receive the support of the people of this good old county of Northumberland."

Dr. Hess, speaking first, said that each elector should exercise his own judgment, reason out the issues and vote in accordance with what he thinks is best for Ontario.

"As far as my judgment goes, I can't see how you could enforce the O.T.A. as long as the Dominion Government allows liquor to go out in schooner loads to be delivered to bootleggers all over the province. As far as Government control goes, I'm not sure that there is any Act that would be a success as long as you allow liquor to be made. It seems impossible to legislate against it while we let it be made. Sentiment seems against the Act. As Reeve, I have tried to clean up some cases, but it seems just about impossible. I'm not saying that Government control is going to control this, but one thing is dead sure—the O.T.A. is not controlling it. That is my judgment, and I feel I have a right to use my judgment and I don't think I ought to be criticized for exercising my judgment in that way."

Liquor in Provinces.

"I believe in prohibition if you can get it," Dr. Wilson declared in his address, "but how can you get prohibition with five provinces around us dispensing liquor. This is not a Ferguson scheme. Those five provinces have Liberal Premiers. We can't get prohibition because the Dominion Government licenses the brewers and the home-brewers too. It is almost impossible to get prohibition under these conditions. I am supporting the Ferguson Government on their past record and in the faith I have in their future."

To Oust Sinclair?

In his address in which he emphasized the accomplishments of the Ferguson Government, Mr. Sheppard said there was a deal on, whereby Sinclair was going to be kicked out into the cold and Nickle made Premier. Raney was to be Attorney-General, Drury Provincial Treasurer, and Mr. Rowell and Arthur Roebuck were also to get something or another.

"I wonder what kind of government we'd have if Ontario elected a conglomeration of that kind?"

Mr. Sheppard asserted that Mr. Raney was told that very night of "the last awful night" affair in the Treasurer's office on the eve of the disappearance of the Drury Government. It was common knowledge throughout the Legislative Buildings next day, and Mr. Raney said afterwards that he did not hear of it until two months later.

"When Mr. Morrison the next day demanded a clean up as a result of that party, Mr. Raney said it would hurt the U.F.O. politically. He had one law for the poor man who broke the O.T.A., and another for his colleagues who flaunted the law in the very legislative buildings."

THE HALL STORE

traffic by establishing advertising and information bureaus in various United States cities with resulting large gains were also discussed by Mr. Bradburn. He touched, too, on the work done in aiding the mining industry, causing great increases in the production.

Mr. Bradburn also discussed proposed reductions in taxation. He said that the reductions promised didn't seem large to individuals but that they made a great amount when added together. The cut to be made in the motor car license fee would amount to several million dollars, while the removal of the tax from certain theatre tickets would cost the government $700,000.

Not Wet or Dry

Applause greeted Mr. Bradburn's statement, "It is not a question of 'wet and dry' but of true temperance against prohibition." He went on to say that the province was practically as wet as it ever had been and that the Ferguson government proposed to try and dry some of it up, and to put the liquor traffic under control. The permit system would permit a man to get liquor until he began to abuse his privilege, which would then be taken away. The bootlegers would not have a leg to stand on if the government stores were able to sell good liquor at a reasonable price.

Mr. Bradburn quoted from a speech made by the Hon. Peter Heenan,(Federal Minister of Labor, in Northern Ontario, when he is reported to have said, "We don't want Ferguson's whiskey. If we want whiskey we can get it. — It seems sweeter if we steal it" This would appear, said Mr. Bardburn, as if Mr. Heenan was advising people to vote for the O.T.A. and then to break the act.

The speaker condemned as unfair tactics a pamphlet left at his office comparing conditions under Government control with a return to the old open bar. He said that he had found Mr. Gillespie to be a gentleman, and was personally a friend of his, but that this pamphlet was misleading, as there would be no return to the conditions before the enactment of the O.T.A.

Mrs. H. T. Fallis

Stating that it required no small amount of moral courage to take a stand opposite to that taken by her church as a whole, Mrs. Fallis said she considered that her opponents were sincere in their views and asked that they give her credit, too, for being sincere . She said that the question of a moral issue was being raised and asked if honesty of government were not equally as much a moral issue as the liquor question. No one could, she said, accuse the Ferguson government of dishonesty. (Applause). She also commended Mr. Ferguson personally for his oversight of the homes and institutions of the province.

Mrs. Fallis said that if she had never gone about the province taking part in election campaigns, but had stayed at home in her quiet rural neighborhood she might still believe in the O.T.A., but what she had seen and heard in her travels had led her to support a government which was going to make an honest endeavor to remedy the evils existing under the O.T.A. (Applause). To those who said conditions were fine under the O.T.A. she would say, "Go and talk to the taxi-drivers." One taxi-driver, she said, could tell more about this subject than twenty ministers in their pulpits.

The speaker recalled a conversation with a taxi-man driving her from Picton to Napanee recently, who said that conditions couldn't be worse. Pressed to be more explicit, he said he would like to take some of the prohibition leaders around at night to some of the bootleggers' hangouts of the district. An old couple in Norfolk county who had always voted O.T.A. told her that after seeing three young men made crazy by a small amount of liquor they had drunk at a threshing, they had decided that their growing sons might better drink a little good liquor than such poisonous stuff. She also spoke of a drummer who had sold over 3000 bottles of extracts to two stores in the small town of Napanee.

Education Needed.

Too many people thought, continued Mrs. Fallis, that if they shut a thing out of sight they had driven it from the country, when in this case, it had been driven underground, where it had become ten times worse. As both sides were coming to realize that more temperance education was needed, some good might come from all the controversy. In this quotation she quoted a lady she had met, who said she was not interested in the matter, as she was training her children so that they would be safe whatever system was in force. People had said that the law would make things right, but they were now waking up to the fact that a law not supported by public opinion would not do anything.

That the Liberal party, when in power, had paid no attention to plebiscites asking for temperance legislation, was her next point. Now Mr. Sinclair says that the party will uphold the O.T.A. until the people repeal it by a plebiscite. She submitted that the vote to be taken ext week was a real plebiscite as it carried with it government responsibility, and the political fate of one party.

To the charge that it should not be a political question, Mrs. Fallis answered that it had been a political football for the past twenty years. Mr. Ferguson had been the only man to make a practical suggestion, and to stand by it.

A statement made at the Liberal convention that the individual candidates must run their own campaigns, and make such promises as seemed best to them in the matter, judging by the sentiment in their own ridings, was taken to indicate that the Liberal platform was a sort of free-for-all.

Mrs. Fallis said that she had listened to campaign addresses by Messrs. Irwin and Spence. They had not always agreed, but had been unanimous in attacking the character of the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson. She had never listened before to such unmerited abuse, she said, and added that those who knew Mr. Ferguson knew him to be sincere. To those who were attacking him, she would quote from the book they upheld, "Be ye temperate in all things," which included speech, and "Judge not, that ye be not judged."

Answers Arguments.

The two gentlemen mentioned had differed on who was writing Mr. Ferguson's speeches and policy. One said the brewers and distillers; the other said the Rev. Canon Cody.

Their arguments were inaccurate, inasmuch as they failed to touch the point. They were omparing the O.T.A. with conditions before its enactment, and pointing out what good it had done. Nobody would dispute this, she said, but the government's policy was not going back to these conditions, but forward. Mr. Raney had said that outside of few titled gentlemen, Mr. Ferguson was supported by the lowest elements of society. Besides many prominent men, not titled, said Mrs. Fallis, there were hundreds of temperance people who considered the policy the best, yet were classed with 'the lowest elements of society.'

To the charge that it was the policy of the Hon. Howard Ferguson, and not of the Conservative party, Mrs. Fallis opposed the fact that only two out of 77 members had left the party on the matter. Only a little over a year ago one of these two, the Hon. W. F. Nickle had been denounced as a traitor to the cause of temperance because he had introduced the 4.4 beer measure. This had been done by the very men who were now lauding him. In a speech in the House at that time Mr. Nickle had said that it was necessary to provide some easement to prevent the destruction of the act, and to Mr. Raney's claim that he had been able to enforce the act as it stood, he had replied, "Where ignorance is bliss, 'twere folly to be wise."

"Make Ontario dry" would be substituted by Mrs. Fallis for the prohibition slogan, "Keep Ontario dry." She cited figures to show that much more liquor was being made in the province under licenses issued by the Dominion Government, and said that the claim that the distilleries had been forced to close was not borne out by the fact that Corby's were now employing 900 men were they had formerly given work to 100. Government control had not been a failure in the west, or one of the three political parties in Alberta would have had that plank in its platform during the recent election there. Only one candidate had proposed to return to to the Alberta Temperance Act and he had been defeated.

In conclusion she urged the electors to support the party that had given the province all the temperance legislation that it had ever received and they would never regret it.

Hon. G. S. Henry.

An analogy between the situation in 1919, when leaderless groups had taken part in the contest and had been successful, and the present campaign, with its many parties and groups, was drawn by the Hon. G. S. Henry, minister of Public Works and Highways in the Ferguson cabinet. The opposition the , as now, had been unable to criticize the policy of the party, and in fact had almost praised it. The same question is paramount now, and the same possibility—the speaker would not admit it as a probability—as the people would take no more chances with leaderless groups.

The Conservative party, said Mr. Henry, had a candidate in every riding but one. Mr. Sinclair was supported by candidates in only fifty ridings, while Mr. Raney had twenty followers. Mr. Sinclair had admitted that he did not expect to win. Some were leaderless, the speaker's own opponent having declared that he was following himself. The more of these various groups that got in, the more difficult it would be to carry on a Government, and the more likely there was to be the administrative chaos that existed in 1919-23.

The Government Record.

The progress that had been made in every department of the administration had shown the government to be of a high type, said the speaker. During the Drury regime the credit of the province had been bad because the financial world had lost confidence. Now this has been altered and it is expected that the 1927 budget will be balanced. This will be done in the face of reductions in taxation. Careful auditing had eliminated many loop holes by which money owed to the province had not been paid.

Progress in Hydro development, and the success of negotiations for large amounts of power from Quebec were discussed. Faced with a probable shortage, the Commission had arranged to take care of the increase for the next four or five years, by which time new works would, it is hoped, be constructed. The current was also being distributed to the rural sections of the province, several million dollars having been expended to assist this development.

Under the Hon. John S. Martin, arrangements for orderly marketing and for the sale of produce overseas had advanced. Endeavors were being made to prevent the waste of fruit due to the market being glutted. With a Minister in charge who knew the northland, the Department of Mines had done great work, and the mining industry had advanced, millions being now invested in Ontario. The Hon. Dr. Godfrey had done wonderful work in the Department of Health.

Highway Building

Speaking of his own department, Mr. Henry said that the county systems had been reorganized and more action taken in developing the provincial system. Under the former administration much money had been spent but little paving had been completed. One stretch of road, thirteen miles long, had cost over a million dollars. Now over 1,200 miles of the 1,870 in the system had been completed and the rest was being completed as traffic conditions made it necessary. It had been decided to add about 500 miles of road to the system, the roads to be designated during the coming winter.

While 75 per cent of the traffic is on the Provincial roads, the speaker said that it was his ambition to have a serviceable road for everybody all the year round. No commonwealth of three million people had such a system, he said. In many American states the trunk roads were good, but the side roads were almost impassable.

Efforts to develop the tourist trade were discussed. Mr. Henry had led the party which visited Cleveland for Canada-Cleveland Day, and it was hoped to make similar journeys to other cities to foster the traffic. On a trip during the past summer from Toronto to Cobourg engineers of the Department had counted cars from twenty different states and five provinces. The Cabinet had considered taking over all the road south of the Ottawa river to open up that part of the country as a tourist paradise.

O.T.A. Always in Politics

Turning to the temperance issue, the speaker said that the O.T.A. had always been an issue since he had entered public life in 1913. He had always been a temperance man, but had not been good enough for the Rev. Ben Spence, so that the decision of the Liberals to give him an acclamation in the by-election had been of no benefit. During his nomination meeting on Saturday, he said, his opponent had said that the O.T.A had always been a plank in the Liberal platform, while there had not been even a sliver in the Conservative policies. To this, Mr. Henry replied that the Liberals spent their time building platforms while the Conservatives had spent their time giving legislation.

Sir James Whitney had turned down the temperance forces and had been much criticized for insisting on a three-fifths vote on local option, although later his contention was proved wise. At the 1914 election he had suddenly been faced with the "Abolish the bar" slogan, but the people had rallied to him instead of to the slogan. He had implemented his promises, going forward year by year, adding restrictions without waiting for demand as he saw they would be accepted. That the Prime Minister, as first citizen of the province, should assume responsibility as leader and implement legislation as he finds the people ready for it, was the speaker's contention.

In 1919 sixty-eight per cent of the people believed in the act and voted for it. In 1923 only 51 per cent supported it, and Mr. Henry believed that if Government control had been the policy of an active party it would have carried, as he expected it would next Wednesday.

Mr. Henry said that the slogan, "You can't trust Ferguson," was the basest libel ever laid on any public man. This, he believed, was largely because of the 4.4 beer legislation, yet Mr. Nickle, who was the father of the 4.4 beer, was being praised by the dry forces. When he had introduced the 4.4 legislation, Mr. Nickle had said that the people were not behind the O.T.A. as it stood and that it was necessary to ease it to prevent it from being altogether destroyed. To the claim that opposition to a law was not a reason for repealing it, the speaker said that a law was a rule of society, and if not approved by the people it should be wiped out. He referred to the days when stealing a sheep was punishable by death. This law had not been approved, and had been rescinded.

The Conservative party was not going to annul or destroy the O.T.A. but was suggesting an improvement. The O.T.A. prohibited the public sale of liquor and the Government was not going to restore it, but was going to supply it to those who were determined to have it anyhow. Mr. Nickle's plan to improve the act had failed, and the Government was proposing a new plan. The Government would not be entering the liquor business, as it had been so engaged for ten years, supplying liquor to the doctors to treat their patients. Mr. Henry said he had yet to see an audience that did not smile when he mentioned liquor for medicine. He thought that no person could say how many patients a doctor would have, but Mr. Raney had set the number of prescriptions at 100, and later had cut it to 50. Mr. Nickel had cut it to 30, but still the amount of liquor prescribed was increasing, and the doctors were getting tired to being bar tenders to the province.

The speaker quoted Judge Murphy of Alberta as saying that there had been fewer convictions under the Government control system, although more of those convicted were going to jail because they could not pay the heavy fines imposed. She had opposed the act when it was proposed, believing it to be a step backward, but had found it a great improvement.

In conclusion Mr. Henry urged his hearers to send back Mr. Bradburn, who he said had been a capable representative, as a supporter of the Ferguson administration. He urged them to vote Conservative because that would be voting for real temperance and not for the continuance of an act that would not stand without easing.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE, a stenographer, is utterly different from her sister, FAITH, who does all the work for the family of six, including her semi-invalid mother, her father, who is a carpenter and contractor in a small way; her brother, JUNIOR, or "Long" Lane, and JOY, nine.

Cherry, the flirt, is carrying on affairs with a dozen admirers, including CHESTER HART, formerly a suitor of Faith's; BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect; ALBERT ETTLESON, a married traveling salesman; old MR. CLUNY, Cherry's present employer, and CHRIS WILEY.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich man's son and amateur artist, showers Faith with attentions, but Faith cares only for Bob Hathaway, who is infatuated with Cherry.

At a party at Pruitt's, to which Faith cannot go because of a heart attack suffered by her mother, Hathaway sees Cherry in Chris Wiley's arms and goes to Faith for comfort, not realizing she loves him. Faith remonstrates with Cherry, who retorts that she will not marry Hathaway if she can possibly land George Pruitt.

Pruitt continues to pay marked attentions to Faith and on a Sunday takes her to a nearby resort for dinner. Before leaving, Faith finds a packed and locked suitcase in Cherry's closet and the memory of a mysterious telegram which Cherry has received from Ettleson fills her with dark suspicions.

She has no time to discuss the matter with Cherry, but asks Junior to hide the suitcase in his automobile truck. Pruitt tells Faith that he loves her and humbly asks her to kiss him. Strangely enough, she raises her lips to his.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVI.

When George Pruitt's famished lips pressed hard upon her mouth, Faith forced herself to rest passively in his arms, but when, bewildered, defeated, he raised his face and glared at her out of cheated, accusing eyes, she shuddered and flung an arm across her face, so that she would not have to witness his pain.

"Why did you let me kiss you?" he demanded hoarsely. "It was a brutal way to show me that you—didn't care. I—I won't do it again," he assured her, his head dropping upon his breast, his big, freckled hands locking tightly between his knees.

"I'm sorry, George—and ashamed," she whispered huskily. "You see, I wanted to know—beyond the shadow of a doubt. I've heard that love comes sometimes, like a rushing torrent, in the first kiss. I wanted it to come—if it would. I wanted to love you, because I'm so grateful for love. I need love—but I need, more than anything else, to give love. Some women are like that, George, and some are like—like Cherry, greedy to take, having little to give. I'm sorry—sorry—"

"Don't blame yourself," the man interrupted her fiercely. "I'm ashamed of myself for having flared up at you like that. I'm sorry, too—all broken up, Faith. I think I'm a little off my head. For ten days I've wanted to shout and sing, stop people in the streets and force them to listen—'Say, I've found the finest girl in the world, and I'm going to marry her.' That's what I wanted to yell from the housetops, Faith."

"I know." Faith rested her chin on her clasped hands and brooded over him, her brown eyes drowned with tears of pity—for herself as well as for him.

"I couldn't believe at first that it was me—Faith Lane!—that you wanted. It's always been Cherry—But I couldn't help knowing, after a bit, and I tried to keep you from saying it, because I knew it hadn't happened to me, too. Why, George, dear, I've prayed, on my knees, like a child, these last few nights that a miracle would happen, and that I'd wake up and find my heart filled to overflowing with love for you."

"If you want to love me so much," George said slowly, painfully, "why not let's try it—getting married, you know? I'll be so good to you, Faith! It makes me sick, and so angry I could fight, to see you slaving from dawn to midnight for that ungrateful family of yours, taking the leavings, shielding them, propping them up in their weaknesses—"

"They're not ungrateful," she stiffened, and brushed her tears away with an angry hand. "They need me, George. I love mothering them all—Dad, and Mother and Junior and Cherry and Joy. You don't understand that I love to give—"

"I want to give, too—to give you everything lovely that you ought to have and can't. Fine soft silks and gracious velvets for your wonderful body, and delicate food that you don't have to cook over a hot stove; books and leisure and travel to feed that clever brain of yours. Listen, Faith, I'll hire the best housekeeper in town to look after your family—"

"I'm glad Dad didn't hear you say that," she interrupted sharply. "The Lanes don't take charity, George. We're as proud as the Lincoln Pruitts. Oh, let's not quarrel! Don't you think I want to marry you, and live as your wife will live—Beautifully? But I can't, George, I would be broken in the plunge, George, no matter how fine and soft the bed I landed on. You knew that, when you sketched that picture you want to paint. Let's be friends, George. I've never had a real friend. I love you in so many ways—"

"All right," he said abruptly, springing to his feet. "We'll have our swim now, and then take it easy going home." He reached a hand to her to help her rise.

"Friends?" she asked, when she stood beside him, holding his hand in both of hers.

He looked away, as if his eyes were searching for strength in the imperturbable beauty of the low, wooded mountains. Then he turned back to her, his face illumined with that sudden, gay smile of his—a gaiety that touched her heart more than his tears of a few moments before had done.

"Friends!" He shook hands vigorously. "I'd rather have you for a friend than any other woman as a wife."

They talked eagerly, as if to prove their comradeship, as George drove smoothly at twenty miles an hour back to the city. Now that he knew he could not have her heart, George Pruitt reached out hungrily for her mind. "Did you ever read—" was the burden of their swiftly shuttled conversation. He would bring her Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage," which he liked better than any book he had read in ten years. Did she know Rupert Brooke's poems? He had had a sophomoric enthusiasm for them during and immediately after the war. He was still young enough to admire the young English poet's boyish disillusion and idealistic cynicism. Did she have the Oxford Book of English Verse? He would give her a copy tomorrow—

"George!" Faith cut in sharply gripping his arm. "Wasn't that Bob Hathaway who passed us just then? Quick! Turn around! Catch up with him! It's awfully important! Please!"

Without wasting time with questions or quibbling, George swung his car in a wide circle, without losing speed, then accelerated to forty miles an hour. Bending over the steering wheel, he watched the road for chances to cut in between cars going less swiftly, grinned at the curses the drivers flung at him, and gained steadily on the dark green roadster in which Bob Hathaway sat alone, hunched over the wheel, his head bare, the late afternoon sun glinting on his thick chestnut hair.

When the cars were almost abreast, George clapped a palm on the horn button and kept it there until the hoarse clamor caused Bob Hathaway to turn his head, in anger and impatience, to investigate.

"Hello, Bob!" George sang out. "Can you pull up by the road a minute? Faith wants to speak to you."

"Hello!" Faith smiled into his haggard blue eyes when he came striding up to the car in which she sat. "I saw you passing and I wondered why Cherry wasn't with you. She said she had a date with you for this afternoon. Please don't think I'm just prying—"

"Of course not!" Bob Hathaway leaned upon the door of the car, his bare, sunburned arm—he had been driving coatless as well as hatless, with the sleeves of his white sport shirt rolled above the elbow—touching Faith's. She quivered at the accidental contact. "Cherry phoned me at two that she was sick, couldn't come with me this afternoon. She wouldn't let me come over even for a few minutes, so I suppose she's feeling pretty badly. Is it anything serious? I admit I've been rather worried. Her voice sounded odd—"

"She—she seemed all right when I left at eleven," Faith said slowly, her mind racing to grapple with whatever this might mean.

That packed and locked suitcase! As she studied the worried, sincere face of the man lounging against the car, she realized that, all day, in the back of her mind, had been the suspicion that that packed suitcase had meant that Cherry was planning to elope with Bob Hathaway. And here was Bob—alone—

"But I remember now," she went on rapidly, "that she seemed listless, tired. I suppose it's nothing more than a bad headache. You'll pardon me for stopping you like a traffic cop, won't you?" she smiled reassuringly, but her heart was beating heavily with dreadful forebodings.

When they were saying goodby, Faith stopped him on a sudden impulse. "You might telephone in about half an hour, Bob, if it's convenient, and if you're really worried about Cherry. Ask for me, if you call, and I can give any message to Cherry, if she isn't sleeping her headache away."

"I wasn't going anywhere in particular," Bob Hathaway told her. "I think I'll drive on back to the city. I'll call you up from my house when I think you've had time to get home. Maybe she'll let me come over this evening."

When George's car was again headed toward town, Faith tried to talk cheerfully, to keep him from suspecting the very real worry that was gnawing at her heart.

But she was to find that she had not entirely succeeded in throwing him off the track, for when he let her out at her house, he gripped her hand hard, with the low-spoken, serious words: "Call me if you need me for—for anything! I'll be at home all evening."

"Thanks, George—for everything," she answered simply, then ran up the graveled path to the house.

She found her mother and father in the living room, looking warm and uncomfortable and bored in their Sunday clothes.

"Where's Cherry? In her room?" she asked breathlessly.

"Why, no, she's out with Bob Hathaway," her mother answered fretfully. "Me and your Pa has been settin' around all day, with nobody to talk to. Joy's over at Grace's—"

"When did she leave?" Faith persisted, fear making her voice sharp.

"My land! I don't know exactly! Me and your Pa was takin' a nap after dinner, and when we woke up she was gone. I don't know what you're so flustered about! You knowed she had a date with Bob."

Without replying, Faith hurried to Cherry's room, jerked open the dresser drawers, glanced into the closet, and then, her worst fears confirmed, ran through the house to the back yard. Without her suitcase she couldn't get far—Then the girl was brought up with a jerk. Junior's car was gone. And he had said he was not going to use it, was going to be out with Fay Allen in her coupe—

She had just reached the Allen home by telephone when her father called out:

"Here's a lady to see Cherry, Faith Maybe you'd better talk to her."

"Hello, hello!" Faith shook the receiver hook impatiently. "This is Faith Lane, Mrs. Allen. Is Junior—Jimmy Lane there? He and Fay are out in her car, you say? You're sure, Mrs. Allen? Thank you. I'm sorry to have troubled you. When Jimmy comes in, will you ask him to call me, please? Yes, it's important."

She hurried into the living room, wondering who the stranger could be who had come, uninvited and unexpected, to see Cherry.

A thin, faded, tremulous little woman in shabby clothes that tried patheticially to be smart, took a hesitating step toward Faith.

"I'm—awfully sorry—to intrude," she stammered, "but I—I had to try to see Miss Cherry Lane today—you see," and her eyes were suddenly suffused with righteous anger that gave her slight, insignificant body a temporary dignity, "I'm Mrs. Ettleson—Mrs. Albert Ettleson."

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

GILMOUR MEMORIAL CHURCH

Very successful anniversary services were held in Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church on Sunday last. The special preacher was the Rev. C. H. Schutt, M.A., Toronto. Good congregations assembled both morning and evening. At the morning service Mr. Schutt preached a good practical sermon from Galatians 5-22: "The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meakness, temperance; against such there is no law."

In the evening he preached a splendid evangelical sermon on the Good Shepherd. In the course of his address he brought in some interesting references to his visit to the Holy Land, which references threw wonderful light on the passage being dealt with.

The church choir under the leadership of Mrs. J. A. Young rendered several pieces in good style. Miss Mabel Paul presided at the organ.

MRS. DUMAS SAYS GAS TOOK HER BREATH

"I had gas on the stomach so bad that I could hardly breathe. Everything I ate went against me. After I began taking Adlerika, the gas left me and I eat everything."—Mrs. E. J. Dumas.

Adlerika differs from most medicines because its acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel. It gives the system a REAL cleansing and clears out old poisons which usually cause sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. Just ONE spoonful stops GAS, and relieves that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never guessed was in your system and which may have long caused trouble. No matter what you have tried for stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In Peterboro at McDermid & Jury and other druggists.

TWEED ELECTORS HEAR FERGUSON

Premier Speaks in Support of Conservative Candidate.

TWEED, Nov. 25.—The Auditorium was packed to the doors on Monday afternoon when Premier Howard Ferguson spoke in the riding of East Hastings in the support of James F. Hill the member in the last Legislature. He told the several hundred electors who gathered at this centre that in the O.T.A. issue they faced one of the gravest responsibilities that had ever been placed upon them because in his opinion the resullt would be the basis of legislature for the next twenty years, although others thought differently. He urged the people not to be carried away by organizations or people who don't advance arguments but merely abuse the Premier which is not an issue at all. He remarked that he read more abuse about himself than anything else.

His opponents, he said, were continually harping on the theme that the O.T.A. had done good. He admitted that it had; no one disputed the fact. The question at present was whether it had done all the good possible?

He told of a large life insurance company's report covering the first nine months of this year which showed that in America deaths from alcoholism had increased by fourteen per cent and in Canada over fifty per cent of the deaths occurred in the prohibition Province of Ontario.

The welfare of Ontario he stated was a bigger thing than any government, whether Ferguson's or any other. He asked the people to do what they thought best in their own judgment and not in the judgment of those who are inspired only to defeat the Government. "Let everyone have honesty of motive, honesty of purpose, honest of conscience," he said.

"What chance would a company have of making a headway if half its shareholders rebelled against its policies? What chance would a woman have of running his home if half the congregation were in rebellion? Yet that was the position in Ontario today with respect to the O.T.A."

Mr. James F. Hill in a short address said he had been a temperance man all his life, as his constituents well knew. If he had not been in Toronto, he said, very probably he would have had different views with respect to the O.T.A., but his eyes had been opened and he realized that something would have to be done to remedy matters.

Reeve S. B. Rollins and Mr. John Stokes, Sr., were also prominent on the platform.

Evening Examiner "Ideal Fashions" by Jean Betty Hamilton

Fulness Finds Itself at the Sides

This one-piece frock relieves its tailored appearance by the introduction of a flare at the side seams. It would be very smart if fashioned of satin for afternoon wear or of flannel for business. There are gathers at each shoulder, and buttons adorn the front closing. Contrasting material may be introduced in the convertible collar, novel pockets, and cuffs. The sleeves are long and of the modish tight-fitting type. NO. 1275 is for Misses and is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 years requires 4⅛ yards 36-inch material, or 2⅝ yards 54-inch; ¼ yard 36-inch contrasting. 20 cents.

Every woman's desire is to achieve that smart, different appearance which draws favorable comment from the observing public. The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are originated in the heart of the style centers and will help you to acquire that much desired air of individuality. Price of the book, 10 cents the copy.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

At a recent wedding the confetti—of the rose-leaf variety—was passed to the guests in lovely little bags of pink and white crepe paper. The paper was cut in six-inch circles, and two circles were pasted together along the edges, save for about a fourth of the distance, which unpasted part served as the opening. A pink paper rose decorated the white holder, a white one the pink holders. Ribbon was looped above the opening for a little handle. And then the bag was filled with confetti.

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Mrs. H., who is president of her club, wants us to suggest a good subject for "general discussion"—not of a too serious nature. She wants a subject that will whet the wits of the members.

What about: "Are Men More Modest Than Women?" or, "Should Women Smoke?" or, "Is Mucis an Elevating Influence?" or, "Have Women Any Real Influence in Politics?"

Lester M. S. has a subject he is bursting to put before the women's clubs and wants to know how he can gain entree to their platforms.

Each district has a federation and publishes a year-book containing the names of clubs and their officers. Write to the program chairmen of these clubs. If you don't want to be paid and are an interesting speaker, the rest will be easy.

Mrs. D. D. wants us to suggest a suitable wedding present for a young couple who are going to take up their residence in China.

This is a problem I tackle unsuccessfully every few weeks. I usually fall back upon a travelling-clock or a travel diary, if they are going abroad, or something electrical if they are staying at home. I noticed they played everlasting bridge in Hong Kong when I was there—perhaps a fancy bridge set would be acceptable.

Elsa G. wants to know whether she should preface her name on greeting and visiting cards with "Miss." She has been told that this formality is no longer good form.

The visiting card should bear the "Miss," but for greeting cards it is a matter of choice.

Oscar E. says a girl cut two dances with him at a recent party, so he retaliated by cutting one with her. He has been assured that this was inexcusable tit-for-tat, that is is exclusively the lady's privilege to "cut" dances.

Well, Oscar, it was "small" of you. Your best defense was not to ask her again. You know, it is paradoxical but true that men gain more prestige by conceding feminine "privileges" than by denying them.

"A Mother" wants to know how to teach her four-year-old boy good manners—he is becoming alarmingly rude and difficult. Should she punish him for faults?

Punishment ought not to be necessary. We can usually teach little four-year-olds anything by turning it into a game and having a little patience. At our house we have a scheme by which we watch each other's manners, and mother and father come in on the corrections, too. Our worst punishment is sitting on the telephone seat for varying lengths of time, according to the offense. Big brother knocked his milk over recently, so we had lots of fun making him sit on the telephone seat for five minutes, too. In this way the small boy does not feel that he is being discriminated against—and is developing an alert eye for social sins.

Edgar P. N.—No, I can't read and criticise scenarios, and my opinion would have no value if I did. Yes, the studios are buying original stories again now. So far, they prefer to buy "ideas" written in synopsis form, as they have their own continuity writers. Prices seem to range from 50 to 5,000—largely a matter of luck.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

The gems which preside over morta destiny today—the onyx and the lapis lazuli—should dedicate this particular date to brides, if ancient supersitition is to be observed. The lapis lazuli, which is the talismanic gem, is a symbol of faithful love. The man or woman who wears it need never fear inconstancy, nor will they be troubled by jealousy.

Today's natal gem is the pearl, symbol of youth and happiness on this day. The ancients attributed to it the power to dispel sorrow and protect its wearer from useless worry.

Striped materials bring luck on this day, particularly if blue appears among the colors.

The gardenia is the fortunate flower of today. It is a symbol of purity and coquetry when worn by young girls.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

(By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.)

That most people realize that value is determined by what they get, not so much what they pay.

That well advertised lines are the kind that give full value.

That continuous advertising impresses the public with the fact that everything in the advertisements is just as represented.

Business concerns that are leaders are the ones who think enough of their customers to serve them by advertising, not once in a while but all the while.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

This luxurious evening wrap with cape-like sleeves is of green velvet trimmed with silver fox.

A cape of some sort is a valuable addition to every woman's wardrobe. There are times when no other sort of wrap will do as well. But it is not wise to try to make a cape take the place of an afternoon coat or, if you go out much in the evening, to try and get along with only an evening cape. The cape that is an excellent investment is a substantial sort of garment not easily dated. You may not wear it a great deal, but if it is well chosen it may be kept in your wardrobe for several years without looking passee.

Globe trotters of late years have occasionally brought back officers' capes from Italy and these are ideal for the useful evening or afternoon cape, and since they do not conform to any passing fashion they may be worn for many seasons. Sometimes almost new Italian officer's capes may be picked up in the pawnshops of France. An American woman bought one of these for a small sum last summer, had it thoroughly cleaned and now has a wrap that is the envy of her friends. But they need not envy her—nor need they take the European tour in order to have a duplicate. Enterprising American merchants are now showing exact replicas of the celebrated Italian cape. Of course a cape of this sort lacks the prestige of ever having been worn by an officer of the Italian army but most of us would regard that as something of an advantage.

Cape coats and cape effects are among the fashions of last summer that have been carried over triumphantly to the present season. Very smart are some of the black broadcloth coats with cape drapery at the back, further trimmed with fur collars.

FOOD AND HEALTH.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF FOODSTUFFS

From time to time, I have spoken of what might be called co-operation among the foods, how one foodstuff not only does its own particular work in the body, but how it also helps other foods to do theirs. As an example, we have nothing better than gelatin. It is one thing to carry on a scientific discussion of what gelatin does in the way of helping to digest other foods and it is another to state in plain every-day words just how the housekeeper can "cash in," so to speak, on the scientific facts uncovered. I propose just now to do the latter.

Probably one of the most precious gifts of gelatine to the economy of nutrition is its action on milk. The modern housekeeper does not need to be told that milk is a vitally important food. Many also know, to their sorrow, that some members of their erspective families cannot assimilate milk. Remember, then, that the addition of gelatine helps to prevent the forming of curds in the digestion of milk; it is easy to see how bottle-fed babies, growing children or adults, with delicate digestions, may be helped by adding gelatin to milk.

Which brings me to the real purpose of this article of which I have already spoken, to state some simple rules for combining milk with gelatine.

For each quart of milk, allow one level tablespoon of gelatine. Soak in one-half cup of cold milk. After the gelatine is softened in the cold water, place the cup containing it in a larger dish in which there is boiling water. This takes the place of a double boiler and the gelatine may be stirred thoroughly while it is boiling and it will then readily dissolve.

Now, stir the dissolved gelatine into the quart of milk. This is to be used according to your plans for the day. If there is a bottle-fed baby to be cared for, use the gelatine and milk according to your physician's directions in preparing the formula for his feeding. If there is a toddler or a school child who cannot digest milk, then the gelatine is all ready for him.

If larger quantities of milk are used in the preparation of your meals for the day, measure gelatine accordingly, always taking care to see that the consistency is not too thick when the mixture of milk and gelatine cools. In the latter case, use slightly smaller amounts of gelatin in making the mixture.

BECKY

The saucily piquant name of Becky is too generally in usage to pass over as a mere contraction of Rebecca. Becky is given in baptism quite as frequently as Rebecca and it is not usually regarded as a Jewish name. It comes, however, from the old Hebrew word Rabak, which means "to bind."

The Bible tells us that Isaac's wife, who is supposed to represent the ideal of noble wifehood, was named from this word with the idea of signifying the firmness of the marriage bond, but Rebecca was by no means confined to Biblical history. She has named the heroines of literature down through the ages.

Sir Walter Scott, in his "Ivanhoe" calls the real heroine of his story, the gentle and lovable Jewess, Rebecca. But Thackerey in his never-to-be-forgotten "Vanity Fair" gives us the equally memorable Becky Sharp. It is probably safe to assume that all Beckys dated from this period. Their number are legend and acquaintness of the name, aside from its literary distinction, insures its perpetuation.

Becky has a curious talismanic gem. It is the loadstone which is said to bring her great happiness and many friends. Saturday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE AWAKENING

Woke you ever after illness
In the convalescent stillness,
In the solitary gloom
Of a room?

Woke you ever slowly feeling
Once again the current stealing
Through your numb and naked frame
Like a flame?

Far below you heard the roaring
Of the human traffic pouring
O'er the cobbles of the street;
And the feet

Like a busy loom were humming,
Always passing, never coming
Up the lonely-creaking stair
Where you were.

And you wakened half-regretting,
Half-recalling, half-forgetting,
Half a member of earth's host,
Half a ghost.

Things forgotten came returning—
Little lessons you were learning:
Here a picture, and a chair
Over there.

Half in gladness, half-resistant,
From the dim and shrouded distant
To an old world still the same,
So you came—

To an old world, yet a new one,
To a green and gold and blue one,
To the roses in a jar,
And a star.

To a new world, yet an old one,
To a blue and green and gold one,
To a world that knew you, you
Never knew.

For the roses, and the larches
And the blue and starry arches,
And the sunsets—long ago
They were so.

ALBERTA'S FIELD CROP ACREAGE

Q.—What was Alberta's crop acreage in 1926?

A.—Alberta's crop acreage for 1926 for the five crops of wheat, barley, oats, rye and flax was 8,550,044 acres, which is a very small proportion of the total tillable area of the province. Alberta, therefore, is only in its infancy in agricultural development.

THE BEST WAY OF PREPARING EGGS

Eggs are wholesome if prepared in any manner except by frying. They are rendered indigestible if fried in any kind of grease, whether it is lard, butter or any of the vegetable oils. If one has strong digestive juices, of course, some of the egg will be digested, but it is never necessary or advisable to prepare eggs in this manner.

Coddled eggs are prepared by placing the unbroken eggs in a deep pan which is not standing over the fire, pouring over them boiling hot water and allowing to stand from five to ten minutes. If one quart of boiling hot water is used to each egg, eight minutes will be about the proper length of time, as the eggs will assume a jelly-like consistency at the end of eight minutes. Do not allow the eggs to stay in the water over eight to ten minutes, and they should be used at once; otherwise, coagulation will continue on the inside and in a few minutes it will resemble a hard boiled egg.

Hard boiled eggs are difficult to digest if prepared in the usual manner of boiling several minutes, but an excellent kind of hard egg may be prepared by using the coddled method and allowing the egg to remain in the water from twenty to thirty minutes. Eggs prepared in this manner will not be leathery, and are suitable for picnic lunches.

Poached eggs may be prepared either by cooking in plain water or milk. Use about four ounces of milk to each egg. After the cooking has continued over the fire for two or three minutes, put the pan under the broiler so that the heat from the broiler will cook the eggs and milk on top. Serve these by pouring over Melba toast, adding butter and salt as desired.

French omeelette is prepared by beating together one egg with two ounces of milk and cooking slowly in a dry pan, which has not been greased. The mixture of milk and eggs must be stirred constantly so that it will not stick to the pan. It will gradually assume a jelly-like consistency and should be taken from the pan at that time; otherwise, it will continue to cook and become too hard. Serve this in eggcups or by pouring over Melba toast.

Raw eggs are very difficult to digest and should not be used by anyone without a very strong digestion. Overcrowding the stomach with raw eggs and milk has no doubt killed more tuberculars than a scientific diet has ever helped. The healthiest person living cannot digest twelve raw eggs daily, and certainly a tubercular patient, or one with a weak digestion, would be poisoned by this exces of proteid and enervated in an effort to digest it.

One or two eggs prepared in any manner which I flave described in this article should be used daily by every one, in addition to the other proteids used, such as fish, meat, fowl, etc.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S HOME WORK

(By Howard R. Garis.)

One day the letter carrier brought a note to Uncle Wiggily in the hollow stump bungalow. The letter carrier was Mr. Caw Caw, the black crow gentleman.

"I wonder who is writing to me?" asked the rabbit as he turned the letter over and over in his paws.

"The best way would be to open it and find out," said his wife.

"Unless the envelope is thin enough so that you can read the writing through it," squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"It isn't," spoke Uncle Wiggily, holding it up to the light. "I shall have to tear it open," which he did, and inside the envelope was a letter from the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump School.

It was covered with a thin film of ice.

"Dear Uncle Wiggily," the letter said, "I wish when you are out adventuring some day you would stop at my school. I want to talk to you about your two little bunny girls, Jingle and Jangle." The rabbit gentleman read the note through and then he said:

"Oh, dear me, and here's a P. S., too." He noticed these two letters at the bottom of the note.

"What does P. S. stand for?" asked Mrs. Longears.

"Pretty sassy, if you ask me!" squeaked Nurse Jane. "I suppose Jingle and Jangle have been sassy to the Lady Mouse Teacher and she wants to tell Uncle Wiggily about it. P. S. Pretty sassy. Ho! Hum!"

"Nothing of the sort!" cried the rabbit gentleman excitedly, twinkling his pink nose. "P. S. means some more coming."

"More to the letter?" asked his wife.

"Yes," he answered. "Here it is," and he read: "P. S.—You had best come after school, Uncle Wiggily, so I can talk to you about Jingle and Jangle when the boys and girls are out of the way."

"Oh, it must be something terrible!" squeaked Nurse Jane.

"Dear me, hum, suz, dud!" sighed the rabbit lady mother.

"I'll soon find out about it!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "I'll go look for an adventure to calm my mind and then I'll stop at the Hollow Stump School to find out what is wrong with Jingle and Jangle."

So a little later that afternoon, having had an adventure of helping a dried leaf find a warm place to sleep for the night in a hollow stump, Uncle Wiggily stopped at the animal school. The Lady Mouse was inside, cleaning off the blackboards.

"What about Jingle and Jangle?" asked the bunny, nervous like.

"Oh, it isn't so terrible!" laughed the Lady Mouse. "I hope you haven't worried. It is just that they do not pay enough attention to their home work. They are good in school, but they don't seem to like to do their home work. And I was wondering if you couldn't think of a way to have them study a little at home. You are so clever."

"Thank you," said Mr. Longears. "I'll try." So he and the Lady Mouse fixed up a little secret between them. And that night, after supper in the hollow stump bungalow, Uncle Wiggily took out a book and, opening it, sighed:

"Oh, dear!"

"What's the matter?" asked Jingle, who, with Jangle, was playing cat's cradle in a corner.

"I can't seem to do my home work!" sighed Uncle Wiggily. "It is so hard! How do you spell house, Jingle?"

"H-o-u-s-e—of course," recited the little rabbit girl.

"It isn't so hard after all," said Uncle Wiggily. "And how much are five and three, Jangle?"

"Eight, of course!" she answered with a laugh. "That's easy! But why are you doing school home work, Daddicums?" she asked.

"Oh, I just wanted to see if I had forgotten all I learned when I was a rabbit boy," was the answer. "I think I could remember and do my home work if I had some one to help me. But no one will!"

"I will!" cried Jingle eagerly.

"And so will I!" added Jangle, and Uncle Wiggily smiled beneath his pink, twinkling nose. Then he pretended to study his spelling and number work, making believe it was very hard. But the two little rabbit girls helped him, saying the lessons were the same as those they had.

And, would you ever believe it? Next day in the Hollow Stump School Jingle and Jangle knew their home work better than any of the others.

"How did it happen?" asked the Lady Mouse. But the little rabbit girls could not tell. I wonder if you can? Anyhow if the white horse doesn't turn red when the jumping jack feeds him a cinnamon lollypop, I'll tell you again about Uncle Wiggily.

Was In Agony With Blisters On Hands Cuticura Healed

"Eczema broke out in very small blisters on the backs of my fingers. After a few days the blisters would break and then dry up. It itched and burned terribly and scratching caused very red eruptions. I could not put my hands in water or do any work without wearing rubber gloves. I could not sleep nights on account of the irritation, and was in agony most of the time. The trouble lasted about a year.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some. After using them a short time I could see an improvement. I continued the treatment and now I am healed." (Signed) Miss Bernice Shannon, R. F. D. 2, Orleans, Vt., Sept. 15, 1925.

Became So Weak Could Hardly Stand

Mrs. Wm. Palmer, Tomahawk, Alta., writes:—"Last spring I had a long spell of sickness and became so weak I could hardly stand. I could not sleep at night as the least little noise would wake me up. I tried blood tonics and other nerve pills, but they did me no good, and I was getting worse.

I wrote my mother about my condition, and she sent me three boxes of

THE GREENE Christmas Radio Club

Went over with such a rush that the entire 25 sets were practically cleaned up in the first week. We judged by the insistent demand, that the public had awakened to the outstanding efficiency of the Day-Fan, and were ready to instal a receiving set that is able to retain its position in the radio world as "A Year Ahead." The fact that the great broadcasting stations use Day-Fan to listen to their own programmes is proof of the selectivity and beauty of reproduction given by this marvellous set.

Day-Fan RADIO

To avoid disappointing those who were unable to secure one of our first 25 Club outfits, we have secured another lot, having a few additional special features to the first lot, a 4-tube set with Bakelite front panel, speaker connection in front, etc., and can now offer:

25 more Club sets complete, installed in the home, ready for operation, for only

LIBERALS HOLD GOOD MEETING

Dr. W. G. Robertson Upholds O.T.A. at Hastings Gathering.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

(Examiner Special Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Nov. 25. — "Beware of the talk here tomorrow night that liquor control is an advanced temperance method," said Dr. W. G. Robertson, the Liberal candidate in Northumberland, here on Tuesday night, in an obvious anticipation of the meeting yesterday evening in the interest of the Conservative nomiee, Mayor F. J. McArthur of Cobourg.

"As to that I refer you to the action of the Hon. W. F. Nickle, who has forsaken Ferguson and is standing in support of the O.T.A.."

Dr. Robertson continued: "I might also point out that the president of the Conservative party there is also the president of the Corbyville Distillery. And I'd like to ask the representative of the Conservative party where he expects to get his support, and by whom he was brought out. I believe he is a temperance man himself, and when he comes before you, he won't say he is a leader of the wets. Still he must be led forth by the wets. It seems rather unscrupulous to try to take the other man's platform.

Another Plebiscite

Temperance people should also remember that the result of this vote will be considered as a plebiscite decision. If I am not elected I will not regard it from any standpoint of my own, but it will show that many have put party allegiance before their temperance principles. I am quite reconciled to remain by the verdict of the people.

Liquor control backed up by the liquor interests means increased sales of liquor. The last time this was brought forward was through the Moderation League. This time they are not coming so directly."

Dr. Robertson said that more liquor among the people would cause more unhappiness and more inefficiency in industry.

"I doubt if there is any family in Hastings in distress today from liquor. I would like to suggest to all temperance people that they ask themselves: "How did I vote on the referendum?" Then how did you vote on the plebiscite of two years ago? Then, remembering that this is practically another plebiscite, vote endum and the plebiscite so in this case I'll vote for the man who will say: "As I voted on the referstands four square for the O.T.A. and temperance."

Acknowledging that some Liberals were reported to be looking away from their party, Dr. Robertson said, "I ask them to consider who forced this moral issue on the electors? The Liberals felt that it should be kept out of politics, and Mr. Ferguson said the people should not be divided politically on this subject.

"Tomorrow night it may be said here that you heard nothing about the Ferguson government except the O.T.A. I haven't time to go over its record, but I might mention the redistribution that united the two Northumberlands and now the riding extends from Trenton almost to Peterborough and from Campbellford to Cobourg. I am told that our population is twice that of the Premier's own riding. At the nominations it was said that I wanted representation by area or earth rather than by population. What I do claim is that the intelligence of the people of Northumberland is higher than that of many of the foreigners in some parts of Toronto. I could refer to the expenditure which I think is running rather wild. And as for the reduction of the automobile license fee it looks like a five-dollar bribe. The government expects that liquor receipts will be large enough to take care of that, but you'll pay the five dollars back in many ways.

I notice that the speakers who are coming here tomorrow night are not from Northumberland but from Toronto. They are going to tell Northumberland people what they should do. If they have the same results as in the Federal campaign I hope they will come often I will be well satisfied if you do for me as well as you did for Billy Fraser.

It looks like a sugar-coated pill they are bringing tomorrow night. They are keeping the wet influence up their sleeves and they are pleading to the temperance people to stay with their party and carry Howard Ferguson to victory. I'm not here to solicit votes from any others than those who support the O.T.A., with the exception of Liberals whom I ask to bear with me. I believe the O.T.A. is the best temperance legislation we have ever had in the statues of Ontario."

Mr. J. Collins was chairman of the meeting, and other speakers were Mrs. Richards of Warkworth and Sam Clarke of Cobourg. Interludes to the addresses were a vocal solo by Miss Jessie Wilcox accompanied by Miss Doxsee, and Miss Ada Bond's recitation of "The Face on the Bar-room Floor."

Mr. Sam Clarke, ex-M.P.P.

Of Mr. Ferguson personally, Mr. Clarke said that as a friend he had nothing to say against him, "but Howard Ferguson never played straight on the O.T.A. Hearst brought in the O.T.A. during war time because he was scared to death by that committee of One Hundred in Toronto. It was brought in by a Tory Government, that's true, and all the Liberal party voted for it. When we brought in the bill to abolish the bar, not one of the Conservatives voted for it, and they try to tell you the Tory party is the temperance party.

For twenty years this country has been on the upgrade morally. We are in better shape than we were twenty or ten years ago, with all due respect to our friends who talk of the bootleggers. At the Rosenheath Fair I didn't see one man the worse for liquor. Twenty years ago you'd see a hundred. If you let it back into government control and I wouldn't trust a Grit Government let alone Conservative, I'd trust no government to open shops all over, in Campbellford, Hastings, Cobourg, Colborne, so men could get all the liquor they want ,we'd have more damnable conditions than ever existed. We've got away from it. They tell me bootlegging is going on. That's quite true. A few young fellows will get a bottle or two, get drunk and make a noise, but 25 years ago every Saturday in Cobourg we'd have 15 bars and two shops running full blast, and we'd have scores of drunken men every day in the week. You've got men drinking here in Hastings; you'll have men drinking here for the next fifty years, but thank God you won't have them by the hundreds."

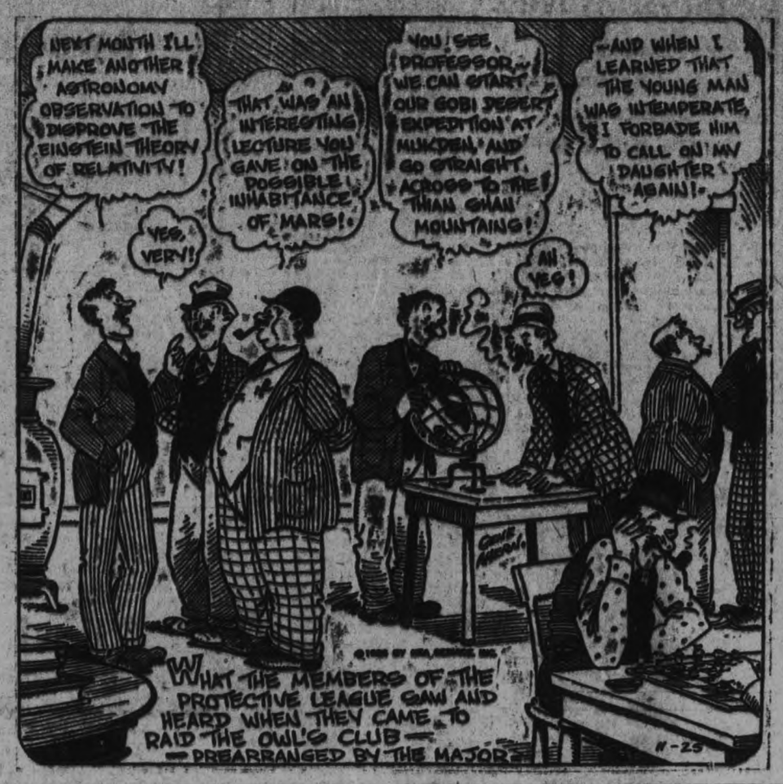
Nickle Then and Now

In her address, Mrs. Richards referred to the temperance example set by Sir George E. Foster, former Conservative Minister at Ottawa, in his appeal for the retention of the O.T.A. She also quoted Hon. W. F. Nickle:

"When Mr. Ferguson searched Ontario for an Attorney-General, and his choice finally rested on Mr. Nickle, he was lauded all over Ontario for his choice. Mr. Nickle today is the same man of integrity and high principle he was then."

True prohibitionists will vote against Howard Ferguson. If you feel that you want a liquor stand around the corner, and the old licenses returned under a different form, vote for Mr. McArthur. He will be a loyal supporter of Mr. Ferguson. But if you want the old O.T.A. enforced, if you want to hold fast to the best temperance legislation we've had in three-quarters of a century, mark your ballots for Dr. Robertson. He wants the O.T.A. retained."

OUR BOARDING HOUSE - - - - - - - - By AHERN



SOUVENIR HUNTERS

The Norge, the famous dirigible which flew across the North Pole, recently arrived in the United States.

It came down the coast from Alaska on board a vessel, securely packed and crated.

According to press reports, when it landed at the Seattle Harbor, armed guards were forced to watch the crates every minute.

This precaution was necessary to prevent the army of souvenir hunters from wrecking the aircraft in its mad desire to carry off parts of the equipment as mementoes of the famous flight.

When the Shenandoah the navy's monster airship, crashed into the fields near Ava, Ohio, a year ago, fourteen men were killed.

The bodies of these victims of the catastrophe had hardly been removed before souvenir hunting ghouls began stripping the remains of the wreck.

They even broke pieces from the motors and stole the log book and barometers before a guard could be thrown around the wreckage.

When the mournful Harding special was bearing the body of the dead president back to Washington, at some stops along the route the train had hardly begun to pull out of the station before there was a scrambling rush to get pennies which had been put on the tracks to be kept as souvenirs.

Plymouth Rock, famous in America's history, has to have a steel railing around it to keep the patriotic vistors from chipping off pieces as souvenirs.

The sordid side of public interest is seen in the souvenir hunting madness, especially in times of great catastrophe.

Being interested in celebrities and great events is a valuable human attribute.

But when this interest is uncontrolled by finer sensibilities it runs amuck and turns otherwise respectable citizens into hoodlums and vandals.

LEAGUE MAY FIX GUILT FOR WAR

German Reichstag Will Ask For Decision on Matter.

BERLIN, Nov. 25 (United Press) — The League of Nations or the World Court at The Hague may be called upon to determine whether or not Germany merits sole guilt for causing the world war as a result of a motion adopted by the Reichstag to-day.

The non-Socialist parties proposed the motion which urged the Government to investigate the possibility that the League or the court might consider the question of war guilt.

INHERITED TRAITS SHOW IN CHILDREN

Weddings of First Cousins Bring Out Dormant Characteristics.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

One of the most common questions that disturbs the minds of many people is whether the marriage of first cousins is desirable. There is a sort of superstition that the offspring of such a union are bound to be defective either mentally or physically.

First cousins who have married watch with the greatest of anxiety to find out whether the children who are apparently healthful and intelligent will begin to deteriorate as they increase in age.

Accentuating Types.

The actual facts are that close relationship of persons who are married is likely to accentuate dominant characteristics in the offspring, whether good or evil.

Any traits manifested by the children are a reflection of the traits of their ancestors. If certain defects are prominent, these will be developed with results that are disastrous. Every person carries in his body not only evident characteristics, but innumerable latent features which he himself has inherited from ancestors, but which have not become manifest.

When two such concealed tendencies are brought together, as is more likely to occur in cousin marriages than in the mating between unrelated persons, these latent characteristics are more likely to become fully expressed in the children.

Among the characteristics which sometimes remain dormant in a sound stock are epilepsy, various insanities and types of body structure associated with such diseases as tuberculosis.

Revealing Traits.

As long as these tendencies are dominated by more normal tendencies, they may do no harm, but the marriage of cousins may bring them to light.

There are few families that do not possess some undesirable hereditary traits. If cousins decide to marry, they should do so with the knowledge of extra dangers that they impose on their prospective children.

If each of the parents is sound physically and mentally and if the ancestry is apparently equally sound, there are no more likely to be defective children from marriage of cousins than from any other marriage. Desirable traits will be manifested to the same extent as the undesirable.

THEY DON'T GO TO JAIL NOW AND THE REASON THROWS UGLY LIGHT ON O.T.A.

The Prohibition Union quotes the small number of "drunks" committed to the local jail in the last two years as a proof that the Ontario Temperance Act is a success.

Really the Union should endeavor to know more about the O.T.A. in commending it to the voters.

Quoting jail committments as evidence of the effectiveness of the measure shows that Prohibitionists are blind to the ugly situation that has developed under the O.T.A

Few people go to jail for being drunk nowadays, and the explanation is one that throws some light upon the vicious condition of affairs that exists as a result of the Ontario Temperance Act.

The underhand nature of the liquor traffic as we have it today naturally serves to keep "drunks" out of the hands of the police.

In the first place the drinking is not centralized in the downtown district as it was in bar-room days when those under the influence of liquor were under the eyes of the police force.

Secondly, the penalties under the Act are so severe and there is the ever present risk that the arrest of a drunken man will mean a jail sentence for the individual who supplied him with liquor, that every effort is made to keep those who have imbibed too deeply from falling foul of the police. And in these days of course the motor car is of much more assistance than in the days of the open bar.

In spite of these facts, however, 69 drunks could not be kept out of the way of the police here last year, and were charged in the local police court.

Only four of these were committed to jail.

The remaining 65 paid fines of $10.00 or $25.00 for being drunk. Voters of Peterborough; study those figures.

Only four out of 69 people went tto jail for failure to pay their O.T.A. fines.

How is it that men of the same type who served a jail sentence in default of the payment of a $2.00 fine before the O.T.A. came into effect are able to pay $10.00 or $25.00 now?

The answer is obvious to those who know anything about the inner workings of the O.T.A.

Under that Act a man charged with being drunk can be put in the box and questioned as to the source of his liquor supply.

If he tells the truth it means a jail sentence for the person who sold him the liquor.

It is decidedly in the interest of that person that he shouldn't tell the truth.

Nine times out of ten he doesn't; he goes into the witness box and tells a cock-and-bull story about some mysterious stranger.

"The Arabian Nights' Entertainment" doesn't contain anything half so fantastic as the explanations that are made in the Peterborough Police court week after week in the O.T.A. cases.

Nobody puts any credence in these stories, but there is nothing the magistrate can do but fine the offender as heavily as the Act permits; his fine is paid, and the identity of the bootlegger who supplied him the liquor is kept secret.

In short, to save their own skins the bootleggers have been paying the fines of the majority of offenders charged with being drunk; no other explanation is possible.

Our Prohibition Union friends don't tell you anything about this, possibly because they are as ill informed on this point as they are on other features of the O.T.A., but the plain ugly explanation of the few jail committments for drunkenness under that Act is wholesale perjury committed to save the bootlegger who reciprocates for the protection thus afforded him by paying the fine of the perjurer.

Putting it mildly, there has been more false evidence, more perjury in the local police court under the O.T.A than was known there in the whole period of its existence before that Act was placed on the Statute books.

When you vote to maintain the O.T.A. you vote also to keep up this alarming, this vicious situation, involving perjury on the grand scale and with the illegal liquor traffic paying the shot to save the man higher up.

Isn't that a condition that calls for earnest thought?

Is a Prohibition law that not only fails to prohibit but causes scores of men to lie under oath in return for financial assistance from bootleggers who are thus kept out of jail worth keeping on the Statute books.

Thousands of voters who know the facts do not think so and on December 1st they are going to support a temperance measure that can be enforced by voting for.

MINSTREL SHOW GREAT SUCCESS

Large Attendance at Entertainment at Lyceum. Last Night.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

(By Jeanette.)

There was a splendid attendance in the hall of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last evening for the Minstrel Show put on by Mr. Ed. Leonard and his boys, under the auspices of the Immaculate Conception parish. The young men had a good programme of entertainment for the evening, and received plenty of applause and encores for their efforts.

The stage was arranged in red, white and blue, with a false ceiling of streamers in the three colors, and flags decorated the background. The end men, six in numbers, in blackface, had striking get-up, in bright colors, with headgear that ranged all the way from tiny, feather-decked straws to stovepipe lids, and the soloists and chorus men were in snappy summer attire of black and white. Mr Hugh Lush acted as interlocutor, in his usual very effective style. Mr. Ed. Leonard was director of the show, and Rev. James Guiry its patron.

The chorus, which contributed efficient vocal support to the various numbers, was composed of Messrs. George Furphy, Ted Markham, Howard Ralph, Clif Paton, Charles McGillen, Harold Ralph, E Vinette, Gordon Grisdale, Ed. O'Rourke, and Roy Welsh. The orchestra, which played during the intermission, and at the opening and closing of the programme, included Frank Kearney at the piano, Dick Morrison and W. J. Smith, violins, Lex McCormack, traps, and Joe Kearns, saxaphone.

End men, who got off several good quips and related numerous jokes, were Frank Clarke, Bob Armstrong, Michael Clancy, Ed. Leonard, Max Peters and Earl Spellman.

Vocal solos, several having an augmented interest in the steps which accompanied their choruses, were given by Emo Leonard, in "I Wish you were Jealous of me," Bob Armstrong, in "So's your's Old Lady." Arnold Everett, in "In a Wonderful World of our Own," Earl Spellman, in "Mary Lou," Maurice Leonard, in "In the Garden of To-Morrow," John Holland in "I Wish I had my Old Pal Back Again," Max Peters in "A Dippy Man's Lullaby," the ludicrous selection which always gets repeated applause; Joe Clancy, whose exceptionally deep bass voice was heard to much advantage in "Little Connemara Rose," and Michael Clancy, in "Someone's Losing Susan," a bright number that took very well. Mr. Frank Clarke also contributed heartily applauded banjo numbers in his own skilful style, and Ed. Leonard wound up the first portion of the show with a vocal rendition of the fetching number, "Hey Diddle Diddle."

The oleo opened with a monologue, delivered in his usual expert fashion by Mr. Jack Primeau, who gave "Little Tommy's Excuse," and "How the Book Agent Beat the Bandit," and had as a second number, the hit of the evening, in accordeon numbers by George Furphy, whose playing proved a "knockout" with the audience, and who was compelled to return again and again before his listeners were satisfied. For rhythmic rendition of popular favorites on the accordeon, this youthful performer has seldom been equalled in this city, in amateur ranks.

Again Mr. Clarke delighted his hearers with some old Southern melodies, played on his banjo, including the ever-popular "Watermelon Growin' on the Vine," its refrain sung by the player, and Mrs. Joseph Dwyer's attractive voice was heard in "When the Angelus is Ringing in Ireland," with an encore, and accompaniments played by Mrs. F. A. Hodgson.

Mrs. F. A. Hodgson gave a pianoforte solo, entitled "Spring Showers," its descriptive measures rendered with expert musicianship, and the "Vagabond Band," a sextette of youthful musicians, whose tattered outfits gave a pictureseque touch to their appearance, played several well received numbers. The personnel of this band is as follows: Arnold Smith, pianist, Hosanna Vinette, violinist and leader, Lex McCormack, traps, James Lang, saxaphone, Jim McCormack, banjo and Elmer Jordan banjo and guitar.

Mr. Arnold Everett's very fine voice was heartily applauded in the solo, "Azra," and Mr. E. Leonard did some of his "Radio Broadcasting" steps in excellent style. The performance ended with a final rousing chorus by the ensemble.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, thanked personally the performers for the excellent programme presented by them, also acknowledging the services of "the distinguished artists who do not belong to this parish," and who helped so materially in the success of the entertainment.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CITY SUSTAINS LOSS

active interest in its affairs until two months ago, when the illness that resulted in his demise overtook him. For many years he was a member of the Little Lake Cemetery Board.

He was the first honorary member of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club, being given that honor in recognition of his many public-spirited services.

As a tribute to his connection with the insurance profession he was appointed a life member of the Life Underwriter's Association.

Mr. Rush was one of the oldest surviving members of the Masonic Order in the city. He was initiated in Peterborough Lodge in the year 1873 and rose in the membership and service to the Mastership of the Lodge in 1876, and again in 1888. He was made a life member of the lodge on December 27, 1892. In 1921 he was made a life member of Corinthian lodge and was further honored by being made a life member of Royal Arthur Lodge during the same year.

He was prominent in the sister organization connected with Freemasonry, being elected a member of the Royal Arch Chapter on April 24, 1874, and after years of service was made a life member.

For many years he was the representative of Peterborough lodges at the assemblies of the Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario, holding several offices in the Grand Lodge.

He was the recipient of many honors from the Masonic lodges in the city, receiving worthy gifts of distinction. He served as District Deputy Grand Master in the districts encircling the Peterborough lodges.

During 1925 he was presented by Grand Lodge with the gift of the Long Service Jewel which is accorded only to members of the Craft who have been connected with their Mother Lodge for fifty consecutive years. This distinction comes to very few members.

Born at Diss, in the County of Norfolk, England, on April 19, 1846, he came to Canada at the age of thirteen years, landing in Cobourg in the autumn of 1859. He went to school there for one year and worked on a farm for two years, when he then came to Peterborough to clerk in a grocery store. In 1876 he went into business as a grocer. In 1885, owing to ill health, he sold the business and became connected with the Confederation Life Association.

Mr. Rush was a veteran of the Fenian raid of 1866 and held the medal issued for that campaign. Joining the Militia organized in Peterborough in 1863, he was for many years identified with the local corps (afterwards the 57th Regiment).

During the Great War, he was associated with several patriotic campaigns, more particularly with the Patriotic Fund Campaign and the Red Cross. When the Patriotic Fund was organized in the city, and affiliated with the Ottawa organization, Mr. Rush was placed on the distribution committee of the fund, being still a member at the time of his death.

Mr. Rush was a staunch member of St. John's Anglican Church and was appointed Church Warden several times.

Left to mourn his loss are his sorrowing wife (formerly Miss Mary Bouskill of Port Hope); one son, Henry Rush; two daughters, Marion, wife of the Rev. Canon F. J. Sawers of Toronto, formerly of St. Luke's Church, Peterborough, and Miss Maud Howard Rush, at home.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 182 McDonnel Street tomorrow (Friday) afternoon, at two o'clock, to St. John's Anglican Church, and then to the Little Lake Cemetery.

UNIONS DECIDE TO LEAVE WORK

Trainmen and Conductors Will Strike Unless Granted Increase.

NO DATE FIXED.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—The full committee of the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen have endorsed the action of their membership, voting in favor of a peaceful withdrawal from the railway services.

The endorsation came after more than 300 representatives of unions throughout Canada had conferred on the matter both yesterday and part of today.

At 2.30 this afternoon S. N. Berry, Senior Vice President of the Order of Railroad Conductors, acting as spokesman for the men, made the following announcement: "The full committee of the Order of Railroad Conductors and the Brotherhood of Roalroad Trainmen have endorsed the action of their membership in voting for a peaceful withdrawal from the railroad service unless a satisfactory settlement can otherwise be secured.

"The officials of the railroads and the Department of Labor of the Dominion Government have been so notified."

Mr. Berry stated that no date had been decided when the men will be asked to quit work. He refused to discuss the matter and stated that this was a matter for the representatives to decide. He stated, however, that the committee hoped to arrive at a decision by tomorrow, but that it might posibly be delayed, pending action on the part of the railroads in Canada. It is believed that the men will await the outcome of the wage award to men in similar positions on United States lines.

RESTRICTIONS ON COAL MODIFIED

Steady Increase in Output Warrants British Action.

(New York Herald-Tribune Special Cable.

LONDON, Nov. 25. — Important modifications of the government restrictions on coal supplies will be made, beginning to-day, it was announced in the House of Commons yesterday.

According to a statement by Col. Lane Fox, secretary of the Mines Department, the steady increase in the coal output has warranted an immediate removal of restrictions, even though the supplies still are far short of the normal demand.

The normal production of coal at this time of year is more than 3,000,000 tons a week. The present production is about 2,000,000 tons, but this will increase rapidly as more miners have returned to work.

At present there are nearly 420,000 men in the pits, nearly half of the number for whom work can be found at the outset.

Every Man Past 40 Should Make This Test

For Amazing and Lasting Relief From Middle-Age Ailments That Cause Daily Annoyance and Sap Vital Force.

No longer need men near or past the prime of life put up with these painful and often embarrassing conditions brought on by overworked, sluggish Kidneys, Bladder Weakness and Prostrate Gland Trouble, with their distressing symptoms of Lameness, Pains in back and down through groins, scanty but frequent and burning urination, "Getting-up-nights," Nervous Irritability and lack of force—because a ten-day test of Dr. Southworth's URATABS will convince the most skeptical of the value of this special treatment for their particular case.

Amazing testimony of Physicians and users gives convincing proof of the power of URATABS to restore Health and Strength to a weakened, inflamed or irritated Bladder and Urinary Tract. A multitude of alarming symptoms seem to quickly disappear—and you see and feel a truly genuine improvement often within two or three days. "No more Backaches, no more pain, no more embarrassment or Getting-up-nights. I now sleep soundly and get up in the morning full of "pep", thanks to URATABS!"

While new to the general public the wondrous value of URATABS has been thoroughly proven by nearly 40 years of successful use in the private practice of Dr. H. C. Southworth. MATTER LEFT TO CANADIANS International Officers of Railway Unions Won't Interfere.

PROMISE SUPPORT.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press). — That the international officers of the Order of Railway Conductors were leaving it entirely in the hands of the Canadian membership to make their own decision, unbiased and unfettered, in the railway crisis which may result in 15,000 conductors and trainmen on Canadian lines receiving notification to cease work, that these officers were in Montreal merely to advise and counsel, and that if as a last resort the men proceeded to extreme measures, they would, as members of an international organization, get exactly the same support as the United States workers would receive, was the purport of a statement made in an interview to the newspapers by L. E. Sheppard, international president of the Order of Railway Conductors, who arrived in Montreal to-day.

Mr. Sheppard will sit in at the conference of the representatives of the conductors and trainmen which is deciding the course to be taken, now that the men from coast to coast have registered an overwhelming majority vote in favor of rejecting the award of the Board of Conciliation regarding the wage increase asked for.

Questioned as to his view of the immediate outlook and whether, in his opinion, a strike was imminent, the head of the railway conductors said: "While negotiations are going on, we do not think it wise to advertise any difference as we do not wish to alarm the public. As for the possibility of a strike, that is always a possibility at any time, because the organization is a protective labor association. But our organization will do everything possible in this case to avoid a conflict. Unfortunately, when railroad men fall out with employers, it inconveniences the public, and therefore they refrain from resorting to extremes until every other possible avenue has been tried.

"The men have been very patient," Mr. Sheppard added, "and they are hopeful that the employers will find a way to increase their compensation and approve their request."

STEAMER AGROUND.

Vessel Will Be Total Loss, It Is Feared, Due To Storm.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—The steel steamer Herman Hettler, which went aground Tuesday night on Grand Island, north of Munising, still was fast this morning, heavy seas rendering assistance impossible.

The Hettler, seeking shelter during Tuesday night's storm, ran her bow up on the north-eastern end of the island, and it is feared a shift in the wind will break up the vessel.

Two tugs sent from here were unable to get near the Hettler and were forced into shelter in the Batchewanna Bay.

Fishermen took off the crew of thirteen men yesterday.

CHANGE IN TITLE DOESN'T AFFECT ULSTER STATUS

Term Ireland Used Solely as Geographical Designation.

VICTORIA'S STAND.

Australian States Not Vassals of Commonwealth Government.

LONDON, Nov. 25.— (Canadian Press Cable.)— Sir William Joynson Hicks, Home Secretary, has issued a statement that the proposed change in the King's title, as decided upon by the Imperial Conference, will not affect the constitutional position of Northern Ireland. He explains that it is descriptive title on geographical, not political lines of the territories of which His Majesty is King and the term "Ireland," like the other terms in the proposed title, has geographical significance only.

The use of the term Ireland in nowise affects the distinction between the Irish Free State and Northern Ireland as politcal entities, the Home Secretary points out, and all the suggestions of the proposed title giving the Free State government authority to act for the whole of Ireland are entirely groundless. Northern Ireland, as before, remains outside of the jurisdiction of the Free State Parliament and Free State government, and within the jurisdiction of the British Parliament and British government in respect to all matters not delegated to its own parliament or government.

VICTORIA SOVEREIGN STATE.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 25.— (Canadian Press Cable Via Reuters).—Premier John Allan, of Victoria, in an interview to-day said that no resolution passed by the Imperial Conference would override the Australian Federal and State constitutions and Victoria, as a soverign state, would continue its present practice of communicating with the Imperial government until a direct arrangement for a change was made between the Imperial and State governments.

Premier Allan added that the Australian States had a different status from that of the Canadian and South African provinces and the Australian States were not vassals of the commonwealth.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL STILL.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(By Cable from George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press.) —The Imperial Conference made no change in the title "Governor-General.' There was a story current that the title was changed from Governor-General to Governor, but examination of the official report showed it to be unfounded.

Baldwin Questioned.

LONDON, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—Premier Baldwin, replying in the House of Commons to-day to several questions with regard to the work of the Inter-Imperial Relations Committee of the Imperial Conference, said the right of Governors-General to refuse assent to Dominion Parliamentary measures or to reserve measures for the consideration of the Crown was not dealt with by the committee. He was not aware of any change contemplated in the right of veto, he added.

One of the questions touched on appeals from the Dominions to the Privy Council. Premier Baldwin said he was unable to give assurance that the Imperial Parliament would be consulted regarding a change in the right of judicial appeal from the courts of India and the Dominion.

KING IN LONDON MAKING CALLS

Will Leave on Saturday For Paris For Short Visit.

HOME DECEMBER 8.

LONDON, Nov. 25 (By cable from George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent of The Canadian Press). —Premier Mackenzie King, who is back from Edinburgh, is spending the day clearing up his business here and is making social calls. He called to bid good-bye to the Prince of Wales at noon today.

The only remaining function in connection with the Imperial Conference which closed on Tuesday, is the farewell dinner to be given to the Dominion Premiers in the Royal Gallery of the House of Lords tomorrow night by the Empire Parliamentary Association.

Premier King will go to Paris on Saturday. He is due to arrive in New York on the Majestic on December 7, and he will be in Ottawa on December 8.

In the course of the session of Parliament at Ottawa Premier Mackenzie King proposes to make a statement reviewing the work of the Imperial Conference.

DETROIT WINS BY FINAL RALLY

Only Goal of Game Comes Few Minutes From End.

AT CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 25.—Held scoreless until the last period, the Detroit Cougars staged a last minute rally and beat the Chicago Black Hawks here last night when Frederickson of Detroit, took a pass from Kitchen and drove the winning point into the Chicago net in 15 minutes.

The game was a very tame affair for two periods. The last period things began to happen, with both sides trying desperately to score. McKay, centre for Chicago, played great hockey. Sheppard, Walker and Fredrickson looked good for Detroit. The teams:

Referee—Lou Marsh, Toronto.

The Summary.

First Period.

No score.

Second Period.

No score.

Third Period.

1. Detroit ..Fredrickson ...15.00

Final score—Detroit 1, Chicago 0.

Penalties—Haldeson 2, Fraser 2, Gordon, Sheppard, Loughlin, Wilson, Trapp.

HARRY WATSON OUT TO PRACTICE

Other Stars Turn Out With North Toronto Seniors.

Jimmy McFadyen gave the rail birds something to talk about when he dropped his North Toronto senior hockey squad over the fence at the Arena Gardens last night for the initial practice. Harry Watson was one of the first players on the ice and he was soon followed by Alex Romeril, Ross Paul, Fred Miller, Tracy Shaw, Allan Lamport, the former Upper Canada defence star; Hardy, last season with the North Toronto intermediates; McCaffery, of Newmarket; Courtney and Crook, last two goalkeepers. And Jack Cameron, the former Olympic net guardian, is expected out next week, as well as Hugh Fox, former Granite star. While Fox and Romeril have played very little hockey the past two seasons, there is no reason why they should not do a real comeback and be almost as good as they ever were.

Whether Harry Watson, Ross Paul and Fred Miller will stay with the North Enders or return to Parkdale, with whom they were last winter, is not definitely known, but anyway, Jimmy McFadyen should have little trouble rounding out a team capable of holding its own in the Senior O.H.A. series. Watson, Miller and Paul would give North Toronto a great forward line, while Alex Romeril and Allan Lamport appeared to advantage on the defence last night. McCaffery, the Newmarket boy, can play either forward or defence, and he is good.—Mailand Empire.

BADMINTON CLUB.

F. Bowness Elected President For Ensuing Season.

A brief meeting of the Badminton Club was held last evening, to elect officers, as follows: President, Mr. F. Bowness; vice-president, Mr. W. R. Fox; secretary-treasurer, Miss C. Littlefield. Committee, Mrs. P. Manning, Mrs. Fox, Mr. Kline.

The executive will meet at seven o'clock on Monday, to draw up the schedule of games for the season.

His Fiancee No Help Wants License Fee Back

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., Nov. 25 (United Press).—Meyer Lavine, 51, San Rafael junk dealer, appeared at the office of the county clerk with grinning and blushing Lura Lin, 52, 'San Francisco, at his side.

For $2 he bought a wedding license and away he went with Lura, presumably happy. He reappeared twenty-four hours later, but Lura Lin was not at his side. He demanded the return of his $2.

"She can't talk English so good," he said. "She just came over from Russia. She couldn't help in my store, so I ain't going to marry her. I ought to have my money back."

The county clerk paid the $2.

GIVE MOTHER A VACUETTE CLEANER

Offered For a Short Time at the Turnbull Store at Almost Half Price.

A golden opportunity to secure "Mothers'" Christmas box is being presented at the J. C. Turnbull Company's store, as the manufacturers of the Vacuette, non-electric vacuum cleaner, are sacrificing nearly half the regular selling price these indispensable household helps to introduce this special model to Canadian women. The cleaner is not electric, but is better. There is no expense for electricity, but with one glide over a rug, and lint, thread, dust and imbedded dirt disappear like magic.

The cleaner is very simple in construction and needs no repairs, and is so light that a child can carry it upstairs.

The offer to sell one of these $46 cleaners for just $24, is for a limited time only and will be withdrawn as soon as the number set aside for the purpose has been disposed of.

See them demonstrated at the Turnbull Store.

You will find many things in the Classified Ads. of the Examiner.

NOW THEY PLANT "OYSTER TREES"

Birch Branches Are Put in Water To Provide Resting Places.

If you happen to walk on an ocean beach at low tide and see a gang of men working with a scow one tells you the men are planting "oyster trees." For that is exactly what they are doing.

Growing oysters on trees is an accomplished fact, though quite new. The oysters that you eat for dinner very likely spent their youth clinging to the twigs of a birch in the shallow waters of tide flat.

This development, says the October Popular Science Monthly, is part of a scientific program for making sure that your grandchildren, too, will have oysters for dinner. The oyster population has a heavy death rate, and several other influences have so devastated the supply of bivalves that the Government at one time feared it would be exhausted.

Oysters form the basis of the most valuable fishing industry in the United States, with an annual return of nearly $15,000,000 to fishermen. It was thought worth while to save it, and the best way to do it was to provide a suitable place for baby oysters to develop and reach maturity.

When from fourteen to eighteen days old, oyster larvae attach themselves to a smooth surface and remain fixed. The face of a submerged rock is a favorite resting place. A common practice of oyster growers has been to plant empty oyster shells. Other types of "support" or "collectors" have been tried, including alit drainpipes, flowerpots, tiles and stakes. But birch brush, the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries found, provides the best anchorage of all. This brush, with its numerous branches, offers abundant parking space. A single birch brush may become an apartment house for thousands of future oysters. It can be lifted out of the water easily, too.

Within a few years the American coast probably will be lined with submarine forests of oysters.

THEATRE

BUCK JONES HAS NEW BAG OF TRICKS IN "30 BELOW ZERO."

Western Ace Springs Some Hot Stunts in Film of Snow Country.

Buck Jones, whose latest picture, "30 Below Zero," will be seen at the Regent Theatre Friday, could not hide the fact that he started his screen career as a "stunt man" even if he wanted to. Because with every succeeding picture he brings new thrills to the screen.

In "30 Below Zero," his latest Fox film, he abandons the horse and the good, solid earth for the thrills of the air when he embarks on a mammoth airplane headed for Arctic regions. For Buck has remained a stunt man even though he has soared to the heights of stardom.

He has always loved adventure though his bashful, diffident, slow-moving manner and drawling speech would fool anyone. Before entering motion pictures he was a daredevil rider and a cowboy with an uncanny skill for making a rope behave in strange and educated ways, in the "101 Ranch" show.

But the success of this latest entertainment of the great western star does not depend on stunts alone for its appeal. There is real story with plenty of suspense in the latest Fox release, which will be a treat for any audience.

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION MEETS

Queen Mary Branch Hears Good Programme—Reports Received.

An open meeting of Queen Mary Home and School Association was held in the school on Tuesday evening, Nov. 23, at 8 p.m. An excellent musical programme was arranged by the convenor, Mrs. Willison. The programme was as follows:

Piano solo—Mrs. F. A. Hodgson.
Chorus—Pupils from Miss MacNaughton's class, Queen Mary school.
Piano and banjo duet— Mrs. F. A. Hodgson and Mr. Frank Clarke.
Reading—Mr. J. John.
Vocal solo—Mrs. J. Dwyer.
Piano solo—Mrs. Keith Braund.

The secretary's report was read reviewing the year's work of the society and commenting especially on the work of the Home and School Association in putting in the school library over two hundred books chosen from a list recommended by the Education Department.

After a hearty vote of thanks to the entertaining artists, the programme was closed with the National Anthem, after which refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Worsencroft.

Two rooms, Miss MacNaughton's and Mr. Wagar's, tied for possession of the banner for the ensuing month.

The meeting was in charge of Mr. E. G. Wagar, first vice-president.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Charles Willison, who has provided excellent material for the musical programmes during the past season.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS

Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your druggist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.

Mr. Arthur Pinch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried. m-th-31-442

OBITUARY.

MRS. MELVILLE CROWE.

The death occurred at Nicholls Hospital on Thursday, Nov. 25, in the person of Olive Reid, beloved wife of Melville Crowe. There are left to mourn her loss a sorrowing husband and three small children, namely, Zelda, Roy and Reid; also her sorrowing parents, one sister, Myrtle, and one brother, Oscar, all of Young's Point. Deceased, who was twenty-six years and four months of age, was of a kind disposition, and dearly loved by all who knew her.

The funeral will be held from the family residence, Lot 19, Concession 2, of Dummer, on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 27th, at two o'clock, and proceed to Lakefield Cemetery. The service will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Herrington of Warsaw.

HEAVIEST FOGS OF A GENERATION SHROUDS PART OF BRITISH ISLES MANY INJURED IN TRAFFIC JAMS

Much Worse Than "Pea Soup" or "Plag Ordinary" Type.

SHIP IN DISTRESS.

London Was Less Plagued Than Channel or Coastal Cities.

LONDON, November 26. United Press. — Dark fog smothered England, parts of Scotland, and the English channel yesterday. There were patches of what passes for sunlight here and there, but for the most part skippers, pedestrians and chauffeurs manoeuvred themselves or their craft through what the natives of this island proudly called a "blinder and a gasper."

A "blinder and a gasper" is much worse than a "pea soup," which is the term used to describe the "plug ordinary" sort of fogs that visit England at intervals from mid-October until April.,

London, which usually suffers most from fogs, was less plagued Wednesday and yesterday than the channel and coastal cities, although the murk in London did require calcium flares on curbstones to enable bus drivers to keep off the sidewalks. Kent and the inland district was almost as bad as the channel.

The Ramsgate motorboat was out early in response to a message from the Gull lightship that an unidentified steamer was in distress in the vicinity of the Goodwin Sands.

Fog interfered somewhat yesterday with the annual Thanksgiving day golf of the American golfing society, which took place this year at the Swinley Forest Golf Club, near Ascot.

Seventy Injured.

Business and traffic were disorganized. Englishmen got such solace as there may have been in the statement that the fog was the worst in a generation. Accidents were reported from Manchester, Stoke-on-Trent and Glasgow, and there were many slight injuries. About 70 persons were injured, most of them slightly, when two passenger trains collided near Dagenham, Essex. Fifteen persons were injured in Glasgow traffic accidents.

This fog was no light, airy substance such as Americans are accustomed to describe by that name. It was a rich, greenish yellow compound of soft coal soot, moisture and dust particles. Sober citizens in the more affected areas stood close to their front stoops and wondered where they were. A hand thrust at arm's length in front of the body would almost disappear into the eerie sea. Fog drawn into the lungs was likely to induce coughing. Normal street sounds were deadened by the shroud.

Meanwhile from millions of chimney pots throughout the land there emerged furtive columns of soft coal smoke from fire places and cook-stoves to lose themselves in the atmosphere and to add to its murkiness.

John G. Richards, who will become governor of South Carolina in January, is the father of nine daughters.

Germans Urge Inquiry In War Guilt Dispute

BERLIN, Nov. 26. — The League of Nations or the world court at The Hague may be called upon to determine whether or not Germany merits sole guilt for causing the World War as a result of a motion adopted by the Reichstag to-day.

The non-socialist parties proposed the motion which urged the government to investigate the possibility that the league or the court might consider the question of war guilt.

SACRED ROTA CHURCH COURT

Cardinal Says U. S. Catholics Competent Reply To Manning.

NOT CIVIL TRIBUNAL.

ROME, Nov. 26 (United Press).—John, Cardinal Bonzano, who represented Pope Pius last June at the Chicago Eucharistic Congress, told the United Press to-day that there were plenty of Catholic authorities in the United States competent to reply to the criticism of Bishop William T. Manning, of New York, in which he condemned the Catholic Church's annulment of the marriage of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough. It was evident, said Cardinal Bonzano, that the sacred rota was an ecclesiastical court entirely different in its jurisdiction from a civil court.

PASADENA, Nov. 26.—(A.P.)— W. H. Chase promised the police he would get rid of his bees which, Sam Rice reported, have been stinging his gold fish to death when the fish came to the surface of his pond. Chase, who lives next door to Rice, said he was keeping the hive of bees for a friend.

GIVE GRANT OF $200 TOWARDS APSLEY OUTPOST

Serve Townships of Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos and Northern Methuen.

AID TO SETTLERS

Suburban Area Commission Submits Year's Report to County Council.

At the morning session of the County Council yesterday the Suburban Area Commission was present and H. Gainey, the chairman, submitted his report. A grant of $200 was passed by the finance committee to the Red Cross Outpost at Apsley.

This new outpost is to serve the Townships of Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos and Northern Methuen, and will be especially valuable to the residents of these townships in the winter time, when it is so hard to get a sick person out to a hospital. The Red Cross Society has promised to pay the salary of the nurse and the house-keeper, and the townships are to furnish a house.

Reeve Brown of Burleigh and Anstruther, in moving that $200 should be granted by the County Council, said that already the Anglican Church and the United Church in that district had promised to furnish a bed each. He said that this outpost was a real need to those townships, and each township was going to give a bed.

Reeve Scott of Chandos, said it meant a whole lot to that district to get a nurse in there, and that the outpost would be equipped with a modern operating table and all the supplies that are necessary. Reeve Breckenridge of Methuem and Belmont also supported the idea. Reeve Clark of Galway and Cavendish seconded the motion, which carried unanimously.

The Suburban Area Commission has spent to date $27,267.47, and they had $31,000.00 provided for the year's work. Owing to the amount of damage done by trucks this Spring, when the frost was coming out, the Commission have had to pay a great deal more for maintenance than they expected, thus new construction had to be cut.

Mr. Gainey, in speaking, said much

SMITH TRIED ON MURDER CHARGE

Defense Claims That Smith Had Intended to Commit Suicide.

NO UNWRITTEN LAW

MAIDSTONE, England, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press). — "There is no unwritten law in England." This was the outstanding phrase employed by Rolland Oliver, the Crown prosecutor, at the opening of the trial yesterday of Alphonse F. A. Smith, formerly an officer in the Dragoon Guards, charged with murdering his life-long friend, John T. Derham.

On August 12, last, Smith, his wife and Derham were together, in the Smith villa, "Stella Maris," at Whitstable. There was a quarrel and Smith emerged from the struggle badly bruised. Derham was dead. The defence claims that

FAILURE MARKS TRIAL FLIGHT OF BRITISH FLYER

Attempted To Fly "Moth" Plane From Quarantine To Battery.

ARE TOWED IN.

Unable To Take Off on Account of Ground Swell.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press)—Failure marked the attempt yesterday of Sir Alan Cobham, British aviator and lecturer, who arrived on the liner Homeric, to fly a "moth" plane from Quarantine to the Battery, to prove that mails could thus be expedited.

The only time that the small plane soared in the air was when it was hoisted from the aft deck of the Homeric to the water below. After being buffeted by ground swells, the "moth" was finally towed to the Battery and later to Miller's Field, Staten Island.

Sir Alan and Lady Cobham boarded the plane on the ship and were hoisted over the port side without incident. The plane was steadied by guide ropes controlled from the ship, while its wings were unfolded

TORNADO KILLS MANY PEOPLE IN THREE STATES

More Than Fifty Lose Lives in Mississippi States.

DAMAGE HEAVY.

Several Small Towns Have Been Nearly Wiped Out.

Tornadoes that swept through scattered sections of Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri and Mississippi late yesterday, last night, and early to-day, took a toll of at least 71 lives, injured scores and left a trail of smashed and damaged buildings.

The known death list in Arkansas was 38, Louisiana 16, Mississippi 9, all negroes, and Missouri 8.

A late November tornado, travelling a zig-zag path through portions of Louisiana, Arkansas and Missouri, turned Thanksgiving day into a day of sorrow for hundreds of persons.

More than 50 were killed and probably several hundred injured, as the twister tore through several small communities, mowing down scores of homes and disrupting communications. The damage was estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

The storm, apparently an intensification of the disturbance which has been pushing eastward from the Pacific Coast, struck with its greatest fury in Central Arkansas and then moved north through the centre of the state into Missouri, where it brought death and destruction to several widely scattered communities. An off-shoot also caused numerous deaths and considerable damage in Louisana. Heavy rains accom-

Premier Ferguson's Damaging Admissions

PREMIER FERGUSON SAY: "Do not judge Government Sale by conditions in Province of Quebec,

"or the Province of Manitoba,

"or the Province of Saskatchewan,

"or the Province of British Columbia,

"in all of which they have Government Sale.

"Our system of sale is modeled largely on the Alberta system and is better than any of the others."

In other words Premier Ferguson admits that Government Sale has failed in four of the five provinces that are trying it. He does not like to have the public told about the real conditions in these provinces. His government even seized the slides of a speaker from Quebec who was speaking in his own constituency.

CONDITIONS DEPLORABLE IN ALBERTA

We have already shown that since Government sale has been introduced in Alberta the commitments to the two big jails in Alberta have increased from 217 in 1923 (under prohibition) to 1332 last year (under Government Sale) or by over 500 per cent.

Such an increase in arrests and commitments means a heavy increase in taxes to provide the extra police protection required and to maintain the jails.

BOOTLEGGERS FLOURISH IN ALBERTA

Premier Ferguson and his followers are shouting that Government Sale—like they have it in Alberta—will wipe out the bootleggers and the "homebrew." It will not.

Liquor Controller Dinning, of Alberta, says:

"The greatest problem I have is with moonshine in the country districts. Some of it is terrible stuff. I have had samples analyzed and am told that it would kill any ordinary people. But these people are peculiarly hardy.

"In one place there was much bootlegging or use of moonshine and I sent a man down to investigate. The people in the first twelve homes the man visited waved their permit for the purchase of liquor from the government store and breweries and said 'You can't touch us' —meaning that they could not be punished for the making of moonshine."

"The board admits with regret that very little headway has been made in recent months in stamping out illicit manufacture of moonshine."

YET PREMIER FERGUSON HOLDS UP ALBERTA AS A MODEL

TONIGHT'S BIG MEETING

The efforts Premier Ferguson's local followers are making to discredit Mrs. Gordon Wright—the chief speaker at tonight's big meeting in the Grand Opera House—show how much they fear her revelations. She is quite able to defend herself. Turn out and hear her tonight and bring your friends.

POLICE COURT ITEM

This morning in the Police Court there stood, or to be more accurate, there was held up, a man who screamed violently, and tried to ward off the invisible snakes, which over indulgence in O.T.A. liquor presented to his disordered mind. He was in such bad condition he had to be remanded for four days. Four days ago, this well-dressed young man visited a private house in this City, and spent every cent he had buying illicit liquor.

IRVING BERLINS HAVE DAUGHTER

Baby Born Yesterday To Song Writer and Former Miss McKay.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—Irving Berlin, the King of Tin Pan Alley, and his wife, the former Ellin Mackay of the fashionable world, are the parents of a seven-pound, blue-eyed daughter.

The baby was born yesterday. Mrs. Berlin's father, Clarence Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph Company, who was reported to have disinherited his daughter because of the marriage, was duck hunting on Gardner's Island, in Long Island Sound, at the time. Her mother, Mrs. Joseph A. Blake, was one of the first to arrive at the hospital to congratulate Mrsfl Berlin, however.

The marriage of the Berlins at the Municipal Building last January caused a sensation from the jazz palaces of Broadway to the fashionable apartments of Park Avenue. Berlin is a Russian Jew, who began his career as a singer in the Bowery. He is now reputed to be a millionaire. His bride is a Roman Catholic.

WEDDING SHOWER

Given in Honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. Arnold on Monday.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 26.— A delightful social time was spent at the home of Mr. Hector Arnold on Monday evening when a host of friends and neighbors gathered to "shower" Mr. Arnold and his bride, formerly Miss Ina Sayles, of Campbellford. Guests were present from Burnbrae, Kylstone, Stanwood, Campbellford and Seymour West as well as practically the whole junior population of Petherick's Corners. Many beautiful and useful presents were received by the happy young couple. The evening was pleasantly spent with cards and dancing. Music was supplied by Messrs Ayrhart and Ray Archer. Ward Archer and Carl Owens called for the square dances. Everyone present voted the evening a most enjoyable one.

Tillson's Natural Bran

Not cooked—Not treated

Tillson's Natural Bran, in the form of bran muffins, cookies or bread, supplies the "roughage" which Nature demands for good digestion and proper elimination. It is just the natural coat of the wheat, untreated and uncooked. Eat Tillson's every day—it is the natural way to health.

EXPLOSION WRECKS PLEASURE CRUISER

Occurred About Two Miles From Shore in Corpus Christie Bay.

CORPUS Christie, Tex., Nov. 26. —(Canadian Press.) — A terrific explosion, the flash of which was visible for miles, occurred last night on the Helena, a pleasure cruiser, about two miles from shore in Corpus Christie Bay. A number of persons were known to be aboard the craft. Speed boats left the docks in response to distress signals from the Helena.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Nine persons aboard the cruiser Helena were rescued uninjured last night when the pleasure craft was set afire by a series of explosions two miles off shore in Corpus Christi Bay.

QUICKLY DRIVES OUT ALL RHEUMATIC POISON

Torturing Pains and Swollen Joints Vanish When Rheuma is Used or Money Back.

If you want quick gratifying relief take one teaspoonful of Rheuma night and morning. Almost from the first day you should realize that when Rheuma goes in Rheumatism goes out. It acts on the blood, stomach and liver forcing the dangerous poison to leave the system in the natural way—that's the secret of Rheuma's success.

It matters not whether you are tortured with pain, crippled with swollen joints or distressed with occasional twinges, Rheuma is guaranteed by McDermid & Jury, and all druggists, to end rheumatic suffering or money back.

Rheumatism is a dangerous disease. It often affects the heart and causes death. If you have it in the slightest degree get a bottle of Rheuma today and drive it from your system right now.

ONTARIO FOXES GO TO FINLAND

Shipment of 30 Leaves Toronto For Helsingfors.

MORE TO FOLLOW.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 25—Thirty savage litle foxes, bred in captivity but untamed, yesterday comenced a long journey, each in lonely state, being separated from its mate by a wooden wall. They left Kingston for Helsingfors where the Canadian Pacific Express Company will deliver them to Chester Simpson, an Ontario fur breeder, who is establishing with them the first Canadian fox farm in Scandinavia.

Next spring after the whelping season, thirty older foxes with their offspring will make the same journey.

The shipment which passed through the Union station today was valued at $30,000, and is the second important shipment of Canadian foxes to be turned over for delivery on the other side of the Atlantic during the last week. The previous shipment, fifteen foxes valued at $18,000, was from Oakville to Annanbank, Scotland, where another fox farm is being established. These foxes were the first live Ontario foxes to be sent to the United Kingdom, other fox ranches being stocked from Prince Edward Island. One hundred and fifty pounds of beef hearts and fifty pounds of liver will be placed aboard the C.P.S.S. Bolingbroke tomorrow as travelling rations for the animals.

WEDDING BELLS.

CRANLEY—HEFFERNAN.

DOURO, November 26. — A pretty November wedding took place Tuesday morning, November 23rd, at St. Joseph's church, Douro, when Hazel, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heffernan, was united in marriage to Mr. Vincent Joseph Cranley, son of Mr. and the late Mrs John Cranley.

The pastor, Rev. M. J. McGuire, performed the ceremony, and celebrated the nuptial mass in the presence of many friends and relatives.

Miss Mabel Allen presided at the organ and the choir, of which the bride was a member, sang appropriate hymns.

The bride wore a gown of rose-colored georgette, with cut velvet. Her coat was channel red needle-point, with fur trimming, and hat to match. She wore the groom's gift, a rope of pearls, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Miss Loretta Fitzgerald of Otonabee, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a gown of wine-colored georgette, with cut velvet, with hat to match, and with fur trimming. She also wore the groom's gift, a gold pin, and carried pink and white carnations.

Mr. James Barry acted as best man, and received a pair of gold cuff links from the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous repast was served to 60 guests, and a very enjoyable afternoon and evening was spent. Rev. Father McGuire, assistant pastor), was present.

The newly married couple received many beautiful presents, including a cheque for one hundred dollars from the bride's father.

Mr. and Mrs. Cranley will reside on their farm in Douro and will have the best wishes of a large circle of friends for a long and happy married life.

INQUEST OPENED AFTER CAR CRASH

Victim Was Struck When He Got Out To Fix Tire.

BRANTFORD, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—An inquest was opened here this morning on the body of William B. Appleby, general merchant, Paris, who died while being brought to the Brantford Hospital late last night, after being hit by a sedan driven by A. P. Melway, of Toronto. Appleby got out of his car on the Hamilton highway when he found he had a flat tire. As he crossed behind his own car he was struck by the oncoming car driven by Melway. The latter was arrested after the accident by Highway Officer Jackson.

LIBERAL RANKS AGAIN DIVIDED

Seven Leading Members, Headed By J. A. Spencer, Intend Resigning.

POLICY DISRUPTING.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Liberal ranks are completely broken by Lloyd George's insistence on conditions on which he is prepared to finance a united Liberal party from his party funds, and seven members of the Liberal administrative committee, Asquithians headed by J. A. Spender, intend resigning.

Lloyd George wants a reorganization of Liberal headquarters in order to make his position as leader quite sure and compel obedience from the Asquithians. The former Premier is not going to surrender the only hold he has, namely, the party funds, and then find himself kicked out of the party.

POLICE CAPTURE

failed to reveal any money or stolen goods.

The only objects in the pockets of the man who was believed to have participated in numerous robberies and the sensational $100,000 hold-up of a mail truck in Elizabeth, N.J., last month, were a penny and a button.

His clothes were ill-kept and a ragged moustache, grown apparently for disguise, added to his characteristic "down and out" appearance.

At the police station, he listened to himself referred to as "just a bum" and not the daring fellow "made a hero of in the papers."

"If I had all the money one paper said," he commented, stolidly, "I'd be a rich man."

His arrest in his sleep yesterday puts Rogers back in jail for the first time since his startling escape, December 14 last. A guard taking him to Sing Sing to serve thirty-six years for various robberies, was clubbed by a pal of Rogers as the train entered the station at 125th Street, New York, and the two fled.

During the eleven months of freedom, the name "Bum" Rogers was linked with nearly every robbery of magnitude and daring in the metropolitan area. One of his companions was James (Killer) Cuniffe, who was shot in Detroit recently, and was believed to have figured in the Elizabeth mail robbery under Rogers' direction.

James Pacificio, 27, and Mrs. Helen Gershewitz, 22, who occupied the apartment in which Rogers was arrested, were taken into custody and questioned. A letter written to Pacificio by a prisoner awaiting electrocution for the slaying of a policeman last April was found.

Rogers asked to be allowed to see his wife and she appeared during his questioning.

Reiterating his first statement that he had nothing to do with any robberies since his escape, Rogers said he had not been out of his room for the last six weeks. On the streets before then, he said, he wore tortoise-shell glasses and a moustache "to cover up."

Even the healthiest men sometimes have aches

TORMENTED BY ACUTE NEURITIS

Crippling aches quickly relieved by simple home remedy

Freed from the crippling pain of neuritis after having tried various treatments without getting relief, a well-known business man of Cincinnati, Ohio, writes:

"Following influenza I was seized with a violent attack of neuritis in the right arm and shoulder. I got no relief until I tried Sloan's Liniment. The affected arm and shoulder were shortly restored to a healthy condition and all pain and symptoms disappeared."

Sloan's gives real relief because it doesn't just deaden the pain. It gets at the cause.

Just pat it on gently. At once you feel the increased flow of healing, germ-destroying blood right in the spot that hurts. Quickly and surely, it reduces swelling and inflammation, drives out stiffness, kills pain. Get a bottle. All druggists—35 cents.

and fastened in their proper position.

Two officers of the Homeric stood on the pontoons during the hoisting and lowering, but after one of them had been removed it was discovered that there was no arrangement to take off the man who was to have cranked or turned over the propeller.

The ground swell by that time was too strong to permit a safe take-off from the water. The problem of getting the "moth" to the Battery was solved by having a tug tow the plane. Meanwhile the Homeric had passed the Battery and a marine police boat was despatched to search for the plane, as the rumor spread that the occupants were lost. The police boat discovered the plane unoccupied and found Sir Alan and Lady Cobham aboard the tug.

Members of the Aeronautical Society of America greeted them at the Battery, hailing the British aviator as a pioneer.

Many passengers on the Homeric voiced indignation that they had missed their trains and Thanksgiving dinners due to the ship's three-hours' delay in docking to enable Sir Alan to make his attempt.

The plane is to be delivered to its owner, Kenneth B. Walton, of Bristol, Pa.

Y.P.S. MEETING

Good Programme Put on by Many Members of Society.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 26. — St. Andrew's Young People's Society met in the Sunday school room on Monday evening with a goodly number in attendance .The meeting was an interesting one since so many of the Young people took part.

Papers were given by Arthur Collison, J. Campbell and Miss H. Atkinson, based on the work done by Christian Endeavor in different countries.

The Misses Blue rendered lovely music on their guitars. The selection was, "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross."

Miss Lillian Hay gave a beautiful solo, "Coming Home," which was much appreciated.

The topic of the evening was entitled, "How to promote fellowship," and was given by Mrs. John Stone. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Young People's Day was held in St. Andrew's church on Sunday. The young people took an important part in the service morning and evening. During the morning service the Scripture was read by Mr. Arthur Collison and Miss H. Atkinson. Miss M. Watson announced the hymns. The collection was taken by the Misses C. Ivey, V Patrick, A. Blue and Mrs. H. Innis.

During the evening service the Scriptures were read by Miss M. Ackerman and Mr. Tom Campbell. Mrs. Scott announced the hymns, while the collection was taken up by Messrs. A. Collison, W. Anderson, John Campbell and John Hooper.

About one hundred and fifty friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Arnold, Seymour and tendered them a "miscellaneous shower" as a recognition of their recent marriage. The evening was spent socially in cards and dancing.

PROHIBITIONISTS HOLD BIG RALLY AT WARKWORTH

Northumberland County Union Pledges Support To Liberal Nominee.

MANY SPEAKERS.

Government Control Policy Condemned As Step Backward.

WARKWORTH, Nov. 25—At a rally meeting of the Prohibitionists of Northumberland County which almost crowded the town hall yesterday afternoon at whi:h Rev. John Coburn, of Toronto, Dr. W. G. Robertson, of Colborne, the Liberal candidate W. J. Armstrong of Campbellford, Rev. J. S. I. Wilson of Brighton, and Orval Kelly of Warkworth and Mrs| R. W. Scott of Campbellford, gave addresses confirming their faith in the O.T.A., condemning Mr. Ferguson's Government Control policy refuting his assertions against young people and pledging the support of Dr. Robertson, as the only dry candidate in Northumberland riding.

Orval Kelly, president of the Percy township Prohibition Union, was in the chair and in his opening remarks stated that he was a Conservative, but could not vote for Ferguson. "The statements made against young people by the Premier are lies", stated Mr. Kelly. He was encouraged by the large crowd, so many of whom were ladies. This indicated that people were putting principle ahead of party. The young people and women had the most at stake in this campaign.

Dr. Robertson.

Mr. Robertson was greeted with loud applause as he came to the platform. He stated that forty years ago he sat in the rear seats of the Warkworth hall and there received his first lessons in citizenship. The strongest thing he had to offer was the record of his life. He had been reeve of Colborne for three years since going there seventeen years ago. He had always tried to stand for what was right. He was the president of the Liberal Asosciation for sometime and felt he could claim the support of the Liberals and of the drys among the Conservatives and Progressives. He felt that he could not be elected on a separate ballot as simply a Liberal.

It was the temperance issue that had brought him into the fight. He felt it was hard for dry Conservatives to break with their party and yet it ought to be easy, because it was not a referendum or a plebiscite but a vote and more far reaching, and as they had gone gladly to the polls in 1919 and 1923 and voted for temperance now they could do the same. He warned dry Conservatives against those who would approach them asking that they stick to the party

The liquor interests are subtle, said Dr. Robertson. They had asked for a plebiscite, hoping to defeat the O.T.A. and since they did not gain their end by that course, had not ceased to harrangue the Premier for a change. Mr. Ferguson for eighteen months had been laying plans to get rid of the O.T.A. The liquor interests are behind one party or the other. Look at Hon. Mr. Nickle in Kingston and the stand he had taken. It was reported that $50,000 would be used to defeat him. The president of the Corbyville distillery was the first man to change his policy and turn against Nickle. The speaker stated that everything was going well in Colborne, Percy, Cramahe, Monaghan. Murray and Brighton he knew were strong for temperance. Cobourg would be a hard pull. Mr. Sinclair was sincere and if the leader of the new Government would be true to his promises although he believed the new Government would be a coalition with Mr. Nickle leading the temperance forces.

W. J. Armstrong.

W J. Armstrong of Campbellford said he was not a public speaker but was present because he wanted to throw his strength on the side of the O.T.A. He had been fighting for temperance for fifty years and now must either break with his party, which he had followed for a longer time, or cease his temperance activities, and he decided that he would stay with temperance and throw his influence in that direction. He had a grandson and he would not sign orders allowing the Government to sell him liquor. "Government Control means open liquor stores," he said. "Mr. Ferguson says he will sell to every person over twenty-one a bottle of whiskey. I am going to support Robertson on this occasion," were Mr. Armstrong's closing words.

Mrs. George Kingston, wife of the Mayor of Campbellford then introduced the following resolution:

Moved by Mrs George Kingston of Campbellford, and seconded by Mrs. Lorne Evans of Norham, and unanimously carried by standing vote:

"We the Prohibitionists of Northumberland, assembled at Warkworth, this 24th day of November, 1926, are a non-partisan company. Our members represent all shades of political opinion. Our object is simply and solely to see that this Province enjoys the total prohibition of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. We believe that the O.T.A. although not perfect, is the best social legislation the Province has enjoyed. It is with pleasure we recall that all parties united in having it put upon the statute books.

"We deplore the fact, that against the express wishes of the people, the Premier of the Province should so identify himself with the liquor interests, as to bring forward the proposed Government Control policy We indignantly and unanimously regret and protest the charges made against our young people Such charges are not varified by the facts. We protest the proposed Government Control (sale) system of handling the liquo traffic. We believe that the O.T.A. can be amended and enforced so as to be both satisfactory and successful and we therefore pledge ourselves to support Dr. W. G. Robertson, the Liberal nominee and the only candidate in Northumberland, who has pledged himself to support the O.T.A. and use his influence, if elected, to secure a better enforcement of the Act.

Mrs. R. W. Scott.

Mrs. R. W. Scott of Campbellford was the next speaker and said: My greatest reason for supporting the O.T.A. is my three children, 13, 11 and 9 years of age, all boys. Mrs. Scott told of how her oldest boy had come home from High school and said bootleggers were jailed for breaking the law and the Government was going to sell liquor and surely it was not wrong if the Government sold it. To say that Government Control was a temperance measure was a big joke. Mrs. Scott described Mr. Ferguson's liquor policy in the story of a business man who had a negro named Mose working for him. One morning Mose did not come to work and when called on the phone said, "We have all taken the small pox." "Well," said his boss, "I hope you take every precaution." "Yes," replied Mose. 'I bought a sanitary cup and we are all drinking out of that." "Government Control is a sanitary cup for us all to drink out of," said Mrs. Scott, "but although it might be covered up we are not going to be fooled."

The word 'control' was used said Mrs. Scott, because it appealed to the strongest of human emotions. Ferguson soon shifted emphasis from control to liquor. If he gained power he was going to appoint a strong liquor commission. It would be strong liquor with a commission attached to it. The O.T.A. was the best legislation we had been given up to the present. People must be educated to live up to it. The first step was to vote dry on December first. To retain the O. T.A. would be a tremendous achievement.

The chairman, Mr. Kelly, then read the following letter:

Mr. Alex. Hume, of Campbellford, for the past five years Reeve of Seymour who was Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, in 1914, the Conservative candidate for East Northumberland in 1919 and a prominent agriculturist, has released the following statement for us in the present election campaign:

"I extremely regret that Hon. Howard Ferguson has thrown the temperance question into politics. I am convinced that it is a retrogressive step instead of the traditional progressive Conservative policy. His Government has given us good administration of the affairs of the Province, but along with other loyal Conservatives, I am compelled to vote for the dry candidate, never before having cast anything but a Conservative vote in either Provincial or Federal elections."

(signed) ALEX HUME.

Rev. John Coburn.

Mr. Coburn in a lengthy address reviewed the history of the Tory party and pointed out that the present policy was simply a Ferguson one. The Premier had not consulted his colleagues because he was afraid he would not be able to make concessions to the liquor members of his Government if he advised with any persons but them.

Mr. Coburn stated that he had always been a Tory and had voted with the party on all but two occasions. He reviewed the history of the temperance act and said no one had given Mr. Ferguson authority to change or withdraw the act. He referred to the changes in the manifesto of the Premier since the campaign and told his hearers that there was no record in the history of the British Empire of a man changing his policy after it had once been announced and regarded the changes in Mr. Ferguson's manifesto as a sure sign that he was afraid he had made a mistake in introducing the Liquor Control policy and that people were stronger in favor of temperance than he at first thought. Mr. Cobourn also referred to the many baits being thrown out by Mr. Ferguson, such as, a reduction in automobile licenses, the building of 529 miles of highway, the reduction in taxes and etc. but reminded his hearers that the people in the end must do the paying.

"This is not a plebiscite," said Mr. Coburn. "A plebiscite involves a question on the ballot paper which the voter answers by writing yes or no. The leader of the Government should be a man who would keep his word. He should recognize the will of the people and his policy on moral issue should be plain and clear." Mr. Ferguson did not deserve support because he did not measure up to this standard. Government Control was an attempt to make the liquor business respectable. Today it was an outlaw. Mr. Coburn closed by saying "If you don't vote Robertson, who is a sworn symbol of hostility to the liquor trade, you will lose the efforts of the past fifty years."

Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, chairman of the Prohibition Union for Northumberland, summed up the situation by pointing out the necessity of the temperance people standing together for the O.T.A. regardless of party ties.

Egg-Eating Champion Will Risk His Crown

CLARE, Mich., Nov. 26.—"Dutch" Hoyt, of Mt. Pleasant, a travelling salesman and former resident of Clare, has issued a challenge to Roy Comer, the egg-eating champion who ate 33 eggs a week ago at a restaurant here. The contest is to take place in Clare, Nov. 30.

POLICE CAPTURE NOTED CRIMINAL

Believed Implicated in $100,000 Mail Hold-up in Elizabeth, N.J.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press). — Five minutes before the tinkle of an alarm clock might have sent him out of reach of the arm of the law, John J. "Bum" Rogers, notorious criminal and escaped convict, was captured yesterday in his bed in a Bronx tenement house.

Retiring Wednesday night as a free, but widely hunted man, wanted since his escape shortly before Christmas last year, the ex-convict awoke on Thanksgiving Day to face an army of detectives.

Twenty-two men, heavily armed, swooped in on the apartment, on the fourth floor of a building in Third Avenue. Guns, pistols and blackjacks confropted the dazed and seedy fugitive, whose appearance long ago earned him his "monicker."

As he rose to a sitting posture, a blackjack "placed" him in position for the manacles,and a search which has been pursued intensively for the criminal in New York, New Jersey, and elsewhere was concluded.

Questioned at police headquarters Rogers, alias John J. O'Brien and Hughes, disclaimed having participated in any of the robberies of recent months in which his name has become a recurrent symbol.

He said he had not been outside Manhattan and the Bronx since his escape last December, and search of the apartment in the tenement

25,000,000 Automobiles Predicted In U.S. By 1930

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(A.P.)—A loss of $15,300,000,000 from traffic congestion for the next four years in the United States, with $25,000,000 automobiles by 1930, was predicted to-day by the American Road Builders' Association. Starting with 1930, the nation will suffer a daily loss of $13,000,000 through congestion on its highways, the association said.

BISHOP SPEAKS OF ANNULMENT AS INJURIOUS

Statement In An Extended Message To New York Diocese.

IT IS A DISCREDIT.

Criticized Grounds of Duress on Which Annulment Decision Rendered.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—The "whole proceeding" of the annulment by the Roman Catholic Church of the marriage of the Duke of Marlborough and the former Consuelo Vanderbilt "is a discredit to the Christian Church and an injury to religion," said Bishop William T. Manning, at the Cathedral of St. John The Divine, yesterday.

The Bishop's statement took the form of an extended message to the Diocese of New York, in which he said: "If marriages are to be declared null and void on pleas so unreal as this, no marriage, and no home, can be regarded as safe."

The Bishop criticized both the grounds of duress on which the annulment decision was rendered, and the right of a Vatican court to pass upon the validity of "a marriage between members of another commu-

PRINCE ARRIVES ON SATURDAY

On Private Visit To Governor-General and Lady Willingdon.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 26 (Canadian Press)—H.R.H. Prince George, the youngest son of His Majesty, will arrive in Ottawa early Saturday, Dec. 4, on a private visit to Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Lady Willingdon.

The Prince will be the guest of honor at a "boy and girl" dance given at Government House by Their Excellencies from 9.30 p.m. till midnight. No married people will be present.

As his visit is a strictly private one, Prince George will not attract such attention as his brother, the Prince of Wales. Prince George is 24 years old, and is a midshipman in the Royal Navy. It is said he is the liveliest member of the Royal family.

Prince George will remain at Government House until Monday. He is being guarded by Royal Canadian Mounted Police secret service men.

HEAVIEST FOGS OF A GENERATION SHROUDS PART OF BRITISH ISLES MANY INJURED IN TRAFFIC JAMS

Much Worse Than "Pea Soup" or "Plag Ordinary" Type.

SHIP IN DISTRESS.

London Was Less Plagued Than Channel or Coastal Cities.

LONDON, November 26. United Press. — Dark fog smothered England, parts of Scotland, and the English channel yesterday. There were patches of what passes for sunlight here and there, but for the most part skippers, pedestrians and chauffeurs manoeuvred themselves or their craft through what the natives of this island proudly called a "blinder and a gasper."

A "blinder and a gasper" is much worse than a "pea soup," which is the term used to describe the "plug ordinary' sort of fogs that visit England at intervals from mid-October until April.

London, which usually suffers most from fogs, was less plagued Wednesday and yesterday than the channel and coastal cities, although the murk in London did require calcium flares on curbstones to enable bus drivers to keep off the sidewalks. Kent and the inland district was almost as bad as the channel.

The Ramsgate motorboat was out early in response to a message from the Gull lightship that an unidentified steamer was in distress in the vicinity of the Goodwin Sands.

Fog interfered somewhat yesterday with the annual Thanksgiving day golf of the American golfing society, which took place this year at the Swinley Forest Golf Club, near Ascot.

Seventy Injured.

Business and traffic were disorganized. Englishmen got such solace as there may have been in the statement that the fog was the worst in a generation. Accidents were reported from Manchester, Stoke-on-Trent and Glasgow, and there were many slight injuries. About 70 persons were injured, most of them slightly, when two passenger trains collided near Dagenham, Essex. Fifteen persons were injured in Glasgow traffic accidents.

This fog was no light, airy substance such as Americans are accustomed to describe by that name. It was a rich, greenish yellow compound of soft coal soot, moisture and dust particles. Sober citizens in the more affected areas stood close to their front stoops and wondered where they were. A hand thrust at arm's length in front of the body would almost disappear into the eerie sea. Fog drawn into the lungs was likely to induce coughing. Normal street sounds were deadened by the shroud.

Meanwhile from millions of chimney pots throughout the land there emerged furtive columns of soft coal smoke from fire places and cook-stoves to lose themselves in the atmosphere and to add to its murkiness.

Germans Urge Inquiry In War Guilt Dispute

BERLIN, Nov. 26. — The League of Nations or the world court at The Hague may be called upon to determine whether or not Germany merits sole guilt for causing the World War as a result of a motion adopted by the Reichstag to-day.

The non-socialist parties proposed the motion which urged the government to investigate the possibility that the league or the court might consider the question of war guilt.

SACRED ROTA CHURCH COURT

Cardinal Says U. S. Catholics Competent Reply To Manning.

NOT CIVIL TRIBUNAL.

ROME, Nov. 26 (United Press).—John, Cardinal Bonzano, who represented Pope Pius last June at the Chicago Eucharistic Congress, told the United Press to-day that there were plenty of Catholic authorities in the United States competent to reply to the criticism of Bishop William T. Manning, of New York, in which he condemned the Catholic Church's annulment of the marriage of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough. It was evident, said Cardinal Bonzano, that the sacred rota was an ecclesiastical court entirely different in its jurisdiction from a civil court.

SAYS MRS. GIBSON OFFERED HIM BRIBE

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 26. — Canadian Press. — Testimony that Mrs. Jane Gibson, the state's star witness, offered him one hundred dollars to give corroborative evidence of details in connection with her eye-witness story of the Hall-Mills murder, was given at the trial here to-day by George Cipel, one of Mrs. Gibson's neighbors.

His Busy Little Bee Stings Fish To Death

PASADENA, Nov. 26.—(A.P.)— W. H. Chase promised the police he would get rid of his bees which, Sam Rice reported, have been stinging his gold fish to death when the fish came to the surface of his pond. Chase, who lives next door to Rice, said he was keeping the hive of bees for a friend.

GIVE GRANT OF $200 TOWARDS APSLEY OUTPOST

Serve Townships of Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos and Northern Methuen.

AID TO SETTLERS

Suburban Area Commission Submits Year's Report to County Council.

At the morning session of the County Council yesterday the Suburban Area Commission was present and H. Gainey, the chairman, submitted his report. A grant of $200 was passed by the finance committee to the Red Cross Outpost at Apsley.

This new outpost is to serve the Townships of Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos and Northern Methuen, and will be especially valuable to the residents of these townships in the winter time, when it is so hard to get a sick person out to a hospital. The Red Cross Society has promised to pay the salary of the nurse and the house-keeper, and the townships are to furnish a house.

Reeve Brown of Burleigh and Anstruther, in moving that $200 should be granted by the County Council, said that already the Anglican Church and the United Church in that district had promised to furnish a bed each. He said that this outpost was a real need to those townships, and each township was going to give a bed.

Reeve Scott of Chandos, said it meant a whole lot to that district to get a nurse in there, and that the outpost would be equipped with a modern operating table and all the supplies that are necessary. Reeve Breckenridge of Methuem and Belmont also supported the idea. Reeve Clark of Galway and Cavendish seconded the motion, which carried unanimously.

The Suburban Area Commission has spent to date $27,267.47, and they had $31,000.00 provided for the year's work. Owing to the amount of damage done by trucks this Spring, when the frost was coming out, the Commission have had to pay a great deal more for maintenance than they expected, thus new construction had to be cut.

Mr. Gainey, in speaking, said much

SMITH TRIED ON MURDER CHARGE

Defense Claims That Smith Had Intended to Commit Suicide.

NO UNWRITTEN LAW

MAIDSTONE, England, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press). — "There is no unwritten law in England." This was the outstanding phrase employed by Rolland Oliver, the Crown prosecutor, at the opening of the trial yesterday of Alphonse F. A. Smith, formerly an officer in the Dragoon Guards, charged with murdering his life-long friend, John T. Derham.

On August 12, last, Smith, his wife and Derham were together, in the Smith villa, "Stella Maris," at Whitstable. There was a quarrel and Smith emerged from the struggle badly bruised. Derham was dead. The defence claims that

FAILURE MARKS TRIAL FLIGHT OF BRITISH FLYER

Attempted To Fly "Moth" Plane From Quarantine To Battery.

ARE TOWED IN.

Unable To Take Off on Account of Ground Swell.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press)—Failure marked the attempt yesterday of Sir Alan Cobham, British aviator and lecturer, who arrived on the liner Homeric, to fly a "moth" plane from Quarantine to the Battery, to prove that mails could thus be expedited.

The only time that the small plane soared in the air was when it was hoisted from the aft deck of the Homeric to the water below. After being buffeted by ground swells, the "moth" was finally towed to the Battery and later to Miller's Field, Staten Island.

Sir Alan and Lady Cobham boarded the plane on the ship and were hoisted over the port side without incident. The plane was steadied by guide ropes controlled from the ship, while its wings were unfolded

TORNADO KILLS MANY PEOPLE IN THREE STATES

More Than Fifty Lose Lives in Mississippi States.

DAMAGE HEAVY.

Several Small Towns Have Been Nearly Wiped Out.

Tornadoes that swept through scattered sections of Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri and Mississippi late yesterday, last night, and early to-day, took a toll of at least 71 lives, injured scores and left a trail of smashed and damaged buildings.

The known death list in Arkansas was 38, Louisiana 16, Mississippi 9, all negroes, and Missouri 8.

A late November tornado, travelling a zig-zag path through portions of Louisiana, Arkansas and Missouri, turned Thanksgiving day into a day of sorrow for hundreds of persons.

More than 50 were killed and probably several hundred injured, as the twister tore through several small communities, mowing down scores of homes and disrupting communications. The damage was estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

The storm, apparently an intensification of the disturbance which has been pushing eastward from the Pacific Coast, struck with its greatest fury in Central Arkansas and then moved north through the centre of the state into Missouri, where it brought death and destruction to several widely scattered communities. An off-shoot also caused numerous deaths and considerable damage in Louisana. Heavy rains accom-

Premier Ferguson's Damaging Admissions

PREMIER FERGUSON SAY: "Do not judge Government Sale by conditions in Province of Quebec,

"or the Province of Manitoba,

"or the Province of Saskatchewan,

"or the Province of British Columbia,

"in all of which they have Government Sale.

"Our system of sale is modeled largely on the Alberta system and is better than any of the others."

In other words Premier Ferguson admits that Government Sale has failed in four of the five provinces that are trying it. He does not like to have the public told about the real conditions in these provinces. His government even seized the slides of a speaker from Quebec who was speaking in his own constituency.

CONDITIONS DEPLORABLE IN ALBERTA

We have already shown that since Government sale has been introduced in Alberta the commitments to the two big jails in Alberta have increased from 217 in 1923 (under prohibition) to 1332 last year (under Government Sale) or by over 500 per cent.

Such an increase in arrests and commitments means a heavy increase in taxes to provide the extra police protection required and to maintain the jails.

BOOTLEGGERS FLOURISH IN ALBERTA

Premier Ferguson and his followers are shouting that Government Sale—like they have it in Alberta—will wipe out the bootleggers and the "homebrew." It will not.

Liquor Controller Dinning, of Alberta, says:

"The greatest problem I have is with moonshine in the country districts. Some of it is terrible stuff. I have had samples analyzed and am told that it would kill any ordinary people. But these people are peculiarly hardy.

"In one place there was much bootlegging or use of moonshine and I sent a man down to investigate. The people in the first twelve homes the man visited waved their permit for the purchase of liquor from the government store and breweries and said 'You can't touch us' —meaning that they could not be punished for the making of moonshine."

"The board admits with regret that very little headway has been made in recent months in stamping out illicit manufacture of moonshine."

TONIGHT'S BIG MEETING

The efforts Premier Ferguson's local followers are making to discredit Mrs. Gordon Wright—the chief speaker at tonight's big meeting in the Grand Opera House—show how much they fear her revelations. She is quite able to defend herself. Turn out and hear her tonight and bring your friends.

POLICE COURT ITEM

This morning in the Police Court there stood, or to be more accurate, there was held up, a man who screamed violently, and tried to ward off the invisible snakes, which over indulgence in O.T.A. liquor presented to his disordered mind. He was in such bad condition he had to be remanded for four days. Four days ago, this well-dressed young man visited a private house in this City, and spent every cent he had buying illicit liquor.

IRVING BERLINS HAVE DAUGHTER

Baby Born Yesterday To Song Writer and Former Miss McKay.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—Irving Berlin, the King of Tin Pan Alley, and his wife, the former Ellin Mackay of the fashionable world, are the parents of a seven-pound, blue-eyed daughter.

The baby was born yesterday. Mrs. Berlin's father, Clarence Mackay, presidens of the Postal Telegraph Company, who was reported to have disinherited his daughter because of the marriage, was duck hunting on Gardner's Island, in Long Island Sound, at the time. Her mother, Mrs. Joseph A. Blake, was one of the first to arrive at the hospital to congratulate Mrsfi Berlin, however.

The marriage of the Berlins at the Municipal Building last January caused a sensation from the jazz palaces of Broadway to the fashionable apartments of Park Avenue. Berlin is a Russian Jew, who began his career as a singer in the Bowery. He is now reputed to be a millionaire. His bride is a Roman Catholic.

WEDDING SHOWER

Given in Honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. Arnold on Monday.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 26.— A delightful social time was spent at the home of Mr. Hector Arnold on Monday evening when a host of friends and neighbors gathered to "shower" Mr. Arnold and his bride, formerly Miss Ina Sayles, of Campbellford. Guests were present from Burnbrae, Eylstone, Stanwood, Campbellford and Seymour West as well as practically the whole junior population of Petherick's Corners. Many beautiful and useful presents were received by the happy young couple. The evening was pleasantly spent with cards and dancing. Music was supplied by Mesrs Ayrhart and Ray Archer. Ward Archer and Carl Owens called for the square dances. Everyone present voted the evening a most enjoyable one.

EXPLOSION WRECKS PLEASURE CRUISER

Occurred About Two Miles From Shore in Corpus Christie Bay.

CORPUS Christie, Tex., Nov. 26. —(Canadian Press.) — A terrific explosion, the flash of which was visible for miles, occurred last night on the Helena, a pleasure cruiser, about two miles from shore in Corpus Christie Bay. A number of persons were known to be aboard the craft. Speed boats left the docks in response to distress signals from the Helena.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Nine persons aboard the cruiser Helena were rescued uninjured last night when the pleasure craft was set afire by a series of explosions two miles off shore in Corpus Christi Bay.

ONTARIO FOXES GO TO FINLAND

Shipment of 30 Leaves Toronto For Helsingfors.

MORE TO FOLLOW.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 25—Thirty savage litle foxes, bred in captivity but untamed, yesterday comenced a long journey, each in lonely state, being separated from its mate by a wooden wall. They left Kingston for Helsingfors where the Canadian Pacific Express Company will deliver them to Chester Simpson, an Ontario fur breeder, who is establishing with them the first Canadian fox farm in Scandinavia.

Next spring after the whelping season, thirty older foxes with their offspring will make the same journey.

The shipment which passed through the Union station today was valued at $30,000, and is the second important shipment of Canadian foxes to be turned over for delivery on the other side of the Atlantic during the last week. The previous shipment, fifteen foxes valued at $18,000, was from Oakville to Annanbank, Scotland, where another fox farm is being established. These foxes were the first live Ontario foxes to be sent to the United Kingdom, other fox ranches being stocked from Prince Edward Island. One hundred and fifty pounds of beef hearts and fifty pounds of liver will be placed aboard the C.P.S.S. Bolingbroke tomorrow as travelling rations for the animals.

WEDDING BELLS.

CRANLEY—HEFFERNAN.

DOURO, November 26. — A pretty November wedding took place Tuesday morning, November 23rd, at St. Joseph's church, Douro, when Hazel, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heffernan, was united in marriage to Mr. Vincent Joseph Cranley, son of Mr. and the late Mrs John Cranley.

The pastor, Rev. M. J. McGuire, performed the ceremony, and celebrated the nuptial mass in the presence of many friends and relatives.

Miss Mabel Allen presided at the organ and the choir, of which the bride was a member, sang appropriate hymns.

The bride wore a gown of rose-colored georgette, with cut velvet. Her coat was channel red needle-point, with fur trimming, and hat to match. She wore the groom's gift, a rope of pearls, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Miss Loretta Fitzgerald of Otonabee, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a gown of wine-colored georgette, with cut velvet, with hat to match, and with fur trimming. She also wore the groom's gift, a gold pin, and carried pink and white carnations.

Mr. James Barry acted as best man, and received a pair of gold cuff links from the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous repast was served to 60 guests, and a very enjoyable afternoon and evening was spent. Rev. Father McGuire, assistant pastor), was present.

The newly married couple received many beautiful presents, including a cheque for one hundred dollars from the bride's father.

Mr. and Mrs. Cranley will reside on their farm in Douro and will have the best wishes of a large circle of friends for a long and happy married life.

INQUEST OPENED AFTER CAR CRASH

Victim Was Struck When He Got Out To Fix Tire.

BRANTFORD, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—An inquest was opened here this morning on the body of William B. Appleby, general merchant, Paris, who died while being brought to the Brantford Hospital late last night, after being hit by a sedan driven by A. P. Melway, of Toronto. Appleby got out of his car on the Hamilton highway when he found he had a flat tire. As he crossed behind his own car he was struck by the oncoming car driven by Melway. The latter was arrested after the accident by Highway Officer Jackson.

LIBERAL RANKS AGAIN DIVIDED

Seven Leading Members, Headed By J. A. Spencer, Intend Resigning.

POLICY DISRUPTING.

LONDON, Nov 26.—The Liberal ranks are completely broken by Lloyd George's insistence on conditions on which he is prepared to finance a united Liberal party from his party funds, and seven members of the Liberal administrative committee, Asquithians headed by J. A. Spender, intend resigning.

Lloyd George wants a reorganization of Liberal headquarters in order to make his position as leader quite sure and compel obedience from the Asquithians. The former Premier is not going to surrender the only hold he has, namely, the party funds, and then find himself kicked out of the party.

failed to reveal any money or stolen goods.

The only objects in the pockets of the man who was believed to have participated in numerous robberies and the sensational $100,000 hold-up of a mail truck in Elizabeth, N.J., last month, were a penny and a button.

His clothes were ill-kept and a ragged moustache, grown apparently for disguise, added to his characteristic "down and out" appearance.

At the police station, he listened to himself referred to as "just a bum" and not the daring fellow "made a hero of in the papers."

"If I had all the money one paper said," he commented, stolidly, "I'd be a rich man."

His arrest in his sleep yesterday puts Rogers back in jail for the first time since his startling escape, December 14 last. A guard taking him to Sing Sing to serve thirty-six years for various robberies, was clubbed by a pal of Rogers as the train entered the station at 125th Street, New York, and the two fled.

During the eleven months of freedom, the name "Bum" Rogers was linked with nearly every robbery of magnitude and daring in the metropolitan area. One of his companions was James (Killer) Cunliffe, who was shot in Detroit recently, and was believed to have figured in the Elizabeth mail robbery under Rogers' direction.

James Pacificio, 27, and Mrs. Helen Gershewitz, 22, who occupied the apartment in which Rogers was arrested, were taken into custody and questioned. A letter written to Pacificio by a prisoner awaiting electrocution for the slaying of a policeman last April was found.

Rogers asked to be allowed to see his wife and she appeared during his questioning.

Reiterating his first statement that he had nothing to do with any robberies since his escape, Rogers said he had not been out of his room for the last six weeks. On the streets before then, he said, he wore tortoise-shell glasses and a moustache "to cover up."

Even the healthiest men sometimes have aches

TORMENTED BY ACUTE NEURITIS

Crippling aches quickly relieved by simple home remedy

Freed from the crippling pain of neuritis after having tried various treatments without getting relief, a well-known business man of Cincinnati, Ohio, writes:

"Following influenza I was seized with a violent attack of neuritis in the right arm and shoulder. I got no relief until I tried Sloan's Liniment. The affected arm and shoulder were shortly restored to a healthy condition and all pain and symptoms disappeared."

Sloan's gives real relief because it doesn't just deaden the pain. It gets at the cause.

Just pat it on gently. At once you feel the increased flow of healing, germ-destroying blood right in the spot that hurts. Quickly and surely, it reduces swelling and inflammation, drives out stiffness, kills pain. Get a bottle. All druggists—35 cents.

and fastened in their proper position.

Two officers of the Homeric stood on the pontoons during the hoisting and lowering, but after one of them had been removed it was discovered that there was no arrangement to take off the man who was to have cranked or turned over the propeller.

The ground swell by that time was too strong to permit a safe take-off from the water. The problem of getting the "moth" to the Battery was solved by having a tug tow the plane. Meanwhile the Homeric had passed the Battery and a marine police boat was despatched to search for the plane, as the rumor spread that the occupants were lost. The police boat discovered the plane unoccupied and found Sir Alan and Lady Cobham aboard the tug.

Members of the Aeronautical Society of America greeted them at the Battery, hailing the British aviator as a pioneer.

Many passengers on the Homeric voiced indignation that they had missed their trains and Thanksgiving dinners due to the ship's three-hours' delay in docking to enable Sir Alan to make his attempt.

The plane is to be delivered to its owner, Kenneth B. Walton, of Bristol, Pa.

Y.P.S. MEETING

Good Programme Put on by Many Members of Society.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 26. — St. Andrew's Young People's Society met in the Sunday school room on Monday evening with a goodly number in attendance .The meeting was an interesting one since so many of the Young people took part.

Papers were given by Arthur Collison, J. Campbell and Miss H. Atkinson, based on the work done by Christian Endeavor in different countries.

The Misses Blue rendered lovely music on their guitars. The selection was, "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross."

Miss Lillian Hay gave a beautiful solo, "Coming Home," which was much appreciated.

The topic of the evening was entitled, "How to promote fellowship," and was given by Mrs. John Stone. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Young People's Day was held in St. Andrew's church on Sunday. The young people took an important part in the service morning and evening. During the morning service the Scripture was read by Mr. Arthur Collison and Miss H. Atkinson. Miss M. Watson announced the hymns. The collection was taken by the Misses C. Ivey, V Patrick, A. Blue and Mrs. H. Innis.

During the evening service the Scriptures were read by Miss M. Ackerman and Mr. Tom Campbell. Mrs. Scott announced the hymns, while the collection was taken up by Messrs. A. Collison, W. Anderson, John Campbell and John Hooper.

About one hundred and fifty friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Arnold, Seymour and tendered them a "miscellaneous shower" as a recognition of their recent marriage. The evening was spent socially in cards and dancing.

...DEFENDER OF CIVIL LIBERTY... STRENGTHENER OF LOYALTY ... PILLAR AND STAY OF DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT.

BE A CITIZEN, ANYWAY.

Reports of a heavy registration of voters all over the Province are a healthy sign. Despite all the hue and cry over the last two Dominion elections, only about 70 out of every 100 Canadians who were entitled to vote bothered doing so. We were told that vital things were at stake, and months were spent in education and propaganda, yet in the end nearly a million Canadians were too little concerned to walk a block to the polls.

In England 80 per cent. of the people vote; in Germany 80 per cent.; in Norway and Sweden 85 per cent. Canada, which extols its democratic system, gives a 69 or 70 per cent. vote—about the same as Mexico.

It is to be hoped that the coming contest will reveal a better record. Whether for the O. T. A. or against it, those who have a right to vote should vote, is the excellent advice of The Ottawa Journal.

TECHNICALITIES.

The application of the Prohibition candidate in Addington for a mandamus instructing the returning officer to have his name placed on the ballot has been rejected by Mr. Justice Rose, whose decision is that he has no power in the matter.

As a result W. D. Black, Conservative candidate, who was announced by the returning officer as elected by acclamation on Saturday, will hold the seat, and the only recourse the unlucky Prohibitionist candidate has is to appeal to the Legislature at the next session.

To the layman it seems unfortunate that technicalities of this kind should deprive a constituency from deciding by its votes how it should be represented.

It will be remembered that in the last Federal election a Conservative candidate in Manitoba was eliminated from the contest because the car containing his agents with the nomination papers became mired on the way and the papers did not arrive until too late.

Yet regulations—red tape though they may seem—are necessary in the handling of such important business, and it is up to candidates to see that the law is complied with, even if some of the details appear to be superfluous.

SHOULD BE LINKED UP.

In a number of cities efforts are being made to co-ordinate and link up the work of social service organizations in connection with the dispensing of Christmas cheer and relief.

This, in line with what The Examiner has advocated as desirable here, if there is to be any assurance against over-lapping or the missing of worthy families who may be in need of assistance.

It is not too late yet to bring local organizations together that a business-like arrangement may be arrived at by means of which the dispensing of assistance this Christmas may be put on a more practical basis.

Members of some organizations have expressed approval of such a plan, and it is believed that a movement to link up the work will receive a good measure of support in all quarters as likely to produce more satisfactory results than are possible under the present system under which each organization works on its own account.

No needy family in Peterboro should be missed this Christmas—yet without team-work in this matter there is no guarantee that some won't be.

"HERE WAS A MAN."

A kindly Christian gentleman, of whom it can be truly said that "none knew him but to love him nor named him but to praise," has passed on in the death of ex-Mayor Henry Rush.

One of our oldest citizens, a man who had given lavishly of his time, energy and ability to municipal, church and fraternal service, Harry Rush will be remembered not so much for these contributions to the welfare of the community in which he was a shining jewel, although they were great in themselves, but for what the poet has described as "the daily beauty in his life."

If ever a resident of Peterboro was full of the milk of human kindness, if ever a citizen radiated love for his fellow-man, it was Harry Rush, whose life through the long years he had lived among us was a demonstration of the truth of the statement that "an honest man's the noblest work of God."

Hundreds of citizens have lost in his death a warm-hearted friend.

Scores of humble homes will miss kindly assistance so freely offered.

Shakespere must had just such another in mind when he wrote:

"He had a tear for pity and a hand
Open as day for melting charity."

Few citizens possessed such a wide circle of friends, none, it can be said, was held in more high esteem.

"His life was gentle, and the elements
So mixed in him that nature might stand up
And say to all the world, 'Here was a man.'"

THEIR LAST PARADE.

British military circles are deploring the passing of the West India Regiment as "a melancholy break in the traditions of the past." This corps, with a remarkable record of service, was the oldest negro unit in the armed forces of the British Empire. With its headquarters at Kingston, Jamaica, the stalwart black soldiers in their brilliant zouave uniforms of dark blue trousers, red coats and brilliantly white headdresses, presented to the traveller and tourist an unusually striking feature of life in this West Indian port. There are long forgotten phases of the history of this renowned organization which are of more than passing interest on this continent, for the regiment had its beginning in the Carolinas in the early days of the American Revolution.

The London Times says that, "strictly speaking," the regiment began in 1798, when it was first officially called by its present name. However, years before that date the South Carolina Corps, "from which it took its rise," was engaged on the Royalist side in the American war for independence. This South Carolina negro organization was apparently in existence as far back as 1775. In Colonial history there are cited several instances of Royalists encouraging the enlistment of their plantation negroes and all the others whom they could museter into negro commands to aid the British. They were employed in garrisons and not infrequently in scouting duty, for they knew the swamps and forests better than the white men knew them.

The South Carolina Corps under its British designation was known subsequently as the Black Carolina Corps, and also as Whyte's Regiment of Foot. When at the end of the Revolutionary war it was taken to British possessions, it received the name of the First West India Regiment. The regiment under one or another of these designations took part in the battle of Eutaw Springs, Stone Ferry and in several of the engagements before and after the fight at Kings Mountain.

It saw service in Africa and the Near East, at Martinique and Guadaloupe; it wore medals won in the Ashanti war, 1873-74; later in the war in West Africa and Sierra Leone, while in the World War it served in the campaign in Palestine in 1918, in the campaigns in East Africa and Kamerun.

The regiment was disbanded because there was no demand for its activities and because the Army Council considered it a matter of economy to dispense with its services. People from all over the West Indies gathered at Kingston to see its last formation on the parade ground. Sir Reginald Stubbs, Governor of Jamaica, reviewing the career of the regiment, said it had earned the lasting fame of which the laurel in the regimental crest was a symbol.

SOLDIERS AND THE LAND PROBLEM.

The Dominion and British Governments have been anxious to adopt a land scheme favorable to the placing upon the land soldiers who desired to take up farming, both from Canada and Great Britain.

Canada should enter into the spirit of co-operation with this or any other scheme, for such a move would give Canada the best class of material available for permanent settlers.

The experience these men have secured as disciplined soldiers will materially help in forming a trained reserve of men able and capable of taking up arms at a moment's notice, if necessary, in defence of the Empire or colony where they may be located. There is more arable land in the Peace River territory than there is cultivated land in the whole of the Dominion of Canada. Government statistics show that there is, in the Peace River country, 75,000,000 acres of the richest agricultural land in the world, unsettled and unsurveyed.

Ontario has an area of over 140,000 square miles in the "Great Clay Belt," all of which is excellent arable land, some 16,000,000 acres is surveyed and ready for the settler. The Transcontinental Railway—which is now a Government-owned road—passes through this territory and has made it attractive to the Eastern market.

The choice lands of the Provinces of Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia are all available for the settler. The Canadian National makes it easy of access.

With Canada's three transcontinental roads and with open ports both on the Atlantic and the Pacific, access to the British market is assured the year round, which should give an incentive to the prospects of an immigration rush to Canada. It would be a means of bringing freight and passenger traffic to these roads and help lighten the taxation. It would be one wheel within another to help boost Canada. Let us look after the ex-soldier, the man who has fought for the Empire, by assisting him to get upon the land, and give him some portion of that which he has so heroically fought to maintain.

To make a soldiers' colonization scheme a success, the co-operation of the Provinces of the Dominion is absolutely necessary, and a bold spirit of co-operation is the only feasible way to grapple with its full and immediate solution. The railways are now ready and equal to any conditions which may be imposed upon them by a search of immigration.

Provision must be made by having ready-made farms provided along the lines of our railways. This matter will naturally evolve into a large and wieldy problem, complicated but workable, and will require the efforts of a commission representing both the British Isles as well as the Dominion, to make it a workable scheme. It is a recognized fact that the railways with their colonization system will not be unprepared for the prospective conditions hoped for. —The Khaki Call.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

All communications on political questions must bear the signature of the writer for publication and must be received before 1 p.m. on the day before publication is desired.

To the Editor of The Examiner:
Sir:

Last evening my wife and I read a pathetic little poem by Mrs. E. F. Calder in The Examiner, in praise of the O.T.A. and praying that Ontario would keep dry. On the next column I read about a woman and two men from Omemee being fined $200.00 and costs and one month in jail for being drunk on homebrew. It was the O.T.A. that created homebrew, the bootlegger and secret drinking and I know from personal knowledge that if the O.T.A. is kept on and we don't get a better measure Ontario will go to hell instead of dry.

L. K. J. JUDD.

Mr. Editor:

A lot of abuse has been levelled at the head of the O.T.A.

The O.T.A., like any other instrument, is a good thing in the hands of responsible people.

An axe in the hands of a good workman will do good work and earn the workman in question a good livelihood; the same axe in the hands of an irresponsible may do untold harm, even murder, but we cannot blame the axe, and it is a well-known fact that a poor workman always blames his tools for his inefficiency.

Let us put the O.T.A. with its wonderful possibilities for good, into the hands of efficient responsible workmen, and we will live to see the benefits it will yield.

The Conservatives should stop classing the doctors and druggists of the province in the same class as the bootlegger; the doctors and druggists never requested the government to allow them to handle the liquor in the first place. They had that honor (?) thrust upon them.

When Ferguson allowed it to be known that he didn't want the O.T.A. too rigidly enforced, who was he shielding? Why his friend, the Mr. Boot-legger.

In the event of Ferguson being returned to power what guarantee have we that his Government Control will be rigidly enforced? Only Fergie's word for it; and we know how he kept his word over the enforcement of the O.T.A.:

"Not to be too rigid."

Yours truly,
MAUDE MILLER,
594 Aylmer St., City.

Sir—

The supporters of the O.T.A. claim that they are "dry" and that their opponents are "wets". They state that Government control is a wet measure. They state that the O.T.A. is a prohibition law.

During all the years that Mr. W. E. Raney and his successor, Mr. W. F. Nickle, were Attorneys General and were in direct charge of the administration of the O.T.A. this Province made a profit out of the sale of whiskey of over one million dollars a year and it is confidently asserted that during the same years the bootlegger in this Province made a profit of over five million dollars a year.

Can it be said that the O.T.A. is a dry measure when we find that the very department over which Messrs. Raney and Nickle successively presided and enforced the O.T.A., made a profit for the Government out of the sale of whiskey of over one million dollars a year?

In addition to that this profit of over one million dollars a year was made on the sale of whiskey ostensibly for medicinal purposes as a result of 1,500,000 medical certificates being furnished to the Government vendors. It is safe to say that over one million of these prescriptions were given for beverage purposes. That means that there was over one million lies told by those who obtained these prescriptions and it means that over one million lies were written by doctor who gave these prescriptions. If the bootlegger made five times as much as the Government did under Messrs. Raney and Nickle, then it is clear that the law was broken five million times a year by those who bought from then and the law was broken five million times by those who sold.

In common honesty can it be claimed that it is in the interest of this Province or in the interest of morality itself that an Act should be kept on the Statute book which educates people to lie and which educates them to break the law in such vast numbers.

The boy and girl who are rising into manhood and womanhood are not blind but they learn more by example than by precept. They find that their elders lie and break the law to obtain intoxicating liquor and they naturally conclude that there is no harm in lying and there is no harm in breaking the law. Such an example must be demoralizing in the extreme.

Under Government control every one twenty-one years of age will be at liberty to buy intoxicating liquor without lying and without breaking the law with the result that two million lies will be dispensed with and the law will be broken ten million times less. Common sense people must see that the O.T.A. is unworthy of the support of all honest men and women and the very last ones who should support it are those who preach and practice the Christian religion

Yours truly,
WM. J. KEARNS,

FROM 'FRANK GERALD"

Nov. 23, 1926.

The Editor, Examiner, Peterboro:
Dear Sir:

I notice in last night's copy of the "Examiner" a resolution was passed at a meeting which is described "A Great Gathering in Grand Opera House Last Night Unanimous in Repudiating Charges Against Young People of Ontario."

While on the face of it, there is no objection to a gathering of the nature comprised of a mixture of the sexes, young and old, there are some who will take exception, as I do, to the opening paragraph of their resolution which says in part "Be it resolved that we, representing the young people of Peterboro and vicinity, do go on record, etc."

The percentage of young people who attended a similar meeting in Toronto was less than 5 per cent of the entire student age youths of that city. Working even on the same basis it would appear that only a very very small percentage of youths of the City of Peterborough was represented at the "Great Gathering" in the Grand Opera House last night. They have the temerity to pass a resolution on behalf of the 95 per cent who were not there and could not have been there, because the building is too small to hold them.

The humour of the situation will of course appeal to those who are not of an analytical type of mind, and who, in their love of mankind do not adot a "holier than thou" attitude, inveigling us into such an indiscretion as was committed at the "young people's" meeting last evening.

Let me be candid for a moment and say this: If we are going to have in Peterboro a mass meeting of young people, let it be of young people, as I am credibly informed that when it became time to play "The King" some of the "young people" present had to be assisted to their feet and the entire gathering was sprinkled with venerable grey and bald heads, etc. "Young People's Gathering" indeed.

As a young man let me say that I was not there; that the majority of my friends were not there, because we realize the futility of supporting any measure such as the O.T.A., which has been given due trial and found lacking. There are none so blind as those who will not see, and the professional imported prohibitionist, also our local prohibitionists close their eyes and ears to conditions I cannot walk up the streets of Peterborough during the day or evening without seeing at least one dozen "Young People" whom I know to have been under the influence of liquor at some time or other within the past few years. Furthermore, in the City of Toronto, where I am fairly well acquainted, I have never yet sat down to play Bridge at one place or another where the host or hostess of the evening did not produce, or apologize for the lack of, liquor.

There is no one who abhors hard liquors more than I do; there is no one who would be more pleased to see sane temperance legislation enacted than myself. I know it to be useless, however, to attempt to enforce a measure which has not the popular approval of at least 75 per cent of the people of the Province. The law against murderers, robbers and thieves is a popular one and easily enforced because popular sentiment is behind it, but in the case of the O.T.A. the best that can be said for it is that it has created a new industry capable of huge profits though it does not pay the Province a single cent in revenue. I refer, of course, to the bootlegging industry, which cost us last year in the neighborhood of $350,000.00 to "curtail."

The only way to do away with the bootlegger is to make wines, liquors and beers available at all hours of the day and night and at very low prices. This, of course, we cannot do, but in allowing Government Sale of these beverages, we will destroy the trade of the big operator with his hundreds of hirelings, and by so doing, we shall have rendered a true service to mankind, as this is the felllow who introduces the poisonous liquors and so forth.

In closing let me appeal to the young people of this riding. All that is required is that they keep the issue clearly before them, investigate and think, as I am sure little thought was given by the young people of Peterborough to this massed meeting above referred to. Industry and commerce in the past have been crippled somewhat by taxation due to the undue cost of legislation and its enforcement. If we can get rid of the O.T.A., which is a "white elephant", financially and morally, replace it with sane temperance legislation such as I am sure the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson will introduce, which will be revenue producing, it will be of immense benefit to the populace of the fair Province within which we reside.

Yours very truly,
FRANK GERALD,
Peterborough.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press). — Extreme dullness again marked the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday, there being practically no demand from outside sources. The local trade was also quiet, but prices were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour were firmly maintained, but the local and export trade was light.

The demand for all lines of millfeed continued good and values were steady. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and firm.

The feature of the butter trade was the stronger feeling that developed and prices were marked up 1-2 to 1 cent per pound. This was attributed to the better demand. The receipts were 125 packages.

The cheese market was extremely dull, but prices were firm. The receipts were 393 boxes.

A fairly active business was done in eggs and prices were firm. The receipts were 1,697 cases.

There was a good demand for potatoes and prices were steady. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.80 per bag; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.70 per bag, and Quebec White stock at $1.55 to $1.60 per bag.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE END

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

Everything has an end, but the sum of things goes on.

As far as nature is concerned, there is no individual immortality, but there is immortality of the race or species. One generation breeds another, and so on. No generation lasts.

To be satisfied everything must have a close. We must have a climax in music. In a story we must have a beginning, and difficulties, and a satisfactory ending. Every speech must have a satisfying peroration.

The most eternal things that I know of, that is, things that seem to express eternity, are not the mountains nor the stars, but strangely enough the rivers, which are continually changing. They are eternal because they are constantly refreshed.

It is the same Arno that flows through Florence which was there in the days of Dante; Julius Cæsar saw the same Tiber we see now; Joan of Arc looked upon the same Seine! and King Alfred saw the same Thames we note to-day.

So the most eternal things are not the things that stand forever, but those which are continually refreshed.

From this doctrine of the end of things a wise man takes his comfort. He learns moderation in joy and fortitude in pain.

What he says to himself in days of sorrow is the same thing that he says to himself in days of joy to keep himself sober: "This too shall pass."

There are moments when we take great comfort in the fact that everything some time shall cease. As Swinburne says:

"From too much love of living,
From hope and pain set free,
We thank with brief thanksgiving
Whatever gods may be,
That no life lives forever,
That dead men rise up never,
That even the weariest river
Winds somewhere safe to sea."

I may not be quite exact, for I quote from memory, but the idea is there.

We can endure every lot because we have to stand it only a day at a time. Each life is broken up for us by periods of repose.

Every day is a little life and typical of that larger day of life—that youth, manhood and age, which we all endure.

There must be an instinct of death as there is an instinct of sleep, and the sage lies down calmly to die as the tired man goes to his bed.

It is the end, and while our brief day may not have been successful according to various standards, at least it comes to its close in the hope of another awakening and a new trial.

Shall there be another awakening to the sleep of death? If a man die, shall he live again?

PROHIBITIONISTS HOLD BIG RALLY AT WARKWORTH

Northumberland County Union Pledges Support To Liberal Nominee.

MANY SPEAKERS.

Government Control Policy Condemned As Step Backward.

WARKWORTH, Nov. 25—At a rally meeting of the Prohibitionists of Northumberland County which almost crowded the town hall yesterday afternoon at which Rev. John Coburn, of Toronto, Dr. W. G. Robertson, of Colborne, the Liberal candidate W. J. Armstrong of Campbellford, Rev. J. S. I. Wilson of Brighton, and Orval Kelly of Warkworth and Mrs. R. W. Scott of Campbellford, gave addresses confirming their faith in the O.T.A., condemning Mr. Ferguson's Government Control policy refuting his assertions against young people and pledging the support of Dr. Robertson, as the only dry candidate in Northumberland riding.

Orval Kelly, president of the Percy township Prohibition Union, was in the chair and in his opening remarks stated that he was a Conservative, but could not vote for Ferguson. "The statements made against young people by the Premier are lies", stated Mr. Kelly. He was encouraged by the large crowd, so many of whom were ladies. This indicated that people were putting principle ahead of party. The young people and women had the most at stake in this campaign.

Dr. Robertson.

Mr. Robertson was greeted with loud applause as he came to the platform. He stated that forty years ago he sat in the rear seats of the Warkworth hall and there received his first lessons in citizenship. The strongest thing he had to offer was the record of his life. He had been reeve of Colborne for three years since going there seventeen years ago. He had always tried to stand for what was right. He was the president of the Liberal Asosciation for sometime and felt he could claim the support of the Liberals and of the drys among the Conservatives and Progressives. He felt that he could not be elected on a separate ballot as simply a Liberal.

It was the temperance issue that had brought him into the fight. He felt it was hard for dry Conservatives to break with their party and yet it ought to be easy, because it was not a referendum or a plebiscite but a vote and more far reaching, and as they had gone gladly to the polls in 1919 and 1923 and voted for temperance now they could do the same. He warned dry Conservatives against those who would approach them asking that they stick to the party

The liquor interests are subtle, said Dr. Robertson. They had asked for a plebiscite, hoping to defeat the O.T.A. and since they did not gain their end by that course, had not ceased to harrangue the Premier for a change. Mr. Ferguson for eighteen months had been laying plans to get rid of the O.T.A. The liquor interests are behind one party or the other. Look at Hon. Mr. Nickle in Kingston and the stand he had taken. It was reported that $50,000 would be used to defeat him. The president of the Corbyville distillery was the first man to change his policy and turn against Nickle. The speaker stated that everything was going well in Colborne, Percy, Cramahe, Monaghan. Murray and Brighton he knew were strong for temperance. Cobourg would be a hard pull. Mr. Sinclair was sincere and if the leader of the new Government would be true to his promises although he believed the new Government would be a coalition with Mr. Nickle leading the temperance forces.

W. J. Armstrong.

W. J. Armstrong of Campbellford said he was not a public speaker but was present because he wanted to throw his strength on the side of the O.T.A. He had been fighting for temperance for fifty years and now must either break with his party, which he had followed for a longer time, or cease his temperance activities, and he decided that he would stay with temperance and throw his influence in that direction. He had a grandson and he would not sign orders allowing the Government to sell him liquor. "Government Control means open liquor stores," he said. "Mr. Ferguson says he will sell to every person over twenty-one a bottle of whiskey. I am going to support Robertson on this occasion." were Mr. Armstrong's closing words.

Mrs. George Kingston, wife of the Mayor of Campbellford then introduced the following resolution:

Moved by Mrs George Kingston of Campbellford, and seconded by Mrs. Lorne Evans of Norham, and unanimously carried by standing vote:

"We the Prohibitionists of Northumberland, assembled at Warkworth, this 24th day of November, 1926, are a non-partisan company. Our members represent all shades of political opinion. Our object is simply and solely to see that this Province enjoys the total prohibition of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. We believe that the O.T.A. although not perfect, is the best social legislation the Province has enjoyed. It is with pleasure we recall that all parties united in having it put upon the statute books.

"We deplore the fact, that against the express wishes of the people, the Premier of the Province should so identify himself with the liquor interests, as to bring forward the proposed Government Control policy We indignantly and unanimously regret and protest the charges made against our young people Such charges are not varified by the facts. We protest the proposed Government Control (sale) system of handling the liquo traffic. We believe that the O.T.A. can be amended and enforced so as to be both satisfactory and successful and we therefore pledge ourselves to support Dr. W. G. Robertson, the Liberal nominee and the only candidate in Northumberland, who has pledged himself to support the O.T.A. and use his influence, if elected, to secure a better enforcement of the Act.

Mrs. R. W. Scott.

Mrs. R. W. Scott of Campbellford was the next speaker and said: My greatest reason for supporting the O.T.A. is my three children, 13, 11 and 9 years of age, all boys. Mrs. Scott told of how her oldest boy had come home from High school and said bootleggers were jailed for breaking the law and the Government was going to sell liquor and surely it was not wrong if the Government sold it. To say that Government Control was a temperance measure was a big joke. Mrs. Scott described Mr. Ferguson's liquor policy in the story of a business man who had a negro named Mose working for him. One morning Mose did not come to work and when called on the phone said, "We have all taken the small pox." "Well," said his boss, "I hope you take every precaution." "Yes," replied Mose. 'I bought a sanitary cup and we are all drinking out of that." "Government Control is a sanitary cup for us all to drink out of," said Mrs. Scott, "but although it might be covered up we are not going to be fooled."

The word 'control' was used said Mrs. Scott, because it appealed to the strongest of human emotions. Ferguson soon shifted emphasis from control to liquor. If he gained power he was going to appoint a strong liquor commission. It would be strong liquor with a commission attached to it. The O.T.A. was the best legislation we had been given up to the present. People must be educated to live up to it. The first step was to vote dry on December first. To retain the O. T.A. would be a tremendous achievement.

The chairman, Mr. Kelly, then read the following letter:

Mr. Alex. Hume, of Campbellford, for the past five years Reeve of Seymour who was Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, in 1914, the Conservative candidate for East Northumberland in 1919 and a prominent agriculturist, has released the following statement for us in the present election campaign:

"I extremely regret that Hon. Howard Ferguson has thrown the temperance question into politics. I am convinced that it is a retrogressive step instead of the traditional progressive Conservative policy. His Government has given us good administration of the affairs of the Province, but along with other loyal Conservatives, I am compelled to vote for the dry candidate, never before having cast anything but a Conservative vote in either Provincial or Federal elections."

(signed) ALEX HUME.

Rev. John Coburn.

Mr. Coburn in a lengthy address reviewed the history of the Tory party and pointed out that the present policy was simply a Ferguson one. The Premier had not consulted his colleagues because he was afraid he would not be able to make concessions to the liquor members of his Government if he advised with any persons but them.

Mr. Coburn stated that he had always been a Tory and had voted with the party on all but two occasions. He reviewed the history of the temperance act and said no one had given Mr. Ferguson authority to change or withdraw the act. He referred to the changes in the manifesto of the Premier since the campaign and told his hearers that there was no record in the history of the British Empire of a man changing his policy after it had once been announced and regarded the changes in Mr. Ferguson's manifesto as a sure sign that he was afraid he had made a mistake in introducing the Liquor Control policy and that people were stronger in favor of temperance than he at first thought. Mr. Cobourn also referred to the many baits being thrown out by Mr. Ferguson, such as, a reduction in automobile licenses, the building of 529 miles of highway, the reduction in taxes and etc. but reminded his hearers that the people in the end must do the paying.

"This is not a plebiscite," said Mr. Coburn. "A plebiscite involves a question on the ballot paper which the voter answers by writing yes or no. The leader of the Government should be a man who would keep his word. He should recognize the will of the people and his policy on moral issue should be plain and clear." Mr. Ferguson did not deserve support because he did not measure up to this standard. Government Control was an attempt to make the liquor business respectable. Today it was an outlaw. Mr. Coburn closed by saying "If you don't vote Robertson, who is a sworn symbol of hostility to the liquor trade, you will lose the efforts of the past fifty years."

Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, chairman of the Prohibition Union for Northumberland, summed up the situation by pointing out the necessity of the temperance people standing together for the O.T.A. regardless of party ties.

Egg-Eating Champion Will Risk His Crown

CLARE, Mich., Nov. 26.—"Dutch" Hoyt, of Mt. Pleasant, a travelling salesman and former resident of Clare, has issued a challenge to Roy Comer, the egg-eating champion who ate 33 eggs a week ago at a restaurant here. The contest is to take place in Clare, Nov. 30.

POLICE CAPTURE NOTED CRIMINAL

Believed Implicated in $100,000 Mail Hold-up in Elizabeth, N.J.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press). — Five minutes before the tinkle of an alarm clock might have sent him out of reach of the arm of the law, John J. "Bum" Rogers, notorious criminal and escaped convict, was captured yesterday in his bed in a Bronx tenement house.

Retiring Wednesday night as a free, but widely hunted man, wanted since his escape shortly before Christmas last year, the ex-convict awoke on Thanksgiving Day to face an army of detectives.

Twenty-two men, heavily armed, swooped in on the apartment, on the fourth floor of a building in Third Avenue. Guns, pistols and blackjacks confropted the dazed and seedy fugitive, whose appearance long ago earned him his "monicker."

As he rose to a sitting posture, a blackjack "placed" him in position for the manacles,and a search which has been pursued intensively for the criminal in New York, New Jersey, and elsewhere was concluded.

Questioned at police headquarters Rogers, alias John J. O'Brien and Hughes, disclaimed having participated in any of the robberies of recent months in which his name has become a recurrent symbol.

He said he had not been outside Manhattan and the Bronx since his escape last December, and search of the apartment in the tenement

25,000,000 Automobiles Predicted In U.S. By 1930

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(A.P.)—A loss of $15,300,000,000 from traffic congestion for the next four years in the United States, with $25,000,000 automobiles by 1930, was predicted to-day by the American Road Builders' Association. Starting with 1930, the nation will suffer a daily loss of $13,000,000 through congestion on its highways, the association said.

BISHOP SPEAKS OF ANNULMENT AS INJURIOUS

Statement In An Extended Message To New York Diocese.

IT IS A DISCREDIT.

Criticized Grounds of Duress on Which Annulment Decision Rendered.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—The "whole proceeding" of the annulment by the Roman Catholic Church of the marriage of the Duke of Marlborough and the former Consuelo Vanderbilt "is a discredit to the Christian Church and an injury to religion," said Bishop William T. Manning, at the Cathedral of St. John The Divine, yesterday.

The Bishop's statement took the form of an extended message to the Diocese of New York, in which he said: "If marriages are to be declared null and void on pleas so unreal as this, no marriage, and no home, can be regarded as safe."

The Bishop criticized both the grounds of duress on which the annulment decision was rendered, and the right of a Vatican court to pass upon the validity of "a marriage between members of another commu-

PRINCE ARRIVES ON SATURDAY

On Private Visit To Governor-General and Lady Willingdon.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 26 (Canadian Press)—H.R.H. Prince George, the youngest son of His Majesty, will arrive in Ottawa early Saturday, Dec. 4, on a private visit to Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Lady Willingdon.

The Prince will be the guest of honor at a "boy and girl" dance given at Government House by Their Excellencies from 9.30 p.m. till midnight. No married people will be present.

As his visit is a strictly private one, Prince George will not attract such attention as his brother, the Prince of Wales. Prince George is 24 years old, and is a midshipman in the Royal Navy. It is said he is the liveliest member of the Royal family.

Prince George will remain at Government House until Monday. He is being guarded by Royal Canadian Mounted Police secret service men.

SAINT AND SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE is utterly different from her sister, FAITH, who stays at home and does all the work for the family of six, including—her semi-invalid mother, her father, a carpenter and a contractor; her brother, JUNIOR, or "Lons" Lane, 21; and JOY, 9.

Cherry, the flirt, is carrying on affairs with a dozen admirers, including CHESTER HART, formerly a suitor of Faith's; BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect; ALBERT ETTLESON a married traveling salesman; old MR. CLUNY, Cherry's present employer; and CHRIS WILEY, over whom a girl has committed suicide.

Faith is in love with Hathaway, who is infatuated with Cherry.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich man's son and amateur artist, is in love with Faith, and the family assumes that she will marry him. She warns the family that she does not love him and will not marry him. She leaves for a motor trip to Sulphur Springs with Pruitt but her mind is troubled by the fact that she has found a packed and locked suitcase in Cherry's closet.

Faith remembers a mysterious telegram to Cherry from Albert Ettleson, and when George and Faith are returning from outing, during which Pruitt had proposed and been rejected, Faith sees Bob Hathaway, with whom Cherry had said she had an engagement, driving alone, and her fears are confirmed.

She hurries home, to find Cherry gone, the suitcase, which she had asked Junior to hid in his auto truck, also missing. She tries to reach Junior by telephone, and is interrupted by her father, who announces the arrival of Mrs. Albert Ettleson, wife of the man with whom Cherry has been flirting.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII.

"Mrs. Ettleson?" Faith echoed in amazement. Then her instinctive unreasoning desire to protect her parents from knowledge of Cherry's foolish philandering with a married man and to shield Cherry—greedy, selfish, lovely little Cherry—from the consequences of her escapade, no matter how far it had gone, forced an artificial smile of welcome to her lips, honeyed her voice with a false sweetness.

"Oh, Mrs. Albert Ettleson—of course! I've heard Cherry speak of you. I'm so sorry she isn't in right now—she's out with a friend of the family—a Mr. Hathaway, isn't she, Mother? Did she say when she would be back?"

The corners of Mrs. Lane's mouth drew down in the stubborn expression that Faith knew so well. Her frowning eyes darted suspiciously from her daughter to the stranger who had certainly not come to pay an ordinary social call. "I don't know when she'll be back," she snapped. "I don't know what all this mystery's about, Faith, but if this—this woman—" her voice was acidly emphatic, insulting—"has come to make trouble for Cherry, though I must say if Cherry knows her or ever heard of her she's kept mighty quiet about it—"

"Please, Mother!" Faith begged, her voice smothered in panic. "I—I think I'd better talk with Mrs. Ettleson alone—"

"I didn't come here to make trouble between a mother and daughter," Mrs. Ettleson interrupted, her thin hands twisting together in painful embarrassment, her pale, greenish-gray eyes—the eyes of a timid, weak woman at last aroused to the fighting point—wide with fright and righteous anger. "But I think your mother has a right to konw, Miss Lane, that your sister has come between me and my husband. I have every reason to believe they've run away together today."

In the stunned, dreadful silence that followed, both Faith and her father moved instinctively toward Mrs. Lane. Cherry's mother rose, a vast, upheaving hulk, from her chair, her dropsy-puffed hands gripping the arms of the wicker chair so that the yielding, dry cane creaked—a loud, nerve-scratching sound in that awful silence. Faith on one side of her, Jim Lane on the other, flung their arms around her, but she shrugged her heavy shoulders, as if to shake off their protecting love.

"You're a liar!" Her voice, harsh and trembling with wrath, shattered the silence, made poor, insignificant, shabby little Mrs. Ettleson cringe, as if the words had struck her. "How dare you? Get out of my house, or I'll kick you out, you snivelling, whimpering hussy! Get out, I tell you—"

"Mother! Please, Mother! You'll kill yourself, Mother!" Faith begged brokenly, her arms straining to pull her mother back into her chair. "She has a bad heart, Mrs. Ettleson." She turned wild, imploring eyes upon the frightened woman who was cowering against the table. "Won't you go outside? I'll talk with you there—please! Oh, Dad!" she cried shrilly, as her mother's body sagged suddenly, lurched heavily toward the floor. "She's fainted! Call the doctor quick, quick!"

"I'm sorry, I'm sorry!" Mrs. Ettleson moaned helplessly.

"Get some water—the kitchen—straight back!" Faith panted, while her father ran to the hall to telephone.

Faith never afterwards clearly remembered just what was said and done in those dreadful twenty minutes before the doctor arrived, but tears of shame and gratitude always stung her eyes at the remembrance of how poor, bewildered little Mrs. Ettleson had risen to the occasion. In those twenty minutes she lost her identity as a wronged wife, assumed, with quiet dignity and efficiency, the role of ministering angel. It was Mrs. Ettleson who bathed the purple face of the unconscious woman while Faith answered Bob Hathaway's promised telephone call. It was Mrs. Ettleson who chopped ice in the kitchen, to fill the ice cap for the stricken woman's head. It was Mrs. Ettleson who deftly undressed her and eased the heavy, inert body into a clean white nightgown.

"Bob!" Faith gasped into the telephone. "Can you come—at once? Something dreadful has happened. No—Cherry's not sick. Something else. I can't explain. Mother has fainted—Cherry's gone—oh, Bob!"

"I'll be right there, Faith, dear." Bob's voice, sweet, comforting, in spite of the terror in it, was like a kiss on Faith's ice-cold lips.

As they worked over her mother, Faith marveled, for the thousandth time in her life, at her father's gentleness and tenderness toward his wife. She was vast and ugly in her cheap, unadorned nightgown, with her graying, thin hair straggling over the pillow, her thick, purplish lips puffing out grotesquely on her gusts of hard-won breath. But Jim Lane's knuckly, toil-hardened hands touched her thick, freckled arms, her heavy, sagging purple-veined cheeks with all the reverent gentleness that a bridegroom would have shown to his lovely young bride.

Faith, weeping silently as she waited for the doctor and for Bob Hathaway, looked at him as if she had never seen him before—this rather shy, henpecked, gentle man who would soon be old—and realized that to him the woman who lay helpless and fat and ugly on the bed they had shared for so many years was the girl who had been his bride. His love for her had burned steadily through twenty-five years of married life, of child-rearing and poverty and ill health. George would have been like that and she hated herself that she could think of her own affairs while her mother lay unconscious and gasping for breath.

They arrived almost together—the doctor and Bob Hathaway. She had just shown the doctor to her mother's room when Hathaway, without knocking, opened the screen door of the living room.

"Is she going to die, Dr. Atkins?" Faith whispered in terror, as the doctor shook his head over her mother's condition.

"I hope not," he answered gravely. "But I'm afraid another attack like this will be the end. You must protect her against shocks, excitement of any kind."

Mrs. Ettleson rose from her place on the edge of the bed, where she had been stroking Mrs. Lane's wrists, and hurried, blinded with tears, from the room.

"Faith!" It was Bob's voice, calling her in cautious, low tones.

She was so white, so terrified, when she came walking jerkily toward him that Bob Hathaway sprang to her side, and put his arm around her shoulders.

"What is it, Faith? I'll do anything in the world—tell me."

"Bob," and Faith raised her head with that sudden, proud gesture which he was coming to associate with her, "this is Mrs. Ettleson; Mrs. Albert Ettleson. She came here today to tell us that Cherry—that Cherry has run away with her husband. We've got to stop her, Bob—if it isn't too late."

"Oh, my God!" His tall body doubled suddenly, as if he had been struck a knock-out blow.

"I wish to God I'd never come!" Mrs. Ettleson began to weep, gaspingly, like a child. "Albert isn't worth it all. If I'd known about her mother—oh, I'll kill myself if poor Mrs. Lane dies!"

"We mustn't waste time," Faith said sharply, because she was so torn between pity for Mrs. Ettleson and Bob Hathaway and her anxiety for her mother and for Cherry. "We've got to get Cherry back—right away, Bob! The doctor said another attack might—" she choked on a sob that tore her throat.

"Mrs. Ettleson, won't you tell us just what you know?" Bob Hathaway, sensing Faith's need and terror, got hold of himself miraculously. "Let's try to get at this thing sensibly. You may be entirely wrong, you know. Please tell us exactly what you know about Cherry and—your husband."

Mrs. Ettleson dabbed at her tear-streaked cheeks with the back of a thin hand. "Albert—Mr. Ettleson—and he live in Indianapolis. He's a traveling salesman for the Tip-Top Gas Range Company, and he comes to this town once a month. I help him with his reports. I used to be a stenographer before I married, and they know me at his office. They let me have his mail to forward to him, or to answer, if it's something I can attend to." There was a curious ripple of pride in the dead, flat tones of her voice.

"About two months ago he got a letter in a girl's handwriting, from this town. I—I didn't worry much"—her listeners knew, with an acute pang of pity, that she had worried terribly—"because I know how—how traveling men are. Most of the time they don't mean any real harm. Albert was always good to me—in his way, and I hadn't had any real cause to be suspicious. But when—when the second letter came, I—I steamed it open before forwarding it to him."

How it must hurt her to tell all this, Faith told herself sickly.

"It was from—Cherry?" Bob prompted the faltering narrative.

"Yes, from Cherry Lane," Mrs. Ettleson nodded. "It was a love letter. He had promised to help her go on the stage—in New York—"

"Oh!" Faith breathed. That explained so much! Selfish, scheming, vain little Cherry!

"She kept harping on the subject," Mrs. Ettleson went on. "She believed every word he told her. Albert talks big," she explained, ashamed, deprecating. "He's a good mixer—makes friends in all the towns on his route. He goes to New York every six months or so. The company has its factory in Indianapolis, but its main offices are in New York. He'd—he'd evidently promised her, if she'd—if she'd be his—his—be nice to him," she supplied desperately, her Puritanism locking her lips on the ugly word she had tried to use, "that he'd get her a try-out in a musical comedy. Albert couldn't do anything like that, really," she hastened to assure them, with pitiful apology for the four-flusher she was married to.

"Then what, Mrs. Ettleson?" Bob demanded impatiently. His eyes were like bits of blue ice caught in the frozen paleness of his cheeks. Faith wanted desperately to put her arms about him, cradle his head against her breast.

"There were three other letters," Mrs. Ettleson went on, twisting her handkerchief between trembling fingers. "I—I sent them on to him. I was afraid not to. Then yesterday, I was at his office, helping him make out his reports, and I found a telegram that had accidentally got mixed up with his orders. It was from—from your sister," she said to Faith, "and it—it said she would be ready to go with him, if he'd wire her some money.

"She had to get some clothes, she said. She was to meet him at Darrow, fifty miles from here. He must have seen her in between or had a letter from her at some town on his route, for the telegram didn't say when they'd meet. But last night—I was going to face him with it—he didn't come home for dinner, like he'd promised. He was supposed to be home for a week, between trips, you know. I—I haven't seen him since, but I found out he'd bought a ticket for Darrow. He'd gotten his clothes out of the house while I was shopping—"

"Faith!" Bob Hathaway sprang to his feet. "We've got to drive over to Darrow—right now! I hope to God we'll be in time—for your mother's sake!"

(To be continued.)

A VERITABLE RESURRECTION

Brought About By Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

"I didn't 'Go West' in France, but I came home to Canada carrying my death warrant, the doctor declared. I weighed exactly 120 pounds—not much for a six-footer. Look at me now! Just 185, and as hard as nails."

The speaker (name if requested), a young Canadian from Victoria, B.C., who had served overseas with the Royal Flying Corps, had returned in 1918 a mere shadow of a man. His mother despaired of his life and he, himself, felt that he had come home to die.

His uncle, a prominent doctor, suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and he decided to give it a trial. In one month he felt better. He persevered, and in three months was back at his position, healthy and happy.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will relieve constipation; relieve it permanently if used regularly. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily — in chronic cases with every meal. Only ALL-BRAN can conquer constipation.

The FURNITURE SALE

You've Been Waiting For—

Fortunately for the people of Peterborough, our Anniversary Sale comes just at the time when the Christmas buying is everybody's first thought. No wonder our sale is a most opportune one, because of the greatly lowered prices that we always feature during our big annual event. SMITH TRIED ON MURDER CHARGE

Smith intended to commit suicide and that Derham, in attempting to prevent him, was accidentally shot.

A coroner's jury in September found that there was not sufficient evidence to show who fired the shot or whether it was by accident or design. At the inquest it was disclosed that Smith had on more than one occasion shown evidence of anger at Derham's attentions to Mrs. Smith.

Reiterating that England does not recognize the "unwritten law," the prosecutor went on: "Our law does not accept that a man with either good or bad reason for being jealous of another could act in this way. If it were said that the motive prompting Smith to fire was jealousy, that is no answer in this court."

The court was besieged by fashionably dressed women, for both Smith and Derham were of the socially elect—Smith a grandson of the late Hugh Ryan, noted Canadian railroad builder. Only ticket holders were admitted. Two elderly women served in the jury.

Smith appeared in the dock with jaunty mien and smartly dressed. The young and attractive Mrs. Smith was not present, as the law does not permit a wife to give evidence for or against her husband, and as the prosecutor pointed out, there was no other witness of the actual shooting.

A feature of the evidence was the reading of much angry correspondence between the parties, particularly between the two men, which the prosecutor contended, proved the state of mind of a man intending mischief. One letter alleged to have been sent by Smith to Derham declared: "You stole my wife after eating my bread."

Lillian Wight, the pretty fifteen-year-old sister of Mrs. Smith, gave practically the same testimony as at the inquest. She did not see the shooting, but declared that she heard Smith say to his wife: "I won't have this other lover of yours sleeping in the house."

Later she heard a bang and running downstairs saw Smith lying on the floor with Derham sitting on him and striking him. Mrs. Smith finally succeeded in pulling Derham from her husband.

BISHOP SPEAKS OF ANNULMENT

nion, solemnized in a Protestant Episcopal Church in New York, under the laws of the United States."

"This assumption of jurisdiction by a Vatican court," he said, "has serious implications, and will be rightly resented by great numbers of our people."

Further characterizing the action of the Roman Rota as "an unwarranted intrusion and an impertinence," Bishop Manning turned to the assertions from abroad that the 17-year-old Consuelo was forced into the marriage by her mother, the present Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who sailed Wednesday for France.

The Vanderbilt-Marlborough wedding was solemnized in St. Thomas' Protestant Episcopal Church here in 1895.

"Many who were present at the marriage," said the Bishop, "and were associated closely with the Marlboroughs at the time, have informed me that they saw no sign whatever that the bride was acting under any compulsion, but quite of the contrary."

"I have the direct testimony of one who heard his statements that in view of the special circumstances attending the marriage, the rector of the church, the Reverend Dr. Wesley Brown, took great care to assure himself that his young parishioner was acting of her own free consent, and that he was entirely satisfied as to this.

"If there had been forced consent in any sense which constituted duress, relief from this should have been sought, and the forced consent repudiated, at the first practicable moment. . . . .

"It was not until long after she had been divorced and remarried that she presented this plea to the courts of the Church of Rome.

"The plea of duress made under such circumstances as these, after a quarter of a century of married life and the birth of two children, would not be entertained by any civil court and the decree of the Vatican court based on this plea is one which earnest and devout Roman Catholics themselves should, and I am sure many do, greatly regret.

"That any woman of middle age, after years of married life should be willing to swear that her parents sold her for worldly gain, and against her will, is in itself a scandal, and the more so when one of the parents is no longer here to deny such an accusation.

"This whole proceeding is a discredit to the Christian Church and an injury to religion. It has done more than any event in years to weaken the sanctity of marriage.

"In the light of this annulment and the others that are now rumored on trivial and puerile grounds, what becomes the claim of the Roman Church that it stands for indissoluble marriage?"

HAS ALWAYS PROTESTED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press.) — Bishop John J. Dunn, head of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York, declared last night that "the Catholic Church has always protested and will protest against tyranny and selling of women in marriage."

Bishop Dunn's statement was made in reply to one by Bishop Manning of the Protestant Episcopal Church criticizing the Roman Catholic Church for its annulment of the Vanderbilt-Marlborough marriage.

"Whatever doubt one might have had," said Bishop Dunn, "with regard to the compelling force of the evidence submitted in the Rota is all dispelled in the amazing and shocking exposure contained in the sworn evidence given by those closest to Consuelo Vanderbilt. It did seem that the days of making women captives and holding them captives for marriage had passed.

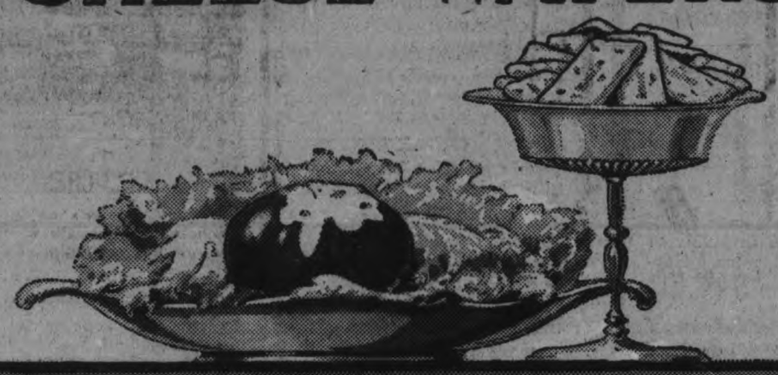
Bishop Manning has stressed very vehemently the claims of the civil law as well as of the Ecclesiastical law from the fact that the marriage took place in the United States and was performed according to the rite of Protestant Episcopal Church. He overlooks the higher and the more essential law, namely, the natural law, the law written into the very nature of things by God himself, which neither civil nor ecclesiastical law can change."

REFUSES COMMENT.

S. S. BERENGARIA, Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Europe-bound, yesterday reiterated her refusal to comment on the revelations made through publication of the Holy Rota's sentence annulling the marriage of her daughter, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, and the Duke of Marlborough.

She declined to discuss the assertion in the sentence that she had coerced her daughter into breaking her secret engagement with Winthrop Rutherford in 1895 by threatening violence, and then compelled her to marry the Duke.

Christie's CHEESE WAFERS



With Salads

Crispy, brown, with a dainty filling of delicious cheese, and a suggestion of salt,—the cheese wafer with "just the right flavour"—Christie's—has many uses.

Especially pleasing as an accompaniment to salads. The favourite partner to celery, to soups and to after-dinner coffee. Crumbled, they are ideal for au gratin dishes. A treat by themselves, too.

FEUD RENEWED OVER HOLIDAY

Gangsters Wreck Home of Virgil Hundsacker by Dynamite Explosion.

GROCER WOUNDED

HARRISBURG, Ill., Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press.)— The scene in the Shelton-Birger gang warfare was shifted to Harrisburg again early yesterday when the home of Virgil Hundsacker, one block from the home of Charley Birger, gang leader, was wrecked by a dynamite explosion and the store front of Sam Ripperdem was riddled by bullets fired by five unidentified men.

Ripperdam was wounded slightly in the head when struck by buckshot.

The first attack was on the Ripperdam store which is about a mile and a half north-west of the public square on a detour road to Marion, county seat of Williamson County.

Ripperdam detected five men attempting to enter the store, presumably for robbery, and opened fire. The volley was returned and the doors and windows were literally shot to pieces.

About an hour later, the whole town was rocked by the explosion at the Handsacker home, which is in the western section. All the windows were broken but none of the occupants was injured. Hundsacker has never before figured in the factional bootleggers' strife.

Birger told newspaper men the explosion almost knocked him out of bed. One theory is that the dynamite was intended for his house.

The seventh automobile within a week was stolen here last night. Birger who has set himself up as a "protector" of his home town against outside gunmen, recovered one of the stolen cars at West Frankfort yesterday and returned it to its owner.

All the coal mines in this vicinity were closed yesterday because of the Thanksgiving holiday and everything was quiet.

had been accomplished during the year, and he suggested that the County and Commission get together and find some place that their machinery may be stored in the winter and repaired if necessary.

Reeves Strickland and Smithson moved a motion of appreciation of the work the Suburban Area Commission has done in the past year.

The finance committee authorized the payment of the account, and then the committee arose and went into committee of Roads and Bridges.

Reeve Montgomery of Norwood asked what was going to be done about Belmont Street Bridge in that village, which at present is in need of being rebuilt. The chairman explained that this bridge would have been built this Fall, but there has been an unfortunate holdup in securing some land. The plans have been adopted and work will likely be commenced in the Spring. In the meantime Mr. Montgomery was authorized to have whatever temporary repair work as necessary done.

Reeve Brown of Burleigh was authorized to have Burleigh Bridge replanked. Reeve Clark complained about the bridge at Nogie's Creek. It seems that several farmers live across this bridge, and in the last two summers they have been unable to get their threshing done as the bridge would not carry a thresher's outfit. Reeve Clark was instructed to get new stringers put into this bridge. The committee went to inspect Hogan's and Lynch's bridges in Douro.

Commission's Report

Gentlemen:

On behalf of the Commission I beg leave to make an interim report to your honorable body at this, the last session of your Council for 1926. Such report is not in any way complete, from the fact that the fiscal years does not end until December 31st, and knowing that you do not meet again until the latter part of January in the coming New Year, you will pardon me for taking up your time to make this brief report of the work as carried into effect for the year to date.

We, as I presume your County Commission was, were forced to give immediate attention to the damaged parts of the roads as a result of heavy truck traffic when the frost was coming out in the early part of the season; not only necessitating considerable time but considerable money that we had not calculated in our decisions prior to such period. We sincerely trust that similar weather conditions will not have to be frequently contended with and we hope for more strict Government regulations with regard to such traffic when destructive to the roads. We are under the impression that it cannot be profitable to those engaged in such transportation, judging by our observations of their progress last Spring when all leading roads were practically out of use for a time largely due to such traffic under such unfavorable conditions.

On behalf of the Suburban Area Commission I take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation of the courteous and conjunctive assistance we received at the hands of the County Roads Commission, which is most conducive to the improvement of roads that are but a continuity, one of the other.

The following indicates expenditures to date in grouped form:

A tractor grader was purchased this year, and the result of its work have been satisfactory. There was about 31,000.00 provided to meet such expenditures by Government County and City, after considering the expenditures that the Government pays no percentage on. There has been expended to date $27,264.47.

Road construction and culvert construction as follows:

Road construction on Lakefield and Norwood roads, including culvert construction on all roads	$10,541.46
Maintenance	8,164.08
Machinery, tools and repairs for same	2,732.98
Interest and government tax on loans for Suburban Area purposes	1,071.97
All other general expenditures under various headings	4,753.98
Showing total expended to date	$27,267.47

Respectfully submitted,
H. Gainey, Chairman.

CAVAN Y. P. MEET.

Community Society Met in Mitchell's School on Friday Evening.

CAVAN, Nov. 26.—The Cavan Young People's Community Society met in Matchett's school on Friday evening to finish their organization. The Rev. J. O. Totten was present to assist them.

Rev. Mr. Bell, Toronto, preached a fine temperance sermon in Cavan United church on Sunday evening. He is field secretary for the Temperance Union in Toronto and is a man who has had wide experience along temperance work, having travelled in many countries.

He strongly advocated voting for the O.T.A., keeping what we have and trying to improve it.

On Thursday evening there was a meeting in the interests of the maintaining of the O.T.A. in Cavan Community Hall.

Mr. Fred Fallis, vice-president for the Township Prohibition Union, occupied the chair. Fine addresses were given by Rev. R. T. Richards and Dr. Morrison of Peterboro, Rev. Mr. Foley Frazerville, and Rev. McConnachie, Springville.

Two quartettes were sung by Rev. J. O. Totten, R. Sutton, Mrs. A. Kennedy and A. Tinney.

There was a good attendance, many coming from Fairmount, Springville Millbrook, Frazerville and other places.

The Tuxis boys held a meeting on Tuesday evening.

Membership Roll Now Totals Thirty-Six Members at Marmora.

MARMORA Nov. 26.—St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. continues to flourish. At present there are thirty-six on its membership roll. Nearly all these were present at the committee rooms on Tuesday evening when the weekly meeting was of a devotional character. Mr. F. I. Baker of Bonar Law, secretary of Centre Hastings and Township Religious Educational Councils gave an enthusing talk on Sunday school work and church attendance for which he was accorded an hearty vote of thanks. The branch will attend morning service at St. Paul's next Sunday for Corporate Communion. Canon F. W. Armstrong, who is in charge of the parish until the advent of the new rector, has intimated that he will address the branch. The meeting next week will be in the nature of a social to which Deloro young folk will be invited.

CARS COLLIDE

Three Men Slightly Hurt in Accident at Welcome.

WELCOME, Nov. 26 — An accident occurred on Monday evening about a half mile west of Welcome when Mr. Ed. Martin's car was overturned in the ditch and badly wrecked.

Mr. Martin accompanied by Mr Elgin Allison had come from the West and drew off opposite Mr Allison's gate and stopped. The two men were sitting in the car talking when their car was hit from behind and overturned in the ditch.

Mr. Allison was thrown through the top against the fence. Mr Martin was pinned under the car but excepting some minor cuts neither was hurt.

The driver of the other car, Mr Strachan of Morrisburg, was cut on his chest and face, and his car was smashed in.

Mr. Strachan claims he didn't see the other car. Just before the accident, he was putting up the window of his car.

What do children eat?

Are you "stuffing" them with white flour bread, potatoes and pastry? You can't build sturdy, robust boys and girls out of carbohydrates alone. They need the proteins, mineral salts and vitamins in the whole wheat grain. They get all of them in SHREDDED WHEAT. It is the whole wheat made digestible by shredding and baking—the most perfect process ever devised for preparing the whole wheat berry for the human stomach. No one has been able to improve upon or even approach our process. Each shred of whole wheat is crisp and thoroughly baked. Nothing so good for children as these little loaves of crisp, oven-baked shreds of the whole wheat. Delicious with hot or cold milk or served as a toast with butter.

TORY CANDIDATE HELD RALLY AT YOUNG'S POINT

No Word of Criticism Against Ferguson Administration by Opposition.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS

Says That Ontario Needs Government That Knows Its Policy.

W. H. Bradburn, the Conservative candidate, was tendered an enthusiastic reception at a meeting held in Young's Point last night.

He was assisted by the Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly, Rector of St. Aidan's Anglican Church, Young's Point; E. A. Peck, M.P., and V. J. McElderry.

The various speakers defended the record of the Ferguson administration, pointing out that no word of criticism has been passed on it by the Opposition, whose only platform seemed to be that of opposing the Government control measure.

The Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly.

"I am sick to death of the word Prohibition," declared Mr. Dwelly. "I hope it will never be seen after December 1." His advice was to get away from the prohibition angle of the question and to consider the things purely on the record of the government. In his opinion there was not a body of men in the country that equalled the Ferguson Cabinet. Due to Premier Ferguson, he said, the people of Ontario have a system of education without equal in the world.

Supposing Ferguson is not elected, he said, "Who is going to govern the province — Sinclair, Raney, or Nickle?" "Men, who while admittedly very able along certain lines have proved themselves incapable of governing," he declared.

The chief need of the province of Ontario, in his opinion, was a stable government, a fearless leader, and a government that knows its policy.

"If you want this, you cannot do better than support Ferguson," he said in conclusion.

W. H. Bradburn

"The record of the Ferguson government is a credit to them," said Mr. Bradburn. When they took over affairs about three and a half years ago, they were faced with an appalling situation, a deficit of fifteen million dollars, which was reduced by the Ferguson administration to a little over a million dollars by 1925. That, if no other thing, ought to be sufficient to return Ferguson to power," he declared. In other departments, too, he maintained, their record was equally good.

During the year 1922, 88,108 cars containing tourists entered Canada. Due to the efforts of the Department of Highways in advertising in the United States, the number of cars entering Canada during 1925 had attained the huge total of 1,544,112.

"The other side, I am sorry to say, instead of attacking the policy of administration are attacking the policy of the control of liquor."

Mr. Bradburn spent some time discussing the various temperance measures that had prevailed in the province prior to the advent of the Ontario Temperance Act. In 1919, Sir William Hearst, the man who had given the province the Ontario Temperance Act in 1916 went to the people. Prohibition was on a separate ballot and carried by a majority of 425,000, but the same people who voted in favor of his prohibition measure defeated his government. In 1922 another vote was taken reducing the majority to 200,000. The 1924 plebiscite reduced the majority to 34,000. The facts are, he declared, that 49 per cent of the electors voted government control, while 51 per cent voted for the retention of the Ontario Temperance Act. As a result of this very narrow majority, he maintained, it was impossible to enforce the act.

Mr. Bradburn cited a number of names of prominent men who were supporting the government control policy "whom the prohibition people claimed was only supported by the lower element."

"They say, keep Ontario dry—it never was dry," he declared. Despite the fact that liquor can only be obtained legally in the province for medicinal purposes, the prescriptions given by doctors jumped from around eleven thousand a day to forty thousand a day during the Christmas season, and then dropped off to normal immediately after. There must have been a lot of sick people in the province at that particular time, declared Mr. Bradburn.

E. A. Peck, M.P.

Mr. Ferguson has given the people of this province three and a half years of effective service, and asks for return to power solely on what he has accomplished during that time," declared Mr. Peck.

Will the other side say that the government has not been wise or efficient? he asked.

"As an old citizen of the County, and I am a temperance man—I have seen the horrors of intoxication—but I can still approach the question with an unbiassed mind," said Mr. Peck in referring to the question of government control. Government after government has been working toward decreasing drunkenness. Sir James Whitney applied himself vigorously but reasonably to the question. He enforced regulations regarding the young people, shortened the hours that the bars could remain open. His policy was to gradually educate the people to the folly of drinking to excess. When the Ontario Temperance Act arrived it was not merely an increase in restriction but a prohibitive measure, he said.

When the people began to realize that it was prohibition, the law began to be broken, and gradually every day sees it more and more infringed upon. The ordinary citizen, if he has the price, can purchase liquor practically anywhere. Another feature, he said, was that people under the pressure of the Ontario Temperance Act, had discovered how to make various intoxicating drinks, with the result that today the province has on its statute books an act that cannot be enforced.

"People posing as great moral people say that government control is immoral. don't believe that; I believe that we represent the principles of true temperance," he declared.

Behind any liquor legislation there has got to be three things. Education; set a good example to the other fellow; and be prepared to step out of your way to aid the person who may be abusing liquor.

"If you adopt the Ferguson system, you adopt something that is practicable; a measure that the public will fall in line with and give their support," he said in conclusion.

V. J. McElderry

"What is this policy of the Ferguson Government that some people take exception to?" asked Mr. McElderry. "We stand on the record of the Ferguson government, and are proud of it, he declared. He maintained that if the record of the Ferguson government had not been blameless they would have heard about it, where as they claim that the only issue was temperance.

"The policy which Ferguson proposes is simply a policy for controlling the necessary sale of liquor, and is not a policy for revenue, he declared.

This is a government policy, he said, and has the support of the government who are behind it. The Ontario Temperance Act, while the people were behind it was an unqualified success, but it has gradually been losing the support of the people, with the result that a change is necessary.

Government control was just as much a temperance act as the O.T.A., he declared. It proposes to control the sale of liquor. "Our opponents say that Ferguson is forcing this on the people. He is not. He is asking your opinion and is staking his career upon your answer," he declared.

Her Little Boy Caught Cold While Out Playing

Mrs. F. Cade, Elmwood, Man., writes:—"My little boy caught cold while out playing in the snow. He coughed incessantly all that night and the next day, and nothing I gave him seemed to relieve him. When my husband came home he brought a bottle of with him. After the second dose my boy was greatly relieved and after the third dose he went to sleep and slept the whole night through without any coughing. I am never without it in the house, and whenever any of the children get the slightest cold it's the first thing I give them."

SHAREHOLDERS ARE ORGANIZED

Hastings Men Wish to Raise Money to Buy Machinery.

FOR BARREL STAVES

(Examiner Special Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Nov. 26. — Local shareholders of the Canadian Automatic Barrel Machinery Company appointed a committee on Monday night to interview prospective subscribers and explain to them the proposed plan of raising $19,000 for the installation and purchase of machinery for the making of barrel staves. The committee is composed of T. J. Lynch, R. C. Doxsee, Bruce Parker, Adam Humphries, Wm. Lynch and Walter Fowlds.

To Mr. Fowlds fell the duty of presiding at the meeting and of reading correspondence from M. A. Gough, of Toronto, manager of the company. The machinery and its erection would cost about $8,900 and a dry kiln $2,000 more. The mill would have an output of forty to fifty thousand staves a day. One letter announced that the first barrels were shipped to Picton in October. Local money has already been invested in the company, and a factory building was acquired and is still held. Mr. Gough wrote that if the additional financing was successful the money would be deposited in trust in a Hastings bank and all cheques for disbursements would be signed by W. A. Fowlds. If the machinery was not installed the money would be returned to the subscribers. All accounts for machinery and installation would have to be "O.K.'d" by Mr. Fowlds. Shares of $100 par would be offered at $75.

Twenty-five of the shareholders were present, and the committee was formed to report and present the new plans to others. Large supplies of elm are available in this district, and the proximity of this raw material is regarded as one of the factors which should promote the success of the company if it reached the stage of operation here.

DANGEROUS FIRE CHECKED IN TIME

Blaze in Threshing Engine Extinguished Before Straw Ignited.

BURNBRAE, Nov. 26.—A somewhat novel and yet serious fire occurred on Tuesday evening, when the threshing engine belonging to Mr. William Fry caught fire in Mr. Robert Cleugh's yard. About half an hour after the machine gang had left for home, Mr. Cleugh was startled by a sudden blaze, and rushed out of the stable to find the steam engine a mass of flames. Fortunately a can of water was handy, and valiant efforts on the part of Mr. Cleugh resulted in conquering the fire, which had obtained a hold on the roof covering the body of the engine. Mr. Fry was reached by telephone, and was soon on the scene, but the danger was over. It is thought that a spark had worked out through a crack in one of the seams, and coming in contact with the air and grease, had burst into flame. The burning grease made a brilliant reflection, which could be seen for a great distance and gave the impression of a much larger fire.

The only damage was a burnt governor belt and part of the roof badly scorched, as Mr. Cleugh's prompt action soon had the blaze under control. Luckily, the drive belt was not on or it would have been burnt too. Mr. Cleugh was naturally much alarmed, as the burning engine was quite close to his new barn which was only completed at harvest time, and with so much straw around, the danger was very great.

DRINKS CARBOLIC.

Hamilton Man Invites Wife To Watch Him Commit Suicide.

HAMILTON, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press.) — Walking into his wife's room shortly after midnight last night, Heiry Whittington, 162 Mary street, said: "Watch me drink this."

He then drank the contents of a glass he carried. His wife thought nothing of the statement or his action fololwing it, as he had often spoken in a similar way. But a few minutes later she became alarmed when he sagged down on the bed and died.

He had drunk nearly two ounces of carbolic acid from a bottle that was found in his pocket.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

Jet is today's talismanic gem. Worn against the flesh, it protects its wearer from sorrow and bad luck, unless it is broken or chipped; then it should be thrown away at once, as it loses its power for good.

Today's natal stone is the coral, which protects those who travel, especially on ocean voyages. The ancients believed that to those born on an anniversary of this date, the coral brought unabating vitality and the power to attract the opposite sex.

Dark brown should be worn today. The Orientals believed that the quieter tones aided them in escaping the notice of the evil spirits which rule this date.

The purple violet is today's flower. It protects from evil the home which it adorns.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

GIDEON'S THREE HUNDRED

Text: Judges 7:4-8, 19-21

And the Lord said unto Gideon, The people are yet too many: bring them down unto the water, and I will try them for thee there; and it shall be, that of whom I say unto thee, This shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee; and of whomsoever I say unto thee, This shall not go with thee, the same shall not go.

So he brought down the people unto the water: and the Lord said unto Gideon Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth, him shalt thou set by himself; likewise every one that boweth down upon his knees to drink.

And the number of them that lapped, putting their hand to their mouth, ere three hundred men; but all the rest of the people bowed down upon their knees to drink water.

And the Lord said unto Gideon, By the three hundred men that lapped will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into thine hand; and let all the other people go every man unto his place.

So the people took victuals in their hand, and their trumpets; and he sent all the rest of Israel every man unto his tent, and retained those three hundred men. And the host of Midian was beneath him in the valley.

So Gideon, and the hundred men that were with him, came unto the outside of the camp, in the beginning of the middle watch; and they had but newly set the watch; and they blew the trumpets, and brake the pitchers that were in their hands.

And the three companies blew the trumpets, and brake the pitchers, and held the lamps in their left hands, and the trumpets in their right hands to blow withal; and they cried, the sword of the Lord and of Gideon.

And they stood every man in his place round about the camp; and all the host ran, and cried, and fled.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 28. Gideon and the Three Hundred. Judges 7:4-8, 19-21.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

In the lesson dealing with Caleb's faithfulness and reward it was said that "the land had rest from war." Such a happy condition did not last. Israel in the new home was surrounded with enemies, and, as we find in chapter six of Judges, Israel's worst enemy was in some measure herself. The evil and foolish curses of the children of Israel "delivered them into the hand of Midian seven years."

But now, as in the days of bondage in Egypt, a new leader had arisen with the divine call to deliver his people from the oppression of the Midianites.

It is a sad picture of Israel under this oppression with the people living in dens and caves in the mountains so that they might escape from the ravages of the Midianites, with no safety for their crops, their cattle, or themselves.

Spirit of Gideon

Gideon was engaged in the very practical business of threshing wheat by the winepress to hide it from the Midianites when the divine call came to him to effect the deliverance of his people.

But with Gideon, as with Moses, there is the sense of his own weakness and unworthiness, "Oh, my Lord, wherewith shall I save Israel? Behold my family is the poorest in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's house."

That spirit is noteworthy in this age when we are so apt to think that leadership and effectiveness depend so much upon having a good opinion of one's self.

How often we say, "If you don't believe in yourself nobody else will believe in you." How much we urge young people to put on a bold front and to value themselves highly. But here we have, as in many other places in Scripture, an evidence of the place of true humility in preparation for leadership. How can one avail himself of the power of God if he feels an undue confidence in his own strength and abilities

But Gideon was not simply a man of humility and devotion. "The spirit of the Lord came upon him," and he showed himself a man of action. He sent messengers to gather the people together and prepare them for the conflict. But the quality of his faith was shown in the way in which he yielded to divine guidance in selecting from the mass of the people an army of only three hundred men.

Man of Action

Surely this is one of the most remarkable stories in all history; a leader going forth to battle and deliberately reducing enormously the number of his army. As late as last century Napoleon could make the boast that "God is on the side of the great battalions." But the writer of the book of Judges knew better, Gideon knew better.

So he divided his 300 men into three companies. putting in each man's hand a trumpet, an empty pitcher and a lamp within the pitcher.

Picture the commotion, the appearances of an amazed host, as in the darkness of the night outside of the camp of the Midianites Gideon blew his trumpet and every man of the 300 scattered in the three companies at the same instant blew his trumpet, breaking his pitcher and revealing his lamp!

Enemy Fear-Stricken

Every trumpet and every lamp must have suggested to the Midianites a company rather than an individual, and the smashing of the pitchers must have seemed like the commotion attendant on the movement of a great army. Was it any wonder that the hosts of Midian were fear-stricken and fled?

The whole thing reminds us of the fall of Jericho, and it again illustrates the power of a determined minority, resourceful and full of spiritual strategy.

How often in the midst of the hosts of evil is there the need of recalling the courage and effectiveness of Gideon and his band! "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon" is a powerful rallying cry.

Three hundred determined men with that watch cry and a leader like Gideon could unquestionably accomplish quite as great things in our modern day as Gideon and his army accomplished long ago.

BRIDGE TABLE TALK

By KEITH PRESTON.

Since Charles Lamb wrote about Mrs. Battle and whist nothing human or humane has been addressed to card players. One reads Hoyle and Elwell and Whitehead and Work with a feeling that the fellows simply aren't human. They know their stuff like so many calculating machines and write it that way. They have card sense, but no card sympathy. The human element that makes auction bridge the fascinating game it is seems utterly unknown to them. They know the permutations and combinations of the cards, but not the complexes and neuroses of the card players. Why are the weakest players frequently the strongest bidders? Why will one player never trust his partner at all and another always expect miracles of him? These psychological factors are a mystery to Work and Whitehead, but not to Wynne Ferguson, author of "Practical Bridge." Mr. Ferguson recognizes that in spite of book knowledge and experience bridge players remain human being prone to hog the bid or deny their partner. He knows every mental weakness common to bridge players and labors with the victim kindly but firmly. Take this pig-headed player who never supports his partner's bid on a minor suit: "Do you belong to some secret order," asks Mr. Ferguson, "the laws of which will not permit you to assist your partner because he has bid a minor suit? Have you promised your family that you wouldn't allow your partner to play a hand at clubs or diamonds? Are you one of these birds?" The man with a major suit complex is going to feel pretty thoroughly ashamed of himself before Mr. Ferguson gets through with him.

"Have you ever been bitten by saps?" inquires Mr. Ferguson. "It seems to me that I am unlucky when it comes to sap bites * * * If there is a sap anywhere around the bridge table I get him and his bite is deadly. The sap's daily pastime is doubling four clubs or four diamonds, when there is no score; or taking you out of a double when you have the opponents lashed to the mast. His usual excuse for a take out when you have doubled is: 'Well, partner, I had no trumps,' and he seems to think that's excuse enough, when as a matter of fact, having no trumps is not a particularly unique experience."

We had ourself observed and classified some seven deadly simps among our bridge cronies and we find all these and a good many more described in this book. In fact, we found ourself there, handled rather kindly considering the grossness of our particular complex. "Practical Bridge" is the easiest reading and hardest hitting bridge book in existence. It is so human that we suspect the author, unlike those aloof perfectionists Work and Whitehead, has bridge weaknesses of his own. He probably pounds on the table as on a pulpit and tells his partner what he should have done to save himself and the rubber. Nevertheless Mr. Ferguson has written the first bridge book that enabled us to combine pleasure with instruction and we hasten to recommend him to all who have writhed under the cold superiority of Hoyle and Elwell, Work and Whitehead. ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain—How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

APPOINTS MEMBERS FOR BOARD OF AUDIT

Board Was Given Wide Powers in the 1925 Act.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 26. — Canadian Press. — The government has appointed the members of the Board of Audit which was created by act of Parliament in 1922. The board will consist of Gordon M. Scott, of Montreal, chairman, L. Eugene Potvin of Montreal, and E. Y. Howson of Toronto.

The Board of Audit, acting under the Minister of Finance, was given wide powers by the 1925 act. Upon instructions, it can be put into any government department, the Canadian National Railways, the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, or investigate "the financial affairs of any commission or other public body, the operations of which are carried on by appropriations from the treasury of Canada or which are aided by grants or loans from the said treasury." The Board reports and makes its recommendations to the Minister of Finance, who places the report before Parliament.

It is understood, although there has been no official intimaton, that the newly created board is to be assigned a task in the near futu .

The board has all the powers of a royal commission to summon witnesses and take evidence. With the approval of the treasury board it can engage clerical assistance. It members hold office for a term not exceeding five years and shall devote such portions of their time to the work "as may be found reasonably necessary." They are paid by the treasury board sums not exceeding $3000 a year.

A further power of the board is stated in the act: "The treasury board may from time to time extend the powers of the board to include inquiry into another undertaking or service which has received or is seeking aid from the treasury of Canada as may be deemed to be in the public interest.'

When the Brook Meets.

Out from the hills of the ages,
Into the vales of to-day.
Bearing its freshness and beauty,
The brook comes purling away.

Laughter and joy in its babbling,
Never a care, nor a fear—
Over the pebbles a tinkling
Its music, that all may hear.

On, ever on, where the river
With burdens borne on its breast,
Silently, still, uncomplaining,
Flows on to the end, and rest.

Oh, when the brook meets the river,
And leaves its glades for the shores;
Giving its sparkle and crystal
As into the swirl it pours.

Then back to the hills eternal.
Thro' sunshine and cloud and rain,
Blessing the earth with its dew drops
The brook cometh home again.

"LITTLE MICKEY."

Boys' Club of Sacred Heart Church Presents Play.

(Contributed.)

The capacity audience which turned out to see "Little Mickey" as presented last evening by the Boys' Club of the Sacred Heart Parish, went home enthusiastically pleased. The plot centres about little Mickey O'Doone's appointment to the important office of British Ambasador to Jerusalem. Interwoven with the laughable complications which ensue is the pathetic tale of poor ould Pat O'Connor who finally recovers his long lost son. The difficult part of "Little Mickey" was skilfully taken by Joseph O'Toole, who was ably supported by the following cast: "Molochy O'Doone, Joseph Collins), (Pat O'Connor, Herb Masterson), (Mayor McSweeney, Maurice McGrath), (Bat O'Doone, Albert Guerin), (Boyle O'Doone, Joseph O'Connell), (Father Mahoney, Victor Grady), (John Manion, John Cairns), (Jack Manion, Roy Bacon), (The Purser, Emmet McGrath), (Darby O'Toole, Ed. Drumm). The action was accelerated by snappy singing, a clog dance by Ed. Drumm and an old-fashioned quadrille which was executed w ith great skill.

Between acts "ye old tyme" orchestra, including Mr. Wilfrid Dwyer, Mr. Ed. Kelly, winners of the recent Capitol theatre contest, and Mr. William Conroy, furnished wonderful music of the kind which makes old folks live again the joyful days of youth.

Added to the regular bill of the evening were three amusing sketches furnished by the girls of the Sacred Heart school, "Aristocrats," "School Days" and "Deaf as a Doornail." Those taking part were Agnes Masterson, Yvette DeLorme, Kathleen Jones, Marjorie Paquette, Mary McGrath, Madeline Curtin, Florida Bishop, Margaret Coursey, Mary Ryan, Marjorie Hallihan and Maloisa De Carlo. Included in the second part of the programme was a clog dance by Little Billy Garvey, a duet by Kenneth O'Toole and James Moloney, a beautiful vocal selection by Miss Olive Guerin, a Hawaian guitar duet by Misses Geraldine Doig and Mollie Cairns and a very amusing song by Victor Grady dressed [illegible] Bolshevik costume w[illegible] sang [illegible] Ivan Saidovski [illegible]oar. The entire performance will be repeated this evening.

Mr Harold Armstrong deserves special mention as the efficient accompanist of the evening.

A New Party Frock

Such a frock as the one pictured here is at once delightfully girlish and an excellent choice for party wear. It is a demure model, and may be of crêpe de chine or georgette crêpe. It has a round neck and the scalloped bertha falls becomingly over the sleeveless bodice. The scallops are repeated in the gathered skirt joined to the straight bodice, and ribbon, in either a matching or contrasting shade, finishes the waist, while a chic bow and ends fasten at front of the bertha. Lace or ribbon sewed in circles at intervals on the skirt and bertha, make a dainty trimming. NO. 1413 is in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 10 requires 2½ yards 39-inch material, or 2 yards 54-inch. 20 cents.

Our new Fashion Book contains many styles showing how to dress boys and girls. Simplicity is the rule for well-dressed children. Clothes of character and individuality for the junior folks are hard to buy, but easy to make with our patterns. A small amount of money spent on good materials, cut on simple lines, will give children the privilege of wearing adorable things. Price of the book, 10 cents the copy.

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

MODERN CINDERELLAS

I have just attended one of the most magnificent and impressive weddings I have ever witnessed—and I saw the Queen of Norway and the Queen of Spain married, too.

All that was lacking to make Betty's wedding superior to theirs was the absence of a few royal names. Her parents have a lovely home, superlative gardens, wealth and personal popularity, so it was a garden wedding de luxe, replete with glamor, dazzling under the moon, and the knot was tied by an Episcopalian Bishop.

Betty's wedding dress and her mother's gown had been imported from Paris at huge expense, and when the Paris dress failed of complete perfection, an army of local experts created a still more superlative hand-made one, with hundreds of tiny applied silver flowers interwoven with seed pearls—all in four days. Every bridesmaid had an exquisite gown of shimmering and very expensive loveliness. Costly flowers were there in abundance. Fifteen hundred guests had been bidden and a banquet was served. A large room was required to accommodate the wealth of handsome presents. . . .

These people were not "climbers," not "noveaux riches"—in that their fortune had come to them gradually through the years, and they were of good local standing in the previous generation. But when mother and father married they had been very nearly "poor." Just folks like the rest of us. And they had borne their slow but sure increasing prosperity with grace . . . a much-loved family. All the same, in their wildest dreams in those far-off days they had never imagined themselves as rich and gorgeous as this. Daughter's wedding was really their first obvious social splurge, albeit those fifteen hundred guests included all the modest old friends as well as the rich new ones. But nothing that wealth and love could buy was too good for daughter's wedding.

Betty takes it all as a matter of course. She has never known anything that looked a bit like poverty. She has never had to practise the art of doing without. So she doesn't know she is a modern Cinderella for whom a fairy has certainly waved a magic wand.

And she cannot whet her young imagination on the magic glory of it all, so possible and reasonable in this wonderful United States, so improbable and amazing in almost any other country.

But mother and father know, all the old friends know. They can remember when mother did all the work and the mending and cooking before Betty came to town. They can remember how hard and faithfully father has worked to achieve this resulting glory of Betty's wedding. They have seen mother emerge slowly, gradually, from nurse, cook, seamstress and dishwasher into a society lady in an imported Paris gown. They know with what dignity and grace Betty's mother and father have acquired and dealt with their prosperity.

But Betty doesn't know she is a Cinderella. She is confortably conscious of the princess-ship which always seems to have been hers. And her young husband can bring her nothing that she has not always had—except his love. She is very modern, and doesn't believe in fairies. Rather a literal little girl, this Betty. No interest in or patience with whimsicalities, imaginative playfulness, fancies, dreams. . . . Life has been comfortably solid and straightforward for Betty.

I think she misses something but not knowing she is a Cinderella, by not believing in fairies.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1926

Although Jupiter is in benefic aspect to-day, according to astrology, Mercury, Venus, the Sun and Saturn are all adverse.

It is a day in which to push energetically all sorts of big business enterprises and to plan extensive developments.

This is a most promising rule for banks, which are likely to have the busiest winter in American financial history.

All who wield power should benefit from this configuration, which is helpful to leaders in thought or action.

Contracts and agreements should not be signed under this planetary government, which is especially threatening where theatrical agreements are concerned.

This is a threatening rule for those who would settle debts or wind up their financial obligations. Delays may be most fortunate.

Women to-day are subject to disappointing experiences, especially when they seek employment.

It is not an auspicious sway for the theatre or for those who are employed in it.

Motion pictures also may partake of the unfavorable influences, which appear to presage inventions and improvements which tend to reduce the value of films already on the market.

Saturn to-day frowns on mines and mining and appears to be inspiring discontent among workers.

There may be many thwarting incidents apparent in the course of any important undertaking on this date.

It is foretold that a book on some phase of American life, possibly American politics, will make a sensation.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of great activity in which they have large financial dealings.

Children born on this day may rise to supreme heights either in professions or in social contacts. These subjects of Sagittarius may attain ambitions that appear impossible.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

This very successful dance frock was made of cardinal red crepe georgette trimmed with silk fringe to match.

The proof of the dance frock is in the dancing. You cannot really tell as you stand perfectly still in the fitting-room wearing a new dance frock what its real effectiveness is going to be. Nor can you tell when a stately model goes through her slow paces wearing a dance frock just how successful it will be. Perhaps models ought to be made to dance when showing dance frocks. Perhaps we ought to go through a few dance steps before the mirror when we try on our own dance frocks.

The other day someone made the observation that "fringe dances well." It tends to weigh down airy fabrics—but not too heavily—and it takes up a swaying motion that is very attractive. It sways gently to the music. Beading on net and other materials produces this same effect. Full taffeta skirts that are seen on some of the new dance frocks take on a stately swaying motion of quite different sort.

Some frocks that do very well for some purposes don't dance well at all. They may fit well enough when the wearer is sitting or standing, but when she dances the frock may draw up in unattractive lines, showing too little material here and too much there.

There must be something extremely secure about the dance frock. Shoulder straps must be perfectly adjusted. The slip must be fitted so closely that it will keep its position without puckering. Belts, girdles, shoulder flowers must all be fastened with utmost security. No woman can dance well when her mind is divided between the dance step and the security of her frock.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

Even though you prefer very plain brushes and combs for actual use you probably feel that your dressing table ought to display attractive pieces. What for? Probably just for show, because few women would use the brush and comb lying on another woman's dressing table—any more than they would use another's toothbrush. Most women carry about their own little combs, anyway, as part of their vanity outfit. Still, the well appointed dressing table must have its set of brush and comb. We don't use these because in this age of excessive cleanliness we feel that such tools should be washed every so often and thoroughly aired betimes.

One very fastidious young woman has on hand a supply of inexpensive little combs and a few brushes of the sort that hair dressers use. She has a sterilizer as part of her own bathroom equipment and these brushes and combs she provides freshly sterilized in sealed envelopes for house guests. The maid in the bedroom when guests come for the afternoon or evening is ready with one of these fresh brushes or combs in case a guest has need of it.

This self-same young woman has no ornamental brushes and combs. She regards them as out of pate and absurd as she would ornamental nail brushes or toothbrushes. Instead, her dressing table is adorned with two or three lovely colored glass scent bottles and a trinket case. The real working paraphernalia are kept stowed neatly away in the drawers at the side.

But there is still plenty of demand for the ornamental brushes and combs and at present there are some very attractive brushes made of peacock blue enamel on silver. There are lovely lacquered backs for brushes now and tortoise shell inlaid with silver or gold is perhaps the most soveted of all. New hair brushes are of round shape—which is considered more convenient for short hair than the old-fashioned ovals. The girl with a truly mannish shingle prefers a pair of military brushes.

THE SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SUN UMBRELLA

Once upon a time Uncle Wiggily started out from his hollow stump bungalow to look for an adventure, and just as he reached the end of the front walk and was swinging on the gate a voice called:

"Wait a minute, please, Daddicums. I'm going with you."

Mr. Longears looked back and saw Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit child, skipping toward him.

"Oh, well," said Uncle Wiggily to himself, "never mind about swinging on the gate now. Some other time will do as well." For he had serious thoughts about having a little ride that way. "Only," thought the rabbit, "I might break the gate. Or my wife or Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, might call out and say I looked silly, so let it go."

By this time Baby Bunty had caught up to her "Daddicums," as she sometimes called him, though, really, he was only her uncle by adoption, so to speak. But Mr. Longears actually had forty 'leven little bunnys and girls who could properly call him father or "Daddicums."

"Where are you going?" asked Baby Bunty, who took turns living at the homes of her different friends in Woodland near the Orange Ice Mountains.

"Just adventuring," replied the rabbit uncle. "There is no telling where I may have to go, nor what I shall see, nor yet what will happen."

"That's jolly! Quite top hole, old dear, and all that sort of thing," chuckled the bunny child, speaking like an English rabbit. "Toddle on, old bungaloafer!" she added.

So Uncle Wiggily toddled on and Baby Bunty toddled with him until, after a while, they saw, on the other side of the path a very rich and stylish fat lady pig, walking along under an orange colored silk sun umbrella, and her dress was black in color.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Baby Bunty, just as Uncle Wiggily was going to give three cheers for Princeton and ask what the football score was. "Oh, dear, isn't it dreadful to be poor!"

"What's the matter now?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Why, just see that rich pig lady with a lovely umbrella and we have none and the sun is so hot" said Bunty. "Why can't we have an umbrella to hold over us when we walk, Uncle Wiggily?"

"Why, we can have one," spoke the rabbit gentleman. Then, going to the edge of the path, he picked first a big burdock leaf for Baby Bunty and one for himself. "There you are!" said Mr. Longears. "Hold that big green leaf over your head, Bunty, and you'll have as fine a sun umbrella as heart could wish!"

"Oh, this is stunning! Quite ripping, old thing!" exclaimed Bunty, still pretending she was English. So she held her sun umbrella leaf over her head and Uncle Wiggily did the same and they walked along as stylishly as the rich, fat lady pig, who was no relation to jolly, fat old-fashioned Mrs. Twistytail, I must tell you.

The rich pig lady, seeing Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty with burdock leaf sun umbrellas, tilted her nose higher than before and she said, sniffing like, and very distinctly:

"Copy cats! Copy cats!"

"Oh, did you hear what she called us, Daddicums?" whispered Bunty.

"Hush, my dear! Never mind," said Mr. Longears.

And just then it began to rain very hard and the wind blew a gale, and it turned the orange silk umbrella of the lady pig inside out and wet her black dress. The wind also slashed to ribbons the burdock leaf umbrellas of Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty.

"But we don't need to worry about that!" said Mr. Longears. "There are more burdock leaves where we picked the first ones," and he pulled off two more large ones and he and Bunty walked along under them as safe from the rain, which was not so furious now, as they had been safe from the sun before.

The rich pig lady looked at her ruined orange silk umbrella and then, very humbly she said:

"I am sorry I called you copy cats. May I have one of your green umbrellas?"

"With pleasure, madam!" answered Uncle Wiggily with a low and polite bow of his pink, twinkling nose. Then he picked another leaf for the pig lady who walked home with it over her head and her dress didn't get so very wet after all.

FOOD AND HEALTH.

A KITCHEN GARDEN

(By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.)

As you love your home and your family and aspire to feed them well, I charge you read, "The Little Kitchen Garden," by Dorothy Giles. Miss Giles will help you plan not a large and pretentious garden for an estate, but a tiny friendly one for the likes of those of us who must limit our space and our expenditure.

I am not going to even attempt to tell Miss Giles's part of the story. I do wish, however, to suggest what a kitchen garden may do for nutrition and health.

To mention but a few of the vegetables that may be grown in such a garden there are beans, yellow, green, lima; beets and sprouts, carrots, cauliflower, cabbage, celery, corn and cucumbers, eggplant and endive, turnips and lettuce. Okra and onions, parsley and parsnips, peas and peppers, potatoes and tomatoes, radishes and spinach and squash and tomatoes!

If you have conned well your lesson in nutrition, there is not a vegetable in that list that will not suggest to you pictures of a better fed family. You will have a vision of youngsters made more frisky by the vitamins contained in these vegetables.

You, yourself, will begin to realize that your toothsome salads mean much to your health. You will realize that the cabbage has helped the condition of acidity and that, in short, these vegetable friends are indispensable.

Miss Gilles, in her charming book, points out that "the honorable end of all vegetables is the pot." So, when you are thinking of your garden in terms of what goes first into the pot and then into the stomachs of your family, you have a fascinating subject for study. And speaking of the pot, do you know all that you can possibly learn about pot herbs? Tomatoes, peppers, okra, thyme, sage and leeks, either individually or collectively, contribute so much that is poetical that they should have poets to sing their properties.

This disquisition is neither a treatise on garden planning nor a discussion on dietetics. It is a straight away appeal to the housewife to move heaven and earth to put herself in touch with a kitchen garden.

If you are a city apartment dweller your most intimate friend, perhaps, lives in a neighboring suburb. What about getting him or her interested in this matter of kitchen gardens? Who knows, but that before you know it, you will find yourself packing up your family and moving to your own suburb where you will have your own garden.

Be that as it may, remember that whether they come from your own, from a neighbor's, or, if absolutely necessary, from a commercial kitchen garden, herbs and vegetables come bearing gifts of health.

SHORT STORY

(By Dora Carr.)

Sylvan Glen was the name of the idealistic spot which Connie had found to establish herself with her paint box and her brushes. She had greeted the view with a long intake of the breath and had tossed off her hat, sunk down into the soft bracken and just reveled in sheer greed of enjoyment. She had not suspected that so glorious a scene could be found on Long Island.

"Oh! For the power to put this down on canvas as it really is!" Connie's wish was almost in the form of a prayer.

Eagerly she pulled out her brushes and palette, crushed a multitude of colors thereon and was soon forgetful of the time, so wrapped she was in carrying out the answer to her prayer. There was no slightest doubt that her supplication had been heard for Connie was transferring Sylvan Glen to canvas with a truly miraculous beauty of touch.

At six o'clock she had made three sketches—the morning light, the noonday sun and the evening shadows—all of Sylvan Glen.

Connie cast a keen look at the sky and decided it would be quite safe to tuck her canvases in the hollow of the big oak beside her—she would come early in the morning to finish the sketches.

Some hours or so later John Verney, son of the owner of Sylvan Glen, one of the finest estates on Long Island, strolled to his favorite spot overlooking the Glen for his evening smoke. Pickles, his dog, accompanied him, wildly joyous.

It was Pickles, barking at some intruders in his own particular sniffing ground where often rabbits were to be routed, that attracted Verney to the hidden canvases.

He was yapping and gazing with bright beady eyes into the heart of the old oak tree.

And because Verney was always interested in Pickles, which, in the dog mind, was exactly the thing that made his master so good a companion, the young man stooped to examine the cause of so great a noise.

"By Jove! Painting—Pickles! Some artist chap has been trespassing on our domains." He drew out the three sketches and knew instantly that he was looking at the work of a genius. He looked for a long time at them, then, Pickles having finished nosing about, returned them carefully to their place.

"If I carried these back to the house and that artist chap came in the morning and found them gone he would no doubt tear his hair and jump into the depths of the Glen. You never know, Pickles, what these temperamental chaps will do."

Verney found his father enjoying his smoke in the rose gardens, while his mother sniffed fragrance and reveled at the glorious blooms.

"Dad, I've got a commission for you to-morrow morning. I found some exquisite paintings of Sylvan Glen in our old oak. They're not dry yet and I'm sure the artist chap intends coming back to-morrow morning to finish them. You stroll along there, and if you don't offer him the value of a bootlegger's cargo for those sketches, well—I'll become a bootlegger myself."

Verney senior went down next morning to the old oak, but before he got there Pickles was in advance and was even then being cuddled and chatted with by a small figure among the bracken.

Verney senior approached her in mock sternness on the subject of trespassers, but who could be stern with Connie?

When they had become serious and Verney was almost as inspired by Connie's work as she had been by the view itself he exclaimed swiftly: "Where do you keep all this genius—in that fragile frame—you seem too little! I want these sketches—all of them and lots more—if you will come along and meet my wife and see the gardens."

"But I want to exhibit these," wailed Connie. "I'm doing them with that in view—it might mean a big scholarship for me and ultimate recognition."

Verney senior [illegible] her humility. "... can exhibit them even though they are mine, but I must have them. You couldn't hide yourself from recognition if you tried—you weren't even successful in hiding these three from discerning eyes."

"No—I can't come now," Connie was saying in answer to an invitation to lunch at the house. "I must paint while this glorious sun lasts."

There were few people about America who so casually refused an invitation from any of the Verneys of Sylvan Glen. Verney told her to come along when she was tired painting.

So, when John Verney returned from his busy day at the office, bathed and got into his white flannels, he went out on the wide verandah in quest of family, Pickles and conversation.

Of course what he really found was Connie. She was curled up in an enormous wicker chair, while Mr. and Mrs. Verney were gazing at her with eyes that betokened newly acquired treasure.

"This is your trespassing artist 'chap'," laughed Verney senior. "Miss Connie Wade—my son."

OLD MASTERS

I arise from dreams of thee
In the first sweet sleep of night;
When the winds are breathing low
And the stars are shining bright:
I arise from dreams of thee,
And a spirit in my feet
Hath led me—who knows how?
To thy chamber window, Sweet!

The wandering airs they faint
On the dark, the silent stream—
The champak odors fail
Like sweet thoughts in a dream;
The nightingale's complaint
It dies upon her heart,
As I must die on thine
O beloved as thou art!

Oh lift me from the grass!
I die, I faint, I fail!
Let thy love in kisses rain
On my lips and eyelids pale.
My cheek is cold and white, alas!
My heart beats loud and fast;
Oh press it close to thine again
Where it will break at last.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

MR. SO-AND-SO

My coat is neither silk nor rags,
And neither old nor new,
I have no wealth of money-bags,
And yet enough to do;
And not a mansion, not a shack,
The house I dwell within;
My heart is neither white nor black,
All virtue nor all sin.

And I am not a fool nor sage,
Not always right, nor wrong,
And not a man of youthful age,
Nor yet so far alone.
And I am neither high nor low,
Am neither serf nor king,
I'm only Mr. So-and-So,
And that is why I sing.

For I have seen enough of life,
And seen enough of men,
To care but little for the strife,
The glory even then:
And, if you asked, of all the throng,
Who knew the greatest bliss,
I'd say the man who went along
In some such way as this:

His coat was neither silk nor rags,
And neither old nor new,
He had no wealth of money-bags,
And yet enough to do;
The man was neither high nor low,
Was neither serf nor king,
Was only Mr. So-and-So—
And that's the finest thing!

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

(By C. N. Lurie.)

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

"TUCK-A-DUNT"

Lady Astor, visiting this country not long ago, used an expression which was unfamiliar to many of those who heard or read the address in which it was used, and it aroused much curiosity.

She said, "I don't give a 'tuck-a-dunt' for the unintelligent woman."

Some of the "unco guid" were afraid, or professed to be afraid, that Her Ladyship had used an expression that verged on the profane, and was therefore not quite ladylike. But it soon appeared that "tuck-a-dunt" was and is quite harmless, being merely a local variant of an old English expression, "tuck of drum." (Some doubted that Lady Astor said "tuck-a-dunt" at all; they believed she had said "tuck of drum" and had been quoted incorrectly.)

However, "tuck of drum" means nothing more than a beat or tap of a drum. The expression is very old, and is heard occasionally in Scotland and perhaps elsewhere. It was used by John Greenleaf Whittier in a poem which he wrote in 1855.

New Life in Music

—is just what you sense at once on hearing the Orthophonic Victrola play for the first time.

AN INSTRUMENT playing with such lifelike tones that it seems to be alive. The music sparkles with life. Fritz Kreisler, John McCormack, Paul Whiteman play and sing as you never before have heard them—except in life.

The bass and treble notes are astonishingly clear. The tone is the tone of the music itself. This has been attained through the use of a scientific principle — exclusively Victor's—technically known as "matched impedance", or "smooth flow of sound".

A versatile entertainer for the home. Fox trots—operatic selections—popular songs—all performed with the same trueness of tone and fulness of volume by the foremost artists. Drop in at any "His Master's Voice" dealer and enjoy a half hour of this "new life in music". We leave the rest to you. Any Orthophonic Victrola is obtainable on convenient terms. Prices $115 to $430.

THOUGHT SLAIN CHATHAM YOUTH RETURNS HOME

Young Man Believed Murdered Had Been in Morocco.

SUSPECTS HELD.

Several Men Await Trial For Killing Him in Kentucky.

CHATHAM, Ont., Nov. 26. — James Edds, 23, has arrived in Chatham to convince his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edds, 91 Baxter Street, that he was not murdered in Bell County, Kentucky, early this year. He recently returned from abroad, having travelled in Spain and France and serving with Spain's foreign legion in Morocco.

The young man mysteriously disappeared from Brown's Creek, Ky., following an altercation at the home of a friend and as a result of which a report was circulated that he had been murdered. Several people were detained by the authorities of that county and at the present time await trial on slaying charges, according to information available here.

The quarrel incident which started the murder story occurred at the residence of Mrs. Henry Wilson in Brown's Creek, during which Edds was struck on the head with the butt of a revolver. Following his disappearance Crockett Edds was arrested and was wearing a suit and a tie pin of the missing man at the time. Dillard Wilson, Colson Howard and James W. Maracle were the others arrested in connection with the suspected crime.

The first story circulated about Edds was that he had been killed and that his body had been burned. Later a young girl reported having found a man's body in a thicket. When officers investigated the report the body was gone, and the assumption was that it had been spirited away and buried elsewhere.

Father Aided Search.

When relatives here became alarmed on receiving no letters from Edds, they caused enquiries to be made and heard of the supposed murder. Charles Edds left here at once for Kentucky and aided the police for several weeks in their investigation. He returned firmly convinced that the story concerning the murder of his son was true. While he was in Bell County the men suspected were placed under arrest and their trial was set for November 8. It has since been postponed until February.

After the quarrel Edds thought it best to get out of the locality. He crossed Virginia and after stopping at relatives, made for Mobile, Ala., where he joined a Norwegian steamship crew on a trip to Spain. Four days after disembarking he enlisted in the Spanish foreign legion, with which he served six months. He joined a steamship crew on a boat for France, landed at Marseilles, travelled to Paris and Havre, caught the steamer Venison and landed in New York in September.

The parents of Edds have communicated with the authorities in Bell County, Kentucky, concerning the return of their son.

GIRLS ENTICED TO EMPTY HOUSE

Manage To Escape Men and Reach Nearby Farm House.

MILTON, Ont., Nov. 26.—The wife of a well-known farmer in Trafalgar Township had an unusual experience on Wednesday night. She was aroused in the middle of the night by two young girls who had been enticed here from Toronto ostensibly to attend a party at a farm on the highway, only to find that the house was a deserted one; they had escaped from their male companions, and after hiding for some time in the bushes noticed a light in an adjacent farm and came to the house for shelter.

The lady to whom they appealed took them in and sent for a taxi to take them to their homes in Toronto.

ETHICS SUBJECT INSURANCE TALK

Life Underwriters Hear Address From F. W. Hobson.

CONDOLENCE VOTE.

At a combined meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Life Underwriter's Association and the field men of the Imperial Life Assurance Company, held in the Empress Hotel today, a resolution of sympathy with the family of the late Harry Rush was passed, all the members standing with bowed heads as a token of respect for the oldest member of the insurance profession in the city.

I. P. McNabb, the immediate past president, presided as Chairman.

F. W. Hobson of the head office staff of the Imperial Life Assurance Co. was the chief speaker. On behalf of the Imperial Life Company he conveyed the regrets of his organizations to the members of the Life Underwriter's Association on the loss of their oldest member. "It is from these old veterans in the business that we gain our best experience, and it is their kindly counsel that helps us through," he declared. "I understand the late Harry Rush was a man of that calibre."

Speaking of ethics in the insurance business Mr. Hobson said "We can only be ethical so long as we are honest to our client as well as ourselves.

"Some of you, many of you I hope, have the degree of a Chartered Life Underwriter. One question that is asked in that examination is 'When is a life insurance transaction deemed to be completed ' The regulation answer is 'When the policy is delivered and the first premium paid during the good health of the applicant.' I think that is wrong" he declared, "It is completed only when the purchased amount or the settlement is delivered."

He described the insurance profession as the largest instalment business in the world, if indeed not the first.

"Are your clients enjoying their insurance? If they are not, and many are not, then they have been improperly sold," he declared.

The biggest business in the profession was to sell settlements as by doing this the filed man sold service.

The cardinal points of a sale, he described as follows—What will the policy do when delivered? What are its uses—Do you need to have the thing done that this transaction will do for you What is the best way of buying this commodity?

"About all men know about the insurance they hold is they are paying for it," he said. "What we should do is to show them the uses of what we are selling." Telling of the benefits of the special settlement to salesmen he said it was the only way a prospect could judge the amount of insurance he should own. It correleated his cost of living with what he owned.

A proper insurance programme should supply the needed ready money at the time of death and then should arrange an income as long as a man's insurance circumstances would allow.

Selling the special settlement plan to a purchaser gave him the right to enjoy the fruits of his purchase rather than the burden of his payments.

In conclusion Mr. Hobson declared "A sale is completed only when the need for service rendered is covered."

J. I. Allen in moving a resolution of sympathy for the family of the late Harry Rush said "His life was a blessing to every man. He had a kindly word for all. God has given us something and God has taken it away."

At the conclusion of the meeting the entire body proceeded to the funeral of their late brother.

W. M. S. MEET

With Members of Sunshine Mission Circle at Mrs. E. Kerr's.

THOMASBURG, Nov. 23. — The members of the Women's Missionary Society, also the members of the Sunshine Mission Circle, were invited to the home of Mrs. Edward Kerr on Wednesday afternoon. Thirty ladies were present. About an hour was spent sewing quilt blocks for a missionary quilt, after which the meeting was opened by singing "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," followed by prayer by Mrs. Edward Carter. A chorus, "Star of the East," was then sung by the girls of the Mission Circle. A chapter of the study book, "New Days in Old India," was read by Mrs. Margaret Embry. Another chorus, "By Cool Siloam's Shady Rill," by the girls. Miss Irene Kerr read a missionary reading; hymn, 'The Whole Wide World For Jesus'; Miss Laura Harrison sang a solo, "When I Remember Calvary," while the collection was being taken.

A very sumptuous lunch was then served by Mrs. Kerr and her two daughters.

EXPLORERS LOST

CAPETOWN, S.A., Nov 26.—(United Press)— Two American explorers and two white women who accompanied them, were believed to-day to be lost in Angelo, West Africa, between the Congo and Cunen rivers.

The Americans were Dr. N. L. Magoon and Dr. W. W. McMillan, whose expedition had not been heard from since September when it was reported that bushmen had looted the parties' provisions and had killed five native attendants.

Magoon was reported to have been blinded by the explosion of a rifle.

Upward Trend Continues With Weak Spots Rare

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—The upward movement of stock prices was renewed today. Baldwin continued to respond to reports of large locomotive orders and persistent rumors, duplicating the record high price of 156 1-4, established in 1919.

A sudden spurt in Ward Baking A which carried that stock up 13 points infused new life into the baking shades. New York City Tractions also were marked up briskly. Shipping, farm implement, and food shares also represented points of strength. Domestic Oils were sluggish in the reflection of record breaking crude production. International Harvester touched a new 1926 maximum at 139 1-2 and United States Steel crossed 149 for a gain of two points. Rails were rather backward, except for a few anthracite carriers.

Bear traders succeed in covering several weak spots in the automotive group, Peerless Motor, Kelsey Wheel, and Motor Wheel all breaking through to new low records for the year.

Trading In Mines Slow Price Trend Uncertain

TORONTO, Nov. 26. Canadian Press. — Trading was slow on the Standard mining exchange to-day, with only 279,340 shares being dealt in, and price changes being equally distributed between gains and losses. Hollinger Consolidated sold 30c higher at 19.00 but was not heavily dealt in. Argonaut consolidated was down ½ at 52½, Keeley up 1 at 158, Kirkland Lake up 2 to 79; McIntyre up 15c at 23.90; and Mining Corporation up 1 at 275. Nipissing registered a loss of 4c at 5.70; pioneer was 1 lower at 112; South Keora down ¼ at 23 3-4; Teck Hughes, down 4 at 4.78; and Tough Oakes, 4½ at 59.

Industrial Alcohol Leads Toronto Market

TORONTO November 26. — Canadian Press. — Industrial alcohol was the active leader in a moderate upturn on the Toronto stock exchange this morning. On a heavy turnover alcohol climbed to 27 1-8 and closed at noon at that figure, a gain of 1 1-8. Barcelona was marked up 2 points at 33; Winnipeg quietly firmed 1 1-2 at 60½ and Canada Bread preferred was 5-8 higher at 105. Page-Hersey preferred sold up 3-4 to 119 3-4. Brazilian eased 3-8 at 105, and Page-Hersey common lost 5-8 at 57 3-8. Seagram again the unlisted leader, gained an eighth at 15 1-8. Noranda eased 15 at 30.35 from yesterday's advance.

Storms In Argentina Cause Rise In Wheat

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—Reports of stormy weather in Argentina delaying the harvest and causing crop damage, brought about an early upturn in wheat values to-day. Active selling on the advance was met with, nowever, and top figures failed to hold well.

Starting 5-8 to 1 1-8 up, wheat scored moderate further gains before beginning to re-act. Corn, oats and provisions were firm, corn opening at 1-4 to 3-4 advance and subsequently holding near to initial figures.

Nationalities

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

WE LOVE our homes because there we are cared for and happy. We love our country because there comes to us freedom, protection and the fulfillment of ambitions. Pride in one's country is one of the finest feelings we can experience A child is never too young for us to start teaching him American ideals and pride in his birthright Were America not truly the land of justice and opportunity why would the great influx of other folk continue? So let him be proud that he's an American and then he must learn that what he does and what all the children do is going to determine what sort of a country his America will be in the future.

BECAUSE our country is so fine
A place to be, why than
The foreigners flock over here—
Both animals and men.

Why, you should see the foreign dogs
Who live right on our street—
A Poodle French, a Collie Scotch
And a Russian Wolfhound fleet.

A St. Bernard from Switzerland,
A Chinese Terrier small,
A German Dachshund long and short—
The funniest dog of all.

My dog's no special kind o' dog
But I'm most sure he can
Beat any dog that's on our street
Cause he's American!

The Handwriting On The Wall

The Peterborough Prohibition Union has apparently not yet read the hand-writing on the wall.

Out of the depths of the fertile imagination of its propaganda department is being dragged the hoary old story of the "tens of thousands of dollars" the "liquor interests" are pouring out to "discredit the O.T.A."

When is the Prohibition Union going to learn that in this campaign it is not "the liquor interests" that are wagng the fight against the Ontario Temperance Act.

That fight is being fought by thousands of citizens, many of them teetotallers all their lives, men and women who object to boot-legging, the sale of poison alcohol, secret drinking and pocket flasks, home brew and illicit stills; men and women who are shocked by the perjury and spirit of disrespect for the law that have grown up under the O.T.A.; men and women who have a right to resent the charge that they are in league with the whiskey interests

If our Prohibition friends have not yet realized that fact, they are due for a rude and painful awakening on the evening of December 1st.

Mrs. Howard T. Fallis Replies

TO THE VOTERS OF PETERBOROUGH:

Certain questions were submitted to me by the Prohibition Committee in The Examiner of ovembeNr 24. I would be hard hearted indeed were I not to respond to a request for information from a Committee, that judging from its questions, stands so badly in need of enlightenment.

The first three questions and the fifth deal with the matter of Government responsibility and can be considered together.

In 1916 the Conservative Government, under the leadership of Sir William H. Hearst, for the more efficient carrying on of the war and realizing that the people approved of the measure, introduced the O.T.A. The law was simply passed as a Government measure. There was no plebiscite, and no convention. If, as you suggest, it is autocratic for the Ferguson administration to propose a policy of Government Control and ask the people to decide upon it at a general election, how much more autocratic was it for the Hearst administration to enact the O.T.A. without giving the people a voice in passing the law? Yet certain people who are now shouting 'Autocracy' had nothing to offer but applause when the O.T.A. was introduced, because that Act happened to agree with their views. But, as a matter of fact, neither the introduction of the O.T.A. nor the proposed plan of Government Control is autocratic, but in perfect consonance with the well established practice of our democratic and British system of governmental responsibility. We elect our representatives to the Legislature to make Laws suitable for the varying situations that arise in the affairs of the country. We do not expect our representatives to ask us to vote on every matter of policy that may arise. We expect THEM to shoulder that responsibility. And if we think they have done unwisely, we vote them out at the next election. The plebiscite is an anomaly in the British parliamentary system. We expect our representatives to represent and our leaders to lead.

It will no doubt come as a shock to the Prohibition Committee to know that the Honorable Howard Ferguson had a hand in the moulding of the O.T.A. Yet such is the fact. In a recent letter to the press, the Honourable William H. Hearst, the father of the O.T.A., states:

> "MAY I add that the Ontario Temperance Act could never have been enacted had it not been for the whole hearted support, able assistance and co-operation of Mr. Ferguson.. Prior to the session of 1916, while I was ill in bed and unable to attend to my public duties, he was busy drafting the Act and laying plans to insure its enactment."

The fourth question is merely a peevish attack on Mr. Ferguson and might well be treated to a curt denial. But let me point out that many outstanding Temperance workers and many prominent and gifted Liberals in the Province are endorsing Mr. Ferguson and his proposed measure of Government Control. From this it might be inferred that it is not the habit of mind of experienced and successful men to be always suspicious of their fellows and to impute evil motives to all who differ from them in matters of policy.

Mr. Ferguson was accused of treason to the majesty of the O.T.A. when 4.4 beer was offered to the people, the objection being that the O.T.A. legislated against intoxicating liquor being sold as a beverage.. But 4.4 is not intoxicating, if you will believe Mr. Nickle's statement to the Legislature on the 17th February, 1925. when this measure was introduced. I suppose you will believe Mr. Nickle. He refers to 4.4 beer as "A beverage that is palatable, refreshing and, at the same time, non-intoxicating." If there was any treason here it was shared by the Honourable Mr Nickle. But there was nothing but an honest effort to save the O.T.A. that otherwise, again in the words of Mr. Nickle, was "doomed to be destroyed."

Another grievance against Mr. Ferguson is that he made the change to Government Control without a plebiscite. He has not made the change yet, and you have your plebiscite on the First of December. If the Prime Minister had gone to the people only on the record of the Government, he would have swept the Province. But he had the courage, honesty and leadership to tell the people that the O.T.A. was no longer enforcible and to submit to them his policy of Government Control. If Mr. Ferguson had passed the Government Control Act in the House and not called a general election till the expiration of the parliamentary term, I could perhaps understand the stream of abuse and slander that is poured out upon him. But he has not done that, but has given the very thing you clamour for; namely, the opportunity to vote on the question.

I can see no reason for the savage attacks upon Mr. Ferguson unless it be that vilification is mistaken for argument.

Yours truly,
IVA C. FALLIS

WILL ATTEMPT TO AVOID STRIKE

Union Executives Will Confer With Railway Officials.

GIVEN AUTHORITY.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press.)— Having acceded to the mens' wishes that if the railway companies do not grant them a six per cent. increase in wages, a strike should be called to enforce the demands, the representatives of the 15,000 railway conductors and trainmen will now decide on the date on which the men, if necessary, will be called upon to cease work. In the meantime, the executive of the unions, now empowered to take whatever steps they deem advisable, will in all probability confer with the railroad officials and endeavor to come to a satisfactory settlement without going to extreme measures. It is believed here that the representatives will await the result of the negotiations between their executive and the railroad officials before they decide as to when the workers shall be ordered to withdraw from the railway services.

Figures Given Out.

Official figures of the strike ballot taken by conductors and trainmen on Canadian lines on the question of acceptance or rejection of the board of conciliation award refusing recommendation of a six per cent. increase of wages were announced to-day by W. G. Lee, international president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Of 11,500 members of the latter organization, ninety per cent. voted in favor of rejection and 81 per cent. of the conductors voted in like manner.

Loophole Found.

An apparent loophole for further negotations between Canadian railways and their conductors and trainmen is left in a statement issued to-day by the "Managers' committee" of the railways. After reference to the sitting of the conciliation board on the wage dispute in question the statement concludes:

"However, the managers' committee further intimated that they assumed that before reaching any conclusion, the employees' representatives would desire to confer further with the executives of the railways in respect to the question at issue."

GIRL MISSING SUICIDE FEARED

Searching Harbor and Lake Shore For Beatrice Nicholson.

GONE SINCE SUNDAY.

COBOURG, Ont., Nov. 26.—Up to late yesterday no trace had been found of Beatrice Nicholson, aged 15, who disappeared from the home of Dr. Field, Cobourg, where she was employed as a nursemaid on Sunday. The girl had completed her agreement with Dr. Field and was to have been returned to the home of her father, Lorne Nicholson, Cobourg, on Sunday. But she declined to do so and ran away.

The girl threatened to commit suicide and was last seen near Cobourg harbor. Several crews are engaged in grappling operations in the harbor and along the lake shore.

KING FERDINAND SINKING RAPIDLY

Must Submit To Operation For Cancer, Says Belgrade Report.

TROUBLE FEARED.

BELGRADE, Nov. 26 (United Press).—Despite the severence of telephone communication between Bucharest and Belgrade, it was learned here to-day that King Ferdinand of Rumania was sinking rapidly. His already serious condition was aggravated by his recent appearance in public to allay the country's excitement. He had also been weakened by his starvation diet. The King, it was reported, must submit to an operation for cancer.

Civil War Possible.

BERLIN, Nov. 26 (United Press). — King Ferdinand's condition is known to be hopeless, despite official denials at Bucharest, the Vossische Zeitung said to-day. The present regime, it added, was preparing for a fight to hold power in case His Majesty should die. The strength of the opposition was sufficient to make civil war possible, the paper said. The interruption of telephone communication between Bucharest and Belgrade was laid by the newspaper to an attempt by Rumanian officials to veil some recent catastrophe in Bucharest or to suppress news of some impending event.

SPECIALIST CALLED.

PARIS, November 26. Canadian Press. — Professor Le Senne, the surgeon and cancer specialist of the St. Louis Hospital in Paris, left for Bucharest to-day to examine king King Ferdinand.

It is understood by the Paris medical authorities that Ferdinand is suffering from cancerous growths in the throat and rectum.

RUGBY NOTES

In Wednesday's game the McCormicks of Toronto, got their first touchdown when Miller and Fleming were out of the game on account of penalties, the McCormicks being on the 10 yard line when the players were off.

Westbrook made a splendid 65 yard end run, Ashmore made a 35 yard line plunge. The team has been criticised for not kicking in the last period, but they claim they kicked three times and every time the McCromicks ran the ball out as the wind was against them.

Prohibition Candidate in Addington Cites Election Act Section.

EXECUTIVE MEETS.

KINGSTON, November 26. Canadian Press. — Frank Anglin, the Prohibition candidate in Addington, whoes application to compel Returning Officer Cronk to accept his nomination papers in the election, was dismissed at Toronto yesterday afternoon, announced this morning that he intended to take action to protest the election of W. D. Black, who was declared elected on nomination day.

Mr. Anglin quoted 59 of the election act as providing the base for his protest.

A meeting of the executive behind Mr. Anglin has been called for next Monday.

Bleeding Gums

BE warned by bleeding gums! The prompt use of a strong antiseptic and astringent such as Dr. Chase's Every-Day Mouth Wash may save you from pyorrhea.

It goes where the tooth brush fails to reach—prevents acid decay.

Used when the gums are tender, sore or bleeding it heals and hardens them. It also acts as a tonic in strengthening and building up the tissues.

Healthy gums means healthy teeth. Both are kept healthy by the frequent use of Dr. Chase's Every-Day Mouth Wash. It goes between the teeth—up under the gums—into the crevices and folds of the lining of the mouth — counteracts acid — destroys the germs—saves the teeth.

Heber Springs, Ark., a town of 1700 where 19 were known to be dead, and 100 injured, saw 15 blocks of dwellings destroyed, as the tornado turned the north and west portions of the town into a twisted mass of wreckage. Many houses caught fire as they were blown over.

Other fatalities in Arkansas included five in Oppelo, eight at Moscow, and one at Sheridan.

Physicians were rushed into the stricken areas from the surrounding towns, although the break down of communications hindered relief measures.

TOWN WIPED OUT.

CROCKER, Mo., November 26. — Canadian Press. — Big Piney, a small inland town, 20 miles southeast of here, was virtually wiped out by a tornado last night, according to meagre reports received here to-day. The hotel building was reported to be the only building that was left standing.

NINETEEN KILLED.

RUSSELLILLE, Ark., November 26. — Canadian Press. — According to a telephone message received here to-day, the toll of the known dead from yesterday's tornado, had reached 19 and injured more than 100. Block after block of residences were spuntered.

FIVE DEAD.

HAYNESVILLE, La., Nov. 26. — Canadian Press. — At least five persons are dead and 13 injured as a result of a tornado that struck near here last night.

SEVEN VICTIMS.

MONROE, La., Nov. 26. Canadian Press. — Seven persons are dead (four whites and three negroes) as the toll of the tornado which struck a mile and a half southwest of nier Rouge, La., just before midnight last night.

WOMAN JUROR IS OVERCOME

Collapses During Smith-Derham Murder Trial at Maidstone.

CASE HELD UP.

MAIDSTONE, Eng., Nov. 26. — (Canadian Press).—Overwrought by the testimony of the accused in the trial of Alphonse F. A. Smith, socially prominent grandson of the late Hugh Ryan, Canadian railway builder, charged with murdering his friend, John T. Derham, at "Stella Maris" Villa last August, one of the two women jurors suffered an emotional collapse to-day. Court was suspended until she could recover.

Women spectators sobbed as Smith with streaming eyes, told how he had written a love letter to his wife just before the tragedy which the prosecution alleges resulted from jealousy over Derham's attention to Mrs. Smith.

Accused told of his love for his wife and their three children. A year ago he met Derham and they became great friends. Then Derham stole his wife. Smith, frantic and depressed, began drinking and bought a revolver to take his own life. However, there was a reconciliation and Smith wrote his wife that she had given him a "glimpse of heaven" after being "in hell." At this point the woman juror collapsed. Smith declared Derham was accidentally shot in a struggle.

WILL ATTEMPT TO AVOID STRIKE

Union Executives Will Confer With Railway Officials.

GIVEN AUTHORITY.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press.)— Having acceded to the mens' wishes that if the railway companies do not grant them a six per cent. increase in wages, a strike should be called to enforce the demands, the representatives of the 15,000 railway conductors and trainmen will now decide on the date on which the men, if necessary, will be called upon to cease work. In the meantime, the executive of the unions, now empowered to take whatever steps they deem advisable, will in all probability confer with the railroad officials and endeavor to come to a satisfactory settlement without going to extreme measures. It is believed here that the representatives will await the result of the negotiations between their executive and the railroad officials before they decide as to when the workers shall be ordered to withdraw from the railway services.

Figures Given Out.

Official figures of the strike ballot taken by conductors and trainmen on Canadian lines on the question of acceptance or rejection of the board of conciliation award refusing recommendation of a six per cent. increase of wages were announced to-day by W. G. Lee, international president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Of 11,500 members of the latter organization, ninety per cent. voted in favor of rejection and 81 per cent. of the conductors voted in like manner.

Loophole Found.

An apparent loophole for further negotations between Canadian railways and their conductors and trainmen is left in a statement issued to-day by the "Managers' committee' 'of the railways. After reference to the sitting of the conciliation board on the wage dispute in question the statement concludes:

"However, the managers' committee further intimated that they assumed that before reaching any conclusion, the employees' representatives would desire to confer further with the executievs of the railways in respect to the question issue."

GIRL MISSING SUICIDE FEARED

Searching Harbor and Lake Shore For Beatrice Nicholson.

GONE SINCE SUNDAY.

COBOURG, Ont., Nov. 26.—Up to late yesterday no trace had been found of Beatrice Nicholson, aged 15, who disappeared from the home of Dr. Field, Cobourg, where she was employed as a nursemaid on Sunday. The girl had completed her agreement with Dr. Field and was to have been returned to the home of her father, Lorne Nicholson, Cobourg, on Sunday. But she declined to do so and ran away.

The girl threatened to commit suicide and was last seen near Cobourg harbor. Several crews are engaged in grappling operations in the harbor and along the lake shore.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press). — Three men storm-tossed on Lake Erie's choppy seas aboard the tiny disabled launch Valencia all night off Ashtabula were rescued to-day by the steamer Mathiott, of Cleveland.

KING FERDINAND SINKING RAPIDLY

Must Submit To Operation For Cancer, Says Belgrade Report.

TROUBLE FEARED.

BELGRADE, Nov. 26 (United Press).—Despite the severence of telephone communication between Bucharest and Belgrade, it was learned here to-day that King Ferdinand of Rumania was sinking rapidly. His already serious condition was aggravated by his recent appearance in public to allay the country's excitement. He had also been weakened by his starvation diet. The King, it was reported, must submit to an operation for cancer.

Civil War Possible.

BERLIN, Nov. 26 (United Press). — King Ferdinand's condition is known to be hopeless, despite official denials at Bucharest, the Vossische Zeitung said to-day. The present regime, it added, was preparing for a fight to hold power in case His Majesty should die. The strength of the opposition was sufficient to make civil war possible, the paper said. The interruption of telephone communication between Bucharest and Belgrade was laid by the newspaper to an attempt by Rumanian officials to veil some recent catastrophe in Bucharest or to suppress news of some impending event.

SPECIALIST CALLED.

PARIS, November 26. Canadian Press. — Professor Le Senne, the surgeon and cancer specialist of the St. Louis Hospital in Paris, left for Bucharest to-day to examine king King Ferdinand.

It is understood by the Paris medical authorities that Ferdinand is suffering from cancerous growths in the throat and rectum.

RUGBY NOTES

In Wednesday's game the McCormicks of Toronto, got their first touchdown when Miller and Fleming were out of the game on account of penalties, the McCormicks being on the 10 yard line when the players were off.

Westbrook made a splendid 65 yard end run, Ashmore made a 35 yard line plunge. The team has been criticised for not kicking in the last period, but they claim they kicked three times and every time the McCromicks ran the ball out as the wind was against them.

Prohibition Candidate in Addington Cites Election Act Section.

EXECUTIVE MEETS.

KINGSTON, November 26. Canadian Press. — Frank Anglin, the Prohibition candidate in Addington, whoes application to compel Returning Officer Cronk to accept his nomination papers in the election, was dismissed at Toronto yesterday afternoon, announced this morning that he intended to take action to protest the election of W. D. Black, who was declared elected on nomination day.

Mr. Anglin quoted 39 of the election act as providing the base for his protest.

A meeting of the executive behind Mr. Anglin has been called for next Monday.

Bleeding Gums

BE warned by bleeding gums! The prompt use of a strong antiseptic and astringent such as Dr. Chase's Every-Day Mouth Wash may save you from pyorrhea.

It goes where the tooth brush fails to reach—prevents acid decay.

Used when the gums are tender, sore or bleeding it heals and hardens them. It also acts as a tonic in strengthening and building up the tissues.

Healthy gums means healthy teeth. Both are kept healthy by the frequent use of Dr. Chase's Every-Day Mouth Wash. It goes between the teeth—up under the gums—into the crevices and folds of the lining of the mouth — counteracts acid — destroys the germs—saves the teeth.

Seventy-Six Teams To Toe Line In English Soccer Cup Race

FINISH PRACTICE FOR BIG GAME ON SATURDAY

Bales is Only Varsity Injury and He Will be Ready.

TICKET SCRAMBLE

Great Confidence in Both Camps That They Will Win.

There is confidence in the Queen's camp. And there is confidence in the Varsity camp. But there isn't any over-confidence in either camp. Both realize that it is a "fifty-fifty" proposition no matter how you look at it, this sudden-death final for the intercollegiate title. Trying to dope it out on season's performances is a difficult thing because football is so uncertain. To say that one team has scored more points than the other doesn't necessarily mean that this will hold good in an individual game such as Saturday.

Varsity beat Queen's early in the season. But Queen's didn't have Voss in uniform and the team as a whole did not look any too good. Varsity improved after that game. So did Queen's. And Queen's added Voss to their line-up. Then Queen's trounced McGill, 14 to 0, and it demonstrated that either Queen's were very good or McGill were not so good. But McGill came up to Toronto shortly after that and surprised Toronto fans with their clever work even in defeat. That not only boosted McGill's stock, but it boosted that of Queen's as well. Followed that defeat of Queen's right in Montreal by McGill. That added to the complications in the endeavor to "dope" out the race.

Must Start Early

Varsity lost at Queen's by two points, which was a demonstration that there wasn't much to choose between them. Varsity in that game spurned single points and saved up their offensive energy too late. Last Saturday against McGill they hopped right into it and victory was achieved. That is what is needed Saturday. Queen's are a team that figures to get out in front and make the other fellows catch them. They have been successful with this method numerous times. Perhaps if Varsity can get that early lead Queen's may not have the fighting spirit to come from behind. It must always be remembered that in most of the games the visiting team has the choice of ends and invariably they take the wind behind them if there is any. Tomorrow there will be a toss because, while the game is on Varsity Stadium, it is not really a home fixture in the strict sense of the word.

O.R.F.U. Boys Win

The Varsity squad worked out against the O.R.F.U. team Wednesday afternoon, and what a lively time it was. Those O.R.F.U. boys love to hand the "Big Squad" a defeat, and they handed them one Wednesday. Of course the teams knew each other's signals and it made it hard to get plays away. On top of that Coaches McPherson and Blackwell were doing a little experimenting in certain angles that the Intercollegiate boys showed a failing in down at Montreal. However, it must be said that the Varsity squad do not want to get the idea that because they beat McGill they are champions. Queen's will make it more interesting. Coach McPherson didn't mince matters at all with several of the regulars Wednesday in telling them some faults.

Bales Doing Nicely

Harry Bales, regular middle wing, was at the practice, but not in uniform. The injury he suffered to is knee is not very serious, and he will be ready for action. However, it wouldn't be at all surprising if Bales was not sent into the game unless needed. Fred Dundas is ready for middle wing and Dundas doesn't weaken the position at all. In fact, Varsity are rather well fortified at inside and middle wing, with Rykert, Carrick, Marritt, Dundas, Bales, Stollery and Long available. Outside of Long, who was injured in the first game at McGill, all have had plenty of use this fall.

Ticket Rush

Of course the scramble for tickets contiues. Wednesday there were over five hundred left in line at Spalding's, unable to secure the pasteboards. Only two were sold to a customer, but it is well known that certain people had boys stand in line to buy up tickets with the intention of "scalping." In fact, the huskies in charge of the boys injected them into the front part of the line, and when objection was raised by those who had stood for hours previous, a jolt to the jaw was handed out.

Up at Hart House the sale continued later in the morning for more tickets were available there. Two tickets were sold to each student who presented a registration card. That plan was continued until a certain number of tickets were left. After that only one ticket was sold to each purchaser. Queen's have sold all their tickets and inquired to see if more could be purchased. McGill also asked for more. It was impossible to help them out.

Given fine weather it should be a great sight, a great game, and a great demonstration, no matter which team wins.

PRO HOCKEY STARS

"Happy" Day of St. Patrick's, Toronto, left—and Jack Adams of Ottawa right, stars of the national professional hockey league.

ST. PATS MAY REPLACE RODDEN AS TEAM PILOT

General Dissatisfaction Over Showing May Lead to Change.

FANS DISSATISFIED

Made Very Dismal Showing Against Rangers on Saturday Night.

TORONTO, November 26.—Michael J. Rodden is manager of the St. Patrick's professional hockey team.

But "Mike" may relinquish the reins within a few hours or perhaps a few days.

Things are not satisfactory in local pro. hockey circles.

The St. Patrick officials are not satisfied with the way things have been going with the clubs. They have lost two games, one to Chicago in the latter city, and to the New York Rangers at the Toronto Arena last Saturday night.

Many a good team has lost two games, it is true, and have come back—just as St. Patrick's may come back.

But not only did St. Patrick's lose to New York last Saturday night but they made a dismal showing, and the fans were disgusted. At that the attendance was not large. A few more games the way the Irish played the other night and they won't have anybody turn out to see them.

Professional hockey is a financial venture. If the offering is not attractive to the public and they won't turn out then another offering must be provided to see if that public support cannot be brought back again.

Owners not Pleased.

That is the situation in so far as the St. Patrick owners are concerned. They are not satisfied. "Mike" Rodden isn't satisfied. He believes he has a good squad but he also believes a few more good players would be a great help. But he also believes there is better hockey in the present squad than they showed last Saturday night.

There the surmise is that something is wrong somewhere. The report that Mr Rodden is to retire, and that someone else will take his place, is but a mere rumour. But it comes from a pretty good source.

The St Patrick's owners are "mum." They won't deny there will be a change and they won't deny that things will stand as they are at present.

But they will admit they are not satisfied.

Has a Contract.

Mr. Rodden has a nice contract with St. Patrick's. What the terms are have never been made public. It may be that St. Pat's cannot let their manager go if he desires to stay on. It may be that they can let him go. But it does seem a pretty sure thing that, binding contract or no binding contract, the agreement will not be carried out if both parties, or even one party, is not satisfied.

At any rate, something is in the air. The players know something is about to "break." And they hope it will be for the better, for despite the opinions some people have of pro. hockey and pro. hockey players they are just as keen to win as the public are to have them win.

ENGLISH TEAMS ARE READY FOR THE CUP GRIND

Minor Clubs to Clash—Big Teams Out Until January 8th.

REPEAT TOUR

Fifteen Third Division Clubs Will Face Each Other Saturday.

The highway to soccer gloom, or glory, will be thrown wide open on Saturday when seventy-six teams toe the line in the English Cup race. A big percentage of the clubs are but little known hereabouts, but everyone has entered with a hope that this will be their year, and who knows there may be a big surprise or two. Two or three games in the series and a club is made financially, and there is always the chance of surviving to get a crack at one of the big clubs—then it's all smiles. Last year only clubs of any account participated in the fourth round, the others having all fallen by the wayside, but there was the case of Bournemouth and Boscombe, who drew with Bolton Wanderers in the fourth round before receiving the coup de grace. Then again Blythe Spartans played four games before forcing Hartlepools into the discard, only to fall in the next round themselves to Accrington. For the smaller clubs the Cup is a gamble, plus the extra bit of excitement in purely local circles, which unfortunately does not last any too long. Not until the third round will the First and Second Division teams join in the fray. In 15 of the 38 games scheduled for Saturday, Third Division clubs will oppose each other.

Hakoah's Returning.

The Hakoak Jewish team of Austrial is coming back for more — money and perhaps another heavy jolt under the belt if American club managers get after their players again. It was a pity Toronto folks did not have the privilege of seeing the Hakoah team in action. In the opinions of critics across the border nothing finer has been seen in the U.S., but the Yankees repaid all this by luring away the visiting players from their manager, and Hakoah's had to return home to pick up substitutes before they could complete their European tour. Brooklyn Wanderers and New York Giants gobbled up nine of the players. Hakoah's did want to play in Toronto, but the only date available last year clashed with the visit from the F.A. tourists. Better luck next year.

PIRATES BEAT RICKARD'S TEAM

New York Americans Defeat Montreal Maroons in Decisive Manner.

SCORE 4-1.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 26. — The Pirates handed the New York Rangers their first defeat of the season here last night 2 to 0. Milks caged the first marker in the opening period and Drury the second in the final chapter.

Numerous replacements kept the game going at high speed throughout.

Johnson and Abel played well for New York.

The Pirates took an early lead over the Rangers when Milks shot a goal after ten minutes of play. Johnson and Abel made frequent dashes, but Worters' fine work in the net frustrated their attempts. A bitter contest was in prospect.

Continued substitutions, keeping fresh forces in the game for both sides, added spice to the game in the second period. Fine team offensives, with brilliant defences to prevent scoring, marked the period. Worters gave a fine exhibition of goaltending, while Winkler also sparkled. The Rangers tried desperately to tie the score, but failed.

The final period produced many scrimmages before the Pirates' goal, which kept the crowd on edge. Seeming scores were cast aside by an alert defence and no damage was done. Drury scored the second and final tally for the Pirates at 10.56, assuring victory. Rickard's Rangers were repulsed at every turn.

Referee—Dave Ritchie, Montreal.

CUP HOLDERS LOSE AT HOME

New York Rangers Sustain First Loss of the Season.

SCORE 2-0.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—New York Americans, led by the crafty, brilliant Billy Burch, lowered the colors of the Montreal Maroons, holders of the Stanley Cup, in a National Hockey League fixture here last night, 4 to 1.

In a game which started at a brisk pace and was ruggedly fought, the Americans outfinished the heavier world champions. The Maroons went out to take an early lead on smashing play. Major penalties, which were questioned, handed out to Stewart and Seibert, handicapped Maroons.

New York secured the lead near the end of the period. They lost it early in the second, but came right back on a spectacular rush by Billy Burch to forge ahead once more.

Burch sensed Montreal's defence on the slide and swept back to the attack with Red Green and Himes. Red Green scored and clinched it for the Americans, though Langlois made it doubly sure with a goal in the last period.

It was peppery hockey, with New York showing mid-season play.

Line-up:

Montreal—Goal, Benedict; defence, Noble and Munro; centre, Stewart; wings, Broadbent and Seibert; subs, Dutton, Holway, Carson, Phillips, Emms, Dinsmore.

New York Americans — Goal, Forbes; defence, Langlois and Simpson; centre Burch; wings R. Green and McKinnon; subs, Reise, Boucher, Himes, Bouchard, Roach.

Referee—Dr. W. J. Laflamme.

ST. PATS DRAW WITH OTTAWA

Senators Come From Behind With Two Goals in the Third.

BAILEY GOOD.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—While St. Patrick's stopped their winning steak last night, they failed to break into the winning column as the Ottawa Senators made a strong finish in the last ten minutes of the third period to score two goals and overcome the Irish clan's total, secured in the first and second periods, and the pair struggled through the regulation twenty minutes of overtime without either goalie being beaten and the game produced the first division of the points in the present National League campaign. It was a hard game for the locals to lose, as on the first fifty minutes' play they deserved their two-goal lead and had they not made an attempt to play defensive hockey in the closing minutes they would have won, but they made the same old mistake of forgetting that the best defence is a strong offense.

They also did not reckon with the well known fighting qualities of Frank Clancy and with not more than thirty seconds to go they allowed the dashing Senatorial defence man to crash through and net the rebound from his own shot. The first goal was also on a rebound, Finnegan going through and scoring when Roach fell out of the net after making a smart save. While they didn't win the Irish showed a great improvement over their first home game last Saturday and if they continue to play the hockey they showed last night they will soon be back in the good graces of the fans, a large number of whom were missing last night. They showed unexpected aggressiveness in the first two chapters and had the Senators outplayed, but once they let up on the aggressive play and Ottawa took the upper hand St. Patrick's were unable to get going again, although they made spasmodic efforts throughout the overtime.

The Irish showed great improvement over their first home game, Carson and Bailey playing back to their local debuts, while Corbeau, McCaffrey, Bourgeault and Dennenay went good while on. Corbeau was easily the hardest worker on the ice, and he played one of his best games in the last couple of seasons. McCaffrey looked to be well on the way to his last season's form. Bourgeault seems destined to be a local favorite. Cox was not on very much, and Bellefeuille was a spectator most of the evening. The teams:

Referee—W. Bell, Montreal.

The Summary.

First Period.
1. St. Patricks, Cor. Dennenay 15.00
Second Period.
2. St. Patricks, Cor. Dennenay 16.00
Third Period.
3. Ottawa ....Finegan 14.00
4. Ottawa .... Clancy ....5.15..

Overtime Period.
No score.
Final score—St. Patrick's 2, Ottawa 2.
Penalties —H. Smith 5, Day 6, Finnegan 4, Cor Dennenay 2, Adams, Corbeau 3, Bourgeault, McCaffrey 2, Clancy 3, Nighbor, Boucher, A. Smith.

R.M.C. CADETS DEFEAT LONDON

Win Intercollegiate Intermediate Championship by Margin of Eight.

KITCHENER LOST

Two important football games were played Wednesday afternoon in the process of elimination that declares champions. Down at Kingston the R.M.C. Cadets defeated Western University of London 12 to 4. As the teams tied at London 2-all last Saturday, R.M.C. are thus Inter-collegiate intermediate champions by a margin of eight points. Up at Sarnia on Wednesday the Imperials of that city defeated Kitchener 8 to 3. That was the first of home-and-home games in the O.R.F.U. intermediate final. The return game is at Kitchener on Saturday, and Sarnia thus have a five-goal lead.

Cadets Had Luck

In the game at Kingston the Cadets were superior most of the game, though they had the benefit of getting all the breaks from the start to finish. Bad snapouts, dropped balls, and intercepted passes were luckily recovered by the Cadets, while Western were scarcely able to hang onto the wet ball. But even at that Cadets were better, for their line-plunging was most effective from the start, and they scored when tallies were needed. Warren and Kennedy were the pick of the visitors, making long runs when matters looked dangerous for Western.

P. C. I. ELEVEN FINISHES TOMORROW

Cobourg Presents Strong Team for Final Tilt of Season Here.

At Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock the Peterboro Collegiate Rugby team will stage its final battle of the season, with Cobourg C.I. providing the opposition. Last week the Peterboro boys journeyed to Cobourg where—with Westbrook out of the line-up, due to his playing here with the Juniors against Penetang—they suffered a 5-2 set back. However, if determination counts for anything, tomorrow's battle should prove not only a stiff struggle but a victory for the local boys. If the fans remember the thrills they got at the P.C.I.-Jarvis game, here will be a big crowd on hand to help wind up the season as the eastern end of the bridge.

Due to the fact that Jack Hope, who has wielded a hefty boot for the Collegiate aggregation all season, left school this past week, "Allie" Bookhout will probably be injected into the line-up. Peterborough's great half who has played all season for the Juniors, is not eligible this year for Interscholastic Rugby, but has taken part in two or three exhibition games—featuring with his kicking and his long, "straight-arm" runs. Captain Westbrook, too, will be on hand with his famous fighting spirit to delight the hearts of the fans with those wonderful, elusive runs through a broken field.

The P.C.I. line—which was sorely weakened by the loss of the two Tedfords just before the second game with Oshawa to decide the group honours in the Interscholastic race—hase been gaining confidence during the past two weeks, and what it lacks in weight it makes up in grit and stamina. Neil Gemmel, tricky Peterboro quarter, is a wizard at handling his line and picking openings. The plunging of Welbourn and Merritt and the tackling of Rishor and Hall has caused many a hardened football critic to chuckle with delight. Bob Mackey is one of the best snaps seen in high school rugby in this part of the province, and with Gimblett, Cowan, Cuthbertson, and Thompson at the top of their form, the spectator cannot ask for a better game than tomorrow's promises to be.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL.

ZANE GREY'S 'FORLORN RIVER'

One of the popular Zane Grey stories has been dramatized for the screen in "Forlorn River," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the last half of this week. It is a typical Western tale, with rustlers and cow punchers 'n everything else that has come to be associated from the beginning of movie dramas with stories of the wild West and its people.

"Forlorn River" is the adventurous tale of a band of cattle rustlers who terrorized the north-west cattle country in bygone days, and has a good deal of stunt riding, swift action and colorful atmosphere in its unfolding. Jack Holt is the hero and Arlette Marchal the attractive heroine. Raymond Hatton is the picturesque tramp cowpuncher, who affords help at awkward moments and Edmund Burns completes the quartette of chief players. A posse and the gang of rustlers have some exciting mixups and the gang finally abducts Ina, the cattle rancher's daughter, but Captain Jack saves her in the nick of time and the tale ends happily for the lovers.

AT THE REGENT

BUCK JONES FELT QUITE CHILLY; DID HE HAVE A REASON? YOU JUST BET HE DID.

Buck Jones, whose latest starring vehicle, "30 Below Zero" will have a two day showing at the Regent Theatre, commencing to-day, was the victim of an unusual weather illusion. Many of the sequences in this latest Fox Films release, were taken in the Canadian Rocky Mountains, because the story calls for bitter cold and lots of snow.

The company came north in Pullman cars from the warm south and the change in temperature was not strikingly noticeable. They went from the station to their camp location in heated buses and while the weather seemed quite bracing it was not such as to call for unusual comment. That evening Buck Jones decided to take a stroll over a well-marked snow trail over the mountains. He put on a moderately heavy overcoat, but after walking a few minutes, he discovered it was colder than he thought, and increased his pace to keep warm until he was jogging along at a fast clip. After an hour or so he returned to camp and saw that the chief guide, an old half-breed Indian, was looking at him curiously.

"Colder than I thought," said Buck, making conversation. "Not so cold, but too cold for just a light overcoat."

"What is the temperature?" inquired the star.

"About 28," was the short reply.

"Twenty-eight!" exclaimed Buck—"I thought it was a bit colder than that. Are you sure?"

The guide walked over to a shack on the wall of which there hung a thermometer, and, after consulting it, called back that his guess was right, and that it was only 28.

Buck, still unconvinced, walked over to look at the instrument himself and found that the guide was right. It was 28, but 28 BELOW zero.

"And do you know," said Buck, telling Eva Novak about it later, "I didn't feel so cold until I found out it was 28 below zero. Then I just felt myself freezing stiff, and could't get indoors and alongside of the fire quick enough."

A CASH CUSTOMER

"Mr. Ferguson comes to the distiller and says: 'Do you want a cash customer?' and his answer is: 'You bet your life we do.' 'All right,' says Mr. Ferguson, 'I am going to undertake that business myself. Instead of having 1,621 liquor stores as we had before the O.T.A. I am to be the sole and only seller. I will furnish you with a market of $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 a year. You need not advertise or spend money to sell your product. I am your cash customer. Instead of liquor shops in the back streets as before I will put my shops in the decent neighborhoods and put the sign of the government of Ontario on the door for a cloak of respectability. I am the seller of your wares and the government of Ontario pays cash.'

FLOOD DROWNS TEN.

Creek Bursts Dam and Engulfs Men in Long Tunnel.

MARTINE, Calif., Nov. 26 Canadian Press).—Ten men met sudden death in the Contra Costa Hills last night, when San Pablo Creek, swollen by heavy rain, burst the temporary dam and sent a torrent of water rushing into the tunnel in which they were working. The man had not a chance for their lives; they were working more than two thousand feet from the entrance, and the flood coming without an instant's warning, engulfed them.

OBITUARY.

LT.-COL. A. A. BELCHER.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.— (Canadian Press.)—Lieut.-Col. Alexander Amerson Belcher, 82, died here to-day. He had been ill for some time with pneumonia and his death was not unexpected.

The late Lieut.-Col. Belcher was born in Toronto in 1844. When he was eight years old his family moved up to Bruce County, at that time merely bushlands. He was educated in a log school house in the bush, and later went to Rockwood Academy For some time he taught school in Michigan, returning to enter the military service at Southampton, Ont., at the time of the Fenian raid. In 1896 Sir Charles Tupper conferred a Lieut.-Colonency upon him as recognition of his services in connection with militia regiments.

His wife and one son survive.

MRS. WILLIAM DUNNETT.

The death occurred to-day of one of the oldest residents of this city, in the person of Mrs. William Dunnett, in her 90th year. Mrs. Dunnett was born in Baltimore, and is an old resident of Peterborough county. She was formerly a member of the Methodist church. Mrs Dunnett leaves to mourn her loss four daughters, Mrs McMillan of Toronto, Mrs. John Scriver of Hastings, Mrs. T Linton, of Roseneath, and Mrs. A. Metters of this city, and four sons, William and James of Peterborough, John of Toronto and Joseph of Roseneath. Her husband predeceased her 33 years ago.

The remains will be forwarded from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. A. Metters, 414 McDonnel street, on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock for interment in Thackeray's cemetery on Sunday afternoon.

SEEK LEGISLATION AGAINST TRAFFIC

British Columbia Would Stop All Private Liquor Shipments.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 26 (Canadian Press.—The passing by the Dominion) Parliament of legislation prohibiting the private import and export of liquor into and out of the Province of British Columbia was urged on the Royal Commission investigating administration of the Department of Customs and Excise by A. M. Manson, Attorney-General for British Columbia, when the Commission met here this morning. The representations made by Mr. Manson, in which the Attorneys General of the other three western provinces concurred, also included requests that an adequate control of ships of a speed of not less than 30 knots an hour be established. These ships, it is reported, should carry guns of suitable calibre and should be directed particularly against the operation of "Mother ships" from which the supplies for smuggling purposes are in many instances obtained.

Fxplains Principles Liquor Prohibition To Large Audience

Mrs. Gordon Wright Defend s Herself in Masterful Way, Explaining Her Action in Opposing Cigarettes Going To Soldiers' Training Camps.

MRS. J. F. ALLAN ADDR ESSES GATHERING ON CONDITIONS D UE TO LIQUOR TRAFFIC

To a very attentive audience the principles of Prohibition were explained last night in the Opera House by Mrs. Gordon Wright of London, the President of the W.C.T.U. Although there was an attempt to question Mrs. Wright before she commenced to speak, she told her questioner to wait until she was through and then she would answer his questions.

Mrs. Wright defended herself in a very masterful way against the publicity which she has received locally lately. She explained her action in the war, and why she opposed cigarettes going to training camps. She spoke with considerable amount of hea when she described what she did in the war when she gave her three sons and she, herself, was interested in Red Cross work.

The second speaker was the chairlady, Mrs. J. Forbes Allan of this city, who was also interrupted several times, but the audience clapped the heckler down each time, and with shouts of "Put him out," and "Sit down," he resumed his seat. Mrs. Alan spoke as a woman from the Old Land who had made this country her home and as one who knew the terrible conditions which are due to the liquor traffic.

On the platform were twenty-five of the leading temperance lady workers in the city and the auditorium of the Opera House was filled with a large audience. Miss Daisy Murray sang two solos, accompanied by Miss Gwen Donnelly on the piano.

Mrs. Gordon Wright

As Mrs. Wright arose to speak, a would-be heckler asked a question, but the applause which greeted the speaker shut out the question, and Mrs. Wright asked, as a woman's

Despicable Tactics

The Ferguson Candidate's Cause is in dire straits:

WHEN

They have to send a few of their friends to a meeting in the Grand Opera House, which is being addressed by two ladies, to try to break it up. They got their answer.

WHEN

They libel the chief speaker, by their article in the Examiner, a woman who sent her three sons to the front in France and Flanders, and she herself acted during the whole time of the Great War as vice-president of the Red Cross Society in Western Ontario; and her husband spent his time in war work without pay. See Mrs. Wright's answer to the mud-slinging.

WHEN

Their leading front page article in Friday's Examiner was about a police case who was seeing snakes. Surely, a curiosity, but it would be a daily occurrence, and no curiosity, if Government Control carried.

MOTHERS, FATHERS—If your son comes home some night seeing snakes, don't blame him, if you vote for Government control—you're to blame.

WIVES AND SISTERS — If your husband or brother comes home to you some times seeing snakes, don't blame him, if you vote Government Control—blame yourself.

The Ferguson Publicity Committee better try again to answer the question asked Mrs. Fallis in Wednesday's paper. The people are not asleep and a red herring drawn across the trail won't put them off the track of punishing G. Howard Ferguson for his treachery in attaching a wet tag to the Conservative party and trying to force his autocracy on old Ontario.

Cure Of Sick By Prayer Planned By Dr. Stratton

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(Associated Press) —Cure of the sick by prayer is planned as part of the regular Sunday services at the Calvary Baptist Church here by the pastor, the Rev. John Roach Straton. The clergyman says his wife was cured instantly of pleurisy last summer by the prayers of Ulidine Utley, girl evangelist, and fallen arches of a church worker also were cured.

COUNTY COUNCIL GOING TO BUILD MACHINE SHED

For Storing Road Machinery and Other County Property.

ROADS DISCUSSED.

Two Bridges Will Be Added To County System—Warden's Reoprt.

The County Council yesterday considered the matter of building a shed at the rear of the Court-House for the purpose of storing machinery and other materials during the period of the year when they are not in use. The members of the Suburban Area Commission were present, as they wished to enter into an agreement with the Council to store their machinery in the same place. It was decided that the Warden, chairman County Roads Commission, and chairman of Suburban Area Commission, should be a committee to draw up an agreement to build a shed whereby the County Roads Commission would pay three-eighths of cost, Suburban Area three-eighths and county in general two-eighths of cost. If it ever should arise that through legislation the Suburban Area Commission should be dispersed, the city will be able to claim a rebate of its share.

In view of the fact that H. Nesbitt, the jailer, has expressed his intention of resigning on April 1st, 1927, the matter of his superannuation allowance was left to the new Council.

At the afternoon session A. W. Connor was present, and the inside finishing of the new addition to the Court-House was decided upon. The offices will be finished in Georgia pine.

The Warden read his address, expressing his gratitude for the way the Council men had co-operated with him. County Clerk E. W. Elliott thanked the Council for the way the members had helped him while he was sick this summer. Reeve Clark of Harvey said it was very easy to have everything going right when they have men such as the Warden and Clerk at the head of affairs. There is not a man in the county who will not take off his hat to Mr. Elliott as a servant of this county.

Reeve Frye announced that it was his last year in municipal affairs. He has been in the County Council for five years and he thanked the members for the co-operation they had given him, and he hoped that it would not be good-bye but au revoir.

Reeve Coughlin, of Douro, made a strong plea to have Hogan's and Lynch's bridges taken over by the county. The members, after some discussion, decided to make these county bridges.

A suggestion was sent forward to the committee of next Council which would strike the Standing committees for the year, that there be a committee for publicity and the same community get out a booklet which will advertise the agricultural, tourist and other possibilities of this county.

HONOR MEMORY OF HARRY RUSH

Funeral Was Held Under Masonic Auspices From Family Residence.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

Hundreds of citizens from every walk of life, attended the funeral of the late Harry Rush which was held under Masonic auspices from the family residence, 182 McDonnell street.

St. John's church was crowded with mourners as the flag-draped casket on which reposed a single wreath, was carried to the front of the Church.

During the simple but impressive service the member of the Scottish Rite Octette rendered "Crossing the Bar."

Representatives from every public body in the city were present, as well as delegations from the local Militia, the British Empire Service Legion, and the three Masonic Lodges in the city.

The service at the Church was in charge of the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave who was assisted by the Venerable Archdeacon J. C. Davidson and the Rev. C. J. Bousfield.

At the graveside the full Masonic burial service was rendered.

The pall bearers were: John Crane, Mayor W. T. Holloway, S. R. Armstrong, Alex Gibson, T. H. Gillespie and G. Tower Boyd of the Confederation Life Association.

The honorary pall bearers were: Alpine McNab, E. A. Peck, M.P., E. H. D. Hall, Robert Fair, J. W. Meyers and William Reid.

SCOTS HONOR PATRON SAINT IN GOOD STYLE

Annual St. Andrew's Dinner Held By Local Caledonian Club.

MANY SPEAKERS.

Virtues of Scotland and Canada Are Pointed Out By Orators.

Scottish citizens of Peterborough observed last night what their chairman termed "one of the nights when our thoughts go back to our old home land and the scenes of our youth," when the annual St. Andrew's celebration was held by the Peterborough Caledonian Club. The gathering was held in the Woodmen of the World Hall, which was well filled with members and friends of the club. George Low was chairman of the evening, and a good programme was given after a substantial supper had been disposed of.

The Rev. J. Douglas Paterson was the first speaker, being charged with the important duty of giving an address on St. Andrew. He said that but little was known of the life of the Saint, but that the people of Scotland had many qualities which it seemed their patron had possessed. The Saint had never found his way to Scotland until after he was dead, when his remains were taken there by a missionary.

Scots, the speaker said, were not like other races. The English looked back with pride to King Alfred as an example and for inspiration. Frederick Barbarossa was the favorite forbear of the ex-Kaiser. The Scot never looked to his patron saint for anything, but like him, goes ahead in a quiet way doing what is required of him. St. Andrew brought his brother, St Peter, forward into the limelight and stayed back himself, working quietly.

The speaker referred to a recent bill introduced for Home Rule for Scotland. He said that the Scots didn't need Home Rule because they ruled everything anyhow. They provided the leaders in the British Parliament, in the Church of England and in the army. When Asquith wished to advance in the Parliament he had to go to Paisley, in Scotland, to get a seat. But when Englishmen and Welshmen tried to rule things in Scotland, continued the speaker, there was trouble, and for that reason the Home Rule bill would likely pass, as Scotchmen could not let the government of their own country get out of their hands even if they were ruling other countries.

St. Andrew was a great missionary, travelling through Asia Minor and around the Black Sea as far as the mouth of the Volga. There he was martyred by being tied to a cross, the shape of that now known by his name, and left to die of fatigue and starvation. He was a great colonizer, a great traveller and a great missionary. Scots have always been like that. Their in-

Hunger Betrays Girl Stowaway After 17 Days

NORFOLK, Va., Nov 27.—(Associated Press).—The story of a girl stowaway, who remained in hiding without food for 17 days on a voyage from Hamburg, Germany, and was forced by hunger to reveal herself, just before the ship docked at Wilmington, N. C., was disclosed yesterday in an immigration inspector's report.

The girl, 20 years old, Therese Struckmann, was ordered deported on the same ship upon which she arrived, the Steamer Rockenheim.

The lure of high salaries in the nursing profession here prompted her to endure the hardships of a stowaway, she said. She planned also to join an uncle, Frank W. Enschilz of Claire City, S. D.

MASONIC ORDER PAYS TRIBUTE

Members Eulogized Memory of Their Late Brother at Banquet.

PRESENTATIONS.

Many beautiful tributes to the memory of the late Excellent Companion Harry Rush of Corinthian Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, were expressed at a meeting held last night on the occasion of the visit of Kenneth J. Dunstan of Toronto the First Grand Principal of the Grand Chapter of Canada, in the Province of Ontario.

Mr. Dunstan referred with great feeling to the loss that Masonry had sustained in the loss of the late Mr. Rush, as also did A. E. Challis, Grand Superintendent of Ontario District No. 10. Excellent Companion Higginbottom, excellent First Principal of St. John's Chapter, Cobourg and Excellent Companion T. P. Lancaster, excellent First Principal of St. Andrew's Chapter, Havelock, and Excellent Companion H. R. H. Kenner of Corinthian Chapter, Peterboro also eulogised the memory of their beloved brother.

Mr. Dunstan was the recipient of two beautiful presentations during the course of the evening.

He was presented by Excellent Companion E. H. D. Hall of Corinthian Chapter, with a Grand First Principal's jewel dated 1872-3 and formerly owned by Most Excellent Companion C. D. McDonald who was clerk of Peterboro many years ago.

He received as a token of remembrance of his visit to Corinthian Chapter a gold mounted umbrella suitably engraved. The presentation was made by Excellent Companion John Crane.

BOARD WANTS ARGUMENTS IN WRITTEN FORM

TELEPHONE INQUIRY.

An Objection Registered By Col. Geary Was Not Considered.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27. — When Counsel G. R. Geary completed cross-examination of Mr. MacAulay in the Bell Telephone case yesterday, R. A. Reid, counsel for Ontario Government, had a few questions to ask witness. His first query was with regard to what he termed "eight per cent. dividend on six per cent. stock, in other words, selling of stock on the market for 140 which is available to shareholders at par."

Mr. Reid next turned his attention to switches. He asked specifically if the Bell Telephone Company had invented the switch now used or if it was invented by the Northern Electric. He further wanted to know if Mr. MacAulay knew there was a switch which would give him the service for half the cost on the one used by the company at present. "Would you be surprised to know this?" said Mr. Reid.

Mr. MacAulay: "I would be surprised to know it."

Arguments in Writing.

On the completion of the cross-examination Commissioner S. J. McLean announced a momentous decision of the board. The ruling, he stated, was that instead of having arguments of counsel presented at a later sitting of the board, these in written form are to be submitted to the board not later than December 10. In the second place the board ruled that replies to arguments be presented in written form.

Counsel Geary objected, calling attention of the board to the obvious advantage of hearing arguments in court. He had not heard of a case settled in that way without consent of the counsel.

Mass of Technicalities.

Commissioner Boyce explained that where such a mass of technicalities was involved as in the telephone case it would be an advantage to have the arguments and answers considered in written form. "Address your stenographer and not the board," was the advice offered.

Counsel F. H. Phippen, for the Bell Co., asked that the arguments all be presented on the same date, and that a closing date be fixed for submitting the answers. The board named December 10 as the closing date for submitting arguments and December 20 for answers.

THE WEATHER.

The rain yesterday and last night was quite heavy, giving a total of .76 of an inch. This was followed by high winds and a decided drop in the temperature. Locally it was 12 degrees this morning, but farther north and west zero temperatures were recorded. It is quite likely that the sudden drop will end up with a snow storm, and possibly sleighing.—W.P.

Election Bulletin

NOV. 27, 1926 — PETERBOROUGH, ONT. — No. 12

Liquor Interests Spending Thousands

WHERE is the money coming from to pay for the half page and full page advertisements that are appearing in the daily and weekly papers all over Ontario in support of the Ferguson candidates and seeking to discredit the O.T.A.?

For some of these advertisements as much as $400.00 a page is being paid. The total sum thus being expended runs into scores of thousands of dollars.

BREWERS AND DISTILLERS SUPPLY FUNDS

The brewers and distillers are ever willing to spend enormous sums to influence election campaigns.

This was shown last June during the Customs investigation in Ottawa.

At that time it was reported by Mr. Nash, a chartered accountant acting for the government, who had examined the books of leading distillers and brewers, that their books showed that they had expended enormous sums for election purposes.

Hiram Walker, of Wallkerville, admitted his firm had expended $62,000.00 in 1924 and $79,137.00 in 1925. Total $142,037.00 in two years.

Gooderham Worts — of which firm Magistrate Murphy's brother is a director—had expended $69,100.00.

The St. Hyacinth Distilleries had placed $63,000 into a somewhat similar fund.

MR. DALY A LAWYER, REPRESENTING THE LIQUOR INTERESTS, INFORMED THE COMMITEE OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS THAT IT PROBABLY HAD NOT ALL BEEN SPENT FOR ELECTION PURPOSES BUT SOME OF IT IN CONNECTION WITH THE TWO LIQUOR PLEBISCITES IN ONTARIO.

LIQUOR INTERESTS SUPPORTING FERGUSON

In this campaign the liquor interests stand to make millions if Premier Ferguson is returned to power and Government Sale goes into effect.

They are issuing prospectuses inviting the public to buy their stock for speculative purposes because if Government Sale is supported their profits will be enormously increased. Hon. W. F. Nickle points out that the president of the big distillery in Kingston is openly opposing his election.

The facts here stated are sufficient to enable intelligent people to judge where the liquor interests are spending their thousands in this campaign and where a large part of the money is coming from with which to pay for the Government Control advertising placed in the daily press, through the provincial organization.

Just remember this when you read their advertisements.

The O.T.A. A Delusion Says Bishop Fallon

"The O.T.A. has now been for ten years in operation. No law on the statute books of this Province has ever proven so disastrous a failure with regard both to its own enforcement and to the frightful collateral consequences of which it has been the cause. Any change must be for the better. I am in favor of Government control because I believe it will prove to be a real temperance measure, while I consider the O.T.A. a delusion and a snare."

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

WHICH OF YOU shall have a friend, and shall go to him at midnight and say: Friend, lend me three loaves, for a friend of mine on his journey has come to me and I have nothing to set before him? These words were addressed by Jesus to His disciples. They remind me of our indebtedness to one friend in our our endeavors to help another. This week I am greatly indebted to two friends on the other side of the Atlantic for having suggested these musings that I now set before you on this page. One of them is "The Life of Faith," a religious weekly which, if possible, is even more powerful today than at any time in its long and useful life. The other is J. W. Moodie, a truly great evangelist, known throughout the Old Land as "Soldier Moodie," because of his work with the British soldiers in more than one war.

A TRAGIC DRIFT

Mr. Moodie writes to "The Life of Faith" on what he calls, "The Tragic Drift from The Church—An Examination and a Consideration of Present-day Tendencies Inimical to the Cause of True Religion." It is an article that will stir to the depths the soul of every full-blooded follower of Jesus Christ at the same time as it will sadden almost to the point of sickening the hearts of all who really love the Son of God sincerely. I only wish it might have been possible to have given his message just as he has presented it. However, having felt its power in my own heart, I may be permitted to give the marrow of it my own way to those who honor me by reading this page week by week.

NOT IN BRITAIN ONLY

I don't believe that the conditions portrayed by Mr. Moodie are peculiar to Great Britain, but are to be found to a greater or lesser degree in every part of the so-called Christian World. So, because the drift is to be seen here as well as there, I am being impelled to write in what may be described by some as a pessimistic strain. However, at the risk of disappointing some of my readers, stern facts compel me to write in this way.

"If it is true—and it is true—that our churches are to-day losing their grip upon the people, it should be our duty to examine the causes underlying the failure. For many years I have made it my business to compile from a variety of sources, facts and figures bearing upon the situation, and after more than forty years' continuous evangelising, I ought to be able to speak with some knowledge of and authority on the subject. During that long period it has been my joy to join hands with hundreds of ministers of all denominations, as well as with many other splendid leaders in Christian work throughout the land. I have always believed, and still believe, that the Church is a Divine institution and the channel through which men can be reached and won for God; and if clergy and others had not left their first love, there would have been no need, no room, no desire for other evangelistic organizations in the land."

WHAT IS NEEDED

Continuing his article the evangelist in a most convincing way points out what is required by all who have the best interests of the Church at heart. If we would like to have a part in trying to stem the drift—if we are willing to spend time in prayer to God that the tide might be turned in the other direction, then let us think long and well on these words:

"The drift from the Church demands from all who attempt to understand it acquaintance with the principles of evidence, patient and thorough investigation, candid statement of results, and resolute determination to allow prejudice and prepossession to give way before facts.

"I bring no railing accusations against the clergy. The statements I make and the illustration I use are mostly from the lips and pens of the clery themselves."

FACE THE FACTS

In addressing the Belfast Synod the Rev. F. C. Gibson asked: "Who is to blame for the present condition of things? Can we blame the people for going outside the Church to have spiritual needs met which the Church has failed to satisfy Can we blame professional evangelists for making the most of a condition of things which they did not create? Is not the present drift away from the Church a serious reflection on the Church? If there had been a warm evangelistic atmosphere in the Church, in which newly-converted Christians would have felt at home, there would have been little danger of them seeking the more congenial environment of meetings outside the Church. The Church has been largely diverted from her divinely-appointed task."

SOLEMN UTTERANCES

Dr. Morrison, Moderator of the United Free Church in Scotland, a preacher whose scholarship cannot be questioned, but who combines with a wide culture a great love for the Evangel, said recently before a great gathering in the church that was made famous by the late Dr. Andrew Bonar:

"One might go into fifty churches; he might hear of Seneca and of Cicero, but not a word about the Cross."

In the course of a sermon delivered in the Parish Church at Eastbourne, the Archbishop of Canterbury said:

"No doubt motors, bicycles, char-a-bancs, golf and Sunday papers contribute to the sparser congregations, but the poorness of the sermons he regarded as a first cause."

The Rev. Thomas Phillips, of Bloomsbury, is said to have caused a sensation by telling the Metropolitan Free Church Federation in the Mansion House that:

"The Churches are fiddling while London is burning. The new generation has no use for Churches."

WHAT'S THE CAUSE

When the Church began to question and deny the infallibility and inspiration of the Word of God, the Virgin Birth, the vicarious atonement and the bodily resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ, the pulpit began to lose its power over the pew and church attendance began to fall off, till it is acknowledged on every hand that the Church has lost her hold upon the masses.

Christian England need not have been so surprised and shocked at what Arnold Bennett has written in the Daily Express:

"I do not believe, and have never at any time believed, in the Divinity of Christ, the Virgin Birth, the Imaculate Conception, Heaven, Hell, the immortality of the soul, Divine Inspiration of the Bible," when it calls to mind that the same dogmatic nonsense has been served out to a long suffering people by principals, deans, doctors of divinity and ministers of churches.

THE ARCBISHOP OF YORK

Speaking at the Church Congress the Archbishop of York said: "Men want a true religion as never before, but they do not find it in the Church. To put the matter bluntly, religion attracts, but the Church repels. The Church to the men and women, especially the younger ones, is not a witness to the truth of its Gospel, but it is, in its divisions, its dulines, its unreality, an obstacle, a stone of stumbling, an offence.

If, therefore, the Church is to preach the Gospel to this generation, nor in word only, but in power, it must evangelise itself."

MR. MOODIE AGAIN

I find myself in hearty agreement with this honored servant of God and the Church when he says:

"The drift to-day from the Church is undoubtedly due to the lack of evangelisation.. The Gospel of God's grace, which in former days led men to Christ and was the burning theme of the pulpit message, has long ceased to be the prominent and predominant factor in the sermon. Science, politics, current events, occupy so large a place in some pulpits that hearers are sent hungry away."

Little wonder that thousands have drifted from the churches till all that is left in many sanctuaries is just the four walls and empty pews. When a church has little power to interest and practically no power to save, it deserves all the neglect that it is treated to.

Having commenced these musings with The Life of Faith and J. W. Moodie, I will let them bring this brief story to a close by quoting a passage which ought to be pondered by all who profess to have any real interest in the well-being of the Christian Church.

"The departing from the fundamentals of the Christian faith has been, indeed, the death-knell of church attendance. But let the Church rise to its present opportunity, put away all lesser pre-occupations that distract its interest, catch again the passion of the love of Christ, and on fire with evangelistic beal, go out to gather in the multitudes, and the Church may again make history."

—ALLAN FAIRBAIRN.

Not As Intended

* * *

THEY SAID: "This Man receiveth sinners and eateth with them." It was not intended for a compliment, but it has worked out that way. For, the glory of the Gospel is that, not only has He redeemed them with His own blood, but He receives them on the exercise of their faith, putting them forever beyond the reach of condemnation. Then, having done that, He eats with them in a fellowship most wonderful. Think of it! He lifts the beggar out of his poverty and sets him down among Princes; and that not in the capacity of a servant but in the place of a friend. Therefore, we take our place as sinners, glorying in all that a sneering remark has meant for mankind everywhere.

The Bible in China.

ABOUT six months ago General Chang Chih-Klang ordered from the China agency of the American Bible Society a quantity of Bibles for officers and men in his army. He has recently ordered 4,500 Bibles and 6,000 New Testaments, undoubtedly the largest purchase of Scriptures on record in China. The Bread of Life, which is the Word of God, cast upon the waters in this way, is bound to bring forth wonderful results in the coming days.

Catholic Enterprise.

ROMAN CATHOLICS will put $10,698,000 into new buildings immediately in the United States, chiefly for educational purposes. California will lead all States in amount. One college near San Francisco will spend $3,000,000. There will also be built in the same city a home for unemployed men at a cost of $100,000. In Philadelphia a new literary institute will be erected to cost $300,000. Parochial schools are to be built at four points in Kansas at a total cost of $160,000. New York and Chicago are erecting Catholic high schools; and in Rochester new buildings for Nazareth College are to be erected at a cost of 1,000,000.

A Week of Prayer.

THE Committee responsible for issuing the program for the week of prayer in the United States, January 2-8, 1927, says:

"Our day is full of unrest. In spite of all efforts toward peace and good-will, the spirit of lawlessness, of international suspicion, and of actual warfare, seems to be increasing. All things are possible, however, when Christians agree, and not before. Never was the need for agreement and for prayer more urgent than right now."

If the report is to be followed, the first day of the week is to be devoted to humiliation, the second to the church, the third to nations, the fifth to young people, and the sixth to America as the source from which many rich gifts may come to benefit the world in need. The program is recommended for use throughout the world.

Is It Strange?

AMONG the Shilluks of the Moslem lands there is the idea that Joseph, Moses, Jesus, Paul, and the disciples were black. With native dignity, the Shilluks regard the black race as being superior to the rest of the world. With this background to their thinking the use of large colored pictures in teaching has raised an interesting problem. The question confronting the missionaries is if it would not be best to dispense with the pictures and let these tribesmen form their own impressions.

Return of a Great Preacher.

MR. G. CAMPBELL MORGAN, well-known preacher, Bible expositor and lecturer at Christian workers' conferences, after a remarkable series of services in his former church, London, England, is back in America where he will be engaged in special meetings for several months. Knoxville and Chattanooga, Tenn., will have him from November 21 to December 3. He will be in Harrisburg, Pa., December 5 to 10. From December 12 to 17 he will be in Charlotte, N. C. After these services he will be in California from January 2 to March 11.

Canadian Churches Divide Mission Fields.

ONE of the great denominational papers in the United States says: "An arrangement has been come to between the continuing Presbyterian Church in Canada and the United Church of Canada under which the former takes over several foreign mission fields as from June 10, 1925, viz., in India, the Gwalior and the Ehil fields, along with the Eimar Valley with Mhow as a base; and all of Formosa and British Guiana.

"The Federal Commission, appointed by the Canadian Government to deal with the matter, has sanctioned this amicable decision; leaving the division of the value of the property rights in the respective fields to be settled by the Commission. The Continuing Presbyterian Church will also carry on foreign work under Dr. Jonathan Goforth and his associates in China. Other work may be carried on among the Koreans in Japan, together with the Chinese mission in Canada."

Arab Village in Chicago.

ON WEDNESDAY and Thursday, November 17 and 18, the First Presbyterian Church, Oak Park, Chicago, displayed an Arab village built within the church, giving a visual demonstration of Moslem life as lived in the home, in the mosque, in the cafe, the bazaar, and in the street. Its object was to serve as a fitting climax to six weeks' study of the Moslem world in the school of missions.

The life of a high-class Moslem woman in her home was shown; the call to prayer was sounded from the minaret for the faithful to gather before the mosque facing toward Mecca and pray. There was a display of beautiful and interesting things from all over the world, and a real oriental bazaar where gifts could be purchased which had come straight from Moslem lands. One could buy lemonade from the lemonade seller, or taste black coffee in the cafe.

What About Vaccination?

WITHIN the last two years nearly all the people of the newly opened field in Yunnan, Southwest China, have been vaccinated. But the methods in some cases reacted as bad or worse than the disease. In every case the vaccine was blown up the nostrils. In some cases the patients died; others lost the sight of one or both eyes. It was more pitiful still when these children or their parents came and besought the Presbyterian missionaries to help them restore their sight. The Rev. E. C. Goodenberger writes: "As you may well believe, spiritual darkness is even more appalling; therefore it is our privilege to minister both to their bodies and souls."

What About Siam?

THERE is an inaccessible town in the dense jungle hinterland of North Siam known as Luang Prabang where arrangements have just been completed for the opening of a mission station which is to be manned entirely by Siamese nationals. Luang Prabang is on the Mekong river, on the Siamese Indo-China boundary. At various times it has been visited by missionaries, but this is the first time that an attempt has been made to establish permanent Christian work there. It is a favorable commentary on the development of the missionary spirit of the Siamese church that it is being done by the Siamese rather than by the missionaries.

What Is the Church?

MR. LAPSLEY A. McAFEE, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Berkeley, California, has been emphasizing the church.

"We call the congregation 'the church' because it is the local working unit. We call the building 'the church' because it houses the unit. We call the denomination 'the church' because it is the closest grouping of the local units. We call the universal fellowship 'the church' because it is the world's visible representative of Christianity. 'The church' is that inner, vital fellowship quite unseen though expressed to us by the outward. The church is the largest fellowship of human beings of to-day."

It has been said that there are three kinds of givers: the flint, the sponge, and the honeycomb. To get anything out of the flint you must hammer it and then you get only chips and sparks. To get water out of a sponge you must squeeze it, and the more you squeeze the more you will get. But the honeycomb just overflows with its own sweetness.

Lieut. Maloney—"How would you like to have a hop in my aeroplane?"

Steward—"No, sah, I stays on terrah firmah, and de more firmah, de less terrah."—Shear Nonsense.

What Think Ye of Christ

The Victorious Christ

THE Prince's power makes Him God. He mastered every foe that ever mastered men. He gave the deathblow to sin. He smote the shackles from the slave's soul. He discrowned man's destroyer and laid him low. He has turned the sluices of salvation into the souls of sinners and made them singing saints. The record is spread over the pages of history for the critic's keenest scrutiny; let men read and rejoice. He has wrenched the precious prey from the teeth of death. He has sung the lyrics of life into the grave's gloom. Hail, great Galilean!—Great God.

PROTECTING THE ROADS.

The report of Harry Gainey, Chairman of the Suburban Area Commission, calls attention to the damage done to the roads by heavy motor traffic in the early spring.

The Commission does well to stress this point and should have the support of the citizens generally in seeking to save the roads from this unnecessary mauling by heavy trucks at a season when the surface is in such condition that the maximum amount of damage results.

As Mr. Gainey points out, the repairs necessitated by such traffic not only involves a heavy expenditure in time that might more profitably be devoted to other road work, but the costs eats well into the Commission's appropriation.

The regulations in regard to heavy traffic in the early spring should be made more restrictive, and they should be rigidly enforced by the authorities.

A few truck owners should not be allowed to tear the roads to pieces.

WEDNESDAY'S DUTY.

A remark overheard on the street that so-and-so failed to vote at the last election because nobody sent a car for them throws some light upon the value placed on their franchise by a percentage of the electors.

Although the polling booths are rarely more than a block or two away, the number of people who refuse to vote unless they are provided with transportation to the polls seems to be steadily increasing.

It is to be hoped that there will not be too much of this kind of thing next Wednesday.

The people of the Province are being asked not only to choose their Government for the next four years, but also to decide upon another very vital issue, in regards to the handling of the liquor evil.

These twin responsibilities should be faced by every elector.

It should not be necessary, except in the case of infirm or aged electors, to transport voters to the polls when such important matters have to be determined.

Every man and woman who is on the list should see to it that his or her opinion on these questions is registered.

KEEPING OUR HEADS.

The election campaign, one of the most peculiar this Province has ever experienced, is almost over.

With the O. T. A. question cutting across party lines and in many cases causing divisions of opinion, even in the family circle, the ingredients have been ever present that might cause a degree of bitterness that would leave traces long after the election is over.

Fortunately, the contending sides have so displayed commendable restraint, and here at least there has been little unseemly quarrelling over the issue.

Let us hope that this condition will prevail throughout the balance of the campaign.

Let us hope that we can keep our heads, that we can realize that although the other fellow or the other woman, as the case may be, does not see the question in the same light as we do he or she is as sincere as we are.

We are going to live side by side here no matter what the verdict may be on Wednesday, and we'll get along a whole lot happier if we keep our tempers under control.

CANADIAN HISTORY STAMPS.

It is explained that the new issue of Canadian historical stamps bearing the portraits of Macdonald, Laurier, McGee, Baldwin and Lafontaine is not intended to commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of the Dominion, says The London Advertiser. Nevertheless they will serve that purpose much better than some other suggested modes of celebration. The main object of the celebration is to draw attention to the history and resources of Canada. It is not necessary that the study should be rigidly limited to the period in which Confederation was established. Baldwin and Lafontaine are known as leaders in the earlier movement for responsible government, and the same of Laurier is connected with the marvelous expansion of Canada in the early part of the twentieth century.

Looking at the matter broadly, all this falls properly within the scope of the celebration. There would be no objection even to going farther back, to the French regime and the story of the pioneers of old Canada and the other Provinces. The aim is to arouse Canadian spirit by showing what Canadians have done in the development of their country and its institutions. The issue of these special postage stamps is right in line with the spirit of the anniversary. Senator Murphy is so good a Canadian that his mind must have worked subconsciously toward this end when he ordered the new issue. We suggest as another subject for a special stamp a figure illustrating pioneer life in Canada.

A PLAGUE ON STATISTICS.

Mr. Lloyd George, in one of his flashes of wit, said that one of the curses of elections were statistics. They did more, he held, to buttress bad cases and make mountebanks seem plausible than anything else he knew of.

We are reminded of this now by the legions of figures being unleashed on platform and in press for and against the O. T. A. If an elector had to depend upon such figures to reach a right conclusion as to how he should vote, he would need to be a mathematician like Bertrand Russell and a statistician like Roger Babson rolled into one. We have statistics to prove that the O. T. A. has made us all drunkards, and statistics to prove that it has made us all Carrie Nations. Figures from insurance companies, and figures from doctors, and figures from police courts; figures for this period and that period; figures twisted and tortured so that their only effect is to make one reel in dismay.

Now there are things that can be fairly adequately demonstrated by the right use of statistics. But there are other things that can be merely made to look plausible by statistics, and there are statistics from which a dozen different deductions can be made, all of them more or less true. Unless all sorts of underlying facts and factors are considered, unless fallacies are ferreted out, and qualifying circumstances understood, truth is bound to suffer.

Let us give an illustration. The other day a Toronto newspaper—the issue lies before us—came out with a table of statistics showing that there is now less cruelty to animals in Toronto streets than there used to be. Fewer drivers, it appears, are arrested than in pre-war and pre-prohibition days for the crime of beating horses; whereupon our Toronto contemporary pointed to that as evidencing that the O. T. A. had eliminated cruelty. It was so simple. When men get drunk, they get cruel. When they get cruel, they beat horses. And as they are not now beating horses as often as before, simply because they don't get so drunk and so cruel, the O. T. A. was vindicated.

The explanation, of course, is simple. Fewer horses are badly treated in Toronto's streets because there are fewer horses. The men who used to be cruel to them are driving automobiles.

Yet this is but one case of a score of foolish things we have seen deduced from statistics. The public would do well to be chary of them.—Ottawa Journal.

GREAT OPEN SPACES ARE TO BE FILLED.

General Booth, head of the Salvation Army, recently declared that the British Empire would fail to fulfill its mission unless within the next few years the great open spaces were populated by immigrants of British stock. Moreover, if the Empire failed, the right of other nations to go out and fill the land could not be denied.

It was a statesmanlike utterance, and yet we read in the same week of something like 40,000 Scotch people being ready to emigrate to America, but most of them having a preference for the United States. Only 6,000 in one year can secure entry to the States, so the situation looks like one to be captured, if possible, by Canada.

The British Government granted $15,000,000 last year for Canadian emigration and Commissioner Lamb of the Salvation Army reports that full advantage has not been taken of this grant. The Commissioner says that 250,000 people could emigrate every year, but last year there were only 85,000.

Everyone knows the need in this country of more settlers. As many as we can put on the land and successfully establish should be the aim. Sir Henry Thornton finds progress in Western Canada on a solid basis, but there is still an Empire there yet to be populated with British stock.

An inflow of 250,000 people per year into Canada would mean a period of prosperity which could scarcely be measured. It would mean the solution of many of the present-day problems. There is no question of Canada's ability to absorb that number of people, and every effort should be bent in that direction. We have Government agencies, railway agencies, Salvation Army and others at work—why are the results to date so disappointing? Is there something wrong with our general Canadian salesmanship in the Old Land?—St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The County Council has done the right thing in voting $200 for the Red Cross outpost hospital at Apsley.

It wouldn't have been a bad thing for Ontario if the multitude of dry meetings in the Province had had some effect on the wet weather.

In some centres they are reviving the old slogan, "Vote as you like but vote." It doesn't seem necessary in this campaign.

Whatever they may think of its merits, most people are becoming tired of hearing "O. T. A." mentioned.

England is suffering from a heavy fog, and it may be mentioned in passing that many electors are in the same condition as regards the issue to be voted on next Wednesday.

TEMPERANCE MEETING

Supporters Around Omemee Asked to Contribute to Funds.

OMEMEE, Nov. 27.—On Wednesday evening a public meeting of the temperance forces in Omemee was held in the Farmers' Club rooms. The attendance was not large, but much enthusiasm was displayed among those present.

Rev. E. W. Rowuand was elected as chairman of the evening.

The Prohibition committee of Ontario have asked for the sum of $50 from the village of Omemee, and $60 from the township of Emily. After several views had been expressed as to the best means of raising this amount it was decided that some canvassnig would be necessary, and as the time is short those present were asked to assist the treasurers, Mr. R Poast, for the village, and Mr. Joseph Bradley, for the township, in collecting and also made it known that a subscription list is open for those who wish to contribute to the cause.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Nov. 27. — This week's markets opened with a lighter run than for some weeks past with a resultant general firming up in prices, excepting the heavy export steers. There was but a moderate demand for about 350 cattle for export, and these were picked up at about steady prices, ranging from $6.40 to $6.80 for finished weighty steers, and one load of fancy quality at $7.35. This week saw the last regular sailings from the port of Montreal for the season. Boats from this will sail from Halifax, St. John and Boston. The longer railway haul adds to the freight rates, and for this reason, in part, there was little or no demand for store cattle for export.

With the lighter cattle run, there was a more active market for good butcher cattle, and prices in this section were early advanced 25c higher than the previous week's average

Choice offerings were not too plentiful, and the advance was easily maintained all through the week. Choice top steers sold up to $6.75. Medium cattle were not any higher than a week ago, but sold more readily. Fat cows were stronger, a few selling at $5.25, with an occasional fancy cow at $5.50. Medium to common cows steady. The quality of baby beef was rather disappointing. Very few selling over 9 1-2c, with many selling 7c to 8c. The tone of the market on Wednesday was for better trading on any cattle showing finish.

Springers and milkers — There was a good demand for choice springers, close up to calving, at from $85 to $115; good, $60 to $80; choice fresh milkers, calf at foot, $75 to $90; good, $45 to $65; medium to common cows hard to dispose of.

Stockers and feeders—There is a fairly good demand for choice quality stockers at prices steady with last week. Western shipments not so heavy as formerly There has been a lot of plain cattle on the market.

Sheep and lambs—Choice lambs sold Monday at 11 1-2c; Tuesday and Wednesday the market was stronger, selling at 11 3-4c, and a few lots at 12c. Heavy lambs, $2 discount; buck lambs, $3 discount; cull lambs, around 9c; yearling sheep, 7c to 8c; choice butchers sheep, 6c to 6 1-2c; good, 5c to 5 1-2c; heavy sheep and bucks, 5c to 4 1-2c; cull sheep, 2c to 3c.

Calves—Choice veal calves were scarce and sold at 12c tops; good, 10c to 11c; medium to common calves were numerous and sold any place from 6c to 9c.

Hogs—Sold on Monday on a basis of 10c f.o.b. for thick smooth; selects, $11.05, on a basis of 196, and premium $2.07 per head. Fed and watered hogs, 50c over f.o.b., weighed off cars 90c over f.o.b.; off the road hogs, 60c over f.o.b. Tuesday and Wednesday hogs sold on a basis of $9.75 f.o.b.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 27 (Canadian Press).—The only business reported on the Montreal grain market yesterday was the sale of an odd load of barley and wheat. The local market continued quiet but firm.

Extreme dullness marked the local and export trade in flour, but prices for Spring and Winter wheat grades were well maintained.

There was a fair demand for all lines of millfeed and values were firm. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but firm.

A moderate amount of business was worked in butter and prices were steady. The receipts were 862 packages.

The undertone to the cheese market was firm under an improved demand. The receipts were 2,840 boxes.

A feature of the egg trade was the stronger feeling that developed in the market for fresh extras and prices were advanced 2 cents per dozen. The demand was good. The market for storage eggs was active and firm. The receipts were 159 cases.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 19,000; show yearlings $12.65 to $12.90; part load $13.00; weighty steers $10.50 late; heavies early $10.90; vealers steady to strong at $11.00 to $12.00.

Hogs 32,000; top $11.90; bulk desirable hogs $11.60 to $11.85; packing sows scare, active; spots 25c higher; bulk $10.25 to $10.85; few $11.00 and better; strong weight slaughter pigs mostly $11.50 to $11.85; few up to $11.90.

Sheep 23,000; top natives to small killers $14.10.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 (Canadian Press).—Wheat values went higher yesterday, chiefly on account of heavy storm damage in Argentina and because of liberal export buying of wheat from North America. Closing quotations on wheat were firm at 1 cent to 1-2 cents net advance; with corn 1-8 to 5-8c up; oats 1-8 to 3-8c higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 25c.

With corn belt weather unfavorable and husking returns below expectation, corn prices were independently firm. May delivery of corn climbed to above 80c for the first time in weeks. Oats followed corn.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

All communications on political questions must bear the signature of the writer for publication and must be received before 1 p.m. on the day before publication is desired.

Dear Sir:

It's easy to see that not many of the Tory Association are returned soldiers they do not know even what our soldiers fought for. The Empire fought Germany, because she was making war on the women of Belgium. Red blooded men don't do that. So why do the Tory organization villify Mrs. Wright, she is doing her best as she see's it whether she is right or wrong remains to be seen. If the Tory organization had the returned mens' cause at heart, as much as she has the cause of the women and children at heart, they need never trouble if a dozen Mrs. Wrights came to town to try and defeat them.

"Let him who is without sin cast the first stone."

Thanking you very much, Mr. Editor,

E. WADDINGTON,
Aylmer street.

The Editor, Peterboro Examiner:

Sir:

Will prohibition orators and bulletin-writers explain how they consider it to be fair play or sound argument to quote statistics comparing convictions in Ontario before and after the passing of the O.T.A. when they know that the only statistics in existence refer to the time of the open bar?

If, and when Government Control ha sbeen in force for a term of years, then, and then only, would the quotation of statistics in that line be not only fair fighting but sound argument.

The open bar is "not only dead but dammed" and the statistics thus quoted are but an attempt to throw dust in the eyes of the electors and also to deceive any newcomers to the country since the passing of the Act.

As to enforcemnt, Raney, when Attorney General in the United Farmers of Ontario Government, could not complain of lukewarm support either within the Cabinet or from the party at large—the U.F.O. had a substantial and subservent majority in the House—and yet Raney, whose zeal was undoubted and whose support was enthusiastic and unanimous could not enforce this Act. And if he could not—who can? The fact is it is unenforceable.

In the referendum of 1924, roughly speaking 49 percent of the voters who polled voted against it. That means that out of every thousand votes polled 510 were in favor of this act and 490 against it, and with virtually half the people against the Act, and such an Act which no one considered it a crime to violate, how could or can it be properly enforced.

In The Examiner of Monday, November 22, we have a delightful caption, 'Who shall govern Ontario? The people or the 22 wet Conservatives in the Legislature, etc."

The answer to that is plainly that the people of Ontario shall govern Ontario by the vote they give on this coming First of December. Ontario is not to be governed in perpetuity by a vote given in 1919—nor a vote in 1924—but by the vote right now in 1926, which shall definitely give the opinion of the people of Ontario at this present time and under present conditions.

That will decide who shall govern Ontario.

Yours truly,
CHAS. HARRISON.

Editor Examiner:

Dear sir:

The local Ferguson Conservatives ask "is it fair for me to call myself a Conservative because I am not one of the Ferguson type!"

I ask the committee: Is it fair to have eighteen to twenty-two men in the Conservative party say to the Premier: "You must not keep your pledge to the party as to the O.T.A. You must change your policy. We must wipe out the O.T.A.", and to have the Premier autocratically disregard the mandate given him and to which he solemnly pledged himself in obedience to the eighteen to twenty-two "wet" gentlemen of the party?

Is it fair to ask the Conservative party after having put so much temperance legislation through the House, to ally itself with the "liquor interests" under the guise of temperance?

Is it fair to have those in favor of hard or intoxicating liquor in Peterborough pretend to be temperance men?

Is it fair to ask the Conservatives and people of this Province to trust a man who has so barefacedly broken his solemn promises and betrayed his party? Is it?

Is it fair for the Ferguson committee to misrepresent the facts concerning Government Control in other provinces which have tried it, notwithstanding that people who live there for many years have warned us over and over again that conditions are much like the barroom days?

Is it fair to quote the opinions of those who are financially interested in the success of the brewers and distillers or whose relatives are interested, as in the case of Mrs. Emily Murphy, and to pretend they are temperance men?

Were the brewers and distillers ever satisfied with a policy that did not bring profit to them?

Was there ever a business so destructive to the home and national life and prosperity of a nation?

Was there ever a business that so imitated the powers of his satanic majesty in its work of undermining the physical and moral balance of man so that, though a person might be naturally fair-minded yet where the subject of spirituous liquor was under consideration there would be deception of all kinds on account chiefly. I believe of the diseased condition of the nerves which alcohol produces which would require scientific explanation but an alcohol addict is certainly diseased and unbalanced. Listening to the Premier's friends and reading his speeches I have often wondered if the brewers have hypnotized him on account of such a condition as one cannot imagine a clever statesman making such untruthful statements and expecting to get away with it. Is it fair for the committee or the betwitching Mrs. Fallis to ask the public to believe these things when we have unimpeachable evidence that Alberta is uncontrolled by Government.

Yours truly,
A. H. ALLEN.

BUY SKIM MILK.

W. C. West Is Adding New Feature To Stirling Creamery.

STIRLING, Nov 27. — W. C. West, of the Stirling Creamery, is adding a new feature to his outfit, and intends buying skim milk from the farmers and shipping it to the Chemical Works at Trenton, where, after undergoing chemical treatment, the different elements will be used in other manufactures. Mr. West will pay 50c. a cwt. for the milk and trucks will deliver it to the works at Trenton.

Mr. Clayton Tucker will hold an extensive sale of his farm stock and implements on Dec. 14th. Mr. Tucker has a fine herd of high-grade Holstein cows, as well as good implements and other things that might be found on a well appointed farm.

Heart Palpitation Dizzy, Sinking Spells

Mrs. M. A. Gagnon, Donatville, Alta., writes:—"Some time ago I was very nervous, could not sleep at night, often had dizzy, sinking spells and palpitation of the heart, and was so run down I could not do my housework, but just leave everything and sit down.

I spent a lot of money using medicine from the doctor, but it did not do me any good.

At last a friend told me to use MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS and after using a couple of boxes I was not the same woman. I began to feel so much better, and after a few more boxes I was in perfect health. I always recommend them to all those I know who are suffering from heart trouble."

OFFICER TAKES HECKLER FROM MILLBROOK HALL

Created Disturbance During Meeting in Interests of W. J. Bragg.

O.T.A. UPHELD.

Several Speakers Condemn Policy of Government Control.

MILLBROOK, Nov 27.—The town hall was well filled on Thursday evening when W J Bragg, Liberal candidate in Durham, was heard for the first time locally in the present campaign, a strong feeling of interest and enthusiasm prevailing throughout.

There was some heckling which grew to undue proportions, the person evidently being under the influence of liquor, and finally being removed by the constable The chairman, Fred Fallis, announced that an opportunity would be given anyone wishing to question the speakers to come to the platform at the conclusion of the last address, and make then whatever statements they desired.

Mrs. G. V. Strong.

Mrs. G. V. Strong, of Port Hope, was the first speaker, stating, "I'm working for the O.T.A., not for Mr. Bragg I've been a Conservative all my life, I'm still a Conservative, and I hope to go back to my party and begin all over again. But when Honorable Howard Ferguson put the liquor question into this campaign I felt I must give up my party allegiance. I have children, and to vote against the Act I felt I was not playing fair—better to go back on my party than on my God"

"I believe it is the real Conservatives who are leaving Mr. Ferguson and supporting the O.T.A. I wish the young people could see, without experiencing, the suffering and trouble which we older people remember in the days when liquor was readily procurable."

"When they did away with the hotels it bred that 'horrible animal,' the bootleger. Do youg really believe in your hearts that government control will do away with him? I don't honestly believe there are as many bootleggers as they say, nor are they all as rich as they are reputed to be. Some I have heard so labelled appear to have no more money than I have."

Two writers, Nellie McClung, and "Janey Canuck" (Judge Murphy), make conflicting statements, as do others from the west, regarding the working of government control, the latter claiming it as satisfactory, while Mrs. McClung recently wrote: "If the advocates of the present system could see some of the letters I receive, I wonder if they would still be able to report that Alberta's law is 'satisfactory.' It all comes down to this: Is it all right for a country to produce drinkers and drunkards, if it is done legally, and the government receives a rake-off? The defenders of government control say it is. We say no All eyes are on Ontario. We hope she will stand firm"

The poison alcohol which killed so many last July has been traced to Buffalo, the speaker said, and "if if they could not stop it coming in then, how in the world are they going to keep it out now?" If young people cannot have a permit until they are twenty-one, where will they go for liquor? To the bootlegger."

Speaking from a wide experience with young people, in her own family, and their friends, chaperoning them to dances, any many other places, Mrs Strong said emphatically that she had never yet met a single boy or girl, young man or young lady, with any trace of liquor about them, or on their breath.

The Premier objects to the churches having a part in this campaign, but "the churches didn't ask the Honorable Howard Ferguson to put this question into the contest, and this question of temperance has always been the churches' fight, since they have always been arrayed against everything that is wrong and degrading. I believe we should settle the matter with our own consciences, on the Lord's side, and then go ahead and fight for all we are worth. "I make this appeal to the mothers and all the women voters."

Mrs. Strong, in concluding her remarks, dealt with the rumour widely circulated that "the Anglican church is for booze." This, she declared is not true, though a few of the clergy, as in other churches, have come out for liquor. "I feel there are as many sincere people in the Anglican church opposed to this as in any other denomination. I am a Conseratvive; I am an Anglican; I am a mother; and I am for the O.T.A." (Applause).

W J Bragg.

The candidate, W. J Bragg, of Bowmanville, was received with warm applause, and said he did not feel a stranger in Millbrook, as for thirteen successive years he has judged fruit at the annual fall fair here.

He believed that the question of government control had never been the policy of the Conservative party, and queried, "Why should the Premier throw this thing into the arena now?"

"The Premier stated that the O.T.A. is unworkable, that the public sentiment is not sufficiently strong to make its enforcement possible. Yet by majorities at repeated plebiscites and referendums the people had showed they wished the Act continued on the statute books."

Personally well acquainted with three attorneys-generals who have administered the Act, the speaker said he had never heard any one of them state that it could not be enforced. "If the Honorable W. F. Nickle had received sufficient sympathy and backing from the government, I am satisfied the question would never have come in to this present campaign."

The speaker scored the Premier for his broken promises, and mentioned specific instances of his repudiation of his public utterances. "In 1924 Millbrook voted two to one in favor of continuing the O.T.A. Are you going to reverse that decision now? I beg of you to give this matter serious consideration, and vote as your consciences dictate on December 1st."

Quoting from a letter sent to the electorate by the Moderation League, Mr. Bragg inferred they were leaving no stone unturned to undo the O.T.A., and those on the opposite side must likewise work indefatigably to maintain it. He had endeavored to conduct the campaign in a way not to hurt the feelings of the most sensitive. Against his opponent, Mr Chalk, he had no attitude of resentment, but regarded him with respect, never having known him otherwise than as an upright gentleman. But on the paramount question of the O.T.A. versus government control he differed widely from the platform supported by Mayor Chalk.

The operations of government control in Quebec, and the Western provinces were referred to, and the speaker gave some information received from a farmer's son in Durham who had been with a threshing gang in Saskatchewan this last season. In a small community near, a government liquore store was established which had to sell one car load of liquor a month to retain its permit. It did actually sell seven car loads in August, and five more by the middle of September, opening at 11 a.m. and closing by 7 p.m. On wet days, when threshing was held up, as many as 75 men would be lined up waiting for the store to open, and later in the day a number would be so much the worse of liquor they would be lying on the sidewalk, making a detour round them necessary for anyone going up the street. At the close of the season several of the men had only 10.00 due them in wages; the rest having been spent in liquor.

"How do you know that statements true?" questioned a voice from the audience. And another added, "It's a —— lie." Assurance was given that the information was received from an eye-witness, and the testimony of a conductor, who had seen 35 years' service, that he rarely had a man the worse of liquor on his train since the O.T.A. came in force, was repeated by Mr. Bragg, who had it from the conductor himself.

From an economic standpoint the candidate upheld the O.T.A., the standard of living being higher in Ontario than in Quebec, because of the money spent in that province for liquor which would otherwise have gone for food, clothing, and other necessities. Commercial failures are officially listed as being 50 per cent. higher in the lower province than in our own.

In his closing remarks, Mr. Bragg appealed for support on December 1st, pledging himself to uphold the O.T.A., and to introduce and assist in maintaining any temperance legislation for the good of the province.

Rev. T. E. Meldrum

Rev. T. E. Meldrum, pastor of the Baptist Church, Port Hope, gave the last address, making a good impression. Prefacing his remarks with a reference to the fact that the prophets of the Old Testament took part in events of their day which had political significance, and "So I'm in good company," the speaker went on to say:

"I'm a Canadian to the backbone, backbone and all" (applause). "I love my country, and I believe I'm living in the best province in the Dominion. The reason why I apepar tonight is not because I'm a Liberal or supporting a Liberal government The people we are counting on to win this election are the temperance people, who are Conservatives."

Tracing the history of the O.T.A. since its introduction in 1916, the Premier's various unkept promises were referred to, the final change made by Mr. Ferguson, without consulting his party, thrusting the temperance question as the main issue in the present conflict, has evidently brought about a feeling that "to get rid of the present leader may be considered the best move.

Commending Hon .W. F. Nickle for his resignation for principle, Sir George E. Foster's prediction was quoted that he believed there may be a time when Mr. Nickle will be leader of the Conservative party.

"I believe very firmly this is a conflict between wet and dry. I'm not getting a cent for being here tonight; I left a meeting in my own church to be here because of a sense of duty. My name is not on the voters' list though I have voted twice since coming to Port Hope. Somehow my name is not there now. Maybe I have been a little too active to suit some. If I can't vote I'll try and get some votes to sustain the O.T.A." (Applause.)

Firmly convinced that bootlegging will not be eliminated under government control, the speaker said: "We can't get a conviction in our town. The Prime minister and his cabinet could put 1000 men in the field in a day if he wanted to. The people supply the money to carry on the government and they want the law enforced. I firmly believe it can be." (Applause.)

"Too often the temperance people vote politics. Let party interests go to the wind and save the country from a retrograde step. When N. W. Rowell's 'Abolish the Bar' policy was defeated we did not have to go back. But now—we step back twenty years if the present act is defeated."

"The bootlegger, they say, is going to vote for the O.T.A. Why, I ask did he not do so when the plebiscite was on?" Figures were quoted from the ward district in Toronto showing that a very large proportion in this section had voted against the act and very few in its favor.

"Are we satisfied with the O.T.A.? Are we? No; I'm not satisfied with it, but it is the best thing in sight now, and we can keep it on the statute books if the Temperance people stand together and demand it. It is in our power if only we go after it."

"Rev. Murdoch McKinnon, for 16 years a pastor in Regina, who has lived under four different systems of Temperance legislation, says "Government control is the worst yet—more liquor is being consumed and sold."

"Let us as men and women of intelligence and high moral standing, think very carefully and pray very earnestly over the sacred use of the ballot, not lending our influence to bring back to our boys and girls the curse of liquor. Vote as you believe the Lord would have you do on the first of December."

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

ATTACKS LIQUOR EXPORT HOUSES BEFORE PROBE

Opening Session of Royal Commission at Vancouver Sittings.

VIEW SITUATION.

Deaths, Hi-Jacking and Murder is Result From Booze Smuggling.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press).—"Sometimes one wishes that he could bring our members of Parliament out here and give them first-hand knowledge of the situation," declared Hon. A. M. Manson, Attorney-General of British Columbia, discussing liquor smuggling before the Royal Commission investigating the Customs Department at its opening sitting here yesterday.

Mr. Manson, attacking the liquor export houses, told the Commission that under the law at present, liquor was shipped for export to Mexico and also to Windsor, Ont., which latter shipments seemed "like carrying coals to Newcastle." Also liquor was shipped from British Columbia cities to along the Canadian coast, when it was transferred to United States vessels or landed for consumption in Canada.

"They lie awake nights devising ways and means to evade the laws," declared Mr. Manson, referring to the liquor smuggling. He mentioned one vessel which had made three trips to 'Mexico" within 56 hours and produced landing certificates to show that its cargo had arrived at its Mexican destination.

Deaths, hi-jacking and murder had resulted from the evasion of the law in the matter of liquor smuggling, he maintained.

The situation was destructive to Provincial law. The Province of British Columbia objected to being made a home for illicit liquor exportations, either into the United States or into other provinces.

Read the Secret of Health in These Letters

EVERY woman is interested in another woman's letters, and we shall give the women a chance to present their experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food by quoting their letters.
There is scarcely a town, village or hamlet in this great country but can produce splendid evidence as to the restorative, upbuilding influence of this well-known treatment for the blood and nerves.

Especially for Women

"From my experience as a wife and mother I find that the majority of users of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are women, especially women passing through the change of life; next by young mothers to regain strength after baby comes, and also by mothers for their young daughters entering their womanhood. While it is good for all classes of humanity, I am sure it is especially so for women, as they seem to be troubled most by nervous diseases."—Mrs. H. Aichorn, 23 Gerald Street, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Motherhood

Mrs. A. Ernest, R.R. No. 4, Walkerton, Ont., writes:—"For some time after the birth of my first child I was in a weak, nervous condition. I could not sleep well, had frequent headaches and buzzing in the ears. I also had neuralgic pains through my body, twitching of the nerves and was subject to weak spells. I had indigestion and seemed tired and languid. I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and found the results most satisfactory. I have used a great many different medicines, but never found one as good as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is especially good for quieting the nerves and I feel very grateful for the good it has done me."

Middle Life

Mrs. M. E. McCarthy, Gardner's Creek, St. John Co., N.B., writes:—"In my estimation there is no medicine that will so quickly build one up and restore the nervous system as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. From worry and hard work, I began to get behind as regards general health. It seemed as though each day some new ailment cropped up and before I realized it I was just about "down and out." I turned to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for help and was not disappointed. My nerves are as steady as I could wish them to be and I am having no trouble at all in passing through that time of life when some women experience so much suffering."

RUMANIA SEEMS ON THRESHOLD OF POLITICAL EVENTS

Rumors Afloat That Prince Carol May Take Possession of Throne.

KING NEAR DEATH.

PARIS November 27. Canadian Press. — Rumania seemingly is on the threshold of momentous political events. King Ferdinand is reported to be near death and Western Europe is flooded with unverified and unverifiable reports that former Crown Prince Carol may return from France to the homeland, and by a coup d'etat take possession of the throne, the rights to which he renounced a short time ago.

For three days Bucharest has been cut off from telephonic and telegraphic communication with Belgrade, the Jugo-Slav capital, from which place however volumes of news continue to emanate concerning what is supposed to be going on behind the scenes in court and political circles of the Rumanian capital.

With Queen Marie on the Atlantic voyaging home from her visit to the United States and unable to take part in the negotiations, it is reported that the political parties, despairing of the life of Ferdinand are prepar-

TORY NOMINEE HEARD BY MANY

Large Audience at Meeting Held By F. J. McArthur.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

(Examiner Special Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 27 — The candidature of Mayor Fred J. McArthur of Cobourg and the record and policies of the Ferguson government were impressively presented at a largely attended Conservative meeting in the Regent Theatre last night. Assisting the candidate were the Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Forests and Mines; Milton E. Maybee, M.P.; Ald. Nathan Phillips, Gordon Sheppard of Toronto, and Col. Boggs of Cobourg.

Major J. M. Bygott was chairman and among those he called to the platform were Reeve Davidson, Reeve W. Grills of Seymour, John Locke, Mrs. Maybee, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Anderson, Mrs. (Dr.) Haig, Mrs. Burgar, Mrs. J. E. Kennedy and Mrs. George Locke.

For Mayor McArthur, it was his first and introductory appearance on a Campbellford platform. In his address, he said that at the recent prohibitionist meeting in Cobourg the Rev. John Coburn declared as his opinion that the poisoning cases from wood alcohol around Toronto and Hamilton were "deliberately staged by the liquor interests of this province to bring the question of the O.T.A. to the front as an issue in this election."

"I don't know what sect Rev. John Coburn belongs to," Mr. McArthur continued, "but I know this, that he is extremely unfair. I have met and trusted all kinds of people, and I have found that the worst are not so bad as they are often believed to be. I think there are some fine fellows even in the 'bootlegging business; but at any rate I can't think of the worst type of bootlegger doing things like that purposely, causing agonizing deaths from poisoning."

Mr. McArthur scored the reported action of prohibitionist leaders in getting young people to sign pledges to vote for the O.T.A.

"This is not Russia," he said. "We are still living in the British Empire, where every man and woman has the inalienable right to vote according to his judgment. Haven't these prohibitionists enough confidence in their cause? Must they bind down the people by written pledges as to what they shall do? I don't think that's fair. It is certainly a reflection on you, as if they thought you didn't know what you ought to do.

Says Prohibition is Coercion.

The Conservative party asks you to read and consider the record of the government and its policies. There is no coercion on the part of the Conservative government. Prohibition is coercion. It is not scriptural. We should approach this problem from the spiritual standpoint. If this election does nothing else it must have emphasized one thing, that nothing in the way of reform can be accomplished by prohibition and coercion. Reform must come from within by personal decision and conviction. I don't wish to attack the clergy. No one is more sincere in religious matters than I am, but the clergy have got this from the wrong angle. We must teach people, train our young people. You can't reform them by such restrictions.

Touching upon the alleged ambitions of Hon. W. F. Nickle to reach the Premiership by a short route, and upon the changing times with their changing manners, Mr. McArthur said that public sentiment toward the O.T.A. had undergone great change. It was to become the A.T.C.—amended temperance control.

"Are you going to hold to the old way that has failed, or are you going to hook up with and tune in on the new way the Conservative party offers you. I said at Warkworth that I was a sincere temperance man, and I repeat it. If the new legislation does not prove 25 per cent better than the O.T.A. I will be the first one to ask that it be repealed. We have nothing to be ashamed of. Our wares are one hundred per cent. good. We don't need to sneak around to back doors with them."

Mr. McArthur told of having issued a writ for slander against W. A. Moore, a grocer of Colborne, when he described as holding a hymn book in one hand and the dagger of slander in the other.

'That may be a form of temperance religion, but it is not Christianity. We are proceeding to take care of W. A. Moore in the way he should be handled."

On December 1 I ask you to vote for Fred J. McArthur if you can do it honestly and sincerely. Those are the only votes we want. If any Conservative turns down his party on the liquor question, he is making the biggest mistake in his life. I am confident we are going to give you the best liquor legislation this province has ever had."

Hon. Chas. McCrea.

Hon. Mr. McCrea spoke for an hour and a half. One of his main themes was the record of the Ferguson government as a reason for a renewal of the people's confidence. He reminded the electors of Campbellford that the Trent river, as developed and harnessed under Conservative administrations especially through the instrumentality of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, offered direct evidence of the capability of the Government in handling the natural resources of the country.

"Do you realize," Hon. Mr. McCrea asked, "the situation in the present conglomeration that has the one common purpose of trying to beat Howard Ferguson by any means possible There are 112 seats in the Legislative Assembly. The Conservatives have 111 candidates. There are only 52 Liberals. They can't hope to attain power with less than half the seats. There are 28 Prohibitionists, 21 Progressives, 10 Liberal-Progressives, 8 Independent Conservatives, 8 Independent Liberals, 3 Laborites, 1 Independent, and 1 candidate who calls himself a "better citizenship candidate." Out of this total agglomeration you are asked to elect them by a majority, and turn out the sound government of Howard Ferguson. I feel certain that the people of Ontario have made up their minds that they are not going to elect a group such as I have read and put out the good government you have had since 1923. For you have had good government since then."

New Ontaro's Growth.

Mr. McCrea dwelt upon the work of his own Department of Mines and Forests Last year the mines yielded $85,000,000 and the pulp and paper industry more than $100,000,000, all new wealth, that went to pay wages, to provide traffic for the railways and to pay manufactured goods from the industrial centres, including Campbellford, Twenty years ago the north was not producing gold or silver. In 1911 Porcupine did not exist. There was no town of Timmins and its suburbs which now have between 16,000 and 18,000 people.

"The satisfactory part to me is that the people of the north have absolute confidence in the Ferguson administration. They didn't have confidence in the Drury-Raney government and they had every reason not to have it."

Since the timber survey instituted by the Ferguson administration, a programme of expansion which would be completed in 1927 involved an expenditure of more than $80,000,000 new capital on pulp and paper mills, water power and railways. The production of newsprint had been increased to 4,000 tons, and the resources of raw material were protected and provided for in perpetuity. The manufactories and all forms of industry in old Ontario shared in this wealth.

"In 1923 you told Drury and Raney that never again would you entrust the affairs of Ontario for their administration. Be sensible on December 1st, for it is important how you mark that ballot of yours."

Hon. Mc. McCrea referred to the accomplishment of Hon. Mr. Price, Provincial Treasurer, in establishing sound methods of bookkeeping in his department, of economies in the Highways Department and of the work of the Hydro-Electric Commission he also spoke.

Says Opponents Approve.

'Even our opponents agree on our record, 'but,' they say, 'look at what you're going to do with the O.T.A.' They would lead the people to believe that Ferguson is going to lay violent hands on the people, that he would do great evil to the cause of temperance. Let me show you what a great friend temperance has always had in the Conservative party."

Mr. McCrea glanced back to 1905 when Sir James Whitney assumed power. Prior to that time no temperance progress had been made.

"Sir James found that 96 municipalities had local option. It was rather insecur because it took a three-fifth vote to put it on, but it ddn't take a three-fifths vote to knock it off. He made three-fifths the requirement to take it off. He reduced the number of licenses for bars and shops so that in 1914 there were 1,200 fewer licenses and 251 municipalities had been added to the local option list. Whitney's praise was sung by Gen. Booth of the Salvation Army, Rev. Ben Spence, Jos. Gibson of Ingersoll and others as the only Premier who had contributed to temperance progress.

In 1914 Rowell came out with his platform of abolishing the bar, private clubs and the treating system, but leaving liquor stores in private hands."

The people preferred to trust Whitney, Mr. McCrea continued, and he delved into the details of the liquor legislation accelerated by the war time dry measure of 1916. A federal order in Council in 1917 prohibited the importation of liquor and later the manufacture of liquor in Canada was prohibited.

"Things went pretty dry then," Mr. McCrea recalled, "but it wasn't the O.T.A. that prevented liquor from coming in. The Ottawa government licenses, distilleries and breweries and has charge of the laws of exportation and importation. The Ontario government can only prohibit the sale of liquor. In the face of 1919 the Dominion government rescinded the order in Council and on Jan. 1st, 1920, liquor could be imported was on the statute books.

From January 1st, 1920, to July, 1921, imported liquor began to flow into Ontario under the O.T.A. By a resolution of the Drury-Raney Government, the Ottawa Government was asked, under the Doherty Act of 1916, to take a referendum on the importation of liquir into Ontario. By a majority of 167,000 this province decided it wanted importation closed. Then Ontario went dry again."

Back to Normalcy.

The majority for the 1924 plebiscite was 33,000. "As the people were getting back to normalcy after the war, there was a growing movement in Ontario to come back to the system of law that enabled people to get liquor in a decent, respectable way. Mr. Ferguson realized that 51 per cent. of the people voted dry in 1924 and 49 per cent. voted against the O.T.A., and that it was impossible to enforce prohibition without an overwhelming sentiment behind it."

The proposed measure to change and ease the O.T.A. divided the country into two parts; sections that went dry under local option and those that had never adopted local option.

"To the dry sections Mr. Ferguson says 'I shall leave you as you were.' In the other areas there are to be, not the private stores as Mr. Rowell suggested in 1914, but Government stores where, under a permit system, liquor can be purchased, without a doctor's certificate and without a pretense of being ill, and as long as the holder of the permit does not abuse the right and does not neglect his family. In other words, a control will be exercised by the Government, and in so doing, people will not be compelled to buy from bootleggers."

Mr. McCrea said that under the existing law the well-dressed man, banker, lawyer, broker, could get liquor, but the "poor devil with the same taste and perhaps thirst, if caught, drew down all the wrath of the O.T.A. He was made a horrible example. It is not fair, not equitable, it is not British." (Applause).

"You can't make Mr. Ferguson believe that breeds good feeling and respect for law. He says it is a sham and is not fair. He proposes a law that will let men hold their heads up as men and not slink around barns and back doors. When we remove this cloud we'll get ahead and practice temperance as before."

Mr. McCrea quoted a statement by a U. S. prohibition official to show that prohibition there had not produced temperance. He concluded with a tribute to the man, G. Howard Ferguson, first citing the fact that the Premier had represented his riding for 21 consecutive years, and that a criterion of his integrity was the loyalty of his home folks.

Old Friend of Ferguson.

"I have been with Mr. Ferguson for 15 years, and when people tell me Ferguson can't be trusted, I give them back the lie. When emissaries of the prohibitionists try to steal your vote, give them the lie, because Ferguson is the biggest administrator we have ever had, and Ontario can't afford to lose him."

W. M. S. BAZAAR.

Annual Event of Trinity United Church Held at Omemee.

OMEMEE, Nov. 27. — The first bazaar of the season to be held here, the annual event of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church, was very largely attended on Thursday afternoon.

The Sunday School-room of the church, which was in gay attire for the event, was thronged with eager buyers long before opening time came. Promptly at 3 o'clock, after a brief prayer by the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, the bazaar was declared open, and from then until late in the evening the school-room was a hive of industry.

On entering the church the first booth, gay with tinsel and festive decorations, was in charge of Miss A. Neill, Mrs. J. Bushnell and Mrs. J. Widdiss. This booth was fully equipped with saleable articles from past members and each gift bore a card with the name of the donor. The following is a list of those who remembered their former home town in this way: Mrs. A. E. Bryson, Mrs. Elsie Boyd, Mrs. J. J. Lang, Mrs. J. M. McCrea, Lady Eaton, Mrs. Thos. Robinson, Miss Carrie Balfour, Miss Viola Davidson, Miss Maye McCaffrey, Miss Blanche Elliott, all of Toronto; Mrs. D. H. Corneil, Alliston; Mrs. G. Switzer, East Emily; Mrs. (Rev.) Stillman, Norwood; Mrs. (Rev.) Herrington, Warsaw; Miss Millard, Port Colborne; Rev. Francis Johnston, Lindsay; Mrs. Snider, Markham; Mrs. Dave Magee, Robson, B.C.; rMs. (Rev.) Lewis, Vancouver; Miss Mabel Weir, Detroit; Mrs. Byam, Stouffille; Mrs. J. Eggiestone, Mount Pleasant; Mrs. Mulligan, Miss Ella McCrea, Lindsay; Miss Lazelle Brown, Belleville; Mrs. Ed. Adams, Peterborough; Mrs. G. Balfour, Lindsay.

Passing to the centre of the room a wonderful old-time flower garden greeted the eye, where for five and ten cents one could pluck a flower to which was attached a parcel. Needless to say, the many juveniles present soon stripped the flower garden which was capably managed by the Misses Myrtle Weir and Florence Rutherford.

One of the busiest booths of the day was the fancy work booth, where a wonderful display of handwork was quickly disposed of, not only the embroidered articles but socks, mittens and many articles of wearing apparel, could be obtained here for a reasonable sum of money. Those in charge of this booth were Mesdames Shields, Lamb, Mahood, Wiliiamson and Sandy.

The country store with its tempting array of poultry, butter, homemade bread, cakes, pies, head cheese, etc., lured the change from the purse of many a thrifty housewife. The Misses Lila Parsons and Eva Race were in charge.

Mrs. S. T. Wilson and Mrs. W. Henderson had a wonderful array of saleable "white elephants," from baby outfits to lamps, pictures, shaving mugs, etc., all of which sold well and helped swell the W.M.S. fund.

A candy booth prettily decorated with Chinese lanterns and well supplied with a toothsome variety of sweets, did a land office business, with Mrs. E. Bradburn and Mrs. Harold Laidley as salesladies.

The parcel post office came next, where, on payment of five or ten cents, one could procure a packet containing full value. Many called for their mail during the day and were not disappointed in their gifts. Miss Nettie Rutherford and Mrs. P. Parsons were the mail clerks.

The sample booth in charge of Mesdames C. L. Morcombe, D. Weir and Robert Wilson attracted many, where everything from cakes to woollen hose could be purchased, the various articles having been donated by well-known firms.

After this long shopping expedition the tired shoppers were only too pleased to sit down to a daintily laid table with snowy cloth, gleaming silver, and yellow shaded lights, where a very dainty and satisfying tea could be procured for twenty-five cents. Those in charge of the tea-room were: Mrs. C. Ivory, Mrs. G. Haygarth, Mrs. W. Connell, Mrs. W. J. Kennedy, Mrs. J. Courney, Mrs. Overholt, Mrs. Faulkner, Mrs. George Henderson, Mrs. W. Best, assisted by Misses Lillian Race, Jessie Lamb, Elda Overholt, Genevieve Sandy, Jane Earle, Mary Weir and Madeleine Gray.

Mrs. E. W. Rowland and Mrs. Arthur Rutherford were the able cashiers for the day, the general proceeds of which amounted to $205.60.

FINEST of FOURS
$1095
F.O.B. Peterboro

Startling Contrast between Chrysler "50" and Other Fours

Consider the price of the Chrysler "50"—the Coupe $1055, Roadster $1055, (rumble seat extra), the Coach $1092.50, the Sedan $1160.

Then, if you will picture the Chrysler "50" on the one hand, and the only four remaining four-cylinder cars of large production on the other, the amazing difference between them will make your choice an astonishingly simple matter.

Since the Chrysler "50" is the product of the revolutionary Chrysler engineering and manufacturing plan of rigid inflexible Standardized Quality for all four Chrysler cars, it is evident that the "50" cannot help but yield its 50 miles per hour, 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds, 30 miles to the gallon—indefinitely—under conditions which would incapacitate any other four or, for that matter, any ordinary six.

Place them side by side in your mind's eye—these five cars—and then, even though you may not have realized it before, it becomes perfectly obvious that—at its price—plain common-sense logic makes the selection of Chrysler "50" inevitable.

MARKED BUSINESS EXPANSION SHOWN BY ANNUAL REPORT OF BANK OF MONTREAL

Assets Now Stand at $781,525,145, a Gain For the Year of Over $26,000,000—Current Loans at 322,855,265 Represent An Increase of $52,000,000 —Deposits Are Up Over $24,000,000 For the Year, and Now Total $656,259,466.

The Annual Statemenit of the Bank of Montreal for the fiscal year ending October 30th, issued to-day, contains a number of interesting features. Shareholders have reason to regard it as a most satisfactory exhibit. Of perhaps greatest general import is the striking evidence it affords of a substantial improvement in general business throughout Canada. With more business offering, profits have shown a tendency to increase and assets have climbed to much higher levels. At the same time, the usual strong position of the Bank has been fully maintained.

Total assets now stand at $781,525,145, up from $755,147,876 at the end of the previous year representing a gain of over $26,000,000. Of this, the total liquid assets amount to $424,919,084, equal to 60.35% of liabilities to the public. Included in the liquid assets are cash, Dominion notes, and deposit in Central Gold Reserves, amounting to $100,411,633 or 14.25% of public liabilities, and call loans and balances with other banks of $180,670,613. Dominion and Provincial Government securities stand at $79,157,614. Railway and other bonds debentures and stocks total $4,463,251, and cheques on other banks $26,337,108. The principal changes are in the holdings of Dominion and Provincial Government securities, a reduction in these indicating a greater demand for funds by general business.

Gain in Current Loans

As a result of the greater volume of business, current loans have advanced to $322,855,265, as compared with $270 087,143, last year, an increase of more than $52,000,000.

Current loans in Canada have grown to $252,338,858, up from $225,219,598, a year ago, and loans to cities, towns and municipalities are now $17,074,131, as against $15,083,360. Indication of steady growth is shown in the total of deposits which now stand at the large sum of $656,259,466, as compared with $631,454,427, an increase during the year of $24,805,000.

Larger Earnings

The profit and loss account shows that as the result of a greater volume of business, profits are well above those of the previous year. These have permitted of the payment of the regular dividends and bonus, and after making special reservation for the bank premises, of a substantial amount being added to the profit and loss balance. Profits for the year, after making deduction of charges of management and making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, were $4,978,133, equal to 16.64% on capital and to 8.24% on the combined capital, reserves and undivided profits. This compares with $4 604,962, in he previous year. The profits when added to the balance brought forward made a total amount available for distribution of $5,574,921. This was appropriated as follows: dividends and bonus $4,188,338, provision for taxes, Dominion Government, $319,167, reserve for bank premise $300,000, leaving a balance of $767,416 of the Bank the premises account to be carried forward.

In keeping with the sound policy has been written down $350,000 during the year.

The principal accounts, with comparisons with those of the previous year, show as follows:

	1926	1925
Total Assets	$781 525,145	$755,147,876
Liquid Assets	424,919,084	450,439,068
Total Current Loans	322,855,265	270,087,143
Dominion Notes	50 884,509	49,962,661
Government Securities	79,157,614	96,542,710
Railway bonds and securities	4,963,251	3,666,616
Deposits not bearing interest	132,034,727	152,552,338

E. B. BAX DEAD.

Had Been Co-Worker of G. Bernard Shaw in Socialism.

LONDON, November 27. Canadian Press. — Ernest Belfort Bax, who was a co-worker with George Bernard Shaw in the Socialist movement, died in London yesterday.

On the occasion of a dinner in honor of Bax on his 70th birthday, two years ago, Bernard Shaw wrote a letter saying:

"Bax and I would have been hanged long ago if our brave British bourgeoisie had had the least notion of our opinion of it."

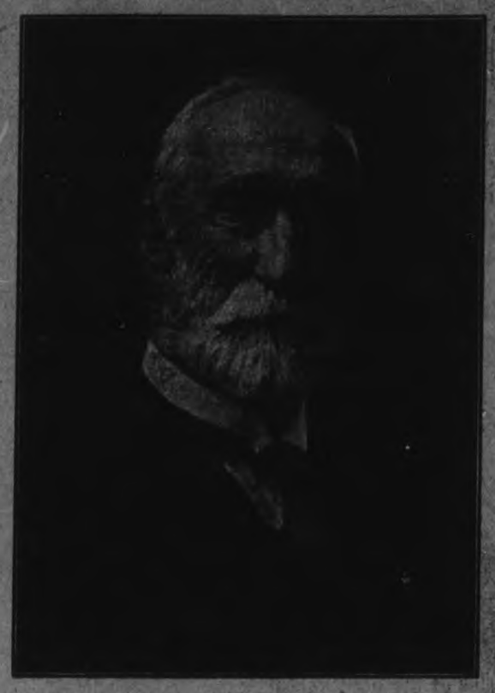
APPRECIATION.



THE LATE -MAYOR HARRY RUSH, J. P.

A CITIZEN, CHURCHMAN, CHRISTIAN.

A Remembrance and an Inspiration By Archdeacon Davidson.

The record of a human life while it may be observed is not properly to be read until Death has sealed it and the man or woman has passed into the eternal world.

It is not for praise that these lines are written, for this would be too painful to one who was so truly humble-minded and who shrank from display. But there must be a multitude of appreciative citizens who inarticulate themselves yet wish to see honour warmly and whole-heartedly done to one who has been a part of their lives and a living factor in the city and community. With all respect and restraint do I say on their behalf, "All honour to the memory of Harry Rush, fellow-citizen, benefactor and friend!"

Men live and work through their relationships and contacts. Harry Rush was a devotional and faithful member of the Church of England. He absorbed her spirit and was a good sample of her type of character. He got much and gave much through his church, which he loved with all his heart.

He was also distinctively Christian, setting himself to carry out distinctively Christian principles. He was constantly on the lookout for the poor, weak and underprivileged with a view to helping them and to numbers of these did he direct the attention of his clergyman and founding and generously supported a poor fund through which large sums were disbursed.

He was broad in his sympathies, linking up with the afflicted of all creeds and none. His position as chairman of the Charity Board gave him wide opportunities which were fully used. He gradually won the confidence of a great number and variety of people.

As a citizen widely interested in his fellows he carried out simply and naturally high ideals of good citizenship. I suggested to him, and then urged against his strong protests, his candidature for the City Council, and many members will remember a committee meeting held in the Toronto Loan and Savings office and then a citizens' meeting in the old Opera House, when a public call was given to certain well-known citizens to serve as councillors, one of whom was Harry Rush, two years later unanimously elected as Mayor.

And now he has gone from our sight. As not only a veteran, but a widely-useful public servant, the national ensign appropriately flew from St. John's tower and draped his coffin as there was borne reverently to his rest amid a great concourse, the earthly remains of a big-hearted, persistent worker for humanity, a widely esteemed citizen of Peterborough and a humble minded servant of God.

J. C. Davidson.

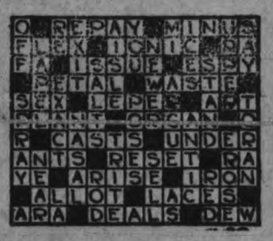
A CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN

(By His Honor Judge Huycke)

I note this morning that various flags are flying at half mast and so flying in memory and out of respect to the late Mr. Rush. I think it is quite fitting that in this Court this morning I should pay some tribute to him, he being not only a resident universally honoured and beloved but a Magistrate in the City for many years, always careful and conscientious in the performance of his duty public or otherwise.

He had occupied various public positions in the city during his long and useful life. I remember personally the great pleasure it gave me when many years ago, I was being sworn in as the Judge here, when he as Mayor of the city tendered to me a public welcome on behalf of the citizens. I had not known him before, but his kind words on that occasion impressed me very much, and he has been my warm friend from that day on. He had been a successful business man and a useful public servant. I would not venture to refer to his private and family relationships all too close and tender for a stranger to bring up at this time.

Although he had various activities in the midst of our community it strikes me the one word that best describes him is that much abused and improperly used term "gentleman" for Mr. Rush in all his doings and dealings was universally known and recognized as a courteous, kindly, Christian gentleman.



ANSWERS TO YESTERDAY'S QUESTIONS.

LEAGUE SERVICE.

Under Charge of Social Convenor on Thursday Evening.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 29.—The regular League service at Zion on Thursday evening was well attended, over fifty being present. The meeting was in charge of the social convenor, Miss Gladys Simpson, with Miss Nellie Bennett as leader. After the roll call showing all four colours almost even and a short business session, the following programme was given. A hymn by the 'Red' group, the Devotional talk by Mr. Thomas Fry. Vocal duet, Elsie Forde and Gladys Simpson. A reading by Bessie Meiklejohn, a talk by Fred Barnum and a reading, Mrs. John Simpson, all dealing with the temperance issue were both timely and interesting. A somewhat humorous reading, 'Musings of a Collection Plate,' was given by Gladys Petherick, after which an offering for general expenses was taken. The topic reading, "The Beauty of Books," was given by Gladys Simpson.

An event of more than passing interest to Petherick's Corners people took place at the Seymour parsonage on Wednesday at 10.30 a.m., when Miss Violet Lain became the bride of Mr. Kennett McAlpine. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. D. Daniel, the young couple being attended by Miss Reta Lain and Mr. Carman McAlpine. Afterwards a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Lain, Rylstone, at which only the immediate relatives were present. The bridal party left on the evening train for western points. On their return they will reside in the Stanwood district. Both are well known in this community, being very popular in its social life and the best wishes of all go with them to their new home.

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

FOWL PLENTIFUL ON MARKET TO-DAY

Prices Vary Greatly For Different Varieties Offered.

The tables in the basket section of the farmers' market groaned this morning with the weight of fowl that had come in for the week end dinner tables, and the air was filled at times with the feeble protests of the birds that were sacrificed for demonstration purposes on the overhead platform where an exhibit of proper methods of killing and plucking fowl was going on. These hasty methods of despatching the birds and then hanging them head down while the feathers are plucked from the quivering bodies may be humane, but they don't appear so. It is impossible to get an opinion on the subject from the chief actors in the drama, and spectators are divided in expression as to whether or not the methods pursued are the best, from a humane standpoint.

Various prices ruled on the market this morning. Chickens could be bought anywhere from 20 to 25 cents a pound, with geese at 24 and 25 cents and ducks at 23 and 25 cents a pound. Turkeys were priced all the way from 30 to 40 cents a pound. Eggs were quoted from 70 to 75 cents a dozen, with an open market vendor downstairs selling at 65 cents a dozen. Butter was 34 to 38 cents a pound, and cream 25 and 30 cents a pint. Dark clover honey was priced at 50 cents for a quart sealer.

Apples were fairly plentiful. Wagners were 40 cents a peck, Russian Transparents, a fine looking apple, 50 cents, Spies 75 cents and pipins, 50 cents a peck. In barrels, Snows were $4 and strawberry pippins $5.

Potatoes ranged in price from $2 to $2.50 a bag. Brussels sprouts were 10 cents a box and other vegetables at standard quotations. Lamb was priced in front and hind quarters at 20 and 23 cents, and 22 and 25 cents a pound. Pork was 18 and 20 cents a pound.

Live Plymouth Rocks in large sizes were $3 apiece, and Rouen ducks $2. Enticing little collie pups were $1.50 each.

Novelties on the market this morning included hand-painted handkerchiefs and scarfs, also painted flowers at 25 and 35 cents a bunch and everlastings at 25 and 50 cents a bunch.

TRADE REPORT

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 27 (Canadian Press).—The weekly trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, Limited, reads as follows:

Halifax: Provision houses report trade good. Conditions generally somewhat improved. Retail business fair. Collections normal.

St. John: Wholesalers generally report business as fair. Retail trade somewhat slow here. Collections fair. The first winter port steamers have arrived and an active season is expected.

Montreal: Wholesale grocers report good business generally, with slight falling off in sales of cheese and produce lines. An improvement in sales is felt by dry goods and prospective business gives them a feeling of greater confidence. There is a tendency to hold off orders for boots and shoes until spring. Fancy lines, however, are in good demand for holiday trade, and conditions generally are considered fair, with a slight falling off in volume reported by city retailers. County merchants, however, are doing a nice business in most lines. Collections very fair.

Toronto: The general trend of business appears to be on the upgrade, as wholesalers and manufacturers generally report good volume of business. The approach of the Christmas season has caused a very satisfactory improvement in the retail trade. Collections on the whole are satisfactory.

Winnipeg: Provision houses continue to report good business. Rubber footwear and dry goods dealers are very busy shipping seasonable lines. Hardware satisfactory. Retailers doing good volume of business in heavy winter wear, and Christmas merchandise is beginning to move. Collections continue satisfactory.

Regina: Wholesalers, grocery, dry goods and boots and shoes report good volume of business. City retail good and country dealers report continued improvement. Collections fair.

Saskatoon: Wholesale trade generally very active, with the exception of hardware, who report a seasonable reduction. Retail trade good. Collections steadily improving.

Calgary: Business generally continues quite satisfactory. Country points in particular report continued improvement over same period last year. Collections also show signs of improvement.

Edmonton: Business conditions generally just fair and collections fair.

Vancouver: Manufacturers and wholesalers generally report very nice volume of sales. Retail trade satisfactory. Collections improving.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

GRACE PRESBYTERIAN

MILLBROOK, Nov. 27.—"Mercy and judgment run like a double strand through the texture of the whole Book, the one tempering the other invariably in the workings of Providence. A Redeemer was promised in Eden before judgment had imposed any penalty, and to call the first eleven chapters of Genesis a myth—a nice way of saying 'it's a lie'—is to fail to recognize the fact that nowhere else in the book is a Reedemer promised to the world as a whole. "The seed of the woman" preceded the 'whosoever' of the Saviour when He came."

Rev. T. W. Goodwill, B.A., of Cobourg, who had charge of the anniversary services at Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday, preaching to large congregations morning and evening, made the above statements in opening his discourse at the evening worship, his sermon being unique from the fact that judgment is seldom expounded from the modern pulpit.

The texts were chosen from Psalms 101:1, "I will sing of mercy and judgment" and Romans, 11:22, "Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God", the speaker pointing out that the two attributes, mercy and judgment are found at the beginning and end of each book of the Scriptures, and intermingling all through.

"A book of rememberance is kept for those who talk to one another of God and His goodness to them. Do we hear much of this today? Arent' people rather ashamed to mention the name of God? They would rather speak of some great man; yet it used not be so in our forefather's day. Have we anything to tell the other man?" "Can we sing of mercy and of goodness"

"The only thing that will solve the problems of our country is a genuine, old-time revival that will lead us to see the beauty and glory of the real life, and the ashes of the worldly life which now so many are following."

Quoting from the book of Revelation Mr. Goodwill urged his hearers to note that sinners, willfully rejecting the Saviour, are "without" when "those that do His commandments" enter in through the gates into the city; and added, "We are all facing the judgment seat will it be for you and me? Those who are in Christ Jesus will be within the great rainbow of God's mercy—because you believe He died for your sins, the judgment for you is past."

"But there is another throne; "I saw the dead, small and great stand before God; and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works." "This is the last judgment, and if you are depending upon your works that're where it will get you to." "And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire"—these verses describe the awful condition of lost souls.

The choir rendered special music during the day, two anthems being sung at the evening service, Miss Anna Hawthorne taking the solo number in one, and Mrs. McKee Bingham sang very beautifully "The King of Love my Shepherd is."

To The Women Of Peterboro

THE UNDERSIGNED APPEAL TO THEIR FELLOW WOMEN VOTERS IN ONTARIO TO VOTE FOR GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF LIQUOR ON THE FOLLOWING GROUNDS:

Many women in the country districts do not realize the dangers of the liquor traffic in the cities, but numbers of their sons and daughters will eventually come to the big centres. We, therefore, call upon the mothers to vote for Government Control and protect the young people of this generation.

The O.T.A. in some respects has done good, but in others has failed to produce the results hoped for.

Liquor is procurable either through doctors' prescriptions or from bootleggers. This should stop, and Government only should issue permits.

Under Government Control a wife or mother can, by merely writing a letter to the Commission curtail or cancel undue supply, instead of appearing, as now, in the Police Court.

A great body of opinion resents the coercive legislation: 40 per cent against, 51 per cent for in 1924, and the feeling against has been steadily growing.

If liquor is to be sold, the profits should go to the reduction of taxes and towards improvements and education, and not to the bootleggers.

The question is: Which is best—Pure Liquor under Government Control, or poisonous Liquor through the Bootleggers.

WE BELIEVE IN THE MORAL EDUCATION OF THE PEOPLE AS AGAINST THE CREATION OF A DISREGARD OF LAW. TRUE TEMPERANCE IS BEST SERVED BY GOVERNMENT CONTROL AS AGAINST BOOTLEGGING.

The present Government has done so well in the last three years, we prefer to trust it to continue its good work rather than run the risk of the chaos which would ensue in Provincial affairs in the event of its defeat.

This appeal for Temperance Reform is signed by women of all shades of politics. It is not a question of Party.

NOTE.—The women whose signatures are here given are vouching for thousands of wives and mothers who know only too well the evils of the O.T.A.

Mrs. Graham Thompson.

Under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League, a very enjoyable card party and dance was held last evening in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum. Excellent music for dancing was provided by the four piece orchestra, the "Merrymakers," in the downstair hall, where Mrs. Ed. Conroy and Mrs F LaPlante were in charge. Mrs. John Lynch, president of the League, acted as general convenor. Upstairs, cards were played, with eleven tables of bridge and thirteen tables of euchre. Mrs. Frank Lynch was in charge of the bridge, and prizes were won by Mrs. F. J. McFadden and Mr. Ed. Leonard. Mrs. P. Allen and Mr. F. Fairen won euchre prizes, which were in charge of Mrs. John Roach, with a consolation award to Miss Margaret Hanlon. The service of refreshments was in charge of Mrs. Michael Sharpe, assisted by Mrs. W. J. Geary and Miss K. Sharpe.

Evening Examiner "IDEAL Fashions" by Pierre Belle Hamilton

A Graceful Model

A frock whose keynote is chic simplicity and one that will inspire the most intense satisfaction if fashioned of satin or woolen material. The two-piece flared skirt is joined to a lining and the bodice is slightly bloused in the latest mode. There are soft gathers at each shoulder and the becoming V neck has a collar fastening at the back and tied in front. The belt may be trimmed with three rows of narrow braid finished with flat bows. The narrow cuffs-bands also have a row of the braid and these finish the long gathered sleeves. NO. 1445 is in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 38 bust requires 3¾ yards 39-inch material, or 2⅞ yards 54-inch, and 1½ yards 36-inch lining. 20 cents.

The secret of distinctive dress lies in good taste rather than a lavish expenditure of money. Every woman should want to make her own clothes, and the home dressmaker will find the designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book to be practical and simple, yet maintaining the spirit of the mode of the moment. Price of the book, 10 cents the copy.

LOVE LETTERS THAT MADE HISTORY

(By Joseph Kaye.)

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER AND ELIZABETH LLOYD

(By The McClure Syndicate.)

It is not generally known that the sunshine of love and romance had illuminated the life of John Greenleaf Whittier. This is an episode the details of which have been but newly discovered.

Elizabeth Lloyd was a brilliant Philadelphia Quaker who was born in 1811. She was greatly gifted intellectually, and had quite a reputation as a writer of verse. Whittier met Miss Lloyd while he was in the Quaker City and both were attracted to each other. Before their friendship had advanced to the love stage, Miss Lloyd was married. After three years of happy life, Elizabeth's husband, Foot Howell died, and then the friendship with Whittier was resumed and the mutual attachment grew deeper. For what reason the romance did not culminate in marriage is not known, and for want of a better reason must be attributed to difference of temperament.

Below is an extract from one of the many letters Whittier addressed to Elizabeth:

"Dear Elizabeth: I liked thy letter (most welcome I assure thee) but feared that thy eyes might be suffering while I was enjoying it. Write when thou canst—one word or ten. The very blank paper which they hand has folded for my sake will be dear to me. . . .

"Elizabeth, I have been happy—far more so than I expected in this life. The sweet memory of the past few weeks makes me rich forever. What providence has in store for the future I know not—I dare not hope scarcely—but the past is mine—may I not say ours—sacred and beautiful, as joy forever. Asking nothing of thee, and with the tenderest regard for thy grief and memories, I have given that what was thine by right—the love of an honest heart—not as a restraint calling for no solicitude on thy part as respects myself. Nobody is a loser by loving or being loved. . . .

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

EMMELINE

I know Emmeline as a smart, practical, well-dressed and successful business woman, a little worldly wise and often flippant. She has two children in high school who do her credit.

So, I was interested to discover her entertaining two nice old people as house guests, an aristocratic old man and a gentle little old lady, for whom she showed charming consideration.

"Ghosts from the past," she laughed flippantly, "the mother and father of my first husband." But there was a curious little glitter in her eyes as she told me, and I sensed some deeper emotion behind her flippancy.

"It is a funny situation," she mused presently in confidential mood. "You see, I am really heaping coals of fire on their poor old heads. You might not think it, but when I married their son I was a shy, timid, romantic girl, very much in love. But this old couple had other ideas for their son in those days, old Southern family, rather snobby, father a southern civil war hero. They didn't approve of me at all and showed it. It nearly broke my heart at the time. I was all set to love them very dearly. But I was a nobody and came from a northern family to boot.

"So, by and by, we moved away, and I had my babies and his parents never wrote to me, never cared. My husband would go back to visit his folks once in a way—alone. Later, he died, leaving me almost penniless. That's when I took to business, lost all my shyness and probably began to get a little hard.

"I married again—and divorced my second husband. He expected me to support him too, and I thought the children were enough. . . .

"These first in-laws of mine are quite well-to-do. And age has softened them. They wrote to me a few months ago, saying they contemplated this trip, telling of their change of heart, declaring they wished to provide for the children—whom they had never seen.

"So, it amused me to act the lady bountiful, to invite them here as my house-guests, to lavish hospitality upon the Everything I do for them tweaks their poor old consciences. They love us now, but, can't you see, it is too late. I can forgive them outwardly, but I can never forgive them in my heart.

"So curious that they should love me now, when I have ceased to be lovable, and have treated me then as they did, when I was aching to be their beloved daughter. Oh, I could have loved them so dearly then, in that first flush of my one real romance.

"So, now they are really only interesting psychological studies to me. I sort of stand off and analyse them, and get any amount of satisfaction out of their remorse. I am only acting hospitality, amusing myself with a Christian-forgiveness experiment. I am hurting them infinitely more this way than if I had snubbed their overtures of reconciliation—and so justified their original attitude towards me.

"The children break their hearts every night by joyously proclaiming how nice it is to discover they have two such dear grandparents, when all these years they did not know.

"The children are adorable to them, but always their delight in these grandchildren of theirs is marred by remorse, by constant twinges of conscience, by regret for the unhappiness they caused their son, my children's dead father.

"Funny world, isn't it? But say, old dear, it is a lesson for us. Whatever else I am, I am going to be mighty careful to be nice to any sons or daughter-in-laws I may have of my own."

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits the germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited.

Wash That Itch Away

There is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this soothing wash, and did not feel immediately that wonderfully calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. It penetrates the pores, gives instant relief from the most distressing skin diseases.

BETHANY PERSONALS

BETHANY, Nov. 25.—An excellent sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. Poulter, in the United church on Sunday evening, on the pros and cons of the great crisis which is pending in the province today. Mr. Poulter chose for his text from 1st Cor. 8 chapter, 9th verse.

Mrs George Twigg of Peterboro spent the week end in the village and attended the bazaar.

Mr. Williams Hunter, who has resided in the village for some years left on Saturday to take up residence in Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Monk were visitors to Lindsay on Monday.

Mr. Harry Lee of Toronto spent a few hours with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lee, on Sunday.

Miss Verna Belle Lee and Miss Jean Thorndyke have gone to Toronto to secure secretarial positions.

MADGE

(By The McClure Syndicate.)

The numerous names which come from the Persian word for Pearl, Murvarid (child of light), include the very charming Madge. It made its first appearance as Margarite and named the virgin martyr who became, before the 5th century, the recipient of the allegory of feminine innocence and faith, overcoming the dragon. Though the legend was Greek, it did not flourish in the Eastern Church, but Cremona laid claim to the maiden's relics and Hungary, in its first Christianity, eagerly adopted the name.

Curiously enough, it reached Scotland almost at once and from there it went to Norway with the daughter of Alexander III, whose bridal cost the life of Sir Patrick Spens. It nearly came back from Scandinavia with her child, the Maid of Norway, but the Maid died on the voyage and her name reached England through France and Germany.

There were many English forms of this 'pearl-name.' Margarite was the general favorite, though Margery ran at a close second. It is from the latter that Madge is descended. It found great popularity in England, but it remained for its appearance in this country to mark the zenith of its vogue.

The pearl is, of course, Madge's talismanic gem. The Persian notion that a pearl is formed from a drop of dew on which the moon's rays shine, imbues this gem with the power to bestow its charm and its exquisite purity on its wearer. Monday is her lucky day and 5 her lucky number.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

Every woman motorist ought to have some sort of a mascot for her car—one for each car, if she has many—unless, of course, she is too thoroughly sensible to take any pleasure out of such playthings. These mascots may dangle at the pane of glass at the back of the car—little dancing dolls or animals that cannot possibly take up enough room to keep a clear back view from showing in the mirror at the front. In Europe where these little doll mascots are much more widely used than here, a rag doll policeman is very popular. A rabbit and a figure of Mephistopheles are also much liked. Modern chorus-girls, Spanish dancing girls and Pierrots are also used for this purpose.

Some women adopt as their motor mascot a long-legged French rag doll that sits luxuriously on the back seat assuring the occupants of the car of a safe trip. There are medals that can be attached to the inside of the car bearing the image of St. Christopher who is the patron saint of motorists. Those are much used in France.

Mascots of the sort that screw into the radiator and stand guard over the engine are also well liked. There are many to choose from. There is a kangaroo leaping forward and the head of a sphynx. One of the most popular is called "speed," and represents a flying figure. It is said to have been invented by a French ace. Many other designs of interest and beauty are made up in bronze or nickel. And, of course, if you want to go to a lot of expense you may have your own mascot—any little image or statuette—mounted so that you can use it on your car.

OLD MASTERS

Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound or foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep
Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark;

For though from out the bourne of Time and Place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my pilot face to face
When I have crost the bar.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

Today the amethyst is a love talisman. This arises from the old legend that an engraved amethyst bearing the figure of a little Cupid is said to have been worn in a ring by St. Valentine. Since this good saint has been the patron of young lovers from time immemorial, the amethyst assumes, on this day, sentimental value, though at other times it is an enemy to the tender passions.

Another gem associated with love and marriage is the diamond, the natal stone for today. According to an old legend, this jewel, when given as a symbol of plighted troth, will lose its brilliancy if love wains.

White will prove a fortunate hue for today. Friendships will be easily made by those who wear it.

The scarlet sage blossoms are lucky today. They are believed to bring courage to the timid and fluency to those who suffer from embarassment and confusion.

Kiwanis Charter Night

(By Jeanette.)

The dining room of the Empress Hotel echoed with merriment and the rousing clamor of three cheers and a tiger, delivered with hearty good will, for Secretary John R. Heron of the Kiwanis Club, instigator of one of the most novel stunts ever pulled off at any social affair of the Club, on the occasion of the combined Ladies' Night and Charter anniversary night of the local organization, held last evening at the Empress, with a banquet, programme and dance as the order of entertainment.

Secretary Heron, men's booster of the evening, was just finishing his speech on "The Press," when fake pandemonium broke loose. Shots were fired from a toy pistol, the lights went out and the speaker rushed from the room, while newsboys with special editions of The Examiner, describing the "outrage" which had just at that moment taken place, entered to distribute the copies among the guests. It was a clever stunt, timed with exactitude, and gave a note of mirthful hilarity to the proceedings which swept the whole evening along to a merry conclusion of one of the most successful social affairs ever held under the auspices of a club which is justly noted for the jollity of its Ladies' Nights. Members and their ladies were present, to the number of one hundred and six.

Last night was the fifth anniversary of the granting of its charter to the local Kiwanis Club, and the speaker for the occasion was Kiwanian George Ross, finance commissioner of the City of Toronto, and a past International president of the Kiwanis organization. Arrangements for the programme were in the hands of Past Presidents Charles Cook, Jack Marshall and Jack McKone, "the two jacks and the joker," as they were dubbed by the secretary. Jack McKone presided over the banquet in his usual excellent style. The blessing was pronounced by Joe Wearing. The note of gayety which prevailed during the entire evening was accentuated with the donning by the guests of orange and black paper caps.

Jack Marshall made a brief opening announcement, concluding with the remarks that every voter in the coming election would probably use the franchise in support of the O.T.A., some for the Ontario Temperance Act, and others for "Old Times Again."

President Jack Craig read letters of regret at inability to be present, from the Toronto and Belleville Kiwanis Clubs, and a line of jokes and humorous anecdotes was supplied by co-operation of Jack McKone and Joe Wearing, Carl Browne, Hugh Niven, Wells Fraser, Art Reynolds and Verne Morpet, the latter coming in later in blackface make-up, with kinky black wig, to spring some merry quips on the company. Joe Wearing had a line of fun that included nearly every member of the Club, and a quartette composed of Art Reynolds, first tenor, Hugh Niven, second tenor, J. Wells Fraser, first bass and Carl Browne, second bass, with Martin Chenhall at the piano, contributed a finely-rendered vocal number, in "One Fleeting Hour." The same quartette, assisted by Verne Morphet, gave a humorous selection in "He Ate the Boloney," a parody on "A Hunting We Will Go,' later on the evening ,and Hugh Niven sang "The Skippers of St. Ives," the different vocal numbers receiving hearty applause.

Jack Marshall announced that, through the generosity of the members, the Club was enabled last evening to broadcast its programme, and he extended a word of greeting to the listeners, who, so he said, were waiting eagerly for the promised treat. An address, which follows in detail, was then given by John Allen, Chairman McKone reading telegrams of congratulation at its conclusion from "Lindsay, Paris, France, and Apsley."

Ernie Smith, also broadcasted an excellent brief address on the use of the franchise. Speaking of the laxity in the use of the vote as demonstrated in every political contest, he said: "No government in this day is getting a real, true impression of the people on any question. Many people take the franchise as a joke. But a man who says he is not interested in elections is really not interested in his own personal welfare." Saying that the statutes as framed by the present generation woud be guides of conduct for generations yet to come, the speaker urged his hearers to get out on election day and exercise the franchise for either one of the local candidates.

More telegrams intervened here, from the Cobalt, Barrie and Riverside Clubs also a personal message from Kiwanian Bill Cockburn, extending best wishes to the local club on their charter night.

The boosters for the evening were Harry Huffman and Wilfred Huycke, presenting the prizes for the ladies, and John R. Heron for the men. The two former gentlemen were introduced to the audience by Charlie Cook, in one of his characteristic little speeches. Charlie Cook has a style all his own, humorous and inimitable, and his addresses of this type are always looked forward to eagerly by those who have heard him at any time. The hearty and repeated applause which followed his remarks last night was evidence of sincere appreciation of his own individual brand of humour.

Ladies' prizes were won by Mrs. John Allen Mrs. J. Wearing, Mrs. H. Gilgour, Mrs. Burrell, Mrs. W. Oke and Mrs. V. Morphet. Men's prizes were won by Verne Morphet, Harry Huffman, Joe Wearing and Isaac MacNabb. Each of the gentlemen present was presented also with a safety razor outfit.

Secretary Jack Heron, boosting for the men, here sprung his novel and original stunt, which proved the hit of the evening. Prefacing the denouement with a humorous description of the many different varieties of "Press," in following out his discourse on "The Press" he said: "Druggists have their formulae, manufacturers their patterns, and builders their blue prints. The newspaper has them all. The standard formula is (and I hope you appreciate the dope) a little sense and a little nonsense, a peck of fact and a bushel of fiction, seasoned with a grain of salt, shaken up and served piping hot."

Kiwanian Heron had proceeded this far when an unseemly interruption took place, interruptions coming from several members. The speaker was then chased from the room, while trying to talk about "the freedom of the Press," and was compelled to draw a tiny revolver, trying to quench the lights with the shots in true western fashion. During the resultant confusion, newsboys with special editions of The Examiner, describing the whole affair, swarmed into the room and distributed their papers to the guests. It was one of the most hilarious and striking stunts ever pulled off at a Kiwanis function, and was followed by an enthusiastic trio of cheers, followed by a tiger for Secretary Heron, also three cheers for Mrs. Heron who assisted him in the carrying out of the stunt.

The speaker of the evening, Kiwanian George Ross of Toronto, was then introduced by Jack Marshall, and gave a splendidly inspirational address which had an effective introduction in a series of new and amusing anecdotes.

"In days that are gone, we are told that the fish swallowed Jonah and the people the story. In these days people swallow the fish and someone else the "profit," said the speaker, whose manner of address added much to the interest of his discourse.

"The change in methods of pubic speaking is something like the change in women's fashions. In the old days, attire for women was long and voluminous, covering evything and touching nowhere. So with the speeches of those days. Nowadays, women wear clothing that is short and snappy, and only covers where it touches. Public speakers should govern themselves likewise."

"And speaking of women's clothes reminds me of the story of the little flapper who fixed herself up and, powdering her nose before the glass, remarked to her reflection, "Clothes, I'm going out for a walk. If you're coming, hang on."

Referring to humour, Kiwanian Ross said: "If you want to see Canadia and American humour at its best, look at some of the cars that people have the nerve to padlock."

Reverting to a more serious vein, the speaker went on to eulogize the record of the past five years of the Kiwanis Club of this city, as being exceptionally worth while. "You have a record that is to be regarded with pride, but Kiwanis is an onward-moving force. We believe that we should look back to previous achievements with a view toward improving and perfecting those that are to come.

"Numerical strength is a very uncertain yard stick by which to measure the actual accomplishments of Kiwanis. The numerical strength of the fifteen hundred Kiwanis clubs is only an index of their capabilities. What we must strive for is quality membership. And by quality membership we do not mean members of wealth, nor those who can be counted on to give freely for national and civic improvement. Nor do we mean those with great ancestors, busybodies, those who wish to use Kiwanis to gain their own selfish ends, nor "joiners." It is true, as has been said, that Kiwanis represents a cross-section of the business and professional life of the community, but true quality membership in Kiwanis is the giving of opportunities for service in a worthwhile way, while in association with other of like mind.

"Kiwanis is not concerned with creeds nor dogmas. It demands of its votaries nothing that is unreasonable. Its objects and aims are truly idealistic, but the world is entitled to judge us by our actions. To those who regard us at times with carping criticism we can reply with Tolstoi's words: "The vocation of every man and woman is to serve the people."

"It was the extravagant abuses of a generation ago that drove men back to a consideration of ideals and brought service clubs into being. Kiwanis recognizes that every man has peculiar and particular gifts and seeks to supply satisfying avenues for the exercise of these faculties. It also recognizes that all men are peers, and this is why we meet on a common basis in carrying out our Kiwanis enterprises. Kiwanis makes no apology for quoting Scripture, when it says that "faith without works is dead. By the work, one knows the workman. It may be that we have over-used the term "service," but out efforts are an index of our possibilities in inaugurating activities that will nourish our soul and make possible the drinking from a Divine stream. Without ideals, a man is like a flint that awaits the steel to give forth its spark. It is these inspirational ideals that bring to the soul the music of the stars, and makes us realize that "too low It makes just one all-inclusive apstars."

"Kiwanis does not maroon its votaries on the lofty peaks of life. It makes just one all-inclusive appeal, for the earnest help we may one and all give through service."

Enthusiastic applause followed the conclusion of Kiwanian Ross' address, and a well-worded vote of thanks was moved by Kiwanian John J. Turner and seconded by Kiwanian Isaac MacNabb.

The evening concluded with a programme of dancing and cards, music for dancing being supplied in splendid fashion by Harold Snelgrove's five-piece orchestra.

A series of questions on a chart hung on the wall also exercised the attention of the members at the conclusion of the programme, a vote on these being taken among the men during the banquet, by means of ballot. The questions were five, including such serious interrogations as "Have you stopped beating your wife " and "Are you the most handsome man here tonight?" The members answered to the best of their ability.

The address given by Kiwanian John Allen follows:

Good evening, good friends, of the radio audience. John I. Allen speaking, district trustee, Peterborough Kiwanis Club, Peterborough, Ontario, Canada.

Across the distance which separates us, we grasp your hands, and wish you the best, not only for the present, but for the future. May those within your family circle, and all near and dear to you, share in our good wishes for the present and for the years to come. And may He that governs all things, in His unfailing Wisdom, deal bountifully with you and give you the best that passes human understanding.

As this unseen message is being broadcasted into space, our hearts go out to you, and realize that the Kiwanis Club is filling a space in this world, which is making homes happier and sweeter, and as we close our eyes we get a bigger and broader sense of what Kiwanis means to all of us. We realize the companionship of Kiwanis, the cheery "Hello" to those whose burdens are heavy, the pleasing episode and the pleasant things which we have done to relieve the under-privileged children, and others who are walking the hard roads of life. The courtesy and help extended to the lonely little figure standing puzzled at the crossroads of life. The cordial greeting to children, and the words of encouragement which we are able to give to all those with whom we come in contact, makes the world brighter and sweeter, just because there is a Kiwanis Club, and other organizations along similar lines.

The golden skies of promise are over us. There are no pessimistic shackles linking us with memories of fear, but the sun of prosperity is rising surely and with a glow all its own. It beckons those whose lives are clean and humble and who have a love for all mankind, and as you and I go on our way, a kind and generous Creator will guide our foots steps in the path of right endeavor.

We who are assembled in Peterborough tonight, at our Charter Club meeting, wish you and all Kiwanis Clubs, not only a measure of prosperity and happiness, but wish, that in your endeavor to make the way of life a little easier, that you will meet with success—SUCCESS which it deserves.

May every good gift be yours, and may health, prosperity, and opportunity be your constant partners in the coming year and those that follow. And may I quote the last verse of Tennyson's "Ring Out, Wild Bells."

Ring in the valiant man and free,
The larger heart, the kindlier hand;
Ring out the darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be.

Good-night.

ARTICLE No. 4

One of the most interesting hands that the writer has come across in a long time was submitted recently, with the request that the proper bidding of all four hands be given. It is as follows:

	Hearts—9 Clubs—none Diamonds—A, K, Q, J, 9, 8, 7, 5, 4, 3 Spades—10, 7
Hearts—Q Clubs—A, K, Q, J, 8, 7, 6 Diamonds—none Spades—A, K, Q, J, 2	Y A B Z	Hearts—A, K, J, 10, 8, 7, 3, 2 Clubs—4, 3, 2 Diamonds—6, 2 Spades—9
	Hearts—6, 5, 4 Clubs—10, 9, 5, 4 Diamonds—10 Spades—8, 6, 5, 4, 3

No score, first game. Z deals and passes. What is A's proper bid and the natural continuation of the bidding? A should bid one club but with the firm intention of bidding spades on the next round if the opportunity is offered. It is apparently a freak hand all around and if A finds five spades in an opponent's hand and is ruffed in diamonds at once, he may not be able to make game. For that reason, one club seems the better opening bid with A's hand than one spade. When A bids one club, Y is in a position where he wants to shut out any information about hearts or spades so should bid five diamonds. B is in a position where he can safely bid five hearts because of A's bid of one club, showing tops in that suit. Z must pass as he is confronted with the problem of bidding six clubs, five spades or passing. Either bid is sound but the pass seems the better judgment. Next to passing, six clubs is the best bid. Whatever A does, Y should bid six diamonds. The bidding should indicate to him that A-B have an overwhelming hand and it is up to him to save the game, if possible, at the expense of not more than 200 points less his honor score. B should now bid six hearts to show A that the five heart bid was sound. Z and A should now pass and Y, in the writer's opinion, should bid seven diamonds. His maximum loss is 300 points less 80 honors, or a net loss of 220 points. He also has the chance that if A-B overbid with seven in hearts that he and his partner may be able to take a trick. B should double seven diamonds and Z should pass. With A's hand, the writer would also pass. The double of seven diamonds is a certain profit and the bid of seven hearts is doubtful. Always play the certainty in this position. As the cards lie, a bid of seven hearts could be defeated by one trick if Z would open a club. It is a foregone conclusion that either A or B is void of diamonds and the fact that Z has four clubs and the knowledge that there are other void suits around the table would influence a sharp player to open clubs. With any other opening, A-B would make seven hearts. A-B can also make seven clubs with any opening so that Y's bid of seven diamonds was a good sacrifice.

The test hands given in the preceding article caused a wide difference of opinion, so don't be disappointed if your analysis varies from the writer's.

Answer to Problem No. 2

	Y
A		B
	Z

Hearts—7
Clubs—8, 4
Diamonds—A, K, Q, 7, 6, 2
Spades—J, 10, 4, 3

Rubber game, no score. Z dealt and bid one diamond. A bid two clubs, Y passed and B bid four clubs. What should Z now bid? Z should pass. His partner Y wasn't even able to bid two diamonds over two clubs so must have a pretty weak hand. If Z bids four diamonds, he is sure to get doubled and lose at least 400 points. In the actual game, Z did bid four diamonds, was doubled and lost 500 points—a pretty severe penalty for such bad bidding.

Answer to Problem No. 3

	Y
A		B
	Z

Hearts—6
Clubs—7, 4
Diamonds—9, 8
Spades—A, K, J, 10, 7, 5, 4, 2

Rubber game, Y-Z, 10; A-B, 21. What would you bid if you dealt and held Z's hand? When Z looked his hand over, he thought to himself, "I can make two or three spades with this hand but no more unless my partner has a big hand, in which case we are in no danger anyway. If, however, he hasn't a big hand, how can I get the bid with this hand as cheaply as possible. There's only one way to accomplish that, by concealing the spade strength and endeavoring to make my opponents think I have an entirely different type of hand." With this idea in view, Z opened the bidding with one heart, A bid one no-trump, Y bid two hearts and B bid two no-trump. Z wasn't in a position to pass and try to defeat the two no-trump bid for his partner would surely open hearts. Z, therefore, bid three spades, hoping that A-B would not overbid him. As a matter of fact, they doubled and here's where Z was lucky. His partner also passed, although he held five hearts to the ace and only three spades to the ten. He was a sharp player, however, and figured that Z must be trying some stunt or he wouldn't bid three spades over two no-trump, after he helped the heart bid, unless Z had a very good reason, so he trusted Z and passed. Y-Z just made three spades doubled, whereas A-B had five odd either in clubs or in diamonds. Z's trick bid in this case was well thought out and well supported by his partner. Such trick bidding is not recommended, but is given as an interesting example of a clever departure from normal bidding.

Answer to Problem No. 4

Hearts—Q, 10, 4
Clubs—10, 5
Diamonds—A
Spades—K, Q, 10, 9, 8, 6, 3

	Y
A		B
	Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one no-trump, A passed, Y bid two spades and B passed. Z bid two no-trump and A passed. What should Y now bid? Y should bid three spades. Z's bid of two no-trump should inform Y that Z has only two little spades or a singleton, but that he has high cards in the other three suits. With Y's length in spades and such an unbalanced hand, he should stand a better chance for game in spades than in no-trump. The object of all sound bidding is to get the best bid for 26 cards, not for 13. Remember this advice and if you can give additional information of a sound character by rebidding your suit, don't hesitate to do so.

SALES AND BAZAARS

FRASER AUXILIARY.

A pretty small sale of Christmas novelties and home made cooking and candy, with service of afternoon tea, was held in the Sunday school rooms of St. Paul's Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Fraser Auxiliary. Decorations were carried out with streamers of colored paper, and a particularly fetching arrangement of the candy counter, where a central basket was adorned with sprigs of holly, and there were red candles and red poinsettia candy holders. The tea tables were arranged with mauve 'mums and rose candles in silver holders.

Owing to the illness of the president and chief convenor of the affair, Miss E. MacVannell, arrangements were looked after efficiently by the first vice-president, Miss Lena Eakins. The "Amos" ("Any manner of service") booth was in charge of the president, Mrs. William Allan, where dainty Christmas gifts were sold, and candy was sold by Mrs. M. Bennett, Mrs. J. McIntyre and Miss J. Waddell. Miss M. Rannie had charge of the Post Office, with its sealed packets, assisted by Mrs. W. L. Ferguson and Mrs. O. M. Steer, and two fancy work booths were supervised by Mrs. F. Rowan, Mrs. W. H. Crawford, Mrs. H. E. Stenson and Mrs. B. B. Gillespie. The tea room was in charge of Mrs. M. Comstock and Mrs. J. Marsh, assisted by Mrs. Gordon Hall, Mrs. W. J. Stacey, Mrs. A. S. Couper, Mrs. R. Flitton, Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. J. J. Craig, Mrs. L. J. LeClair, Mrs. W. Curry and Miss Patterson.

ST. JAMES' BIBLE CLASSES.

The Cheerful Workers and United Bible Class of St. James' United Church, are holding a small sale that concludes this evening, at the store at 173½ Simcoe street. They have a quantity of pretty and useful things in linens and fancy articles, and also home made cooking and candy on sale. Mrs. W. Atkinson, president of the Cheerful Workers, is in charge, also Miss Hazel Plunkett, president of the United Bible Class, with assistants in Mesdames Welbourn, Byers, English, Swanger, Davis, Copson, the Misses E. Wright (convenor), Louise Lockhart, Amy, Fairbrother, Dora Sanders, Bertha Sanders and Mrs. A. Vannest.

LEGION LADIES' AUXILIARY

The annual bazaar of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion was held on Thursday and Friday of this week, and formally opened on Thursday afternoon by E. A. Peck, M.P. The decorations for the Rotary-Annes' ball, left in place since that event, added a festive and charming touch to the interior of the hall, and the different booths were arranged with colored papers and white coverings to the tables, with an arch of green studded with pink roses as an entrance to the tea room.

The sale of aprons was in charge of Mrs. G. Chambers and Mrs. E. Dormer, and Mrs. R. Bugg and Mrs. Lynch told fortunes in a secluded alcove in the corner. Mrs. Agnes Tamblin had the sale of bedroom linens, assisted by Mesdames Millard and Purdy, and the dining-room section was in charge of Mrs. W. Hughes, Mrs. Budd and Mrs. Mackness. Mrs. W. Devall and Mrs. A. McIntosh had the kitchen, where home-made cooking and bread was sold; Mesdames Little and Ivison were in charge of the fish-pond, and Mrs. C. H. Porter, with Mrs. George Conboy had the sale of candy. Woollen goods were sold by Mrs. W. Stanley, and dolls by Mrs. E. McKinstry. The country store was in charge of Mrs. E. Houghton, assisted by Mrs. A. Cripps. The tea room was in charge of Mrs. A. Clark, assisted by Mrs. E. Paterson, Mrs. R. Bugg, Mrs. Peace and Mrs. Mackey. Tea was poured by Mrs. W. R. Morris and Mrs. R. J. Devey.

Winners of the various articles which were especially donated for the sale were as follows: Cake (donated by Hooper and Sons) won by Albert Clarke, 56 Victoria Avenue, with Ticket No. 13; Dish (donated by Grafton Company), won by Mrs. A. Clarke, 65 Victoria Avenue, with Ticket No. 23; Pillow cases and sheets, worked by Mrs. S. M. Millard, won by owner of Ticket No. 123, who can claim the prize by bringing the ticket to the residence of the president of the society, Mrs. J. Mills, 451 Hunter street; Autograph Quilt, won by Mrs. Jas. F. Reid, 513 Murray Street, with Ticket No. 58; and Fruit Baskets, won on the two nights by Mrs. J. Kennett, Hilliard Street; Mrs. J. Townsend, Centre Street; Mrs. A. Cripps, Olive Arcade, and Miss Lily Bacon, Edinburgh Street.

GEORGE STREET LADIES' AID

The annual Christmas Fair and Fowl Supper held each year under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of George street church took place this week, on Thursday and Friday, and was formally opened on Thursday afternoon by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Todd. A good attendance at the sale and fowl supper marked both days of the event.

The president of the society, Mrs. C. E. Smith had charge of sundry arrangements, and general convenors were Mrs. B. Shortly and Mrs. H. F. Foote. Afternoon tea, which was seryed from the platform, prettily arranged with flower-centred tables and palms and ferns, was in charge of Mrs. George Carruthers and Mrs. E. E. Harvey. Tea was poured by Mrs. D. Carmichael and Mrs. A. Mowat, assisted by Mrs. A. E. Dixon and Mrs. J. F. H. Wallace. The tables used for the service of the fowl supper were laid beneath an overhead canopy of red and green and were arranged with red candles and little Jerusalem cherry trees. They were in charge of Mesdames Brock, Hagerman, Grey and Squire, assisted, as were the convenors of the various booths by a corps of busy helpers. The sale of pillowcases and towels was in charge of Mrs. George Robertson and Mrs. L. Richardson had the sale of candy. Miss E. Higgins and Mrs. G. A. Borland sold white wear, Mrs. H. M. Yelland the flowers and Mrs. C. B. Adair and Mrs. E. H. Bartlett the novelties. Miss Sarah Miller had the sale of aprons, Mrs. Jas. Stubbs the sale of home-made cooking and Mrs. H. M. Dulmage the sale of handkerchiefs.

A good deal of ingenuity was displayed in the colorful arrangement of the booths, the white wear sale having a pretty setting in a latticework adorned with pink and yellow roses, the candy having a home in a bower of mauve, decorated with artificial flower garlands, and the pillow cases and towels having a lovely corner arranged with real 'mums in baskets and a pretty arch of mauve and yellow paper.

ALL SAINTS'.

The annual bazaar of the Woman's Guild of All Saints' Church, was held on Thursday and Friday of this week, and was formally opened on Thursday by the pastor of the church, Rev. J. D. Paterson. The ladies had their usual excellent supply of fancy and useful articles on sale, and also served afternoon tea on both days. The decorations were carried out in colored paper, with effective setting of palms and ferns and flower decked tables in the tea room.

The president of the Guild, Mrs. N. H. Sutton, acted as general convenor. Mrs. J Black had charge of the sale of articles supervised by the Brownton auxiliary of the Guild, and Mesdames H. E. Connolly and Lucas of the sale by the W. A. of the church. A sale by the Ladies' Bible Class was in charge of Mesdames Roy Price, Charles Curtis and H. Hillier.

The sale of fancy work was in charge of Mrs. John Davidson and Mrs. Arthur H. Robinson, aprons and quilts were sold by Mrs. Thomas Sabin, Mrs. E. Dillon and Mrs. R. A. Henderson, and novelties by Mrs. William Thorn and Mrs. F. Pakenham. The candy sale was supervised by Mrs. B. Burns and Mrs. Jas. Price and the sale of knitting by Miss Maud Young. Mrs. T. Thomas had the sale of the ice cream, and service of afternoon tea was in charge of Mrs. Jos .Detcher. Miss Ottewell had the fish pond and Mrs. L. Dobbin and Mrs. Charles Lacheur the sale of home made cooking. Tea was poured by Mrs. T. H. Hooper. During the evening the Sunday school orchestra provided good music.

Mr. Leonard Agnew, president of the club, introduced the members, as follows: John Hunter, vice president; Edwin Wright, secretary; Bill Brady, treasurer; Henry Sheppherd, captain of sports; Jack Smith, musical director; Elijah Forbes, accompanist. The club has an enrolment of thirty-two members. The programme included a chorus by the boys, "O Canada"; instrumental numbers by Mr. Forbes; a dialogue, "The Invitation"; a reading by Edwin Wright; an instrumental number by Will Mitchell; a chorus by the boys, "Old McDonald Had a Farm"; a reading by Merton Pearse; "Rastus and Tige," by Gordon Agnew and John Humber; the Blowhard chorus by seven boys; "Gallagher and Shean," by Jack Smith and Henry Shepperd; a reading by Mr. Forbes; a dialogue, "A Highly Tangled Wedding," and a Darky Medley chorus by the boys.

RELIEF WORK IS PROGRESSING

Death Toll of Tornado Has Now Reached Eighty-four.

MILLION DAMAGE.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 27 (Canadian Press).—Southern communities which felt the deadly breath of whirling tornadoes Thursday and Friday were clearing away the debris and tending their wounded to-day as the total of those killed by the wind's fury reached eighty-four.

Funds for supporting relief measures for injured and homeless were being raised by newspapers and beneficent societies in response to cries for aid which followed the path of destructive winds. The injured from Texas to Virginia were more than 300, and property damage was expected to aggregate above a million dollars.

The forces of the Red Cross were in action to-day in Arkansas, where 47 died from the storm's violence. In Morehouse and Claiborne Parishes of Louisiana, relief workers from Shreveport and Monroe were toiling to re-establish order where sixteen had perished and much distress prevailed.

Rehabitation went forward also in other states where the fitful tempest had wrought destruction in swirling through Arkansas on Thursday night, striking in Louisiana, Mississipi, Alabama and Tennessee, then finishing its fatal course on Friday at Portsmouth, Va.

RUMORS DENIED BY RUMANIANS

Foreign Office Says King Ferdinand is Improving.

NO REGENCY.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Rumanian Foreign Office to-day formally authorized the Associated Press to categorically deny the "unfounded and fantastic rumors that King Ferdinand is dying of blood disease and that the King's mental vigor is impaired."

The King is continuing to receive and work with his ministers daily. Reliable and authoritative sources report the monarch's condition improved.

There has not been the slightest suggestion either in the press or in official circles regarding Princess Helen, wife of former Crown Prince Carol, for membership in the Regency.

DATE IS FIXED FOR WALK OUT

Conductors and Trainmen Will Not Announce Date Yet.

WISH TO NEGOTIATE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27 (Canadian Press).—Prior to his departure for Cleveland, Ohio, to confer with international officers, S. N. Berry, Senior Vice President of the Order of Railway Conductors, announced that the date on which the 15,000 conductors and trainmen employed on Canadian Railways would be asked to cease work if their demand for a six per cent increase was not met by the railways, had been arranged but declined to say what it was, pending further action of the part of the union executive.

"We will give the date soon enough," Mr. Berry said, "when we know that all overtures to prevent withdrawal have failed."

Mr. Berry declined to comment on the statement of the Managers' Committee of the railroads in which the latter refused to re-open negotiations, but referred the union officials to the executive of the railways for further parleys.

"We have not had time to fully discuss this phase," Mr. Berry declared, "but this will be taken up next week. We are still hoping that the matter can be adjusted without recourse to extreme measures."

Mr. Berry expects to return to Montreal early next week.

Weakness In Quotations Leads To Lower Prices

CHICAGO, November 27. Canadian Press. — The unexpected weakness of Liverpool quotations led to an early rush of selling and to lower prices to-day in the wheat market here. Reports of improved weather in Argentina were bearish factors. Opening 3-8 to 7-8c off, Chicago wheat values underwent moderate further setback. Corn and oats were easy; corn starting unchanged to 1-4c lower and later sagging a little more. Provisions tended to advance.

SAINT AND SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE, 18, is playing the love game with a dozen admirers, including BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect; her present employer, old MR. CLUNY; ALBERT ETTLESON, a married traveling salesman, and CHRIS WILEY, a man of bad reputation.

FAITH LANE, the stay-at-home drudge for the family of six, is in love with Hathaway, who is infatuated with Cherry.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich man's son and amateur artist, proposes to Faith while the two are on a Sunday outing, and she refuses him, though he offers her all that money can give, as well as steadfast devotion. Returning to town, Faith is surprised to see Bob Hathaway driving alone in his car, although Cherry had told her she had a date with him.

When Faith gets home, she finds Cherry and her suitcase have disappeared. While she is frantically trying to locate her brother, Mr. Lane tells her that Mrs. Albert Ettleson, wife of the traveling salesman, has come to see Cherry.

In the interview that follows, Mrs. Ettleson tells Faith that her husband and Cherry have planned to elope, and Mrs. Lane, subject to heart attacks, faints and appears to be dying.

Bob Hathaway, at Faith's urgent request, comes to the Lane house. When he learns the truth, he tells Faith they must go at once in his car to Darrow, a town fifty miles away, where Mrs. Ettleson says her husband and Cherry were to have met.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII.

"If you'll take me to my hotel," Mrs. Ettleson began, flurried, uncertain, "I'd go with you, but I'm afraid," she whispered, shame filling her eyes with weak tears. "I shouldn't have come—"

"Of course you should," Faith tried to comfort her. "Else how should we have known about Cherry—in time to—to save her? I'll see Mother a minute before I go," she added to Bob Hthaway who was half out of the screened door in his impatience.

Mrs. Lane was conscious again, but hardly aware of her surroundings, tossing her grizzled head and moaning, while the doctor was making a pretense of cheerful conversation with Jim Lane.

"It's Faith, Mother. Bob and I—Bob's here, you know—are going to get Cherry. It was all a mistake, Mother. Don't worry. Cherry phoned," she brought out the kindly lie bravely, "that she was visiting a girl friend in Darrow. Bob and I are going after her, because you're sick." The lie was so thin, so terribly obvious, but Faith prayed that her mother would believe her.

"I don't want to spoil her fun," and Mrs. Lane opened her eyes wide with startling suddenness. "You told her I was sick?"

"Yes, Mother. She was terribly sorry. We'll bring her back as soon as possible. But you must try to sleep till she comes. The doctor will give you something to make you sleep, darling." The word of endearment came hard to her; she did not have Cherry's easy demonstrativeness. But her mother looked so pitifully old and ill and ugly—

"Tell her Muggy knew she wasn't a bad girl," Mrs. Lane sighed and closed her eyes.

Because she was blinded with tears when she rejoined him, Bob Hathaway put his arm about her shoulders, took one of her hands protectingly in his, as he guided her to his car. Mrs. Ettleson pattered hurriedly behind them, wiping at her eyes.

They dropped Mrs. Ettleson at the hotel at which she had registered two hours previously, and had her assurance that she would wait there for word from them.

What is your title to this picture? It contains words.

"Poor, downtrodden little thing!" Faith murmured pityingly as they watched her enter the hotel.

"You have a heart as big as a cathedral," Bob Hathaway told her unsmilingly. "What other girl in the world could have made a friend out of a wronged wife come to denounce her sister?"

Faith flushed, but she did not thank him for the compliment. "What had we better do? I can't seem to think clearly—"

"First we'll go to Darrow, breaking all speed laws, and we'll inquire at the station. There was a train out of here at 2:52, which should have arrived in Darrow at 3:40. I believe—a slow local. I believe they met there, and would have waited for the eastbound limited, carrying Pullmans. I'll stop a minute at the station here and grab a time table. There's a bare possibility they haven't left Darrow yet."

He was out of the car less the minute he had allowed himself. Tossing a time table into her lap he asked her to look up trains while he guided the car as swiftly as possible out of downtown traffic.

"What time is it now, Bob?" she asked after a long minute of intense, frowning search of the complicated folder.

"Seven fifty," he told her, without looking at his watch. "I got a glimpse of the Western Union clock at the station. Why?"

"There's a train to New York that doesn't pass through here but connects with our local, leaving Darrow at 9:28. Their first chance to get out of Darrow on a limited, carrying sleepers. Do you think we can make it, Bob?" her brown eyes and her quivering voice implored him.

"We'll make it—even if it costs me five hundred dollars in fines," he said grimly.

As the car leaped ahead, minute after minute, to devour the glistening black ribbon of macadamized road, its horn braying raucously for right of way, its driver stern-faced, unheeding the shouted imprecations that his half dozen near accidents wrought upon him, Faith sat tense but silent, exquisitely conscious of his nearness, even as her heart leaped ahead of the car, toward wayward, foolish Cherry.

What must he be thinking of Cherry—whom he loved? Was he hating her, because he had loved her and she had allowed him to love her, while all the time she had been planning this monstrous thing? Or was he hoping that he would be in time—not just for Cherry's mother's sake, but for the sake of his own happiness? He had been in love but once before, he had told her, and that other girl had betrayed him, too. Poor Bob! Darling Bob! She stole a sideways glance at him. He had thrown his tweed cap to the floor of the car, and his crisp chestnut hair rose stiff in the breeze. How pale his lean, tanned cheeks were! She had not known that his jaw jutted like that. His knuckles shone white in the gathering darkness, as his hands gripped the wheel.

A traffic policeman on a motorcycle sprang from a trap—a clump of trees—by the side of the road, gave chase, halted them with shouted curses, ordered them to pull up at the side of the road.

"Where's the fire, buddy?" the policeman asked sarcastically, as he drew a pad of tickets from his coat pocket.

"Haven't time to explain—matter of life and death!" Bob Hathaway spoke curtly, his foot on the accelerator causing the engine to roar like an angry animal. "Here's my license, with name and address. For God's sake, make that ticket out in a hurry. Yes, I was doing fifty. I admit it. Trying to catch the limited at Darrow. Woman dying—got to see her daughter, who's on that train."

"Hell! I ain't giving you a ticket! On your way! And tell the next cop that stops you that Murphy's your friend—and they can call me up about you, if they wanta."

"Thanks, old timer!" Bob cried, letting a ten dollar bill flutter to the road as the car sprang forward.

"Oh, he was decent!" Faith covered her face with her quivering hands and burst into tears. "People are wonderful, Bob, if you give them a chance."

"Yes, we're flirting with death in order to catch up with two wonderful people—Cherry Lane and Albert Ettleson!" he said savagely, as he bent lower over the steering wheel.

"Oh, Bob!" Faith shrank a little from him. "I can't bear to have you bitter because of—us"

"I'm sorry!" He took a hand from the stereing wheel to lay it quickly upon her hands twisting in her lap. "You're so wonderful, Faith, that you make up for everybody in the world who isn't. I wonder if you know how truly great you are in your unselfishness."

"Don't, Bob," Faith choked. She felt she could not bear the comradely affection in his voice. Affection—appreciation! When her whole body ached for love of him! She did not want even to move her hands, for fear of losing the memory of the pressure of his long, firm fingers. "How much more time have we? Don't bother! I'll find your watch."

She groped in the pocket he indicated with a jerk of his head, and dragged out his thin, white-gold watch. "Nine three!" she gasped. "Will we make it, Bob?"

"Yes," he answered briefly, his eyes straining for an opening in the closely lined up cars at a road intersection.

It was 9:23 when Bob Hathaway swerved his car to the curb at the Darrow station. They ran, Faith almost as fleetly as he, to where the long line of Pullman cars waited for the "All Aboard" of the conductor who walked up and down beside the track, talking idly with first one Pullman porter and then another.

"We need your help, Conductor." Bob drew up before the official, breathing hard from his swift running. "This is Miss Lane. I'm Robert Hathaway. Miss Lane believes her sister, Miss Cherry Lane, is aboard your train, bound for New York. Her mother was taken sick suddenly after Miss Cherry left, and her life may depend upon whether we get the girl back immediately or not. Can we make a search of your train, sir?"

"It's only three minutes till we pull out," the conductor growled from under his clipped, thick gray mustache. "What does the young lady look like? Sure she's on this train?"

"She came here to take it," Bob told him evasively. "She's very little—ninety-five pounds, or so, short, curly red hair—copper-red,"—he flushed, and Faith knew how it must hurt him thus to be cataloging Cherry's charms for a railroad official. "What do you think she was wearing, Faith?"

"A golden-brown cloth suit, with small brown velour hat. She had just bought them Saturday," she explained to Bob Hathaway. "Brown kid pumps and brown stockings."

"Ticket to where?" the conductor demanded with agonizing deliberateness.

"New York," Faith answered. "Please! Did you see her?"

"Oh, boys!" the conductor raised an arm to signal three Pullman porters lounging beside little portable steps before their car doors.

Three colored men in dark trousers and white coats came lounging forward.

"Any of you boys got a red-headed young lady, dressed in brown? Pretty, I suppose?" he turned to Bob, with a smile twitching at his mustache.

"Yes, very!" Bob answered curtly.

"Boss, I know the very lady you mean!" a wide-mouthed porter grinned. "Come on about ten minutes ago with a gent, that looked like a drummer—"

"Yes!" Faith breathed, her fingers digging into Bob's arm in her excitement.

"They're in my car—number 43, drawin' room A," the porter told them. "Guess they went and e oped on you," he grinned at Bob.

"I'm afraid that's what they did," Bob forced himself to admit cheerfully. "But the young lady's mother is mighty sick—we promised to bring her home. May we go aboard, Conductor?"

"I reckon so." The man looked doubtful. "Show 'em the way, Harry."

"Here you are, Boss. Drawin' room A." The porter paused before the rounded door at the end of his car.

He was about to knock, when a high, piercing scream, followed quickly by the sound of a body banging itself against the door, stayed his hand.

"Cherry! Cherry!" Faith cried loudly, seizing the long, curved knob of the door. "Oh, Bob! It's locked! It's locked! Cherry, Cherry!"

(To be continued.)

I like not only to be loved, but to be told that I am loved. The realm of silence is large enough beyond the grave.

This Lassie Has Her Colds "Rubbed Away"

The mother of this attractive little girl, Mrs. E. E. Emmans, of 215 Seventh Ave., N. E., Portage La Prairie, Man., is one of the many Canadian mothers who are enthusiastic about the vaporizing salve, Vicks VapoRub, for treating children's colds. Mrs. Emmans writes: "My little girl had croup at night pretty badly and Vicks did her a lot of good. I have also used it with very satisfactory results for head and chest colds."

Vicks is just "rubbed on" for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, croup or deep chest colds. When so applied, Vicks has a double direct action: internally medicated vapors are inhaled while, at the same time, externally, it is absorbed through and stimulates the skin.

INTELLIGENCE TEST

These questions are taken directly from the Bible and offer a good review of religious history. The correct answers appear on the back page:

1—What incident in Biblical history does the accompanying picture portray?
2—Whom did David appoint as his successor?
3—Where did Aaron die
4—Who was the father of Noah?
5—For what people did Goliath fight.
6—Does the word "Hell" appear in the New Testament?
7—Who killed Joab?
8—St. John tell of how many Marys who stood before the cross of Christ?
9—Who were the parents of Dinah?
10—Is the book of Jonah in the Old or New Testament?

While your salvation depends on Jesus and His finished work, and on that alone, your enjoyment of that salvation depends very much on yourself—on your holy walk with God, on your living a life within the vail—living daily by faith on Him who loved you and gave Himself for you. Without this, you may be a Christian, but you will never be a peaceful, praising, happy Christian.

IMPERIALISM AND CHRIST AT ST. PAUL'S

Arresting Subject By Dr. Ford C. Ottman, New York.

WAR WORKER.

Intensive Campaign Begins Sunday and Continues Till Friday Night.

The city is to have the opportunity of hearing a celebrated American preacher and writer, Dr. Ford C. Ottman, who will occupy the pulpit of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church tomorrow and continue through till Friday. Among church people in many parts of the world his is a name to conjure with. He is widely travelled; having not only been around the world with the late Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, the famous evangelist, but he has also conducted so many parties through the Holy Land that he is as much at home in Palestine and Egypt as most of us are in Peterborough.

His biography of Dr. Chapman was one of the best sellers when first published. He has written many valuable works, one of which bears the title of "Imperialism and Christ." This will be his general theme on the occasion of this visit; and no living preacher is better qualified to deal with such a subject.

He is a graduate of Princeton from which he has got his Doctor's degree. His theology he received at the New College, Edinburgh, Scotland; and he also spent some considerable time in Germany as a special student.

Dr. Ottman is one of the outstanding members of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States. During the period of the Great War he had charge of all the camp work for his denomination. A man of wide culture he is one of the most fascinating speakers in the church today.

Was Nearly Crazy With Boils All Over His Body

Mr. S. L. Burke, Barronsfield, N.S., writes:—"For some time I was nearly crazy with boils all over my body. I tried everything I could think of to get rid of them, but to no avail, for as soon as one was healed up another would appear to take its place.

I was advised to take

and after I had used two bottles the boils had all disappeared and I have not been troubled with them since."

fluence, is found in the very outposts of civilization, and they bring contributions to the development of those lands which others cannot. Wherever they go they gather in Caledonian Clubs to do honor to the memory of their patron saint and to keep green in their hearts the memory of their home land.

They have a reputation for acquiring possessions, said the speaker, but that is due to the nature of their country. They live a hard life, especially in the rural districts, and have to look twice at every penny before spending it. Thrift is bred in them, yet whenever there is a good cause, or a case of need the money is provided.

When the body of St. Andrew was brought to Scotland the custodian was given a large tract of land and there the Cathedral and University of St. Andrew have grown up. This St. Andrew brought religion and education, the two things most sought by Scots. They are famed for their piety, and the staunchness with which they uphold their convictions, being willing even to die for them. They go great lengths to get an education, appreciating its value very much.

In conclusion the speaker urged his hearers to live their lives in such a manner that their forefathers might be proud of them, as, being heirs of all that their ancestors had done, they should do great things, and honor their saint and be worthy of their name.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl replied to the toast, "The twa countries." He said that he would speak of two of the best countries in the world, Scotland and Canada Scots, he said, were patriotic, which was a great virtue, and like charity, should begin at home but should not exclude others.

He discussed the history and character of the Scots. They are a fusion of two strong races, the Picts and the Scots. St. Columbia brought Christianity to them from Ireland, and he also brought education. The people quickly perceived the value of education and it spread rapidly. The four old universities of Scotland, St. Andrew's, Glasgow, Aberdeen and Edinburgh, all founded in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, showed how the Scots had always seized every opportunity to gain and spread knowledge. When the barbarians from the north invaded southern Europe, from which their culture had come, they sent missionaries to restore the religion and education to those lands and to teach their new occupants. Even today, when their are Government schools in every part of the Empire, they have the best system.

The literature of Scotland, both ancient and modern, has been great. In olden days there were scholars who wrote in Latin, and others who left great manuscripts in Gaelic. In later times there have been writers like Scott, Burns and Carlisle, who have written of the history and character of the people.

The nature of the country has had its efect on the people With enemies on all sides and a hard country, they have become cautious and thrifty. They control their emotions and have attained a reputation for stolidness and almost for stupidity, yet are a most romantic race.

Speaking of Canada, Monsignor McColl said that various races had contributed to its welfare. The Scots had excelled in business and politics, being predominent in those spheres. The English had brought culture to the country, while the French were the pioneers and explorers. From this and other excellent material there should be developed a people homogenous to Canada.

In conclusion he again urged patriotism, charity and tolerance as being necessary virtues in building up the nation.

The toast to the club was responded to by the singing of "For We Are Jolly Good Fellows," which was followed by a short speech by Robert French. He spoke of the value of the club to new-comers to the city, helping them find their level, and providing a place where they could meet brother Scots and observe the customs of their homeland. Without the club such affairs as Burns banquets and St. Andrew celebrations could not be organized and carried through so successfully.

After speaking of the part the women had always played in Scottish homes, Joseph Grierson called on the laddies to drink the toast to "The lassies" with these lines written by himself:

There's surely no toast in the many that's given
So worthy as this one, I ask,
For its subject can turn this old earth into heaven,
And that without bottle or flask.

There's toasts that can kindle our national fire
As we lift high the sparkling glass,
But what can the muse of a poet inspire
Like the toast to a bonny Scotch lass.

Look round on the faces that, smiling tonight,
Have gladdened our hearts with their cheer;
Look round, men, and tell me if this happy sight
Does not make the dear lassies more dear.

With me then, good comrades, arise to the toast
To the lassies, their temper and wiles,
Their beauty and goodness of which we can boast
Basking 'neath such affectionate smiles.

To the lassies, heaven bless them, in all their sly arts,
For you know, who are wed, how they rule you,
And you, happy striplings, with love-fervered hearts,
You have found how they sometimes can fool you.

To the lassies whose future we trust shall be seen
In a partnership pledged as a wife,
With those virtuous emotions that always have been Recognized in the Scottish home life.

To the lassies yince mair and tae Scotch lassies first,
They are dear tae our hearts above others,
May they carry along in their lilt and their song
The distinguishing traits o' their mithers.

Monsignor McColl, acting for the Hon. G. N. Gordon, who was called away at the last minute, proposed the toast to "Our City." He extolled the beauty of the city and the harmonious way in which all its citizens got along. With good schools and churches and such a spirit of tolerance and helpfulness, he prophesied great progress and prosperity for Peterborough.

Interspersed with the speeches were piano selections by Mrs. Goodley, songs by Messrs. Jack Smith and Bob Hendry, and pipe selections by Alex Milne. The singing of Auld Lang Syne brought the meeting to a close.

WEDDING BELLS.

MORTON—PATTERSON.

NORWOOD, Nov. 27.—A pretty wedding took place on Saturday evening, November 20, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Patterson, of Dummer, when Ruby, their youngest daughter, was united in marriage to Mr. George Morton, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Morton, of Asphodel. Rev. J. P. McLennan, pastor of the Norwood Baptist Church, performed the ceremony.

The bride was given away by her father. Miss Mary Patterson of Havelock was her sister's bridesmaid, and Mr. Robert Jennings supported the groom. The wedding march was played by Miss Annie Ferguson, cousin of the bride.

Following the ceremony a sumptuous wedding repast was served to about forty guests. Later in the evening the young couple left on a short motor trip. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm in Asphodel. The bride was for a few years organist in the local Baptist Church.

HOW TO RELIEVE CHILDREN'S COLDS

Avoid Serious Results By Using Baby's Own Tablets.

When a child shows the first symptoms of a cold, such as sneezing, redness of the eyes, clogged or running nose, prompt measures for relief may avert serious results. Mothers should always have on hand some simple, safe and effective remedy for immediate use.

Baby's Own Tablets act quickly, contain no opiates or narcotics, are tasteless and harmless. Mrs. Joseph Cadieux, Holyoke, Mass., says:—"I have used Babys Own Tablets for my children and find them a very satisfactory medicine. When my little boy had a cold I gave him the Tablets at night and he was well next day. I give them to the children for constipation and they always do good. I think Baby's Own Tablets are much easier to give a child than liquid medicine. I recommend the Tablets to all mothers who have small children and believe they should always be kept on hand."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

ATTACKS LIQUOR

Winnipeg sittings any detailed statement of the situation of his province.

He supported Mr. Manson's statement, asserting that the existence of the licensed liquor export houses operating in British Columbia, said Attorney-General Lynburn of Alberta.

"These 'houses,' primarily established ostensibly to carry on a legitimate trade in the importation of liquor and the subsequent exportation of such liquors to points outside the Dominion of Canada, have developed into the main, and in many instances, the sole source of supply of the international bootlegger.

"It is a matter of common knowledge that liquor cleared from such houses for a foreign port has, on many occasions, found its way back to the Dominion and has thereafter been disposed of through subterranean channels.

"Shipments of liquor from these houses are continually finding their way into the prairie provinces, and have become a distinct menace to the system of Government control of the sale of liquors in those provinces."

The Attorney-General of Saskatchewan was not present, but it was stated, on his behalf, that he supported representations made by British Columbia.

RUMANIA SEEMS ON THRESHOLD

ing for a new fight. This report says that it is more than a possibility that Carol supported by the peasants' party, and certain elements of the army, with which he is popular will attempt to return and make a bid for his father's throne.

So far as the other political parties are concerned they reached an agreement in January. They decided it was best to make Carol stand by the renunciation of his rights. One of these parties is led by former Premier Averescu, and the other by former Premier Bratiano; both are of equal strength and both are said to fear the consequences of Carol's return.

Last January Parliament passed an act accepting Carol's decision to give up the rights to the throne rather than the woman of his choice.

The act named his five year old son, Prince Michael, born of Carol's marriage to Princess Helen of Greece, as heir apparent. A council of three regents was then named to rule in the event of Ferdinand's death until Prince Michael should reach his majority. These regents are Prince Nicholas, head of the Rumanian Church, and president of the Supreme Court. It is now generally reported that all Rumania is looking for early modification of the constitution with respect to the regency, and that it was this probability, rather than the king's ill health, that prompted the early return of Queen Marie.

From Vienna reports have come that the Rumanian government has sent General Angelescu, Marshal of the court to Cherbourg to meet Marie and ask her not to stop at Paris but to hurry to Bucharest. On the other hand, it is asserted freely that the queen will stay in Paris, at least long enough to interview Carol with whom she effected a reconciliation before her departure for America.

At the time the queen said politics was not mentioned; it was only a reconciliation between a mother and a son, with whom she had broken because of her son's personal conduct.

Prof. Jorga, one of the Rumania political leaders is quoted by the Temps as having expressed opposition to the "tyrannical decisions" taken by parliament in January, adding that a legal road was open to anyone in Rumania, "even to a son of the King." The Professor did not specify what solution he had in mind but it is obvious from his words that he does not agree with the Bratiano Averescu accord concerning Carol.

Paris observers, deluged with conflicting reports from Bucharest, Belgrade and other capitals, are unable to sift truth from untruth and determine exactly the state of King Ferdinand's health.

The French surgeon and cancer specialist Prof. Lecete, left for Bucharest last night, having been summoned by Dr. Roggot, the French radiologist who arrived Thursday at the Rumanian capital.

While the King is known to be a sufferer from cancer, his exact condition is uncertain. Official circles in Bucharest have constantly maintained that it is not serious; they have taken occasion frequently to deny alarming reports disseminated from neighboring countries.

KILLS WIFE.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 27 (Canadian Press). — J. E. Norton Shaw, prominent New Bedford attorney and former Harvard football star, killed his wife and ended his own life at his home in Mattapoisett late yesterday afternoon.

OBITUARY.

SAMUEL THOMAS WILSON.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 27.—The unexpected death of Samuel Thomas Wilson, at his residence, George Street, on Monday, Nov. 22nd, deprived the town of one of its most highly respected citizens, and evoked expressions of keen regret from a host of friends in this district.

The deceased had been ill for about two weeks with heart trouble but his illness did not assume a serious phase until the morning of his death.

The late Mr. Wilson was born in Hastings in 1859, and has been a resident of Havelock and vicinity for about fifty-five years. After his marriage to Miss Leona Johnston of Haldimand Township, he moved to a farm in Belmont, where he resided until fifteen years ago, when he came to Havelock.

Besides his wife he leaves to mourn his loss one daughter, Mrs. Robert Graham of Brantford.

The funeral, which took place on Wednesday afternoon, was largely attended. The service at Knox Church was conducted by Rev. G. E. Lougheed. Interment took place in Maple Grove Cemetery.

CAVAN ELECTORS HEAR T. B. CHALK

Conservative Candidate Supported By Other Speakers at Meeting.

CAVAN, Nov. 27.—Mayor Chalk, the Conservative candidate for Durham, spoke in the Community Hall, Cavan, last Saturday evening, and there was a good audience to listen to him.

Mayor Chalk, the first speaker, told the electors that he had never tasted liquor in his life, and was in favor of temperance if it was possible, but he said the way the bootleggers were peddling it now, that the province is in worse shape than it ever was before, with poor whisky at double the former price for anybody that wants it. He explained that the way it is now, the Government is making five million dollars a year and the bootlegger twenty-five million.

He also told how, after much careful watching of affairs, the Government had been able to make up a fifteen million dollar deficiency and also lower taxes.

Capt. Lawson of Toronto was the next speaker. He expressed his pleasure at being asked to help Mr. Chalk in his campaign. He told of his travels through Northern Ontario, making speeches, and about how much good Premier Ferguson had done through there, having schools on wheels three days a week and giving children who were unable to attend the regular schools just as good an education as those who were able to do so. He asked the audience did they think that a man who would do that, having no children of his own, could be so hard-hearted as he was made out to be.

He then told about the many places in Toronto where liquor was sold illegally. He told about a man not far from his own home who had started making home-brew and then inviting some of his friends in for an occasional drink. It was so good that he started selling it, and was making a good income.

He said that there were hundreds of men doing the same thing all over Ontario, and that meant many small breweries. He ended up by asking the people did they not think it would be much better to vote for Government control and stop the bootlegger.

Mr. McCamus was the next speaker. He told of the conditions in Durham, and gave an outline of Mayor Chalk's life.

Miss Fields gave an address to the women in the audience, and told how much Government control had helped Alberta, in the opinion of Judge Emily E. Murphy, Judge of the Juvenile Court of Alberta. She said that there were not nearly as many drunks in Alberta as there were before Government control came into force.

Mr. Brown of Port Hope was the last speaker of the evening. He explained to the people Mr. Ferguson's intention of lowering the cost of licenses for cars. He told the people that Canon Cody and other men who understood conditions were all in favor of Government control. He told of the great men that wet countries had produced, and said that Turkey, the only real dry country, had never had a really great man.

SCIATICA SUFFERING

Comes Because the Nerves Are Starved For Better Blood.

There are excellent reasons why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved beneficial in the most severe cases of sciatica, neuralgia and other complaints in that group known as disorders of the nerves. Each of these complaints exist because the blood is thin and watery, and the nerves are thus literally starving for the nourishment rich red blood supplies them. Any increase, therefore, in the richness of the blood speedily and beneficially acts upon the nerves and the torturing pains of sciatica and neuralgia disappear. It is because of their specific action on the blood, thus feeding the starved nerves that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been so successful in the treatment of these troubles. As proof of this we give the case of Mrs. P. N. Beazanson, South Alton, N.S., who says:—"Two years ago I was attacked with sciatica and neuralgia in my back and leg. The pain was so severe that I could not walk. Even to move caused me agony, and I had to go to bed. The doctor called in was not able to do more than deaden the pain, and I had been in bed for six weeks when my grandmother came to see me and strongly urged me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. She said she had had a similar attack and it was these pills that had restored her to health. I at once got a supply and had only used four boxes when I found great relief. Gladly I kept on taking the pills, and soon after found myself as well as ever I had been. Gratitude for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me makes me urge others similarly afflicted to try them."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COUNTY COUNCIL GOING TO BUILD

The matter of connecting links in the villages which have a county road adjacent to them, was also discussed. The villages of Lakefield, Norwood and Hastings each have a street which joins the county roads. These links were taken over by the County Roads System, but nothing has been done to repairing them The trouble seems to rest with the Highway Department as to what they mean and to a lack of interest in the department after the road is taken over.

Warden's Report

At this, the closing session of the current year, I will ask you to kindly permit me to give expression to my appreciation of the united co-operation in carrying to a culmination all undertakings assumed by the council in a successful manner.

The respective chairmen of the standing committees have reported as to the various duties imposed upon them, that is not only very explanatory, but must be satisfactory to the general public. It is too early to give a definite report of the estimates as to whether such would cover all expenditure, but as far as can be seen your chairman of the standing committee on finance has shown great evidence of being equal to the occasion.

The liabilities of the county due to legislation have been materialy increased. The directing that counties are made liable for one-half of the maintenance of indigents in hospitals and charitable institutions increases the county's liability, but of course relieves the local municipality to that extent, but must affect the county rates.

Although the season has been somewhat backward, yet the grain is turning out better than expected, and with plenty of bulky fodder, such as hay, straw and other fodders, we have every reason to be grateful, not having been visited with destructive storms that prevailed in other parts of the continent.

Canada and Ontario are now showing signs of material prosperity and I, I am sure, will bend every energy in the continuity of such progress.

I cannot find words to convey my appreciation of the courteous, cooperative and loyal manner in which I have been supported in the performance of the duties as Warden, and in future it will be a great pleasure to recall recollecions of my relationship with members of the various county councillors since I have had the honor of being a member of such body.

EXPLAINS PRINCIPLES

privilege, the right to speak first and then she would be glad to answer the questions which were being asked her.

In discussing the advertisement in The Peterborough Examiner which introduced Mrs. Wright, she said that she was vice-president of the Red Cross in Western Ontario during the war and she received a letter from a military official in Ottawa who protested to her against so many cigarettes being sent to the training camps, for the boys were being swamped with them, and many were having to be sent back, for it was hindering their training and this same official advised her to send more cigarettes to the front. "I never raised a single objection to cigarettes going forward to the boys at the front," said Mrs. Wright. 'For there is not any woman in all Canada who did any more than I; for I gave all that I had to the war. I had three sons, who were mere boys when they enlisted, and instead of being detained in England for training they were sent right to Flanders and when I asked the reason why, I was told they were university chaps. I myself acted as vice president for the Red Cross, and the late Lady Beck was president, but through illness she had to spend two winters in the South, so the burdens fell on my shoulders. My husband served for four years on a patriotic board, and gave his offices for it, so as the work of the board could be carried on. So tonight I can look into the face of everyone and say none did more than mine."

They did come back, but not as they went; one was white-headed, and tonight there is not a man in this audience who would interrupt the mother of soldier sons. If you were in civies, my sons protected you and fought for the principles that this Empire is founded upon—Truth, Justice and Righteousness."

No Part in Politics

Mrs. Wright then reviewed her political history saying that she was born a Liberal, married a Conservative of the Conservatives, and tonight she stood part free a Prohibitionist by conviction, and if you all stood as I do, Ontario would be free from this issued to-day. "I take no part in political discussion, because I am the president of a non-political organization, and tonight I did not come here for your candidate or to say anything against yur opponent, for that is not my business."

"If Ontario goes dry on December 1st there is not a Premier in this country who would have the temerity to come forward again on a political field favoring Government control. My husband, who is a Conservative of the Conservatives, is somewhere tonight trying to save the finest piece of legislation that was ever put on the statute books, and this was introduced under the regime of Sir William Hearst, and in this campaign you are not departing one jot from the Conservative party when you support the O.T.A."

Issue Between Wets and Drys

"It is no longer an issue between the Conservatives or the Liberals or the Progressives, but it is between the "Wets" and the "Drys." Mr. Ferguson has already cut away from the church, for he said he was not going to hide behind clergymen, and to-day he stands behind every brewer and distiller. There is something nice about the word 'control,' and many the silly housewife who does not read will say to herself, this control system will be so nice; but there never was such a thing in the history of the world, as Government Control of liquor traffic; it is Government sale of liquor."

Mrs. Wright declared that it was very difficult to keep up with Premier Ferguson these days, for he has had so many changes, modifications, and nullifications since he first introduced his policy, and I am hoping that before election day he might swing back behind the O.T.A. "Talk about acrobatic performances, steeplechases and movies they are not in it with his breathless moves."

Conditions in the West.

Mrs. Wright then told about the conditions in the Western provinces and Quebec as she had seen them lately, and she told the story of a mother who had come to her in Winnipeg whose son had disappeared. He was too young to get a permit, but a friend gave him one and today his mother does not know where he is, for he is ashamed of himself. The speaker then declared she would much ratfier have the open bar than government control, for there is a certain disgrace to young people; for young people have a certain honor about them that will not allow them to go into such a place as a bar, but when they see a store which goes under a government stamp, it is altogether a different thing.

"Premier Ferguson says the Act cannot be enforced, and all I have to say is why has he not made a bigger effort to secure its enforcement, for the O.T.A. is one of the greatest pieces of legislation on the statute books of Ontario. The fault is in the officials, and in the last three years we have had a government which did not seek to enforce it. Millions cannot be spent on liquor and have it for boots, eatables and clothing, so the business man who votes for Government control is killing his own business, and the people who vote for this measure are voting to knife Ontario." Mrs. Wright then told of how Philip Snowden had supported the system in Northern England, and inside of two years he was wishing that he had never introduced it. "Do we want to try a system that has failed in other countries, and why should we be enforced to consider such a condition in this progressive province of Ontario.

In dealing with the issue that the Opposition raise about the Prohibitionists giving too much time to conditions in British Columba and Quebec, for the Premier says that it is the Alberta system that he is modelling his policy from, but his policy has been so changeable that we can only point to conditions in other provinces. The population in Alberta today is not as large as Toronto, but there are twenty-nine government stores running on a system of cash and carry, and a permit may be had for $2.00, allowing a person to buy all the spirits and wine he wants. They have also forty-six club licenses, thirteen canteen licenses, and there were 608 banquet permits issued in the last year. Ask any old resident when liquor flowed the most freely in Ontario if this record could be beaten in this province in proportion to population.

Beer Parlors

"Why discuss beer parlors; they have been withdrawn. But did you notice in his statement, that he did not say for how long, when he withdrew the beer parlors from his policy. I put it up to him in Prescott last week, but although he had fifteen minutes to reply to my charges he never once referred to my challenge. I predict that if he wins on December 1st, that within forty-eight hours of the passing of his policy, beer will not only be sold by the glass but by the dozen, and in a year or two the beer parlors will be opened. I say youve got to face this issue of beer parlors and beer by the glass. Premier Ferguson promises at $3,000,000 surplus, but where is this money going to come from; is it not money that has helped to wreck homes and people."

Mrs. Wright then told of conditions in Alberta and British Columbia, and of how the government supporters in those provinces were out of sympathy with the government control policy. Napoleon said in the heighth of his popularity, "God always fights on the side of the heaviest battalions," but in two years he said he found out that God and the enemy were too much for him, and we are nearing the day when Premier Ferguson will find out that God and Prohibition are too much for him."

In the case of bootlegging, the speaker claimed that it has increased in every province with government control, and if Premier Ferguson could not control bootlegging under the O.T.A. he can not control it under Government control.

In closing, an earnest plea was made to stand behind the men who said they would enforce the Act, so that Ontario would not be taking a step backwards, but making progress towards true prohibition.

Mrs. J. Forbes Allan

Fearing that she might be subjected to some of the hecking that the other speaker had, Mrs. Allan said that she was present at Wednesday nights meeting, and although she was not in favor of the policy which was being explained, she did hot interrupt, and she would like to tell Mr. Bradburn that "All the women present at the Wednesday night meeting were not sympathetic to him. I heard many arguments at that meeting, but when they seemed to get to the crux of the matter they would drift on to some other subject."

As a resident of thirty years in the Old Country, Mrs. Allan spoke with experience of the liquor traffic there, and it is because of what she knows and has seen that she appealed to her audience to not let government control get a foothold, but stamp it out right away.

"We were told on Wednesday night of all the sugar plums which the government were going to hand out, as to lowering automobile licenses, a few cents off movie tickets, and the promise of a highway. People, don't shut your eyes and swallow these plums, but keep one issue clear before you and make up your mind to vote against government control.

It was stated on Wednesday night by Mrs. Fallis that one taximan knew more about conditions than twenty ministers. Well, I hope all taximen are not corrupt, and I would like to say that all ministers do not spend all their time in their studies. I would like to ask the speaker about the Salvation Army and where they stand on this issue? They stand absolutely solid as a stone wall for the O.T.A.

Mrs. Allan closed by criticising the Premier's scheme, whereby a woman whose husband was drinking and ruining the home could have his name put on the Indian list.' A woman, said the speaker, who finds herself in such conditions does not want to let everyone know her domestic troubles, so she struggles along."

MAY PURCHASE WHITE STAR LINE

Negotiations Nearing Completion For Sale To R.M. Steam Packet Co.

REFUSES COMMENT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (Canadian Pess).—Negotiations for the sale of the White Star Line ships of the International Mercantile Marine to the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company for £7,000,000 are nearing completion, Wall Street heard late yesterday.

Directors of the I.M.M. met yesterday afternoon and reported only routine business contracted, but it was learned that the sale had practically been decided upon and that official announcement would come from London.

LONDON, Nov. 27 (Canadian Press).—Baron Kylsant, managing director and chairman of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, would neither confirm nor deny the report that his company has made arrangements to buy the steamers of the White Star Line through the International Mercantile Marine Company.

To a question as to the price which might be paid for the ships, Lord Kylsant replied: "I have heard all sorts of prices. I won't say anything more to-night."

SALESAND BAZAARS

ST. PAUL'S, BETHANY

BETHANY, Nov. 27.—The annual bazaar in connection with St. Paul's Anglican W.A., which was held on Saturday afternoon in the Town Hall, was in every way successful.

Great pains had been taken to make the hall look attractive and various booths were daintily decorated as well as the tea room. There was the usual display of fancy and useful articles for sale also a table of home cooking and jam produce which was readily sold. Homemade candy was sold by members of the Girls' Guild. The fish pond was a great attraction for the kiddies while ice cream was enjoyed by old and young. Everything sold brought good prices and a goodly sum was realized for the W.A. who are very strenuous workers.

COUNCIL PASSES SEVERAL BY-LAWS

Will Take Vote of People on Fixed Assessment For Carpet Works.

North Monaghan Council held their regular meeting November 13 and a special meeting on November 25.

John Whitfield was present and made application for position as tax collector for year 1926. A motion was passed appointing him at a salary of $235.00, including the collection of poll tax for year 1927.

Frank Pratt, sanitary inspector was present and authorized to proceed with his report re sanitary conditions and to prosecute offenders against sanitary by-law 876.

By-law No. 877 granting a fixed assessment to the Brinton Carpet Company for $15,000 for a period of five years was introduced and given a first and second reading.

By-law No. 888 to provided taking the votes of the electors on a proposed by-law to grant a fixed assessment upon the property of the Brinton Carpet Company was read and passed.

A motion was passed that the clerk be paid $5.80 for attendance before His Honor Judge Huycke for revising the voters' lists.

The special meeting was called for the purpose of hearing the application of the Brinton Carpet Company for a strip of land along the north side of Braidwood avenue joining the property of the company. Reeve Rye explained that the survey and description of the property had been made and filed with the clerk some 3 years ago and in their letter they asked for the extension of the same privleges as granted by the Council at that time. A resolution was passed that the Council grant the Brinton Carpet the same rights and privileges along the north side of Braidwood avenue as those granted to the company some three years ago.

By-law No. 889 levying county and township rates was introduced and regularly read and passed.

By-law No. 890 to levy school rates for the current year was also read and passed.

By-law 891 to appoint John Whitfield tax collector was read and passed.

The Department of Public Highways wrote asking for information as to how the Park street drain was constructed. The Clerk having no information in regard to the construction of this drain was instructed to reply to the department as follows: "Park street is a county road, Suburban Area Road, and therefore under highway act the drain is under the control of the Suburban Area Commission.

The meeting adjourned, the next regular meeting to be held at the Court House on December 15.

1,000 Liquor Depots in Ontario

The Ferguson Idea of "Advanced Temperance Legislation"

Mr. Ferguson says his plan of Government Sale is "advanced temperance legislation." Let us see.

Four Western Provinces, under Government Sale of liquor, have more than 900 lawful liquor selling places.

Quebec has more than 2,000 lawful places for liquor sale.

Yet, bootlegging in the west and in Quebec is rampant.

The Mail and Empire says the brewers of Manitoba and Alberta are lawless—they will not keep the government control law.

The Toronto Telegram says Quebec is "the scene of a deluge of liquor."

More than 1,000 lawful liquor depots will have to be established in Ontario in proportion to our population as compared with the Western Provinces.

Compared with Quebec it would mean more than 2,000 lawful liquor depots in Ontario.

Is that "Advanced Temperance Legislation"?

Certainly, it is not.

Brewers and distillers, bootleggers and rum-runners would not support advanced temperance legislation. They support Ferguson's policy.

Ontario under license had 1,400 taverns and liquor shops. One thousand Government depots mean a Province thrown back into all the evils of the old bar-room days.

If you don't want the liquor trade to write Ontario's liquor laws, defeat the Ferguson Government.

UNTANGLING WAVE LENGTHS

(By Israel Klein, Radio Editor, NEA Service.)

Now that the enthralling problem; "Who's going to pay for broadcasting?" has settled itself in a natural way; another problem bobs up.

It's—how is this tangle of so many broadcasting stations on so few wavelengths going to be solved?

And, as likely as not, this question, too, will answer itself just as naturally. Time, competition, improvements will participate in the ultimate solution.

Meantime, experts of one grade or another are busying themselves. At one time even the present writer had an idea he could contribute to the cause.

He graded the stations as to power, made a survey of all stations in the United States and Canada to discover the average as well as the longest distance of transmission, and then tried to come to some conclusion showing the relationship of power to distance.

No Way Out.

There wasn't any. A station of 1500 watts power would report its average transmitting distance as only 250 miles, while one of 10 watts reported itself heard regularly as far as 1000 miles.

The writer had the idea one wavelength could be distributed in three or even four distinct areas, among stations of varying power, without causing confusion. But the United States was too small for that; locations of stations had a great deal to do with the success of their transmission.

Fortunately, the writer hadn't the temerity even to propose his plan in public before he tested it. The test proved negative, so the plan is dead.

Now, however, comes one with perhaps a much more plausible solution and, certainly, with the boldness the writer lacked. He's Carl Dreher, who offers his idea in an article in the November issue of Radio Broadcast magazine.

Dreher is a student of broadcasting. He knows the business and the engineering sides of this industry. So there is weight to his ideas.

Quality Put First.

His solution to the wavelength problem is to grade broadcasters 50 per cent according to their programs, 25 per cent according to their power, and 25 per cent according to their clearness of transmission or audibility. He stresses ability of a station to get good program material, and therefore places those stations in large areas above others in importance, for they can get the better entertainers.

After classifying the stations, Dreher would divide hours of broadcasting according to their popularity. He would then furnish one wavelength to an average city, and let the stations in that area divide the allotted time among themselves, according to their grades. The highest grade station would get first choice, and so on.

All this division and classification would be made by a suitable federal commission, under supervision of a higher authority, or the courts, and would last a year. For then new stations might arise, with higher power, or better facilities to broadcast good programs, and these should, therefore, be graded accordingly.

All this sounds interesting and plausible. But difficulties arise which might be hard to meet.

A Big Job Ahead.

For instance, no commission could grade a new station for its programs, if it hasn't yet been on the air to show what it could do, unless some tentative arrangement were made. An applicant might produce an attractive program for appraisal and then, after being graded highly, fall back on something silly and uninteresting. It may be certain of its grading for at least a year, anyway.

Then, too, once stations have chosen their hours of broadcasting, what would be done in case of special programs, like the presidential inauguration, or the world series and such? These occur in the afternoon, during less popular hours, when the lower grade stations have the air, according to this plan.

The lower grade stations would then have the privilege of broadcasting the highest quality programs, unless they were willing to step down for their masters.

Chain programs, too, would cause a tangle, for a high-grade station, having only the two best hours to broadcast, would miss some of the hours sent out on any of the chains.

Then, the poor commission that would have the job of grading stations!

Well, the idea is there. It might be a basis for some real workable end to this wavelength matter.

Radio Enters Schools In Vast Education Program

Radio has undertaken its biggest job by helping educate the children of the United States. On the Pacific coast, down south, in New England, everywhere, radio receivers are installed in classrooms, lessons are broadcast from studios and teachers are supplementing their courses with voices from the air.

Here's a classroom in a school at West Hartford, Conn., one of 50 that are listening in on a course in music appreciation, given every other Wednesday afternoon from station WTIC at Hartford. More than 275,000 children in five New England states are following this course.

The authority of the states and the school boards is behind the course. A. B. Meredith, Connecticut commissioner of education, in upper inset, worked out the original plan, with the co-operation of Dana S. Merriman, shown below, shown below, former supervisor of music in the West Hartford schools and now musical director of station WTIC.

NOW TWIN STATIONS

A permanent hook-up has been arranged between the Gimbel Brothers stations WGBS, New York, and WIP, Philadelphia. Station WIBG, Atlantic City, may enter the hook-up soon.

COPPER AND RADIO

The "average" radio receiver requires about two pounds of copper in all forms. It is used as coil winding, antenna or loops, lead-in wires, switches and other connections.

A BEDTIME STORY

D. C. Famenko, of Kharkov, Russia, reports that he heard a WOC, Davenport, Ia., concert in Kharkov, using a bedspring for an aerial and a small radio set. Radio "experts" think that the concert became tired traveling so far and made for the bed, giving Famenko a record for bedspring receiving.

BIBLE CLASS A SUCCESS

The success of the first course in Bible study from KFUO, St. Louis, has encouraged station officials to conduct a second similar course which will meet every Friday evening during October and November.

CHILDREN ACT STORIES

Mary Postell, assistant superintendent of Atlanta, Ga., public schools, has found that it is more effective to have children in elementary grades enact stories while they are being received over radio in their classrooms than to depend on the ear alone.

PROBLEM OF USED SETS IS SOLVED

By NEA Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—Radio dealers here plan to profit from the sad experience of the automobile dealers in their attempted solution of the used-car mystery.

They've decided on a definite policy to which all members of the Pacific Radio Trade Association promise to adhere. By attacking the used-set problem from the beginning, the dealers hope to avoid the difficulties into which the automobile trade has entangled itself.

A survey made among the Pacific coast dealers shows that about one-fourth of the present radio owners would like to turn in their sets for better ones. There was quite a difference of opinion as to the allowance to be made, so as to come through without a loss.

A committee of the association has, however, recommended an allowance of fifty per cent of what the dealer estimates may be the receiver's resale value, after it has been put back into saleable shape. The original price couldn't be considered, because of the great decrease in set prices in the last year or so.

Homemade sets have little or no chance to be turned in on an allowance for another set, on the Pacific coast territory at least. One reason is the greater difficulty to re-sell such a set than a standard factory-built receiver. But the greater reason is that its resale may be illegal due to the possibility of its hook-up infringing on existing patents.

A Scotsman called in at our office and told us he had Biblical authority for installing a radio.

"How come?" asked the office boy.

"Well, don't you remember how Adam traded a spare part and got a loud speaker!"

RADIO SET MADE FROM DUMP HEAP

By NEA Service.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 27.—From a navy dump heap has come the world's smallest and most efficient radio transmitting and receiving set!

Marine corps necessity was the mother of this invention.

Now Captain Francis E. Pierce, communications officer for the Aircraft Squadrons, West Coast Expeditionary Force, United States Marine Corps, receives the plaudits of the world for producing a set which weighs, including sender, receiver, batteries and aerials, 17 1-4 pounds.

The transmitter, nine inches tall and 10 inches broad, weighs only 5¼ pounds.

The success of this tiny set is based on the frequency used (on the 3000-4000 kilocycle band), for on this frequency it attains greater distance for the power expended than do ordinary transmitters. Installed in an airplane and operated under flying conditions, its messages may be heard 3000 miles away under ordinary conditions.

For the past two years officers and enlisted men of the group here have been spending their personal funds to keep the radio work going, and, digging old parts from the government trash heap, have produced the "wonder set."

The whole transmitter is slung in shock absorber cord and arranged for mounting in the rear of the cockpit, seldom requiring attention once adjusted.

This new instrument is particularly adaptable for use on airmail planes, for their present wireless equipment weighs from 125 to 150 pounds.

RADIO the Voice of the Air

THE WIDOWED HOUSE - By Jeanette

"Nobody knows what a red-headed Mamma can do——"

The jazz orchestra was making a valiant last-minute effort to keep up the standard of gaiety which was supposed to animate at all times the interior of the Mexique Night Club and to instil in its patrons a desire to come again and again. The man with the white face who spent his mornings in sleep, his afternoons marking in a billiard parlor and his evenings singing in cafes, trolled out the cheap strains with weary emphasis.

At one of the tables in a corner, a man rose violently and pushed back his chair. It fell clattering to the floor. A woman in the group at the table giggled shrilly, with a note of hysteria in the merriment which had found most of its inspiration in the pocket-flask that lay openly on the table beside her. She caught at the man's sleeve as he passed her, but he ignored the feeble pull and made his way hastily to the checkroom, where he seized his coat and hat and pulled them on with nervous haste.

Outside, the snow was falling in large flakes that clung wetly to the clothing of the few passers-by on the shadowy street. The man turned up his coat collar and plunged his hands deep into his pockets. He would walk home, he decided, pausing for a moment to light a cigarette. A particularly large blob of moist snow descended on the lighted match and quenched it before it could ignite the tobacco. He exclaimed harshly under his breath, threw the cigarette away, and strode on.

Some time later, for it was a four-mile walk from the uptown cafe to the quiet residence section where he lived, he let himself in with a latchkey at his own front door and turned on the light in the hall. He made a noiseless way up the stairs and into the room where a small child lay asleep. In the next room he heard the low breathing of the nurse. Turning up the coverlet which had slipped aside in the baby's restless twistings and turnings, he tiptoed out of the room and down to the floor below, into a living-room which might have been cheerful if the fire had been lighted in the grate and the dust wiped from the table and the books which lay cluttered on its surface.

He threw himself into a chair and pulled a pipe from his pocket. Lighting it, he gazed moodily at the empty grate. A year ago, another Christmas Eve had dawned in this house, but it had been a merry night. Agatha was with him then. The house had been bright with lights and warmth, and holly wreaths hung in the windows. Preparations for the morrow's dinner were in the making. The pungent smell of the turkey dressing sent its scent of sage and savory through the rooms.

Over the mind of the man who stared ahead of him as he pulled on the pipe fell the faint film which came so often now between him and orderly thought. He did not mind this peculiar blurring of mental functions that seemed to bring with it surcease from the almost intolerable mental agony that held him in thrall, but the doctor whom he consulted from time to time had made a most alarming symptom out of it. "If you can't shake this obsession from your mind, you are going to end up in the nuthouse," he had said brutally during their last interview.

So the man had tried. He had gone out to night clubs and cafes and dance halls and he had soused himself, time and again, with drink, in vain efforts to throw off this shadowy menace. But time and time again, it returned, laying soft fingers of benumbing force on his brain. If he could sleep, he might be able to drive it from him, with the memories that persisted in returning again and again. But he couldn't sleep.

Rising suddenly, he reached for a book on the table. Poems of Katharine Tynan, these were, and they had been special favorites of Agatha's. In her soft low voice, she had read them to him in the days before she had gone away. Riffling the leaves absently, he came on "The Widowed House," with its poignant verses:

"Within your house that's widowed,
Love's nest is bitter cold,
Love goes with drooping pinions,
his step is slow and old.
Your baby cries all night long, for you he never knew,
The dust is over all things, the grave dust over you.
'Twere liker you to hasten, putting the glory by,
To smooth your love's cold forehead
and hush your baby's cry,
'Twere liker you'd come stealing, a little ghost in white,
To rock a tiny cradle in the hushed
moonlight,
To whisper to a sleeper 'till he should stir and wake
And find the strange new comfort and lose the old heartbreak."

A renewal of the throbbing heart agony which had been his companion for so long came to the man as he closed the book and put it back on the table. He went to the window and pushed the curtains aside to look out into the night. She was there, somewhere, perhaps. It was not like her to forsake him. Wherever she was now, couldn't she send him some message of hope and comfort? She knew, as he did, that it was not the thought of her death that troubled him so greatly, but the feeling that she was gone forever and ever. In the early days of their marriage, Agatha had tried to make him see that there was something beyond the grave, that absolute negation was not the rule of the great Master, but he had clung pridefully to his theories. It was only since she had finally gone from him forever in an earthly way that he had longed for something different, for some hope of a future reunion and of a presence somewhere in the vast space that could bring him assuagement of this grinding pain of the heart.

He thought, in the moody recesses of a brain that was slowly succumbing to the touch of madness that if Agatha had any existence in a spirit world, she would come to him tonight. But there was no spark of hope in the sombre eyes as he turned back into the room and went to the radio. Turning the little black dials, he got a late dancing broadcast. The strains of "Valencia" poured into the room. With a grimace, again he turned the dials, and an operatic duett crashed into the air. Leaving the connection open, he went back to the chair and sat down, staring fixedly at the instrument. Once again, he had lost the link between his will and the motive power which would allow him to turn off the contact. He could do nothing but sit quietly and let the hazy mental fog drift and glimmer about him. The music went on. The soprano climbed high on a "sour" note and the tenor made a valiant effort to keep up with her. The man listened, unheeding. The strains died away and again the room was silent.

Sitting there, hands clasped tensely, eyes staring into space, the faint strains of an old song came to the half-conscious listener. From the radio it flowed out to him in peaceful music, without an accompaniment, just a woman's voice singing without much straining after effect, the words of an old-time favorite, "Long, Long Ago."

Like soothing fingers on a tired brow came the mild, plaintive words of the refrain: "Now you are come, all my grief is removed. I shall forget that so long you have roved. Sing me the songs I delighted to hear,—long, long ago, long ago."

It was Agatha's song and Agatha's voice. That was the song she had loved, and here at his knee she had crooned it, just a year ago, sitting with her head resting against him and her soft voice going over the sweet refrain. He listened eagerly. She had come back to him, then. She was waiting for him somewhere and she knew his pain and his need of her. The soft music flowed over her weary spirit. With a little sigh, his head relaxed and fell back to the cushion behind it. He slept quietly—for the first time in many long months.

The music ceased. In the broadcasting station, miles away, a singer yawned widely as she stepped down from the little platform and turned her head from the equipment which had been sending her voice so far away to shadowy listeners.

"Just a bit of sentiment, I suppose," she said, smiling tiredly at the little group behind her. "That was always a favorite of mine and I had a friend once who used to sing it just like that, without an accompaniment. She died a few months ago. I can't get her out of my mind to-night. So I wanted to end the programme with her special song."

SUN NEVER SETS FOR RADIO

By Nea Service.

FRAMINGHAM, Mass.,—Nov. 27.—Everett Gibbs, local radio amateur, recently carried on a three-cornered conversation with an amateur in England and another in New Zealand.

The three stations exchanged greetings and news for several hours and finally left each other so that the Englishman could go to his morning's work, Gibbs could turn in for some late sleep, and the New Zealander could eat his lunch!

Here are just a few of the artists who nicked A. Atwater Kent for a good-sized bank roll when they signed up for this season's Sunday evening concerts. Left to right, standing: Allen McQuhae, tenor; Albert Spalding, violinist; Reinald Werrenrath, baritone; Louis Edlin, orchestra conductor; Charles Hackett, tenor. Seated: Anna Case, soprano; A. Atwater Kent; Mary Lewis, soprano; Ann Mack, soprano.

THE RADIO CLUB

What It Means To Peterborough. By James Turnbull.

Radio, perhaps more than any other modern invention, has succeeded in bringing the peoples of the world together.

Only a few years ago, the explorer, the forest ranger, the Mounted Police on outpost duty in the far north were exiles from the remainder of the world during their periods of service.

Practically their only means of communication with the outside world was mail received at indefinite intervals, sometimes with a space of from a year to two years between letters.

On these letters depended their knowledge of the events of the world. Apart from these, however, their life was somewhat desolate.

With the advent of the radio, a radical change was enacted.

Almost overnight, the radio became one of the most popular machines in use in the world. What was at first considered a passing craze, became almost a necessity to the modern home.

As time went on, improvements in the manufacture were almost a daily occurrence, resulting in a machine almost superhuman in its powers.

No longer are the men, the outposts of the Empire, doomed to spend dreary days, and even drearier nights, in the lonely northern regions.

To-day we find a radio post in the farthest north post of the mounted police. These men are thus enabled to listen in on the same music and enjoy the concerts that their more fortunate brethren in the settled portions hardly give a thought to, so common is, what was not so long ago, a unique experience.

A. B. Gates, an electrical engineer with the Canadian General Electric Company, Peterborough, was probably the first real radio fan produced in the city.

Some three or four years ago, when what is now a stupendous industry was in its infancy, Mr. Gates gave probably the majority of the citizens their first experience with the new invention.

Many members of the Kiwanis Club will recollect a ladies' night held in the Empress Hotel, when the radio was billed as the chief attraction. At this particuar gathering Mr. Gates gave an interesting talk on the radio, and vented the opinion that before many years it would attain a stage that was then beyond the comprehension of the ordinary mortal.

Everything went fine for a while; the machine was set up, the only thing lacking was the music. It commenced to come, but not quite according to schedule. One moment you would have music, and the next a series of squeaks and squaks. Compared with radio to-day the effort was probably a fizzle, but to the heart of the radio fan it was only the foreteer of what was to be.

The same gentleman was responsible for the firts radio concert ever held in connection with a church in the city. At Knox church he succeeded in filling the large lecture hall to capacity to hear for themselves the wonders of radio.

Fortunately for him, the night proved to be a huge success, several stations being brought in with considerable volume and clearness.

Human nature is a queer thing. Where, three or four short years ago, the radio was on the tongue of everyone, and only the privileged few had been enabled to hear it in operation, to-day if you were to stage a radio concert, you would probably be greeted with an empty house, so used have people become to the novelty.

As the radio has developed people demand a great deal more from their machines than heretofore. When they tune in on a programme they feel they must get it perfectly or else a person sees the crowd of radio fans congregating next morning to retail their troubles to the remainder of the office.

This spirit of brotherhood that seems to prevail among the radio owners was so evident that in Peterborough it led to the formation of a Radio Club.

This club, which is now past the infant stage, is counted one of the city's most progressive organizations.

Meeting once a month, the members hear the various problems that affect radio discussed; they hear of the causes of interference and how it can be prevented; and have the service of Government inspectors at their disposed whenever needed.

The officers of the Peterborough Radio Club are as follows: Honorary President, Mayor W. T. Holloway; President, H. O. Fisk; Vice-President, D. Loucks; Secretary-Treasurer, R. D. Taylor. Executive Committee—Alderman R. S. Cotton, S. Goulet, Fred Roy, J. McGrath, A. Sollitt, George Green, O. Cranfield, R. Hanscom, A. B. Gates, and Alex. McGregor.

WILD WAVES

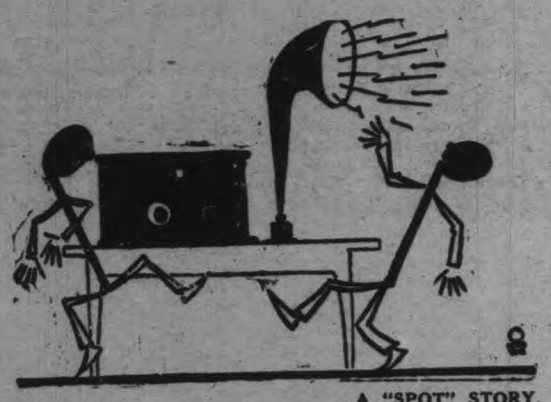
By Hall Cochran

Ya sit before yer radio and turn the dials 'round. Ya monkey with the bloomin' set until some spot is found where jazzy music's being played. Ya think it's pretty sof'—and just about that time they say: "Good night, we're signing off."

So, 'round the dials go again. Ya still crave snappy airs. Most any place that broadcasts is all right with you. Who cares, just so the sweetest melodies come in from out of sight. At last, you're in again. And then, "We're signing off. Good night."

Yer bloomin' patience sure is tried. And so is every station. You hit all sorts of wavelengths till you've likely scanned the nation. Too often, 'stead of music, do you get a rasp and cough, and sudden declaration that the station's signing off.

What are the wild waves saying? That's a question we've all heard. The answer's very simple. You don't know it. That's absurd. Just tune in on your radio: you'll solve the problem right, and nine times out of ten the waves will simply say, "Good night."



A "SPOT" STORY.

A young man dashed into a crowded night club.

"Has this place been raided?" he asked the head waiter.

"Raided!" the waiter replied. "No. Does it look like it?"

AUDIENCE HAS BIG PART IN GOOD BROADCASTING

By Nea Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The audience has become almost as important a part of broadcasting as the artists themselves.

By its introduction into the evening's program, broadcasting directors find they instill a more natural flavor into what other wise might be a stilted, half-hearted performance.

This was manifest recently at the first Saturday night performance of the New York Symphony Orchestra, which the famous Walter Damrosch directed for an hour over the WEAF chain of stations.

It was first more out of curiosity in the experiment, rather than interest in the music itself, that about two hundred radio fans, some fifty radio executives, and a few music lovers gathered in the small room at Carnegie Hall to listen to this concert. But they come in quietly, not like the regular audience, and waited almost breathlessly for the orchestra to appear.

The musicians wore full dress to feel at home. When they entered, the little audience applauded.

"No applause, please," asked Damrosch. But the announcer at the studio suggested it was altogether appropriate.

"Well," thought the director. "if applause is wanted there ought to be plenty." When he said so, the announcer again interposed.

"Not so generous—just natural," he suggested.

The applause became an integral part of the program as the evening wore on—a finishing touch to each selection.

DUMB FELLOW.

GRANDMOTHER—How did you like that jar of marmalade I sent you?"

GRANDSON—Why, was that marmalade? I've been using it to stick stamps in my album.—Answers, London.

BOSTON ORCHESTRA CONCERTS

By NEA Service.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 27.—Station WBZ, here, has completed its schedule of Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts which are to be broadcast by that station.

The following are the dates for these orchestra broadcasts. A date dollowed by an asterisk indicates that WJZ, New York, WGY, Schenectady, N.Y., and WRC, Washington, will rebroadcast the program:

December 4*, 11*, 18, 25*.
January 1, 15, 22*, 29*.
February 12, 19*, 26*.
March 5*, 19, 26.
April 2, 16*, 23*, 30*.

AFTERNOON CHAIN

The afternoon programs of WEAF New York, will soon be broadcast by a large chain of stations. WLIT, Philadelphia, and WRC, Washington, are the first stations to be linked to WEAF for simultaneous broadcasting of afternoon programs.

NEW ZEALAND STATIONS

Auckland, New Zealand, has a new broadcasting station with call letters 1YA. This station has 500 watt power. A similar broadcaster is being installed at Christchurch, New Zealand.

BURR

Henry Burr is the leader of the popular radio group known as the "Goodrich Zippers," which is heard from WEAF, New York and chain stations. His voice is tenor and especially suitable for broadcasting. Burr is a large man, weighing well over 200 pounds, athletic and a sportsman. We included this because we thought you know all about his vocal talent. If you don't, then you will have a treat when you tune him in some Thursday night.

Too much credit cannot be given to chain station programs. Some of the best programs offered to listeners are made available to smaller stations by the chain hook-up. However, too many small stations are depending entirely upon a relay program for anything worth while and the programs which originate in their studios have become uninteresting and inferior. No successful station will allow its individuality to be overshadowed by a relay program.

At least the howl we hear about broadcasting regulation can't be blamed on static or sun spots!

What's your air signature? Air signatures are the latest fad for radio entertainers. Som unusual and distinctive sound is used whenever the entertainer is on the air so the listener can associate it with the entertainer. This may be an excellent stunt but we promise shooting for an entertainer who picks out the sound of a dentist's drill for an air signature.

SCOTT

Alicia Scott sang her way to grand opera by means of radio. She has been appearing at station KGO, Oakland, California. Madame Luella Melius, internationally famous grand opera star, listened to her voice and decided that Miss Scott had talent for grand opera, so she is providing the youthful singer an opportunity for training. Part of the training will take place in Italy next year.

The "teen-age" boy and girl finally get the recognition so long denied them by radio. In the past they had to content themselves with either the bedtime story or programs for adults. Now, station WBCN, Chicago, has a Hobby Club which deals with the hobbies of youngsters. This club claims a membership of 50,000.

Harry Reisser, who not only makes a banjo talk, but makes it shout and sing, plays that instrument in the Clicquot Club Eskimos aggregation which appears before the WEAF, New York, microphone every Thursday evening. Reisser is one of the best known and most capable banjoists in the country. His playing is responsible for many dials being set to the WEAF wave length every Thursday evening.

This year promises to be excellent for home-town boosters. Commerce Club eulogies and native state ballyhoos. WCAE, Pittsburgh, has a plan to put small neighboring towns on the map by allowing a different community in Pennsylvania, Ohio, or West Virginia to sponsor a program each week. WMAQ, Chicago, is going to permit governors of various states to use its microphone to broadcast all about the beauties and attractions of their home states. Governor Alfred W. Smith of New York began the series October 2 and other governors will be heard each Saturday night until June.

Radio fans soon may need a knowledge of Esperanto to enjoy radio programs if this "universal language" continues its rapid development. Winifred Sackville Stoner, foremost woman Esperantist, says Esperanto will soon become the official language of radio. Already songs and plays for radio have been written in Esperanto, and Esperanto lessons are heard from many American broadcast stations.

Anna Case, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, frequently appears at a radio studio to treat fans with a concert. She is one of the stars of the season on the Atwater Kent programs from WEAF, New York. In addition to this season's first appearance, she probably will be heard again before the winter season of broadcasting comes to a close.

Sopranos win! Station WBBM, Chicago, has found that though the high-pitched voice may be an evil, it is an evil that must be tolerated. Barred for more than a year at the WBBM studio, sopranos have been reinstated in the good graces of the dictators of the air. This gives wise-crackers an opportunity to use those old jokes about "radio sopranos" once again.

* * *

Paul Steindorff, famous opera conductor, is radio's latest convert. Station KGO, Oakland, Calif., gets his services and the fans who tune in on the KGO wavelength can expect exceptional musical entertainment during Steindorff's time on the air. Broadcasting is making rapid progress if the increased number of famous musicians who are serving this field is any indication.

* * *

The Five Messner Brothers, who comprise an orchestra often heard from WOR, Newark, N. J., are really brothers and their ages range from 16 to 24.

Roberta Glanville, former member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has joined the WBAL, Baltimore, staff of broadcasting artists and will be heard from that station. She possesses a warm, flexible voice of exceptional range and quality, and has appeared in joint recital with many celebrated artists, including Antonio Scotti, noted baritone. She will be heard once a week as soprano member of WBAL's Mixed Quartet and as soloist.

Broadcasting no longer is a bottle-fed industry. Musicians who snubbed a studio appearance with the grand gesture of upstage superiority have changed their attitude. As proof comes the announcement that Devera Nadworney has canceled her contract with the Chicago Civic Opera Company to devote her time to broadcasting with the WEAF Grand Opera Company. As an example of the power and influence of broadcasting, there is the case of Joseph Diskay, Hungarian tenor, who established himself by means of radio appearances as one of the outstanding tenor voices on the Pacific coast.

Eugene Konecky is the Dizzy Izzy wise-cracker who is president of the Blah Club and its boobish membership. His hang-out chiefly is in the main part of the studio of WOAW, Omaha. However, he occasionally slinks into a corner to drink deep of the philosophies of Plato, Aristotle, Nietzsche and others, to emerge again and fill the ether with his satiric and laughing sallies on politics, art, love, marriage and other "blah."

"No other single factor in broadcasting is so certain to increase radio set sales as prize fight," says George H. Kiley, radio sales manager. "Since the first big broadcast, that of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight five years ago, dealers have always looked for heavy increases in sales before every prize fight broadcast." Kiley probably isn't far wrong. We sympathized with performers who were on the air at the same time as the Dempsey-Tunney fight broadcast.

Phil Kuhlman is the noted basso who was awarded a gold medal from King Edward VII of England in 1908 for touching the lowest note ever reached by a base singer. Kuhlman has sung with many prominent opera companies and has just completed a concert tour of Australia. He was "discovered" in Cincinnati by station WLW and kept postal authorities busy delivering fan mail for many days after his concert at that station.

The ingenuity of women leads them to make many applications of the scientific football talks presented by Tom McNamara from KOA, Denver. One woman on a far away ranch wrote in asking for the diet of a halfback in training. "Seems to me," she said, "this football diet would give me more strength." However, this telegram floored McNamara: "Wire at once, are they wearing raccoon or mink coats to the game this fall?"

Station KNX, Los Angeles, threw a glorious birthday party on the night of its anniversary. Visitors at the studio got away with 1300 bottles of soft drinks, 15 gallons of brick ice-cream and nearly 100 glasses of orange juice. No furniture was reported missing.

Russian music seems to be in popular demand over the radio, according to many broadcasters. The ardent DX fan probably likes to make himself believe that he is listening to a station just this side of Siberia.

Radio engineers get comparatively little attention considering that they developed broadcasting and continue to make it possible. Walter R. Lindsay, chief operator of WMAQ, Chicago, has led a colorful life, following radio around the globe. During the past 16 years radio has been his love, pleasure and profession. He has done a great deal for radio and radio has returned the compliment many times.

A telegram that told a sad story why Leslie Joy couldn't appear on schedule for his announcements at WEAF, New York, one night was: "Hit skunk stalled motor raissed train arrive 10:15 to-night.—Leslie Joy."

Station WKRC, Cincinnati, uses time on its broadcast schedule to tell fans how to operate their sets efficiently. We hope the owners of howling sets in our neighborhood hear of this.

Paul Specht, Broadway orchestra leader, is a busy man, according to his own schedule of day's routine. His concerts at WJZ, New York, from 11 to midnight, are not the climax of the day but simply an interval between his evening concerts and early morning appearances. As an entertainer, Specht has learned that people seek amusement at odd and inconvenient hours, but it's all in the great game of giving people what they want when they want it.

Old jokes heard over the radio are as full of life as dead B batteries. At least, you can use the battery to clean the furnace flue.

Station WTAG, Worcester, Mass., has an original orchestra on its broadcast program. The orchestra doesn't try to be "cute," "funny" or "unusual." It's simply natural and in its humble way tries to give listeners as many of the new songs published during the week as is possible.

Most stations have abolished request numbers and also refuse to acknowledge mail or telegrams on the air. Too many "interested parties" took advantage of requests to plug a song they wanted to make popular and too many publicity seekers used acknowledgments to get their names on the air.

Brokenshire

Norman Brokenshire is now featured announcer at station WFBH, New York. Brokenshire won a large following when he was on the WJZ announcing staff and handled many of the important programs there. Brokenshire resigned from WJZ to conduct a school for announcers and radio entertainers, but he decided to go back to the regular pay check plan and is devoting all of his time to WFBH.

A WTAG, Worcester, Mass., fan coined a new word, or at least changed a noun to an excellent verb for broadcast purposes when he asked the station to "air" a performer again.

Harold Gallagher was announcing a dance program from WTAM, Cleveland, when a telephone was brought to him. "This is Detroit," said a voice on the other end of the wire, "and we want to settle a bet. We want to know how long it takes a program to travel from Cleveland to Detroit." Gallagher put the telephone near the microphone so the listener could hear the music both by phone and radio. The listener shouted "Hurrah! I win," then slammed the receiver.

Sebel

Frances Sebel, American lyric soprano with WEAF Grand Opera Company, is recognized by radio fans as an entertaining and delightful artist. She is also remembered by many music lovers as one of the popular soloists of Goldman Band during its 1924 season. One of her outstanding specialties is her interpretations of native Hungarian gypsy songs.

After listening to a number of anniversary programs we've decided that stations should have a birthday twice a year. It's a good excuse for an excellent program.

There are almost 600 active radio stations in the United States, but on some nights most of them sound static!

Believe it or not, but—it's said a large mid-western hotel which conscientiously co-operates with a radio station refuses to serve soup when the dining-room orchestra is on the air.

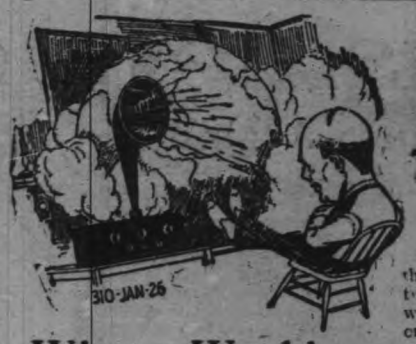
CHURCHE'S FIFTH YEAR

The Chicago Central Church is entering its fifth year of broadcasting through station KYW. The church services are non-sectarian and instead of being held in a church are broadcast Sunday mornings from Orchestra Hall in Chicago.

AUTO BATTERY STRONG

Auto storage batteries are designed to supply a heavy rush of current for a short time and are not adaptable for permanent use on a radio set. Radio sets require a small amount of current over a comparatively long period

BUGS BY SMALL



BUGS By C. J. Beauclerc

There are bugs and bugs. There's the man who has just returned from two weeks of standing in lonely woods and eating meals well flavored with cinders, all in hopes of getting a deer, and he says he's had a fine time. His neighbor will sit on a bank or in a boat for hours at a time, hoping patiently to land a fish. Even if he doesn't get a nibble he enjoys it. Bugs, both of them.

Any night you go into a pool room, a dance hall, or a bowling alley, you can find pretty much the same crowd, playing the same games, stepping the same steps, and talking about the same subject. There are people who bemoan the fact that the schedule followed by the local movie houses makes it impossible for them to go every night to see their handsome heroes or beautiful queens of the silver screen. All bugs.

Right now a lot of people have what might be called the political buk. They go to meetings and argue on the street corners, at work, at home, wherever they find anybody to talk with them. For the sake of argument they will talk against their own opinions just to find somebody to differ with them. When the campaign is over they will argue on the result. Then they will forecast the next electoin. Municipal votes, lodge elections, anything will do. Just bugs.

Within the next few weeks you will see a lot of people wending their way towards Broc kstreet. They will go there and sit in a zero atmosphere, yelling themselves hoarse at a bunch of fellows chasing a little black disc up and down the ice. Next summer a lot of the same fellows will be over at Riverside hollering their heads of for other chaps, or maybe girls, throwing and hitting a ball. Bugs again.

But lately there has grown up another class of bug, one which was unknown ten years ago. You've all heard them, "I get as much fun out of my little two-tube set as the fellows with the big ones, and it doesn't cost me a dollar a month." "The other day I had San Francisco as clear as a bell." "I've had thirty stations in one night." Their talk bristles with circuits, neutrodyne, heterodox, orthodox, or any other word of vague significance to the lay mine. They argue volubly about the merits of hook-ups, loud speakers vs. earphones, indoor aerials against outdoor.

The uninitiated, hearing them talk, gathers that the five tube set is better than the eight, the two better than the five, the one better than that again. The home-made set, constructed of material picked up around the neighborhood, with an old bed spring as an antenna, would seem to be better than the costly set built in a fine cabinet of the best of parts by skilled workmen.

It's a tricky business. Your friend says: "Come on up to the house and hear my radio; it's better than going home to listen to the same old records on this phonograph of yours."

You go, secretely resolving to trade the talking machine in. After considerably monkeying with the dials, with resultant loud squawks, you hear a squeaky tenor or croaking bass singing, "Yes, sir, she's my baby." "Why," you say, "I have that record at home." Some more turning. Another song you could hear at home. At last you get a new popular song. You hear it once and turn to another station. The same song!

"But think of the lectures and other attractions!" your friend cries. He turns the dials again. A lecture on the care of pigs, or on how to make angel cake. The political speaker you wanted to hear is not on the air to-night.

Yet they seem to enjoy it. You look for them at lodge or at church and find their seats missing. They won't come to see the Petes play; can hear a pro. game on the radio. The party has no charms; they must try to get thatnew station. Who would go to hear the local candidates when he can hear the leader of the party, and shut him off if he gets too dry. Like everybody else, they're bugs, and the fellow that laughs at them is bugs about something else; so its fifty-fifty.

What a World This Would Be If Prophets Right

(By Israel Klein, Radio Editor, NEA Service.)

When radio grows up out of its present state of infancy, there will be no end to its powers.

Self-styled prophets already are predicting wonders such as the world never dreamed, to become every-day matters under the spell of radio. Everything will be done by radio, if these prophets are to be believed. We'll sleep, eat, walk and ride by radio.

Every one of our five senses, and perhaps even our sixth, will be satisfied by radio. We'll be the wonders o wonders. f

It is the inherent right of all of us to predict. Especially do we take advantage of this right when something new and thought-provoking arises. We let our imagination soar and, based on the wonders already attained through scientific achievement, it rises to much higher level than the wildest thoughts of all Jules Vernes of the past.

And so we get from one prophet to-day the prediction that radio will be the final God-send of the universe. It will deliver our coal to our doors. It will give us our daily bread with the ease to which only a choice few to-day are accustomed.

It will grow our fruits and vegetables almost without our own labor. It will lengthen our days and shorten our rest periods, yet all this for our own blissful pleasures.

Another self-appointed prophet of radio has it that a few years hence will see us crossing the ocean on pilotless ships and in radio-directed airplanes. Wars will be fought without men, except those at the radio-control levers far from the scenes of battle. Safe, yet highly destructive engagements.

Some of these predictions, to be sure, are results of genuine foresight based on effects already obtained in the field of radio.

There's television for instance. We have that to-day—in very crude form but promising.

There's also radio control of trains and other moving objects. This lets us predict with reason the ultimate in this field—radio-controlled warships and airplanes in future wars.

But there's nothing as yet on which we could base such predictions as have been attempted by some brave enthusiasts—eating, sleeping and even thinking by radio, and all that.

If these did come true, this world would begin to be a drab, uninteresting old globe. We'd have nothing more to live for, nothing to work for, no competition to make life worth while.

That's a prediction, but it's one based on the wild dreams of other prophets and therefore dependent on their fulfillment.

Which, let's pray, will never ensue.

Over The Sea

Voice Reaches Out To Spain.

One of the few in America who can say their voices have reached across the oceans, is James H. MacLafferty, assistant to Secretary of Commerce Hoover. The late Rudolf Valentino heard him while in Spain, as he tuned in on station WAHG, of New York. MacLafferty tried his voice again over WAHG recently, but hasn't heard of any distance records yet.

of the radio, problems that still await final settlement—the question of deciding on international radio relationships and of guarding against attempts to create private monopolies in broadcasting are two of the most pressing.

If radio is to fulfil its destiny as the creator of a new unity not only among our own people, but among the countries of the world as the universal and all pervading system for the distribution of thought it can only be through unselfish co-operation of all concerned—governments, listeners-in, broadcasting experts, and singers, speakers and all who provide entertainment and enlightenment for transmission through the ether.

RADIO AIDS CHURCHES

Radio religious broadcasts are filling the churches rather than emptying them, according to a survey of Springfield (Mass.) churches which have had their services broadcast from WBZ.

ON REMOTE CONTROL

Station KNX, Los Angeles, has now nine remote-control panels. Every panel is used for a different type of entertainment by the station.

DRAIN WATER FIRST

Water should be drained from cold water pipes before a wire is soldered on the pipe for a radio receiving ground. The solder will not stick properly to the cold pipe.

MAKE OWN PROGRAMS

"My Program" is a series presented by many English broadcast stations. Prominent persons are requested to compose their "ideal" programs and hese are followed during the "My Program" series.

RADIO ARTISTS AID

The Atlanta Community Chest enlisted the services of 30 outstanding figures in the city's musical field for a daily series of entertainments at WSB to aid in the annual campaign for funds.

DON'T DOPE BATTERY

Users of storage batteries should beware of various substances marketed from time to time as panaceas for battery ills, warn engineers of the New Jersey State College of Agriculture. Investigation showed that these products were epsom salts and a small part of potassium-aluminum sulphate.

RADIO BOOSTS OPERA

Radio is doing more to popularize opera than any other one agency, according to Charles Hackett, popular tenor of the Chicago Civic Opera, who predicts that opera will soon become an American institution sung in English.

POWER CLEARS SIGNALS

By increasing the power of station KNX, Los Angeles, 50 per cent the programs were heard with greater clarity in cities that before complained of imperfections. Thousands of letters and cards were received by the station, complimenting on the change.

PROGRAM FOR QUEEN

When Her Majesty Queen Marie of Rumania and the royal party journeyed between Philadelphia and New York they were entertained by radio with a special program from WOR, Newark, N.J., which was dedicated to Her Majesty.

CHINA'S NEW STATION

A new broadcast station is in the course of construction at Mukden, China. It'll be a long distance target for American fans.

WPAP STAYS ON AIR

Radio station WPAP, which was built for spring and summer use at Palisades Amusement Park, New Jersey, will continue throughout the year, using a remote control panel at a New York City theater. The control unit will be maintained at the park.

AND MUSIC

Is It a Good or Bad Influence.

By W. EDGAR

The discovery of wireless telegraphy and the development of radio transmission is probably the most important, as it is the most spectacular scientific achievement in recent years. It has not yet lost its novelty and its effect on the minds and habits of the people who make use of it is a subject for profound investigation by all students of social science.

Radio at present might be compared to a man who has lived all his life in obscurity and poverty and is suddenly raised to a position of immense influence and power. From being an experimental toy of electrical experts and enthusiasts, it leaped into sudden popularity, became a force in public opinion, and a universal caterer of news and amusement. It has been described as a revival, on a world-wide scale of the Roman Forum and has been hailed as a possible means of the salvation of the popular representative forms of government, and as holding out the promise of becoming the medium for the bringing of peace among the warring nations of the world.

On the other hand there are those who, distrustful of the capacity of material advancement and invention to aid in the moral and intellectual progress of mankind, find in it merely another amusing enticement, to be used simply and solely as a means of pleasure, with little consideration of its possibilities as an aid in the march forward of society to a better order of things. Pessimists point to the movies, which, it was predicted, would be the means of revolutionizing our educational processes. The charge is made, and the accusation cannot be denied, that the commercializing of the movies has reduced their educational value to a negligible quantity, and similar fears are entertained from the coming of the radio. It is a vast and wonderful power that has been entrusted to the keeping of mankind. How is it to be controlled? How can it be operated so as to produce the most beneficial results on the world at large? Is it another monster, which humanity, as a reckless Frankenstein, has created, and which it has not yet learned to subdue? The radio exerts its influence over the most stupendous field in the universe—the minds of men. It can be either an instrument for illimitable good, for mental progress, for the stimulation of thought and activity, or it can be capable of effecting untold harm and the degradation of millions. It is at once a promise and a threat; can be either a menace or a bulwark to our dearly-won civilization.

The transmission of music has been and probably will continue to be for a long time, the chief function of radio broadcasting. The complaint that we Anglo-Saxons are not a musical race is rapidly becoming groundless, and a portion at least of the increased taste for good music must be credited to the radio.

Practically all ages of mankind have borne testimony to the enjoyment of music as one of the purest of pleasures, and as an ennobling influence on the minds of men and women. Some of our Puritan forefathers, looking with suspicion on anything that created a feeling of pleasure held that "sweet music at the first delighteth the ears, but afterwards corrupteth and depraveth the mind;" but this adverse judgment has been reversed by all succeeding generations. Insofar as radio has helped to foster an acquaintance with and a taste for good music it has been of considerable benefit, but with the growing popularity of broadcasting, a sinister influence of commercial interests, similar to that which nullified many of the prospective advantages of the movies has been in evidence and this wonderful medium for the dissemination of the world's greatest ideas and ideals has been used in many instances, to inflict the most outrageous rubbish, verbal and musical, on long-suffering radio auditors, who are willing to tolerate it. Radio broadcasting and the manufacture of radio apparatus now rank high in th e list of industries, but if the new invention is to be regarded simply as a further medium of investment and commercial exploitation, the mischief almost certain to accrue, will inevitably outweigh any good hitherto accomplished by its use.

The vast, invisible audience that can be reached by radio affords a wonderful field for propaganda, and in consequence a fertile field for the promulgation of that which is undesirable. The mischief in this case is less likely to arise from the communist agitator who is practically certain to be elbowed out of this method of reaching an audience, than from the equally dangerous doctrines preached by emissaries of reactionary interests, playing on passion, prejudice and ignorance, with an eye on an economic end.

In the field of educational effort, lies the greatest possibility of the conferring by radio of a boon on humanity. Probably only a very limited use of it could be made for the purpose of educating the juvenile mind. H. G. Wells, of course, has visualized a day when a small number of the best and most enthusiastic teachers will be retained for the exercise of their special gifts in the teaching of youth, the others, being, as Mr. Wells kindly suggests, released for work to which they are more adapted, such as labouring in the mines or digging ditches. Many of Wells' prophecies have come to pass, but the realization of this educational suggestion is probably a long way off.

While no scientific invention can ever do away with the mental effort necessary for development of any kind, it is possible that the use of radio, even among quite young children, might be of aid in stimulating interest and presenting lessons in a more attractive form. It was a belief among educationists that any teacher was capable of taking charge of young children, and these classes were very frequently committed to the care of the least skilled and, in many cases, the least enthusiastic and conscientious teachers of the staff. But this practice has long become obsolete, and it is now recognized that the imparting of instruction to the youngest children is a task for which special qualifications are necessary. Radio, of course, can never take the place of the teacher in the schoolroom, for personal contact is absolutely necessary, but along certain lines, it might be judiciously used to supplement the efforts of the teacher and the reading of books.

The power of the spoken word is unquestionably greater than that of the written word, particularly when the spoken word proceeds from the lips of a universally acknowledged authority. For example, a wonderful impression would assuredly be created on the child-mind by the actual voice, over the radio of Amundsen describing his flight in the Norge, or of Howard Carter, retailing in simple language the story and meaning of the discoveries at the tomb of Tutankhamen. Probably much of the value and interest of this device to young children would lie in its novelty and a too frequent use of it, might defeat the ends for which it was intended.

In the upper classes, of course, where the sense of discipline and the recognition of the necessity of mental progress is stronger, this auxiliary to the ordinary exercises, might be used as often as possible, with good effect.

With regard to adult education, it would be difficult to place the limit of the useful work that can be accomplished by broadcasting. One of the encouraging signs of the times is the increasing numbers of people of mature age, who are pursuing profitable lines of study, in subjects that are considered "dry" by the mentally debilitated reader of shoddy fiction. Popularly-written works on psychology, sociology, economics, biology, and numerous other sciences are nearly always assured of a large circulation and the librarians of all our larger cities report a similar increased demand for serious reading. Even many of our best modern novels, Wells, for example, are studies in human life, in economics, in theology and philosophy, with a plot to act as a kind of sugar coating for the pill. The people who are thus studying are in many cases ambitious men and women, who were denied educational facilities or possibly failed to take advantage of them in their youth, but who are now earnestly seeking to rectify past errors and omissions. To the credit of the higher institutions of learning, and to educational authorities in general, it has to be said that this change in the taste of a large and important section of the public, has been willingly fostered. Extension courses in higher education have been provided, workers' educational associations and mental culture societies have sprung up everywhere. To all of these, radio broadcasting can render invaluable service.

On the whole, there are few institutions outside the state-supported universities which can afford to supplement the teaching by the regular staff, with frequent lectures on topical and informative subjects given by the most competent authorities. For the solution of this problem which has tried many earnest minds, seriously concerned about the highest welfare of the people, radio is the one means available.

People who work all day, people who will not leave their homes to attend a lecture course, people who tire in reading the dry, printed word, will listen if all they have to do is to use a radio. There are millions of such people, hungering and thirsting for knowledge who could not be reached by the old methods. For them an unexpected door of opportunity is opened. Learning by the assistance of the radio, is a wonder-working charm for those, whose maturity in years renders them too self-conscious to attend a class which may contain many much younger pupils than themselves.

While there are many subjects that can never be handled satisfactorily, except by the actual presence of a lecturer or demonstrator, there are also numerous others in which broadcasting can be used. In this field lies the greatest of the cultural possibilities of radio. Many parents, denied the advantages to give which, to their children, they have made tremendous sacrifices, are by this means well on the way to becoming as well informed as their families who have attended high school for years.

Already a large amount of information of real value is being broadcast, but, this is unfortunately a drop in a bucket of solemn and pompous truck and some really vicious and reactionary propaganda. The results, however, have been very satisfactory. Three years ago, Columbia University conducted a radio course in the poetry of Browning, a syllabus being sent by mail to every one willing to pay a small fee. A large number of letters received, showing a comprehensive grasp of the points raised by the lecturer, and containing much useful constructive criticism encouraged the university authorities to repeat the experiment on a more ambitious scale, with numerous other subjects. Scores of schools and colleges have now broadcasting apparatus of their own and many more use neighbouring privately-owned commercial stations for radio extension programmes. At least one college in the U.S. has instituted a regular course by radio, those competitors receiving a certificate of graduation who successfully pass a written examination answering questions sent to them by mail.

Examples such as these quoted above show that the answer to the questions: "Is it practicable?" "Will it work?" are in the affirmative. These may be regarded as experiments under actual working conditions.

While in the arrangements of the eight broadcasting stations of Great Britain, there is little provision for college radio lectures on the same scale as in the United States, the programmes are extremely well balanced; and combine inspiration, culture and entertainment of a very high order. The arrangements of the British Broadcasting Company are in the hands of Arthur Burrows, himself a scientist of no mean order.

The preparation of these programs is, of course, no simple matter, catering as they do to all classes of society, persons of every taste and temperament. But they are desired so as to provide the greatest possible variety of interest and to fit in with a definite plan, and the standard is kept on the upper layer of good taste.

The world of education has one supreme objective—the importing of knowledge and the cultivation of the intellect. Critics of the tendency of modern industry towards lessening the hours of labor, declare that much of the leisure which thus accrues, is spent, in inane pleasures and wasted hours.

That there has been, and probably still is, a great amount of truth in this objection is freely admitted by all who have given the slightest consideration to the subject. But it can also be said, that recent developments in radio broadcasting are steps in the direction of educating the people to a saner and more healthful use of the leisure.

Radio has done, and doubtless will continue to do on a much bigger scale in the future, a great deal to create a sense of national solidarity in all parts of the country, particularly in remote settlements and on the farm. It may even be the final factor needed to make rural life attractive to young people and stop that herding into the cities, which causes the sociologist to knit his brows in puzzled dismay, and which spells death to healthy progress in the national life of Canada.

Radio comes to complete the work begun by the telephone and the automobile in breaking down the wall of isolation between urban and country dweller. When one realizes that two weeks ago, on a Sunday night, farmers in the farthest settlements of the West sat in their homes and heard Queen Marie talk to the guests in a crowded Chicago hotel, one can hardly condemn as an exaggeration, the statement of a radio enthusiast that, since the development of broadcasting, the backwoods, are no longer the backwoods in the old sense of the term.

In enumerating the educational and political effects of broadcasting, one must not lose sight of the fact that its great function hitherto has been to provide wholesome entertainment. It brings the world's finest artistes right to the home, and makes the dweller in the humblest village acquainted with the talents and powers of those whose names are household words in the field of entertainment. Did radio accomplish no more than this, it had justified its existence.

One criticism of radio has been that it has imperilled community life and particularly church life in the smaller areas. People, it is said, are no longer disposed to assist in the preparation of the annual village concert, when they can sit at home and enjoy the best the world can give. Similarly, the church goer, remains at home, to listen to the preacher of renown and thus diminishes the already scanty attendance at the village chapel. Against this must be placed the fact that many of those who hear a sermon over the radio are not necessarily regular church goers, thus the radio really increases the number of those who hear the preaching of the Gospel.

There are many other problems which have arisen with the introduction

FOOTBALL GAMES BY RADIO

New System of Broadcasting Enabled Fans To Visualize Plays.

(By Israel Klein, Radio Editor, NEA Service.)

Here's the new and improved way of following the football games by radio:

It's a method devised by Phillips Carlin, director-announcer of WEAF in New York, and Graham McNamee, the famous sports announcer.

It is given here exclusively to The Examiner radio and football fans.

In announcements of football games, in future, this method will be followed by many radio stations.

The system calls for the division of the football field, on paper of course, into four equal zones crossing the regular divisions of distance. These zones are lettered A, B, C and D, from top to bottom.

In announcing a play, by this method, the radio operator tells not only to what yard line the ball has been brought, but into which zone, so that the fan may the more easily visualize the play. He has a more perfect mental picture of the two battling teams, can follow them more closely by marking their plays on this zoned field, and can enjoy the game almost as well as he would if he were in actual attendance.

Different markings may be used for different plays, as has been done heretofore.

For Big Plays.

A disadvantage arises from the possibility of teams battling back and forth in one confined area, so as to cause a confusion of lines on the diagram. To avoid this it is suggested that only the major movements of the teams be marked, where such liability might arise. Or a new diagram may be used up to each touchdown.

This method of reporting the major football games in the east, it is believed, will be followed by McNamee, and may be broadcast this way through WEAF and the chain of stations that will rebroadcast the games.

"I've had quite some difficulty describing certain intricate plays on the football field heretofore," says McNamee, in commenting on his new method. "I think this zone system will relieve me considerably of this task.

"Instead of trying to describe an end run that takes a player across the field and down a little way, I merely explain the change from zone A, for instance, into zone C, and the fan has the play before him."

Big Games Scheduled.

Signs point to widespread use of the gridiron diagram by radio fans in future. Broadcasters throughout the country plan to report local games by remote control direct from the field.

Fans Hear Organist of 16 From W. B. Z.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 27.—A quiet little village, hidden away among the tall pines of the Maine woods, figures prominently in the discovery of a musical genius who is now entertaining the fans of radio station WBZ, here.

Ocean Park is the town, where life is more active during the summer months, with the influx of tourists and vacationists from the larger cities to the south and west.

There, last year, Arthur Clifton, a 16-year-old student of music, came up from the south for a rest. He had been learning to master the organ, and with the few facilities he had received in his home town and here he continued practicing the art for his own enjoyment.

Into Ocean Park, also, came Gordon Swan, announcer at station WBZ, and also bent on rest. His rest consisted in part of an early morning stroll down the main street and out along one of the narrow paths through the pine woods.

Attracted by Organ.

One morning, as Swan approached the small hall that serves as a community gathering place for the town's inhabitants, he heard organ music. Not only the unusual hour, but the music itself attracted him.

He entered the hall to satisfy his curiosity and was surprised to find the music he heard being played by a youth.

The two became friends immediately. That whole morning Clifton sat at the organ and played southern melodies and other selections, with only Swan as his audience. Swan felt he had never heard music played with such understanding and fervor as this.

Introduced to Radio.

The result was that Clifton came to Springfield to try his talents on the WBZ organ. Last fall, for the first time, he was introduced to the WBZ audience. His success was immediate.

Following the "try-out," a regular weekly hour was arranged, and in this way the weekly "Dreamland Organ Recitals" of WBZ went on the air. The music of the south is noticeable in these recitals, for Clifton continually dreams of his southern homeland.

Not only has the radio audience received his programs with enthusiasm, but leading music critics of the country have place d heir stamp of approval on his playing.

NO JAZZ, ABSOLUTELY!

The 5000-watt station WEMC, Berrien Springs, Mich., has adopted a "no-jazz" policy, and will attempt to broadcast speeches and music of the highest type only.

LOTS OF PAPER

Exactly 482 sheets of manuscript paper were used by Robert Hurd in writing the orchestration for a radio version of the opera "Faust," according to a report from KFI, Los Angeles.

RADIO GETS THROUGH

Rev. Chapman, who has spent many years in the far north, says that during a certain period of the year in Alaska the only means by which many settlements can keep in touch with the outside world is by radio.

WANT TO LEARN VALUE

Officials of the United States Bureau of Education and of the National Educational Society in Washington are watching the music course which isbeing broadcast by station WTIC, Hartford, Conn., in hopes of learning t e value of such a course.

CONTRIBUTORS' PERIOD

Stations WGN and WMAQ, both located at Chicago, have added a contributors' period to their programs. Contributors are invited to send in a snappy bit of repartee, a wise-crack or a "bang up" poem. Such nom-de-plumes as Ivan Ocean, In-a-dor, Tish and Pashion are used by the contributors.

BANJO POSITION

In broadcasting jazz bands, KFI, Los Angeles, has discovered that the banjo is the instrument to be placed farthest from the microphone for the best effects of it s station.

RADIO IN TURKEY

A radio broadcasting station is being built at Angora, Turkey. It is said that five more stations are planned for that country.

RADIO HELPS LAW

Police departments in many French cities are being equipped with instruments which send and receive pictures of fingerprints either by radio or wire. This instrument is expected to decrease law evasions

U. S. RADIO EXPORTS

Canada was the leading market for radio apparatus during 1925. Asia ranked second, Europe third and Latin-America fourth, according to statistics of the electrical division of the Department of Commerce.

Big Coat and Dress Man" Doesn't Have a Chance Against The Fashion Model's "Boy Friend"

(By Marian Hale, NEA Service Writer.)

This is the fourth in a series on fashion models.

Models ought to be paid overtime wages for the hours spent entertaining an out-of-town buyer. Either the man is bashful and awed, afraid of how devilish he has been to invite a fashion model to dinner, or he is so fresh it takes all the joy out of the evening trying to keep him squelched.

I "did time" one evening with a big "coat and dress man" from Oregon.

It was my turn in the wholesale dress house where I worked as a model, to play guest.

There was nothing that my red-faced, large-jowled friend omitted telling me about this store. The price of the fixtures, the number of drinking cups used daily, and the under sizes necessary for the overly plumps, formed the dinner conversation for two hours.

I led him to a popular dining and dancing place on Broadway in the theater district. He paid $17.50 for the meal and the accompanying music, and was so overcome that he talked incessantly through three hours at the theater about the high cost of fun.

Yvonne, a pink and white girl with "you-great-big-brave-man-you" eyes, which were considered quite an asset to the house, was called on most frequently for "evening work."

Yvonne selected the highest priced shows and ordered the most expensive meals she could pick from the menu. She was popular with the buyers and valuable to the house because she could worm a large order of dresses from the stingiest buyer.

Many of the dress, suit and coat houses pay the models good commissions.

Plenty of lipstick, mascara on the lashes, and a touch of color on the eyelids is the standard make-up for a model.

Mostly Platonic.

But the only romance to this is all on the side of the O. T. B. (out of town buyer).

The salesmen in the organization and the easy, "brotherly" atmosphere of arms around waists and an occasional kiss, forms another group of men, but here again it is rare that a model develops a love affair.

Her "heavy dates" and real "cases" are with her "boy friends," the usual type of young sheiks employed as clerks, salesmen and assistant managers.

The love affairs of a fashion model in New York are much the same as the love affairs of any other girl her age in any other city. The position in which she is placed by her work is simply so much routine.

Lavish make-up never denotes a fashion model. Few of the girls used rouge even at work. A dab of pink or pale purple grease on the eyelids, mascara on the lashes and plenty of lipstick constituted their make-up, but most of this was removed for the street.

I have yet to see a model "picked up." They go back and forth to work, alone or in twos. Men friends seldom are seen with them on the streets in the wholesale clothing district.

Part of the Game.

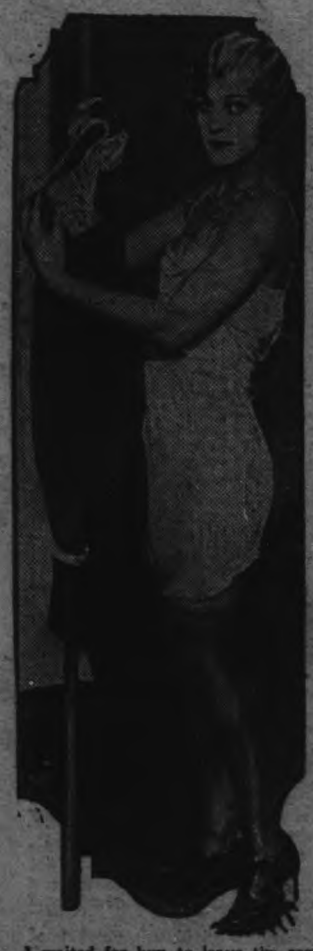
I had been at work only a few days when Harry, the salesman, entered the dressing-room with a frock he wanted me to model. I waited for him to leave the room, but he stood there while I changed hastily. Neither models nor salesmen think anything of that sort of impersonal intimacy.

"Busy to-night?" asked Harry.

I wasn't, but I had no intention of going out with this honey-toned hunter, so I started to stall.

"There's a buyer here, one of our big men, and he wants a date with someone to-night. What do you say?"

Relieved, I accepted, knowing that however tiresome or even disgusting a buyer might be, he always was safe.



I waited for him to leave the room but he stood there while I changed hastily.

WHALERS USE RADIO

Whalers are now making use of radio to keep the mother ship and the small whale-chasing vessels in touch with each other.

HUSING TO SPECIALIZE

Specialization has hit the radio field. "Ted" Husing, WJZ, New York, announcer, is to specialize in announcing dance orchestras. Other "specialists" are Major J. Andrew White and Graham McNamee, for sports, and Milton J. Cross, operatic and classical music.

FANS ARE CHARITABLE

Thousands of dollars were raised by broadcasting stations to aid the people of Florida after the recent catastrophe. Station WBBM, Chicago, claims to have raised $10,000 and WSB, Atlanta, has figured that it received $450 an hour for 12 hours as a fund to help Florida sufferers.

How to Get Best Results from B Power Units

(By J. E. Roberts, Radio Engineer.)

The radio shows have disclosed considerable interest in B battery eliminators.

Even A battery eliminators are being introduced, and receivers operated directly from the house electric lighting circuit. But greatest progress so far has been made with the plate or B battery eliminator.

For this reason, I shall explain this apparatus so that fans may know what it is, how to operate it, and what to expect of it.

A B eliminator is an apparatus that replaces the dry or storage batteries used heretofore for plate voltages, converting the alternating, 110-volt, 60-cycle current furnished by electric lighting companies to the direct current of varying voltages required for radio receivers.

For good service, only the best type should be bought, one made and guaranteed by a reputable manufacturer.

Variable Type Best.

This should be designed for control of the detector and intermediate voltages, for while we knew that the only change in a dry-cell B battery was down, as it was being used up, the fluctuations in the eliminator are up and down. This is because it takes its power from the generator at the powerhouse, which is subjected to fluctuations of "peak loads" and "valleys" according to demands made on the current supply.

Eliminators are economical on receivers of four or more tubes. The more tubes, the more economical it will be, compared with dry batteries.

But one certain kind of current must be available for B eliminators, or they won't work. That is 110-volt, 60-cycle alternating current. Before installing an eliminator be sure this is the current supplied to your home.

The standard B eliminator will not work on direct current. Also, certain territories are supplied with alternating current, but of the 25-cycle variety, and the use of an eliminator, designed for 60 cycles on a 25-cycle line is disastrous, to say the least.

No Hum Wanted.

With these conditions fulfilled, the next big point to consider is that of a "filter" in the apparatus to eliminate the "hum" of the alternating current. It is almost impossible to eliminate all the "hum" of the alternating current, especially with the use of head phones. But B eliminators aren't designed for headphone reception. They're volume reproducers.

Yet it must be remembered that your receiver has been designed for voltages from the dry or storage batteries known until now. The result of an eliminator's installation, therefore, may be a "squall" from stray currents, or "choking" of the tubes.

Sometimes the speaker will blast, from an excess of B voltage. All these can be corrected by careful adjustment of the eliminator currents to the characteristics of the receiver.

If the loud speaker "blasts," it may be advisable to have a "filter" installed in the line from the set to the speaker. This consists of a resistance of about .25 megohms and a fixed condenser of 2 microfarads, placed between the plate and the positive B terminals and one side of the speaker, while the other terminal of the speaker is attached to the negative terminal of the A battery.

SAD, BUT TRUE!

Most listeners have remarked the fact that the broadcaster speaks slowly and distinctly at the outset and frequently pauses—ah—ahem—between words.

Then suddenly he changes his pace and we know that the official in charge of the station has nodded to him that his time is almost up and he will have to go some if he wants to get in all of his scheduled address within the prescribed time limit.

When People Like These Endorse Government Control

(ADVERTISEMENT)

—justifying their stand by such sound reasons, the proposal must possess real merit. They cannot all be wrong. Let their judgments help you in forming yours!

Sir John Aird, President Canadian Bank of Commerce, Toronto:

"Stress has been laid by prohibitionists upon the evil effect of liquor upon young people, and the claim is made that they will consume more liquor under the conditions proposed by Mr. Ferguson than under the O.T.A. If the aim of the prohibitionists is to strengthen the moral fibre of our youth, then in my opinion they are defeating their own object. Most of the young people whom I have had under me have occupied positions of trust, and have naturally been subjected to temptation. I have always found that to train a man to resist temptation worked out much more satisfactorily for all concerned than to try to devise elaborate means to remove the temptation from him."

Dr. H. B. Anderson, M.D., L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., Toronto:

"To me it (the Ferguson Government policy) appears an opportunity for solidifying public opinion for the advancement of temperance and observance of the law rather than to perpetuate division in behalf of an ideal at present unattainable."

Sir Alan Aylesworth, Toronto:

"I have been voting now for more than fifty years in parliamentary elections, and I have never given a Conservative vote, but I am going to do so this year, because I think that any measure of prohibition by law as opposed to prohibition by education is the very reverse of what I have always considered were the true principles of Liberalism. As well might one try to advance the interest of religion or Christianity by legislation that would compel the people to go to church."

Professor Alfred Baker, University of Toronto:

"The O.T.A. has proved a failure, conceived though it was with the best intentions and administered by Attorneys-General who earnestly desired its success. It has not stopped the use of liquor; there has grown a contempt for the law; it has created a class of bootleggers who have been enriched beyond the dreams of avarice. Surely it is time to make a change!"

Hon. R. B. Bennett, K.C., M.P., Ex-Minister of Finance, Calgary, Alberta:

"Not only has the Alberta Act been declared to be legally valid, but in practice it does control the liquor traffic in that province. The best proof of what can be done is what has been done, and in the language of one of the judges of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the province in which I reside—'I think the present Liquor Control Act a good and sound one, and has done more in the direction of temperance than any law we hitherto have had.'"

Lt.-Col. Arthur L. Bishop, St. Catharines, Ont.:

"No good can come from arbitrary and hysterical measures. The O.T.A. has proved unenforceable even under two such dry Attorneys-General as Mr. Nickle and Mr. Raney, and where they have failed no one else will succeed. We are facing facts, not theories. I think Government Control should be given a fair trial in Ontario, as it has been in the West, and I believe the result will be equally satisfactory."

Herbert A. Bruce, A.M.S., C.A.M.C., M.D., L.R.C.P., R.C.S. (Eng.), Toronto:

"It is not a question of 'dry' or 'wet'; it is a question of another Temperance Act against one that has been tried and found wanting. I consider Mr. Ferguson's proposal reasonable and enforceable, and therefore a great advance on the old Act. As such it should have the support of every one sincerely interested in furthering the Temperance cause and reducing the evils of drunkenness.'

Police Magistrate C. H. Burgess, Peel County:

"My view of the matter is that the sale of liquor is out of control and is running wild (under the O.T.A.), and it is necessary to try to bring it under control again."

Rev. Father J. E. Burke, C.S.P., St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, Toronto:

"It (the O.T.A.) has been no blessing. During the years it has been on our Statute Books the youth of Ontario, with singular and beautiful exceptions, has gone back. The terrifying increase in liquor amongst our boys and girls, even of tender years; the consequent deterioration of moral standards and conduct; the curse of the bootlegger; the conquest by strong liquor of our parents, our homes, our clubs, our students, our gatherings, have been begotten and thrived under the sway of prohibition."

L. N. Byrns, former Treasurer Sarnia Prohibition Union, Sarnia, Ont.:

"There are two questions before the electors in this campaign: (1) will we continue Government control under the Ontario Temperance Act, as we have had it for the last few years, whereby any person wanting liquor can buy all he likes from the bootlegger, or (2) will we have it controlled so that a person can only buy it through a Government commission house, where a person has got to have a permit to buy it, and then only a certain quantity at a time? I am not a staunch Conservative; I have voted Liberal when I deemed it wise, but will not this time."

Col. R. H. A. Carman, Belleville, Ont.:

"I am convinced the people have seen enough to lead them to decide they would rather have the distribution of liquor by Government regulation than by the unscrupulous bootlegger."

Hon. and Reverend H. J. Cody, LL.D., D.D., Toronto:

"The great achievements of the control plan, in my estimation, consist of the following: In the first place, people were no longer thinking and talking incessantly about getting a drink; in the second place, there was an overwhelming public opinion behind the enforcement of the Act where in the past public opinion has been strongly divided and illegal traffic had flourished because resorted to by a consideration section of the public; in the third place, bootlegging on a large scale was enormously diminished."

Clara C. Field, Cobourg, Ont.:

"Speaking from a woman's standpoint, I fear very much the result our present system of controlling the liquor question will have on the character of our young people, who are growing up in an atmosphere of reckless law-breaking and deceitful living. Will it be possible for them to have those feelings of patriotism they should have if they feel a contempt for the laws of their country? I feel I can certainly endorse Mr. Ferguson's policy as a sincere endeavor to solve a perplexing problem."

Sir Joseph Flavelle, Bart., Toronto:

"If the responsibility were mine I would not choose Government control as now stated as a reform for existing evils. I believe, however, there is a weight of public opinion which demands a change in the existing law, and which will not be set aside by the present hesitating body of public opinion for its enforcement. Therefore, with the elimination of the legal sale of liquors in public houses of entertainment, I accept the sale of liquors through Government agencies only, under a system of permits, as probably the best obtainable change enforceable under the existing state of public opinion."

Rev. T. W. Goodwill, Presbyterian Church, Cobourg, Ont.:

"I believe the O.T.A. to be a failure, but in this election campaign I regard the Act not as a political issue, but a moral issue; not a question of lack of enforcement but rather of impossibility of enforcement. I find conditions under the Ontario Temperance Act to be much worse than they were before. I believe that Premier Frguson is making a sincere and studied effort to secure a law that will be observed and one that can be enforced."

Principal W. L. Grant, Upper Canada College, Toronto:

"As a total abstainer of twenty-five years' standing, as one who loves the young men of Canada and whose life is spent in doing his best for them, I am glad to align myself with Canon Cody, Sir Thomas White and Sir John Willison in support of the Prime Minister in his fight against the evils of intemperance and lawlessness."

David Griffith, Greening Wire Works, Hamilton:

"I travel twice every year through the whole of Canada. I know the extent of the bootlegging evil in Hamilton. I do not know that it can be worse in any other part of the Province. In the West you cannot hear a complaint from present conditions. In Ontario it is impossible to get away from expressed ridicule and disrespect for the O.T.A."

F. Barry Hayes, Pres., Toronto Carpet Mfg. Co., Toronto:

"My impression of prohibition is that whereas the country generally thought it would be very much to its interests, it has only resulted in making many of our citizens hypocrites and law-breakers. This is having a very bad effect generally. Drinking in our cities and larger towns has certainly increased to an alarming extent. I am not a 'wet,' but I am not in favor of repressive legislation. The idea of making people good by statute is a delusion.'

Rev. Father C. J. Killeen, Belleville, Ont.:

"I view with a great deal of concern the increase in lawlessness and crime that prohibition has engendered. It leads to a spirit of distrust. It is no use saying to the people, 'You cannot have liquor.' Those who want it will get it. Fifty-one per cent. of the people cannot impose their will on the other forty-nine per cent."

Rev. John Lyons, M.A., Church of England Rector:

"After studying the situation I have become convinced that Premier Ferguson's policy is the best solution yet placed before the people of Ontario to adequately deal with the liquor problem."

Ven. Archdeacon Mackintosh, Dundas, Ont.:

"You never heard of the Prohibitionists of the Province which have Government Control asking for a change to what we call a prohibition law. It shows that they are satisfied with the law, and feel that it is useless to ask for a change."

J. C. Makins, K.C., Stratford, Ont.:

"In a very large percentage of the cases in my experience contested in court in these districts (Waterloo County and Windsor Border), perjury has been committed. This is one feature that our so-called 'temperance' friends seem to overlook. In this respect the cure seems worse than the disease."

Rev. W. G. Martin, Pilgrim United Church, Brantford, Ont.:

"No man, unless he is blind, can say with sincerity that the O.T.A. as a prohibition measure has been the success we hoped and believed it would be, when it became law. The more I consider the question the more convinced I am that the bringing about of prohibition, an ideal towards which we are all striving, and to which we are committed as men and women, eager for the best moral interest of the community and of the state, is a process of education. It is the responsibility of the home, the school, and the church."

D. L. McCarthy, K.C., Toronto:

"The Ontario Temperance Act has undoubtedly abolished the bar, but unfortunately, instead of having one bar in a hotel, we now have rooms in hotels converted into private bars."

C. G. McGhie, Vice-President, Welland Vale Mfg. Co., St. Catharines, Ont.:

"Not only labor, but the country as a whole, will be better under Government control. I strongly endorse the Ferguson policy."

Major-General the Hon. S. C. Mewburn, Hamilton, Ont.:

"I unhesitatingly state that in my opinion the policy of the Government control of liquor, as it is now stated by the Prime Minister, is sound and in the best interest of all the people of the Province. I have lately been in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. . . . This is what I have learned. The people who were strongly in favor of prohibition will without any qualification whatever say now that since Government control of liquor has come into force they would never for one moment go back upon their present legislation."

Controller William Morrison, Hamilton, Ont.:

"There is more alcohol drunk in Hamilton now than at any time in the city's history."

William Mulock, K.C., Toronto:

"I have no hesitation in telling the people of Ontario that I favor Government control in preference to the O.T.A., and that I will support the policy of the Ferguson Government."

Mrs. Emily Murphy (Janey Canuck), Police Magistrate, Edmonton, Alberta:

"Before Government control became the law of Alberta I opposed it vigorously, both on the platform and by my pen. I was fearful that our last state would be worse than our first. It seemed only logical that if the restrictions were removed there would be more drunkenness and crime. No living person could persuade me to the contrary.

"After a period of several years in which I have been called upon to enforce the present Liquor Control Act, both as a city and provincial magistrate, I am bound to acknowledge that my fears were largely unfounded. There was not even a rush of inebriety as I had predicted, the people showing a remarkable degree of restraint. The condition was steadily improved—again I say, not from any degree of spiritual enrichment on the part of our people—but because the law was well conceived and is being well enforced."

Dr. C. J. Musgrove, Prohibition Candidate in 1919, Niagara Falls, Ont.:

"Before 1916 we had 15 bars and liquor stores in Niagara Falls; now we have double that number of bootleggers. The Provincial Police and the License Inspectors have been very active in endeavoring to enforce the Ontario Temperance Act, but it is really impossible to do so. I am not only in favor of Mr. Ferguson's policy, but I particularly endorse the provision that no permit shall be given to persons under 21 years of age."

Paul J. Myler, Pres. Canadian Westinghouse Co., Hamilton, Ont.:

"As a large employer of labor I see no possibility of room for complaint in Ontario when a man shall be allowed a bottle of beer in his own house. Long experience with our men in this company is good enough for me on this point."

Hon. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., Toronto:

"I, personally, have no doubt whatever as to the ability of the Government to completely control importation. . . . I should have thought that Quebec, which has Government control, and where no importation is allowed, would have been a sufficient example to make comment on Mr. Nickle's suggestion quite unnecessary."

George B. Nicholson (Chairman Committee of One Hundred, 1916), at Chapleau, Ont.:

"An overwhelming public opinion behind the Ontario Temperance Act in the Counties of Bruce, Huron, Grey, Grenville, Dufferin or any other part of rural Ontario, is of no use whatever in assisting to enforce a restrictive law in, for example, the city of Windsor, the city of North Bay, the city of Port Arthur, all of the vast territory known as Northern Ontario, or as a matter of fact in any urban centre where people congregate, and it is in the place where the law has to be enforced that public opinion must be behind it if it is going to be enforced, and that is where the whole scheme (O.T.A.) falls down."

J. C. Notman, Vice-President McKinnon Industries, St. Catharines, Ont.:

"We have as much trouble now with our labor as we had before prohibition came into effect. There are the same Monday and Tuesday difficulties, but now they are due to poisoned alcohol. Our men would be much better if they could have good beer when they want it. Government control as they have it in the West is what we should have in Ontario."

N. C. Pearce, Publisher of the Northern News, Cobalt, Ont.:

"I feel sorry for our police officers, trying to do their duty and enforce the O.T.A.; they are attempting to batter down a stone wall with sponge cake. Mr. Raney could not enforce the O.T.A.; he four times 'strengthened' the Act, without result, and it is sheer hypocrisy for him to pretend that he could enforce it if given another chance."

Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., Belleville, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of A.F. & A.M.:

"As a lawyer I know that the sad fact cannot be controverted, that in liquor cases under the repressive O.T.A. truth has lost its ancient power. The administration of justice has been honeycombed by perjury and the oath has lost its sanctity, despite the conscientious and able efforts of magistrates, Crown attorneys and police officers who have done their best to stem the tide of revolt. Where the law ends, tyranny begins. The O.T.A. is despotic, arbitrary and against the will of the citizens of Canada. A wise law is 'the State's collected will.' The O.T.A. never was. Under the O.T.A. we are all treated as children and weaklings and criminals."

Dr. A. Primrose, C.B., M.B., C.M. (Edin.), M.R.C.S. (Eng.) Toronto:

"They (the medical doctors) are legally permitted to issue a definite number of prescriptions each month, the inference being that the number of sick folk requiring alcohol should not exceed that number, and the doctor if he keeps within that limit is safe from adverse criticism. The present situation is intolerable. The medical profession must be released from such undignified servitude."

P. D. Ross, Publisher Ottawa Journal, Ottawa:

"Government Control has operated in several of the Provinces of the Dominion, and apparently without grave evil—at all events without such palpable evil as to suggest that prohibition is a necessity; certainly without such evil as is palpable under prohibition in the United States. It seems to me that the amount of public or private harm which the proposed Government control leaves possible need not compel any of us to interfere with the personal freedom of other people."

Dr. F. N. G. Starr, C.B.E., M.B., M.D.C.M., F.A.C.S., F.R.G.S., Toronto:

"Some over-zealous people tell us that Government Control does not work in the Provinces where it is being tried, but such is not my interpretation as I have found it. I have visited each Province where there has been a change, both under prohibitory measures and under Government Control, and the odds, to my way of thinking, are all on the side of Government Control."

Edward Tellier, former Liberal Member for North Essex, Windsor, Ont.:

"I do not look upon this as a party fight. I think we must all take off our coats and put Government Control over. I am for Government Control first, last and all the time."

Dr. J. A. Temple, M.R.C.S., LL.D., Past President Ontario Medical Association, Toronto:

"There is one fact that is very prominent in my mind and which I think might well be emphasized—that is the great increase in the use of narcotics in the last three or four years. The man who was addicted to liquor has switched in many cases to drugs. While there is always hope for the drunkard, it is almost impossible to cure the drug addict. The O.T.A. was much too sweeping in its provisions."

Most Rev. C. Thornelve, D.D., D.C.L., Archbishop of Algoma, and Metropolitan of Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario, 1915:

"There is in human nature a sense of freedom which must be respected. All these considerations have to be weighed by the Government, and I have very great hope that the measures proposed by Premier Ferguson will be found, if carried out, to be a very great improvement on what we have been experiencing the past few years."

Sir Charles Tupper, Winnipeg:

"The reasons that convince me most firmly that Premier Ferguson's policy will prove a great boon for the people of Ontario are based on my observation of the great success of liquor control in Manitoba. Control in Manitoba has brought about the following three great improvements: there is less drinking by both young and old, particularly by the young; control has created a higher moral tone in the community at large; it has also brought about a decidedly higher respect for law."

L. A. Van Skiver, formerly Inspector Children's Aid Society, Picton, Ont.:

"I have been an ardent prohibitionist all my life. But in the discharge of my duties as Inspector for the Children's Aid Society I came across conditions that impressed me with their seriousness. In almost every case of destitution which came under my observation I found that bootlegging was the cause. I do not believe in changing my prohibition beliefs that I am taking a retrograde step. Prohibition means war."

Rev. Frank Vipond, Streetsville, Ont.:

"I am not afraid to express the conviction that the greatest enemies of Christian temperance, of sobriety, and of the upbuilding of strong Christian character have not been the breweries and distilleries, but official and fanatical prohibitionists who have been willing to make of the Christian faith a lesser thing than that of the Mahometan."

H. S. White, K.C., President Ontario Bar Association, Toronto:

"I am satisfied that . . . there is in the province no such thing as prohibition under it (the O.T.A.), for the simple reason that every person who wants liquor can get it without difficulty. I believe that the Premier and the Government have followed the only proper course open to them in asking the people for a mandate to remove our affliction from us."

Rt. Hon. Sir Thomas White, K.C.M.G., Toronto:

"That the Ontario Temperance Act is not capable of adequate enforcement, lacking as it does the strong support of public opinion, must by this time be clear to all who have given any study to the subject. The time has arrived to so amend it as to prevent and limit, as far as possible, the evils of intemperance under a system of Government control, having a firmer support of public opinion, and under regulations which will not lead to the evils which for the past seven years have been inseparably connected with the administration of the O.T.A."

Col. Rev. Cecil G. Williams, Dominion Secretary, Navy League of Canada:

"Should I steal, commit forgery or break any other law in Canada except that of the O.T.A., I am punished and upon my release ignored, until I have rehabilitated myself, by those who know me, because they are sympathetic to and upholders of the law. But if I violate the O.T.A. and am punished for the same according to law, I have the sympathy of my friends, showing that they hold the law in contempt. Very different is the treatment extended in the two instances. The law should be the same from coast to coast for individuals and all classes, and until it is I cannot see the righteousness or the practicability of the O.T.A."

Most Rev. David Williams, Archbishop of Huron and Metropolitan of Ontario, London, Ont.:

"It (the O.T.A.) has done more to encourage deceit and subterfuge, more to demoralize the youth of the country and to create a general disrespect for law than all the other causes combined during the ten years of its existence. Government Control, with individual permits, is the only sane system."

Levi Williams, Police Magistrate, Picton, Ont.:

"All my life I have been a temperance advocate. But when I saw not only how the law itself was being disregarded by people who were not addicted to law-breaking but by the actual perversion of the process of justice, I felt there must be some changes. I have been magistrate in Picton for 18 years, and what has struck me recently is the limits that people will go to perjure themselves when faced with charges of violating the Ontario Temperance Act."

Sir John Willison, Toronto:

"I was wholly unprepared for the unanimity of opinion expressed in favor of Government Control. Again and again I was told by those who had opposed the system and voted for prohibition in plebiscites and referendums that conditions were better under control and that they would not vote to restore the prohibitory enactments. No one suggested that bootlegging had been wholly abolished or that there was no unlawful selling or illicit drinking. They did insist that bootlegging was less common and less profitable, that the law was generally respected and enforced, that there was far less drinking in hotel bedrooms and more undesirable places, and that there was a greater degree of social contentment and no such feeling as under prohibition that flasks must be carried and a secret store of liquor provided for dances, house parties and like events."

Albert Whitney, brother of the late Sir James Whitney, Prescott, Ont.:

"The facts stare us in the face. When the Government dispensaries of this province are in receipt of a yearly revenue of something like five million dollars, and the bootleggers are profiting to the extent of some twenty-five million, it seems to me that it is time to call a halt, and ask ourselves in all seriousness if this whole business would not be in far better hands, entrusted to a Government with the splendid business record of the present Provincial Government, of which the Hon. Howard Ferguson is head."

No Undefeated Teams In American Hockey Division

FOUR TIED FOR FIRST PLACE IN YANKEE GROUP

Rangers Met First Defeat of the Season at Pittsburgh.

ONE-GOAL MARGINS.

Seven of Eighteen Games Played Have Been Whitewashed Ones.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The American division of the National Hockey League is now devoid of undefeated teams. The New York Rangers met their first defeat of the season at Pittsburg, where the Pirates shut them out by a score of 2 to 0.

The 1926-27 N.H.L. season so far has been remarkable for the number of shut-outs scored. Seven of the eighteen games played to date have been won with the whitewash brush, while seven have been decided by a margin of one goal.

Milks scored the first goal for the Pirates after about ten minutes play in the first period. There was no further scoring until the final frame, when Drury shot a goal after a rebound from Winkler after nearly eleven minutes had passed. The Pirates showed the best display of team-work shown by the local sextet in a long time, Smith and Conacher showing good defensive ability. Frank Boucher, Johnson and Rbel performed best for the Rangers.

Victory for Pittsburg increased a three-cornered tie for the first place to a four-cornered deadlock, the Pirates drawing level with the Rangers, Chicago and Boston, with four points each.

Two United States games are scheduled for tonight. The New York Americans, who defeated the champion Maroons at Montreal, will meet the Detroit Cougars at Windsor, and the Pirates will make their first appearance at Chicago.

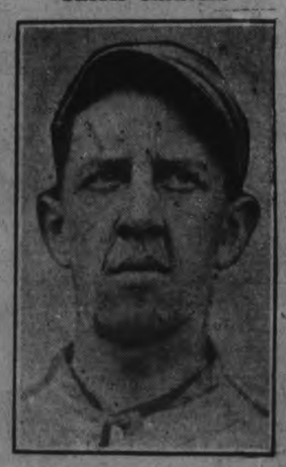
Race Narrows Down.

TORONTO, Nov. 27.—The race for first position in the Canadian group of the National Hockey League narrows down, Montreal Maroons and the Ottawa Senators having one point between them, following Maroons' defeat at the hands of the New York Americans in Montreal, when the New Yorkers annexed the honors by a 4 to 1 score, and Ottawa being held to a 2 to 2 draw after 20 minutes overtime by the St. Patricks at Toronto.

The result of both games came as a complete surprise to hockey enthusiasts. Led by Billy Burch, the Americans crashed their way through the Stanley cup holders' defense time after time, and their victory was well deserved. Ten minutes from the end and with three goals needed to tie the score, the Maroons conceded their flying opponents the victory, and finished with a complete team of substitutes.

At Toronto, Ottawa Senators, runners-up last year, were played off their feet for the first period, held evenly throughout the second, third and overtime sessions, and only by luck were saved from defeat at the hands of St. Pats. The Irish, following a sorry showing against New York Rangers on Saturday night, showed a complete reversal of form against the Senators, and playing before the smallest crowd that has witnessed a professional hockey game here for years, rushed, back-checked and outskated the Senators, in a splendid game. The Irish scored one goal in the first period and one in the second, holding Ottawa down until fourteen minutes of the third period had passed, when Finnegan got through to score. With a little more than half a minute to go, Clancy tied the score after going in on a rebound from Roach.

SIXTH CHANGE.



Eddie Colins who has been deposed as manager of the Chicago team of the American League and replaced by Catcher Ray Schalk. Collins has been with the White Sox for eleven years, having gone to Chicago from the Philadelphia Athletics. The passing of Collins marks the sixth change in major league baseball management since the close of the 1926 campaign.

RANGER'S DEFENSE.

"Taffy" Abel one of the giant defense pair of the New York Rangers hockey team.

LATZO'S HAND IS NOW HEALED

Will Fight 12-Round No Decision Bout in December.

SITUATION EASED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Champion Pete Latzo reports that his hand is well enough to take part in many fights he has booked. This sets at rest the rumor that he would have to give up the game for all time. Pete's opponent will be Joe Simonich. The fight is scheduled over the 12-round, no-decision route and will take place during the first week in December.

Baltimore Joe Dundee is out on the coast. He figures there is nothing much for him in the east as Latzo does not figure to give him a crack at the title until the warm weather comes around and the big open-air clubs throw open their doors.

The other welterweights are going to fight it out among themselves during the cold months and probably beat Dundee to first chance at the title. Alf Mancini and Jack Hood, the British stars, are busy week in and week out. George Levine is fighting often as are Al Mello and Georgie Lee, new England luminaries.

Sergeon Sammy Baker and Willie Harmn have decided to fight it out Saturday evening. Baker has been having a hard job getting the top notchers to fight him. The soldier punches too hard and is shunned by the boys of his division.

Harmon took the match knowing full well that he must turn in some good fights to erase the knockout he suffered at the hands of Latzo. Willie says this should not be held against him as the champion came in weighing 154 pounds, nearer the middleweight poundage than the welterweight.

The knockout changed Willie's style of fighting. Instead of the huddled up defensive fighter he has opened up and shown a punch no one thought he had.

GOALIE STARK JOINS SAINT'S

Puts at Rest All Rumors About Joining Professional Ranks.

PRIMEAU READY.

TORONTO, November 27. — Joe Stark, the ex-Aura Lee and Toronto Canoe Club goalie, reported to the St. Mary senior club last night and put to rest all the rumors about him joining the professional ranks with a statement that he would spend the coming season under the colors of the St. Mary's club. Coach Selke is well fixed for goal keeping talent right now, as he also has "Hump" Humphries out. "Hump" won his fame with U.T.S. and last season he played for the Parkdale juniors. Now that St. Mary's have entered an intermediate O.H.A. team Humphries may be found with that squad.

"Red" Foster joined the Irish on Thursday night, and went well. Joe Primeau is due for a great season in senior. He appears bigger and faster than last season and his stick handling has not suffered to any extent through too much "ice" playing. Alex. Park and Joe Cook are with this team and should do well.

Art Smith, Gordie Grant, last year with T.T.C. again practiced with the Saints and it is more than likely that the O.H.A. will have to settle the dispute over these boys.

Johnny McPherson is as live as ever on right wing and while he may play junior brother "Sh.p" might line up alongside of "J wn" with the senior team. Adam Sellars and Saunders, veteran St. Mary's members, are out with this new aggregation.

From all indications Coach Selke will have a team in the local group that will be in a position to take care of itself against all opposition.

There is nothing ridiculous in seeming to be what you really are, but a good deal in affecting to be what you are not.

—Sir J. Lubbock.

DELORO TEAM BANQUETED AND GIVEN MEDALS

Winning of Intermediate Series of O.A.B.A. Is Celebrated.

TEAM EULOGIZED.

Speakers Unite in Praising Team For Clean, Clever Playing.

MARMORA, Nov. 27—Possibly the finest banquet ever held in Deloro was held in the Hub Dining Hall there on Friday evening when its baseball team, victors in the Intermediate series for 1926 were right royally feasted. The large attendance, numbering 150 men, included full representation of the various branches of the Deloro Amateur Athletic Association. The dining hall was beautifully decorated with evergreens ,flags and festoons.

A first class menu having been served by Chef Arthur Hart and his staff the toast list was proceeded with, A. V. Yates being chairman. "The King" having been duly given, Musical Aces Orchestra played two delightful selections.

The toast "Deloro Baseball Team" was proposed by H. F. Berry, vice president of the A.A.A., who said "on the value of sports we are all agreed." After testifying to the zest with which business men enjoyed baseball and the zest with which players entered into the game, he said that Deloro team were good losers as well as good winners. Organized effort dated from 1919. Before then, he understood, Marmora and Deloro boys lay awake at night concocting schemes to put it over each other. After outlining the progress of the team he concluded by remarking that this year they were a clean bunch of athletes than which there were no better.

Alex Kay of Peterboro, representing the O.B.A.A., was called upon to present the cup, Captain J. C. Quinn receiving the same and duly expressing thanks. Manager R. A. Elliott said he was honored to respond on behalf of the boys. He outlined the early beginnings of local baseball, touched upon the formation of the Trent Valley League, and paid tribute to the late Ward Patterson through whose persuasion they had joined the O.B.A.A. That year Deloro won the Trent Valley League. He pointed out that keener competition was coming yearly in all series. Having come to the season of 1926, he remarked that while he did not think there was a star in the team they had worked together and took poor decisions with a good grace. He would single out two men one Frank Leal and the other, Bill Regan.

During an intermission, the orchestra favored with another selection. The next toast was "The O.B.A.A.," being submitted by R. A. Elliott. This, he declared to be a very important toast, important as far as baseball was concerned. The same thing applied to the management of baseball as to a team. There are men in sport as in everyday life who would slip things over if they could. The O.B.A.A. is controlling to the best of its ability and making possible the life of baseball today. Prior to Alex Kay's response, a telegram was read from Mr. Walsh, regretting his inability to be present. Alex in his characteristic way, said: "This puts me in a peculiar position. I decided to attend as Alex Kay. Then I was asked to attend as representative of the Umpires' Union. Then a telegram from Mr. Walsh appointed me as O.B.A.A. representative. So I am like a can of 3-in-1 shoe polish. Mr. Elliott is to be congratulated on giving the history of his team. Through umpiring, I have seen the rises and falls of Deloro. Now they are on the top of the pinnacle, where I hope they will remain. Of the six associations under the O.B.A.A., the greatest is the Intermediate. Had Deloro played Osiers, the Senior winners, he believed Deloro would have won. Their signals were as fine a work of art as he had seen. He noted the cohesion, wherein they all worked together. Deloro team had won out on merits. He considered Mr. Elliott a true type of sportsman. The Ontario Amateur Association is the largest of its kind in the world. He thought Deloro should have a representative upon it. From them, he extended congratulations and good wishes to Manager Eliott and his team. The players were then presented with medals, each without exception making a neat reply. Frank Leal provided diversion at this point with a rousing song.

The toast to the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company followed, being proposed by H. A. McNally, who pointed out that were it not for the encouragement and assistance given by the company, the formation of a team would not be possible. Dealing with the connection of the company with the team's officials, he mentioned that thanks were most due to Mr. S. B. Wright, Manager, and Mr. F. A. Bapty, Secretary, because they came into more contact with the team than the other directors. Not only did the company give financial assistance, but their moral support was to be valued. He then read a letter from Mr. O'Brien expressing regret at non-attendance.

Mr. F. A. Bapty, replying, expressed his pleasure at being present and regret that he was the only member of the company to be present. Both Mr. Wright and himself had followed the team's progress with interest. It was a source of great pride to the directors of the company that the winning team should be associated with Deloro.

For the sake of the visitors, he would say that Deloro was the only plant of its kind in the world producing the same group of products: silver, cobalt, nickel, arsenic, stellite, and baseball players. Silver helped the team at the gate. Arsenic gave the players pep. Cobalt blue gave them the reminder of blue skies, and the other team's getting the "blues" sometimes. Nickel was useful at the bleachers, whilst stellite gave them the keen edge on their opponents. Every one of the directors was interested in sport, and believed in it, for it was very necessary that it be encouraged in such a community.

The company was pleased to give them a tangible token of appreciation of their success Mr. Bapty presented the players with watches and cigarette cases, after which S. R. Burrows of Belleville gave one of his rollicking songs.

The toast, "Athletic and Outdoor Sports," was ably proposed by W. L. Rigg. He spoke for the fans, who had a wonderful time, with lots of thrills last season provided by the skilful work of the baseball team. He included tennis, bowling, hockey and kindred sports in the toast, suitable response being forthcoming from F. Paquet, C. H. Buskard, W. Simmons, H. Smith, J. Hemphill and R. Parker.

The orchestra having played a further pleasing selection, R. Hunter submitted the toast to "The Visitors." "It is my happy duty to propose the time-honored toast of hospitality. We have invited our guests because we like them, and I feel qualified to include the orchestra in the toast," he said.

I. H. Legate, of Point Anne, president of Bay of Quinte League, and Frank Gover, catcher of Point Anne team, with J. Batten of Peterborough, made suitable replies.

Mr. H. W. Sabine also spoke fittingly as substitute for Warden Airhart, who was prevented by another engagement from giving a desired speech.

S. R. Burrows having given another number, H. R. Haacke gave "The Ladies," this being responded to with musical honors by the orchestra.

Sweater coats of Cobalt blue and silver grey bearing Deloro crests and photos of the team were presented at the close to each player, whilst the ball which won the final game was presented to Manager Elliott. At his command, the team rose to cheer thrice the Deloro A. A. A. A vote of thanks to Mr. A. Hart was proposed by F. Paquet and seconded by J. P. Marrin, and most heartily carried.

"Auld Lang Syne" was the closing number.

Later many adjourned to the ball at Deloro Hall, where music was furnished by the Musical Aces, a five-piece aggregation from Perth.

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, since I last wrote you our Jr. footballers has win a glorious victory over Penetang, and then got bumped out of the picture 9 to 5 by the McCormicks of Toronto. The way the lads galloped through the Northerners last Sat. made me think they would put the Toronto squad into the discard, but they was nosed out. I wasn't among them on the sidelines in Oshawa, but the report from Mister Jack Nott's town seems to hint that if the Petes hadda booted the ball oftener for single pts. they woulda win the decision. The same mistake has been made by older heads than the Petes. Chances for a point is thrown away in the gamble for a touchdown. Ottawa showed last Sat. what can be done by timely kicking, for they beat the Balmy Beechers with 7 singles.

I told you last week I'd give you some dope on the Petes' hockey team, but they don't get into action in the S.p.a. serious until Dec. 7, so I ain't had no chance of looking them over yet. The lads has made 1 trip to Toronto for a workout, and they tell me this young Mister Kane is going to be a mighty useful citizen so far as hockey is concerned. The resta the gang was going good, and when the season proper opens the opposition is going to know they is in a hockey game. On paper the strongest looking outfit the Petes will have to meet is the Varsity Grads. What with Mister Joey Sullivan in the nets, Mister Porter and Mister Taylor on defence and a forward line of Doc. Hudson, Mister Trottier and all them Mister Plaxtons, the Grads ain't going to be exactly duck soup for nobody.

The Petes' opponents in the 1st S.p.a. game is the Kitcheners. The Dutchmen couldn't beat the Wright entry once in 4 starts last winter, though they made it close every time out, and the opening clash oughta to be a good 1.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, let me congratulate our enterprising fellow-citizen, Mister Bond, on again being elected to the O.h.a. executive. Mister Bond will soon be in the same class as Mister Tommy Church as a successful campaigner.

That's ain't nothing more that I can think of right now, Mac, so I'll toddle along.

Sportfully yours.

CANADIAN WINS BERWICK RACE

Clifford Bricker, of Galt, Defeats Field of Thirty.

SNELL COMES THIRD.

Canadian runners pulled off a great thing in Berwick, Pa., yesterday when for the first time an athlete from this side of the border showed the way in the 17th annual Marathon. The winner was Clifford Bricker of Galt, ho did the 9¼ miles in 49.05, a little over a minute more than the second. This was splendid time when one consider that there was two miles of crushed stone to cover.

Three Canadians went down for the race and Charles Snell, of the Gladstone A. C., Toronto, was in third place 20 yards in front of the favorite, James Henigan, of Bedford. The latter has won it for the last two years. The other Canadian was Percy Wyer, also of the Gladstone A.C., who finished in 10th place. The Canadian runners, accompanied by Art Scholes, arrived back in Toronto this morning singing the praises of the marathon officials for the hospitality they had received whilst across the border.

Gonzelo Moreno, of the United States army, Panama Canal zone, was second. Bricker ran a pretty race. He stepped into the lead in the first half mile and was never headed, although Moreno was little more than 200 yards behind him at the finish.

Clarence De Mar, veteran Melrose, Mass., runner, was tenth, while Percy Wyer, of the Monarch A.C., Toronto, was sixteenth.

A crowd of more than 30,000 persons witnessed the race and cheered Bricker and Snell as they finished, while the bands played the Canadian National Anthem.

The first six runners won diamond rings. Nine of the starters failed to complete the course. Several dropped out as the race went up the first mountain. At the halfway mark the first thirteen runners were bunched within 150 yards with the remainder of the field strung out behind.

Snell ran most of the race in fourth place, pulling up slowly toward the finish.

LADIES' BASKETBALL.

Eight or Nine Teams Expected To Form Strong League.

At the Ladies' Basketball League meeting held at the Y.W.C.A. last evening, there were five organizations represented, and the indications are that there will be eight or nine teams in the League this year.

Because several of the teams could not attend last evening, another meeting is being called for Monday, at 2 p.m., when the election of officers will be held, and rules of the League drawn up.

THIS CANADA OF OURS

QUEBEC BRIDGE.

Ques.—What are the dimensions of the Quebec Bridge?

Ans.—Canada's greatest bridge in many respects is the Quebec Bridge. In its general dimensions as well as in its enormous size and weight of the structural members composing it, it surpasses any other structure of the kind ever built. Total length, 3,240 feet; length of main span, 1,800 feet, of suspended span, 640 feet, 150 feet above water at high tide; main piers, 136 feet below high water.

THEATRE AT THE GRAND.

NEW ORIGINALS WITH A CAST OF PRETTY GIRLS THIS SEASON.

Theatregoers of Peterboro so rarely have the opportunity of seeing a travelling theatrical organization THE ORIGINALS, that they will do well to see the NEW ORIGINALS REVUE "ACROSS CANADA" which comes to the Grand theatre for one performance only, commencing on December 1.

A Revue that is different, in twenty scenes, with a cast of pretty girls, headed by Mr. Albert Rees the eminent English comedian, Miss Dorothy Tipit, England's leading musical comedy comedienne, Bertram Langley, Jerry Brayford and many other favorites, will offer a performance that makes the "ACROSS CANADA" Revue that best attraction that will visit this season.

Miss Dorothy Tipit with her charming personality, stunning gowns and dainty dances wins her way as a great favorite with the audiences everywhere.

The other members of the cast are leading London and Canadian artists, the performance presented this season sends one home in a very happy mood humming the many song successes and haunting melodies and smiling at the many humorous skits seen at the revue.

Several travesties and concerted numbers brimming with splendour, magnificent gowns, dainty dancers and versatile comedians, all help to make THE NEW ORIGINALS REVUE "Across Canada" the musical treat of the season.

On account of the long transcontinental tour and the short time allowed for same, this big musical revue will positively only appear for one day this season mail orders are now being accepted by Manager Fletcher and the regular box office sale will commence next Monday. Election returns will be given out from the stage.

AT THE CAPITOL

SILLS RISKS LIFE MAKING NEW FILM.

Star Carries Giant Movie Actor Over Cauldron of Molten Ore.

Thrills of the sort you see once in a lifetime are in store for motion picture patrons in "Men of Steel," First National's big steel photoplay, which comes next week to the Capitol Theatre, with Milton Sills in the starring role and Doris Kenyon as the featured feminine player.

Sills has always been known as a "he-man." In past pictures he has been called upon to perform some difficult feats, but in "Men of Steel" he surpasses anything he has ever done on the screen both in scenes calling for strength and courage and in acting.

For example, there is a scene in which Sills and Victor McLaglen are trapped in a huge vat in a steel mill. A maniac is trying to dump a ladle of molten steel on their heads. Sills catches hold of a big iron hook swung over the vat on a chain from a crane and with McLaglen hanging to his feet is swung out of the vat, over masses of molten steel to safety at the other end of the big room.

McLaglen stands well over six feet and weighs more than two hundred pounds. The task of carrying him, to say nothing of the molten steel that was ready to bring death was one requiring iron nerve as well as strength.

Sills would not allow a double to take his place. It was his picture and he took the chances. This is just one of many thrills that fill this picture from start to finish and place it far above the ordinary "special." George Archainbaud directed the picture.

AT THE REGENT

"COMPROMISE" IS COMING; IRENE RICH THE STAR

Beautiful Irene Rich, whose quiet dignity and gracious charm have won her an enthusiastic fan following, is the star of "Compromise," the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen, which is opening on Monday at the Regent Theatre, with a brilliant supporting cast.

Miss Rich plays Joan Trevore, an idealistic young woman whose only happiness has been the love of Alan Thayer, and who marries him, hoping to blot out her unhappy childhood.

Pauline Garon, pert young flapper of the screen, plays Nathalie, the petty half-sister who has devoted her energies to spoiling things for Joan.

Clive Brook plays Alan Thayer, Joan's handsome young husband, whom Nathalie had tried to appropriate before their marriage and who flirts outrageously with him after he and Joan are married.

Winter Hall plays Joan's lovable old father, who tries to shield her from Nathalie and Nathalie's jazz-band friends; and Helen Dunbar plays Joan's stepmother.

Raymond McKee is seen as Cholly, who is Nathalie's chief aid and pet.

The remainder of the cast includes Frank Butler, Edward Martindale and Lynn Cowan.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE XXXVI—Was Gold Discovered First? by MAX HAHN

O. P. U. Secretary Is Proud of His Cousin

The attempts of the local Prohibition Union and branches elsewhere to discredit Magistrate Murphy have been rebuked by their own provincial organization, as they should be.

Here is a statement from Rev. W. Wallace Peck, General Secretary of the Ontario Prohibition Union.

> "Premier Ferguson has vehemently protested that Mrs. Murphy ('Janey Canuck') is not related to him and is related to me. I am rather proud of the fact that Mrs. Murphy is my first cousin. I do not agree with her views on the Alberta situation, but, recognizing her ability and that she is entitled to her views, I do not denounce the lady or vehemently protest that she is guilty of terminological inexactitude."

That chastisement should bring a blush of shame to the cheek of local prohibitionists unless they follow their usual tactics and declare that their own General's Secretary's statement was inspired by the fact that he is related to Mrs. Murphy.

IMPERIAL LIFE SALESMEN MEET

Members of Field Staff For This District Hold Convention.

During the past two days the Imperial Life Assurance Company has conducted an educational convention for the field staff of the Central Ontario Branch. The meetings were held at the Peterborough Club, and an excellent programme was provided by Messrs. F. W. Hobson and C. H. Armstrong, of the Home Office, Toronto.

Whilst many representatives were unable to attend, due to illness, those present from out of town included: G. F. Cole, Belleville; W. V. Pettet, Picton; L. S. Caverly, Bowmanville; H. J. Gould, Uxbridge; J. M. Scott, Havelock; W. L. Elson, Millbrook; S. C. Gay, Foxboro; R. I. Cooper, Brighton; J. Roy Lavis, Whitby; T. H. Henderson, Bobcaygeon; J. D. McEachern, Campbellford.

On Friday a joint luncheon was held with the Peterboro Life Underwriters' Association at the Empress Hotel, Mr. F. W. Hobson being the speaker of the day.

The convention closed with a dinner, served at the Peterboro Club. W. G. Morrow, a director of the company, was the guest of honor.

FIRE DESTROYS LUMBER PLANT

Loss of $150,000 Sustained in Forest Hill Village.

40 OUT OF WORK.

TORONTO, Nov. 27 — (Canadian Press.)— Fire early to-day completely destroyed the plant of Myres Lumber Company in Forest Hill village, a Toronto suburb, with a loss of about $150,000. The fire broke out in the sash and door section of the plant and the flames, fanned by a twenty-five mile an hour gale, could be seen for miles across the city.

While fire fighting headquarters in Toronto were apprised of the fire, no assistance was given to the village firemen in fighting the flames. District Chief Alex Gunn stated that general orders would not permit the Toronto firemen to attend a fire outside the city limits unless there was danger to city property.

Forty persons have been thrown out of work by the fire.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

(By C. N. Lurtz.)

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

(By The McClure Syndicate.)

Which is correct, "sanitarium" or "sanatorium?"

"I have noticed in various newspapers and magazines," writes a correspondent, "that the word is spelled sometimes 'sanitarium' and sometimes 'sanatorium.' Will you please tell me which is correct?"

On good authority, it may be said that both are correct, and that either may be used. They are both derived from the Latin—"sanatorium," from "sanatorius," meaning "health giving," and "sanitarium," from "sanitas," meaning "health."

However, the latest edition of Webster's International Dictionary makes a slight distinction between the two words. It says that both "sanatorium" and "sanitarium" mean "health resort: an establishment for the treatment of the sick," but that "sanitarium" is sometimes restricted to "an establishment where the treatment is wholly, or almost wholly, prophylactic"—that is, preventive, preservative or protective.

In other words, you go to a "sanatorium" to be cured, and to a "sanitarium" to be preserved from illness.

IN MEMORIAM.

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of our dear, loving son, Henry S. Campbell, who died at 60 Patterson street, Glasgow, Scotand, November 27th, 1925:

We stood beside the grave,
With hearts both sad and sore,
But in the gloom a still voice said:
"Not dead, but gone before."
Oh, for the touch of a vanished hand
And a voice that is stilled in sleep.
—Our beloved son and brother, sadly missed, and ever remembered, by Father, Mother and Sisters.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear brother, who died at 60 Patterson street, Glasgow, Scotland, on 27th of Nov., 1925:

Fresh in our hearts his memory clings,
Yet still our hearts are sore,
But each passing year will nearer bring,
The day we shall meet once more.
In his grave he is calmly sleeping,
His spirit shines above,
Safe in the Saviour's keeping,
Waiting for those he loves.
—Ever remembered by his sister, Mrs. Alex. McLeod.

BRITISH EMPIRE LEAGUE ITSELF

Baldwin Says Conference Stressed Co-operation, Not Independence.

SEEK DEFENCE.

LONDON, Nov. 27 (United Press)—The British Empire is a League of Nations in itself, Premier Baldwin said last night at a banquet for Premiers of the overseas Dominions. "We tried to set forth things as they are, for the world to see," he said, concerning the accomplishments of the recently concluded Empire conference in London. "Attempts to define the status of Empire were not made, as attempts to define such things repeatedly have split christendom." He declared that the world war brought the Dominions to manhood, and that the conference had recognized that fact. "We stress co-operation, not independence," he said, adding that the Empire seeks defence rather than conquest.

A REAL OPPORTUNITY FOR POULTRY PROFITS

CONSIDER THESE FACTS:—
The late cold spring resulted in reduced hatches.
Today there exists a serious shortage in eggs and poultry. There are two million dozen less eggs in cold storage than a year ago.
The opportunity for big poultry profits is knocking at the door of the poultryman who can take advantage of the increased demand and high prices that will be paid for eggs this winter.
There is no time to experiment. You can take advantage of over 127 year's experience with poultry by feeding Blatchford's "FILL THE-BASKET" EGG MASH

Liberal Leader Says Ferguson's Tactics Deserving Of Defeat

Hon. W. E. N. Sinclair Addresses Big Meeting in Grand Opera House—Silences Hecklers and Denounces Premier's Government Control Policy.

POKES FUN AT CONSERVATIVE PROMISE TO ENFORCE LATEST "TEMPERANCE" PLAN

Hon. W. E. N. Sinclair, though suffering from a severe cold, made an inspiring appeal on Saturday night to the Liberals of Peterborough City and all others interested in temperance to vote for George A. Gillespie on Wednesday next. The meeting, held in the Grand Opera House, drew a good attendance, and that the audience was sympathetic toward the speaker was indicated by the promptness with which several hecklers were clapped and cheered into silence. The Liberal leader himself showed a skill in dealing with the interruptions that he has learned on many platforms in many campaigns, and drew burst after burst of laughter by the way he discomfited his would-be tormentors.

The meeting was presided over by J. J. Hartley, President of the Liberal Association, who was supported on the platform by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., and a score of women and men representative of all classes of citizens. The candidate, who was lauded by Mr Sinclair as an ideal candidate, gave a brief address, and J. J. Duffus discussed the political situation at some length. During the course of the evening two solos were given by Miss Mathilde Masson, drawing sustained applause from the big audience and commendation from Mr. Sinclair.

Should Step Aside.

"I think if Premier Ferguson cannot enforce a statute he was a party to placing on the books, he should step aside," declared the chairman in the first of his many interludes in the programme. Later on he asked his audience whether there is not a great change for the better in Peterborough under the O.T.A. "You don't see men rolling around the streets these days," he said, "and I believe if the Government was sympathetic to the O.T.A. the breaking of it would soon be eliminated." Still later in the evening Mr. Hartley remarked that he could not see how it would diminish drinking to place all he wants to drink before the man who now has to go looking for it.

In introducing Mr. Sinclair, the chairman referred to him as the future Premier of Ontario, amid cheers.

Praises Gillespie.

Mr. Sinclair opened his address with a graceful tribute to the candidate, whom he has known for a numbers of years. "I'm satisfied that you will W. E. N. Sinclair see Mr. Gillespie returned to represent you in the next Legislature," he said after extolling the virtues of the candidate. Then he complimented J. J. Duffus upon the excellency of his address, and

SENATOR GEORGE M'HUGH IS DEAD

Member of Parliament From 1886 to 1900 for Victoria.

DIES AT LINDSAY

LINDSAY, November 29.—Senator George McHugh passed away at his residence here early on Sunday morning, after an illness of several months, in his 81st year.

The deceased was born in the Township of Ops, and was the son of Patrick McHugh, who was for several successive years a member of the Council of the United Counties of Victoria and Peterborough, and was the first warden of the independent County of Victoria in 1863.

The deceased was a former president of the Reform Association of South and West Victoria, and was a representative in the Federal House from 1886 to 1900. In the year 1901 he was appointed to the Senate. He was a director of the Lindsay Central fair and a member of Knights of Columbus.

Before taking up residence in Lindsay, he was a successful farmer in the Township of Ops, a breeder of high grade cattle and Canadian Clydes.

His wife, who was Margaret O'Neil formerly of Peterboro, predeceased him five years ago. He is survived by two sons, P. B., Lindsay, G. P., Barrister of Toronto; one daughter, Mrs. Mary Hodgson of Lindsay, and three sisters and one brother.

The funeral will take place in Lindsay tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

BRITISH STRIKE FINALLY OVER

Coal Fields Returning To Normal With Half Million Workers.

PRICES GO DOWN.

LONDON, Nov. 29. — (United Press.)—Great Britain's coal crisis which became acute last April and resulted in the general strike and idleness in most of the pits for almost seven months, apparently has ended to-day. Many of the principal coal fields were returning to normal, reductions in coal prices varied from a penny a hundred weight in Lancashire, and nearly 500,000 men were working in the mines to-day. The newspapers generally were advising their readers to delay purchasing coal in expectation of further rapid peace reductions.

DEMONSTRATION AGAINST CHINESE

Planned To Give Naval Display To Impress Anti-Foreign Element.

LONDON, Nov. 29.— (Canadian Press.)— Serious developments of the situation in China have occurred at Hankow, where grave anti-foreign agitation is in progress, Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, told the House of Commons to-day.

The British Government, including the Admiralty, is considering the entire situation and further announcement is expected on Wednesday.

An international naval demonstration at Hankow, China, to impress the anti-foreign element among the Chinese there may be necessary, British authorities said to-day, to forestall serious developments. The United States, Great Britain, France and Japan would co-operate in the demonstration suggested by the British. There are about 400 foreigners in Hankow.

In telegrams sent to five military commanders of the north, upon whom the Peking officials were depending for power to enforce their decrees, the members of the Cabinet call upon the war lords to establish "an effective Government for the welfare of the country."

FEELING GROWS THAT ENGLAND'S BEST HAS PAST

Ramsay MacDonald Says He Finds This Idea Everywhere.

WANTS ELECTION.

Blames Present Government For Growth in Past Two Years.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—(New York Herald-Tribune Special Cable.)—"There is a sort of pitying, charitable feeling that this country has seen its best days," declared Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader, in calling for a general election, on his return to London on Sunday. The leader of the Opposition has been on a six weeks' vacation, passed mainly in Africa, on medical orders.

Claiming that he met this feeling everywhere he went and that it had grown enormously during the last two years, Mr. MacDonald charged that it has increased largely as a result of the work of the present government.

"We ought now to concentrate on making public opinion alive to the position of the country and consequently to demand that this government should abandon its attempt to rule, he said, asserting that a general election was required to make the House of Commons representative.

"Conceding that the miners have been beaten, on the other hand," Mr. MacDonald declared, with emphasis, "the country has a right to say that the present chaotic management of the mines shall be stopped. The owners have proved themselves a menace to the community and to be unworthy of the responsibilities placed upon them."

EIGHT ELDERS ARE INDUCTED

Impressive Ceremony Yesterday in St. Andrew's Church.

PASTOR IN CHARGE.

An impressive and interesting event occurred in St. Andrew's United Church yesterday morning, in the induction of eight elders and the addition of their names to the Session. The following are the new elders: N. A. Brand, M. T. Breckenridge, F. H. Dearborn, D. F. Drummond, H. R. H. Kenner, G. H. Roper, E. R. Shirley, W. J. Stacey, and W. L. White. Mr. Duncan F. Drummond, who was unable to be present on account of illness, will be inducted in the near future.

The ritual, which was simple and dignified, but very beautiful, was directed by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Gordon, assisted by the Session and congregation. The sermon was a review of the tasks, battles and achievements of the Christian Church in history. Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park sang "How Lovely are Thy Dwellings," by Liddle. A large congregation was present.

GREAT WORK BY SALVATION ARMY IN AUSTRALASIA

Col. Henry Tells Rotary of Army Actvities and Objects.

A SPLENDID TALK.

Visiting Officer Served Both in Australia and New Zealand.

Some most interesting sidelights were thrown upon the Salvation Army work in Australia and New Zealand by Colonel Robert Henry, Chief Secretary of the Salvation Army for Canada East, who was the speaker at to-day luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club. A number of other prominent visiting Salvation Army officers were guests today including Colonel Adby, Territorial Young People's Secretary and Staff Captain Spooner, who took part in the programme.

Col. Henry, pointing out that there was a great work to be done for the underprivileged boys and girls of the great cities, told how the Salvation Army was dealing with that work in Australia where he had served ten years in the same mission. Describing the physical characteristics of Australia with the interior sparsely inhabited and the bulk of the population congregated in large cities on the coats, the speaker gave interesting details of what was being accomplished. The outstanding feature was the estate taken over by the Army at which four different classes of boys were being cared for. These consisted of boys with no one to look after them, a second class of boys who were difficult to handle, a third class of boys who had been convicted of at least two crimes against the state, and the fourth of boys not mentally sound.

In New Zealand a notable achievement to the credit of the Salvation Army was the reclamation of inebriates, the speaker declared. He explained that the Army had established their inebriates' asylum on an island. "That's a capital place for such an institution," said Col. Henry, amid laughter. "They have to swim if they want to get the stuff."

There was no bi-chloride of mercury, no nostrums in the Salvation Army cure; just plenty of good wholesome food, fresh air, a reasonable amount of work, healthy surroundings and a generous proportion of religion. Yet as a result of their efforts at least 70 per cent of those treated by the Army never appeared before a magistrate afterward on a charge of drunkenness.

Col. Adby delighted the Rotarians with his vocal solo, "'Tis Sunshine on the Hills," and Staff Captain Spooner earned warm applause for his concertina solo of a chimes imitation that was given with most impressive realism. The Rotarians insisted upon an encore.

It was announced that the next meeting of the club would be held on Wednesday evening, December 8, when the District Governor will pay an official visit to Peterborough.

Little Dog Given Ride For 3 Miles By Tornado

HEBER SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 29.— (United Press).— Freaks of the devastating Thanksgiving day tornado were recalled by survivors of the storm. Seven of a family of nine were killed as they sat down to their holiday dinner. A small dog was carried nearly three miles by the wind and was dropped to the ground unhurt. The town's four churches, at which no Thanksgiving day services were held, were demolished.

TRYING TO STOP RAILWAY TIE-UP

Executives of Railways and of Workers Will Confer.

TO DISCUSS CLAIMS.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 29 (Canadian Press)—A move to reopen negotiations between the Railway companies' executives and officials of the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen is now under way, it was learned unofficially here this afternoon. While verification of the report could not be secured from railway officials, it was stated on reliable authority that a request has gone out from the union leaders asking that a date be set by the railway executives to meet the railway employees' committee.

In the meantime S. N. Berry, Senior Vice President of the O.R.C. and W. J. Bare, of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, left Montreal for Ottawa at the Minister of Railways' request to confer with the latter, who is endeavoring to bring about a satisfactory settlement to the wage dispute and avert a possible walk out of men.

In an interview here today, L. E. Sheppard, Chicago, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, who is in Montreal keeping in close touch with events pointed out that the managers' committee of the railroads in an official statement on Friday had intimated that the door was open to further negotiations through the approach of the railroad executives. "We are waiting on the railroad executives now," he said.

The men, 15,000 conductors and trainmen have voted in favor of a strike if their six per cent increase of wages, which would bring their rate of pay on a par with that received by similar workers in the United States, were refused by the Canadian lines.

ANGLO-GERMAN COAL CONTEST

Fight Over Markets Secured During Coal Stoppage in England.

SEEKING AGREEMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press)—An Anglo-German coal war, brought on by the attempt of the Germans to retain markets taken from England during the coal stoppage, is predicted by The Westminster Gazette.

The paper's Essen correspondent says the Ruhr coal syndicate, which took advantage of Britain's coal needs, by signing large contracts, now is seeking an agreemnt with the British coal owners to maintain prices, unify working hours and restrict output, which, it is explained, would enable the Germans to retain part of the markets captured from Great Britain.

The Westminster Gazette understands that British coal owners are opposed to the idea and will fight to regain the markets.

Ferguson Government Policies Upheld at Meeting on Saturday.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS.

H. G. Fester, Labor Leader From Hamilton, Was Main Speaker.

An emphatic denial by W. H. Bradburn, the Conservative candidate, that neither he nor his organization had anything to do with sending the hecklers who were present at Mrs. Gordon Wright's meeting held in the Opera House the previous evening was the feature of the meeting held in Victoria Hall on Saturday night when the policies of the Ferguson Government were vigorously upheld by several speakers.

One man in the audience, interrupting Mr. Bradburn during the course of his speech, claimed that he had been the heckler, and declared that he belonged to no political party.

H. G. Fester, a Labor leader from Hamilton, was the main speaker. J. Maloney of Ottawa, a law student, at present attending Osgoode Hall, also spoke. V. J. McElderry was chairman for the occasion.

W. H. Bradburn.

"It's a strange thing that in this campaign, that Sinclair and his supporters have not attacked the administration of the Ferguson Government," declared Mr. Bradburn.

When Ferguson took office he was confronted with an appalling state of affairs; he found himself saddled with a deficit of fifteen million dollars, a legacy from the Drury Government. Under the administration of Ferguson and his Cabinet this deficit was reduced to a little over a million dollars. This deficit, he prophecied, would be entirely wiped out if the Government was returned at the forthcoming election.

Declaring that it was impossible for Mr. Sinclair to become Prime Minister of the Province, Mr. Bradburn said: "Look at the number of candidates and you find it is impossible for the Liberals to govern the province. The Liberal party has 52 or 53 candidates in the field. Some are in Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa. Sinclair will lose 15 seats in Toronto, two in London, and two

Business Men! Your Prosperity At Stake!

SHOULD a government liquor store be opened in Peterboro it will immediately affect the prosperity of every legitimate business in the community.

Experience in Government Sale provinces shows that hundreds of thousands of dollars now being used to buy groceries, meat, clothing, furniture and other useful articles would be poured into that store or stores for liquor. Look at these figures.

LARGE SUMS SPENT FOR LIQUOR

Government Sale began in British Columbia on June 15th, 1921. The four Annual Reports of the British Columbia Liquor Control Board give the amounts sold in the cities or towns in that Province, from June 15, 1921 to March 31st, 1925, a period of three years, nine and a half months. The statistics for the population are taken from the 1926 Canadian Almanac:

Place	Population	Amount of Sales
Vancouver	117,217	$14,986,407.38
Prince Rupert	6,393	1,329,811.55
Nelson	5,230	939,391.05
Victoria	38,727	3,583,603.38
Nanaimo	9,088	1 316,778.50
Kamloops	4,501	854,102.36
Fernie	4,343	841,506.35
Cranbrook	2,725	776,903.86
Prince George	2,053	751,825.11

Farm produce sellers, manufacturers and merchants in Ontario cities and towns will see at a glance how their business will be affected if we have Government stores in Peterborough. They should consider whether or not they wish to establish a rival business that will rob their own.

BOOTLEGGING IN GOVERNMENT SALE PROVINCES

Bootlegging in the four western provinces which have Government Sale has become so enormous and flagrant the Attorney-Generals of these four provinces met in Vancouver last Friday and told the facts to the Customs Investigation Commission. Yet Premier Ferguson tells us he is going to get rid of the bootlegger. How? Why, by making it easier for him to get his supplies.

GOVERNMENT AS A BARTENDER

Sir George E. Foster, one of the greatest Conservatives of all times, says: Premier Ferguson desires his government to become the "Sole Liquor Proprietor and Bartender of the Province." Do you favor such a policy?

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

(Contributed.)

One of the world's most noted Bible expositors, Dr. Ford C. Ottman of Stonybrook, Long Island, occupied the pulpit in St. Paul's Presbyterian church at both services yesterday and spoke to large congregations. His addresses were the first in a series that will be given each afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week until Friday night. Bible students had treats at both services, as the Word was honoured by the speaker and expounded in a masterly way.

At the morning service emphasis was laid on the fact that God has spoken through the Scriptures, While allowance may be made for those who doubt this fact, if they question the Scriptures, all who accept it are under obligation to consider the stupendous claim involved in the assertion that the Scriptures are the Word of God. In over 2,000 passages in the Old Testament the writers assert that they were speaking under direct inspiration of God, and the same claim is made repeatedly by the writers of the New Testament. Christ is the centre and theme of both the Old and the New Testaments. Prophets, even before Moses, foretold His advent and His glory.

The Kingship of Jesus.

At the evening service Dr. Ottman dealt in a masterly way with God's oath as given to David in the 7th Chapter of Second Samuel, and confirmed in the 89th Psalm, that He would establish His House and His Kingdom forever. In the 89th Psalm, where God remembers and renews His oath, the promise is given that David's seed shall endure forever. Dr. Ottman pointed out that God was speaking about a definite king, a definite kingdom, and a definite people, and said that efforts to spiritualize these promises therefore only served to make them ridiculous. Quoting prophet after prophet, and giving an outline of the lives of the kings who succeeded David, he showed that the belief of the Jews that their kingdom would be re-established, existed all through the captivities and was carried intact into the New Testament, where the first thing we read in the Gospel of Matthew is the genealogy of Christ, on Joseph's side, showing him to be a direct descendent of David and Abraham. The Angel Gabriel, in foretelling the Birth of Christ, announces that "He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His Father David, and He shall reign over the house of David forever, and of His Kingdom there shall be no end."

Dr. Ottman, who has given years of study to the subject, showed by examination of the genealogy given in Luke, that Jesus, on His Mother's side, was a direct descendant of David and entiled to David's throne. Thus on both His Father's and His Mother's side, His right to the throne was proven and has never been seriously contested. From this foundation Dr. Ottman intends night by night to unfold the Scriptures as they relate to Christ both in His relationship to the Jews and to the Gentile nations of to-day. An invitation to the public to attend the adresses was given from the pulpit last evening.

The New Organ.

Interest in the installation of the new organ is steadily growing as its complicated nature becomes more and more evident. It is the largest organ ever built by the Woodstock Pipe Organ Builders, Ltd., or by their predecessors in a business connection of over fifty years. For weeks they have had from four to six men working on the organ steadily, simply installing it, and this week the chief organ tuner will be here supervising the final tuning of the instrument. Preliminary tests of the harp effect, that is a part of the organ, thrilled those who heard them. The echo organ and chimes have been installed in the tower and will be tested out this week. There are over 3,200 pipes of various sizes in the organ, from pipes only a few inches long to monsters the size of a man's body, and possibly 25 feet long. The organ will be first played at a big organ recital December 13 which will be conducted by John W. Bearder, Mus. Bac., F.R.C.O., of Ottawa, President of the Canadian Guild of Organists, one of the most noted organists in Canada

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

The third anniversary of the rededication of St. Peter's Cathedral was celebrated yesterday morning by the solemnizing of three low Masses and Pontificial High Mass at half-past ten o'clock, sung by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, assisted by Rev. P. Costella, Rev. Father Meagher and Rev. K. Corkery.

The announcements were made by Rev. P. Costello, and His Lordship, spoke later on the peculiar significance attached by the Church to these anniversaries. In their celebration, the Church wishes its members to realize that the very church building itself is the home of God. "It is the place where Christ dwells just as truly as when he lived in Palestine, during his hidden and public life. The Catholic Church is not simply a meeting-house, where people come to pray or sing hymns or listen to a sermon. It is more than that. It is the dwelling place of God Himself, and therefore the church should hold first place in our souls.

"As we return home from time to time, so we should form the habit of coming here to commune with our Divine Lord, to become intimate with Him who is to be our Judge on the last day, and, please God, our reward later in the Kingdom of Heaven. Here God is our friend and our neighbor, and here He is ready to take us by the hand and help us to eternity, if we are only faithful to Him. We must bear in mind that in His church the blessings of Almighty God are given to us in abundance. Here we receive the Sacraments. Here the very atmosphere is charged with the presence of God. "Our first thought today should be of gratitude to God for the number of graces we have received during the past year, and the assistance He has given us in carrying our cross."

COUNCIL MEETING.

MILLBROOK, Nov 26.—A regular meeting of the Cavan Council was held on Friday at 1.30 o'clock with the members all present, the Reeve presiding.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and on motion of Dep.-Reeve Hooton and Councillor Finney, were adopted.

TRANSPORTATION PLANNED FOR STUDENTS AT CAMPBELLFORD

Board of Education Considering Proposal to Provide Motor Bus.

SELL SEWER BONDS

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 29. — Transportation from the station to the High School for the students who arrive on the east bound morning train will be provided by the Board of Education if the proposal to engage a motor conveyance is carried out. And it is fully expected that satisfactory arrangements will be made.

The Board is actuated by consideration for the comfort of the incoming students and also for the saving of time now lost in the rather long walk from the station to the High School. It has been suggested that a motor truck specially fitted would serve the purpose. The students who come from Hastings, Birdsall's and other parts of the district, would undoubtedly appreciate the "buggy ride" during the whole school term and particularly during the winter months.

To Sell Sewer Bonds.

At a special meeting of the council on Friday evening the Second street sewer debenture bylaw was passed. The work was completed this season at a cost of approximately $32,000, and it is expected that the bonds will be sold locally.

Shooting matches have been rather numerous of late. Friday afternoon found quite an attendance of Marksmen at Allen Covenay's farm, among them being Marshall West, Russell Peake, Major Bygott, Tom Varcoe, W. Duncan, Claude Hoard, and others.

Copies of Rev. Dean O'Sullivan's new book, "The Chronicles of Crofton," have been received here for sale. The author is probably better known as Father Frank O'Sullivan. He is a brother of Councillor John O'Sullivan. The chronicles are replete with reminiscences of Dean O'Sullivan's pastorate at Port Hope, and many of his characters are but thinly disguised. This personal note will appeal to all those who know the author and are aware of his fine literary talent.

A car load of old horses went "over the hill" to the glue factory the other day. They were shipped from here to a Toronto abattoir, and from their decrepit appearance it is resumable that they had no other commercial value except for fertilizer and glue. It would be weak sentimentalism to waste a sigh on these aged and toil-worn animals, but their miserable destiny seems to indicate that biological imposition of inequality which produces kings and beggars in the human order and Man o' Wars, Epinards and weary-old wrecks in the equine world. Rich pastures, box stalls and kind attendants for the aristocrats of the track and stud, and the big fires for the broken old beasts of burden.

in Ottawa. For argument's sake, give him the rest. How in the world can a man be Prime Minister of the Province with a following of thirty-one members?"

The only other alternative if Ferguson was not returned, he submitted, was Mr. Raney, "and we don't want him," he added. "We had four years of his reign, and if he had been there for another session they would have stolen the Parliament Buildings right from under his nose," declared the speaker.

"When the Ontario Temperance Act was first introduced as a war measure under the Hearst Government, Mr. Ferguson gave valuable assistance in drawing it up," he said.

Despite the fact that Sir William Hearst gave this prohibition, three years after, in 1919 the people defeated his party at the polls, at the same time carrying his measure of prohibition by a majority of 425,000.

"It has been a thorn in the flesh ever since," he maintained. "Mr. Raney tried to enforce it with guns and failed. Mr. Nickle tried and made no better success. In 1925 Mr. Nickle made a speech in the House while bringing down his 4.4 beer measure, saying at that time, that unless something was done the Ontario Temperance Act was doomed."

"He now says the Government could have enforced the O.T.A. if they wanted to," declared the speaker.

"If this is so, Mr. Nickle was not true to himself—if he was not receiving the support of the Government he should have resigned."

Speaking with reference that had appeared in The Examiner in regard to Mrs. Gordon Wright and suggesting that he had sent hecklers to the meeting, Mr. Bradburn was interrupted by a man in the audience, who stood to his feet and said: "May I make a statement?" On receiving the speaker's assurance that he could, the man went on to say: "I am the person who was the heckler at that meeting. Before I went to that meeting I had no politics—I had prepared my questions beforehand, but realized that I would not have an opportunity of presenting them. Mrs. Wright made some very strong statements regarding so-called terrible conditions in London, Aberdeen, Glasgow and other cities. Why did she not mention Chicago? I have been in London, both in the pre-war days and on active service, and I want to say that for its population, London is the finest conducted city in the world," he declared, taking his seat amid a rousing burst of applause from the remainder of the audience.

Mr. Bradburn, continuing, said: "I as Conservative candidate had nothing whatever to do with sending hecklers or anyone else to that meeting. I don't think any man interested in my campaign had anything to do with it. While we don't agree with them, we do not try to break up their meetings. I consider it most unfair that they should accuse me of a trick like this."

Hearty applause greeted the utterances of the speaker.

"Our cause is just; we have nothing to be ashamed of, and there is no doubt in the world but that Ferguson will be returned to power on December 1, and I want to be one of the men behind him in the new House."

"You will," came from the audience.

H. G. Foster.

"I bring you this message from nineteen rural constituencies in which the farmer vote predominates," he declared. "From personal observation and from information received, I am positive that the Ferguson Government will carry sixty per cent. of the rural ridings in the province."

Speaking on the issue, the speaker said there were two O.T.A.'s: the Ontario Temperance Act and Other Things Aside. "Prior to the Ferguson administration, we had one administration which I supported and you know what it did. It was a most harrowing experience and almost brought the province to the verge of bankruptcy. Northern Ontario was talking secession, but when the experienced Ferguson Government came into power a Minister of Mines was appointed, who knew the situation, with the result that since then eighteen million dollars have been invested in that section of the country."

"They are trying to becloud the issue," he declared, referring to the opponents. "The man on the street says to himself that a government that gave such efficient administration can also be trusted to give proper consideration to any liquor question."

"That liquor has created hardship cannot be denied; that it has been abused cannot be denied, but if everything that was abused was abolished we would have to abolish seventy-five per cent. of our civilization."

Last year in the United States and Canada the automobile killed 30,000 people. "Do you hear them talk of abolishing them?—No, they want to control it," he declared.

"The Ontario Temperance Act is a law," he said. "Let us see whether it complies with the conceptions of British justice? Ordinary British law maintains that even if you are guilty the State must prove it, but in the O.T.A. we find the only law that the principle is reversed,—you must prove you are innocent."

"If it had accomplished what it was meant to there might be some excuse for keeping it there, but it has failed, woefully failed," he maintained.

Quoting statistics which he gained from the Canada Year Book, the speaker said in comparing the Province or Quebec with the Province of Ontario, that they showed that the Province of Ontario, with twenty-five per cent. more population, had three times as much as crime. During 1915, he said, before the O.T.A. came into being in Ontario, there were 12,563 convictions for drunkenness, for the same period in Quebec there were 8,939.

During 1925 Ontario had 12,903 convictions, while Quebec had 6,146. Criminal and minor offences showed the following results, he said. Quebec in 1915 had 27,905, and during 1925 had 25,532, indicating a decrease. Ontario in 1915 had 58,876 and during 1925 had 80,948, showing an increase.

Where in the old days in the city of Hamilton there were 120 saloons which had gradually been reduced by local option measures to 60 when the O.T.A. came in, to-day there were 1,500 bootlegging establishments operating in the city, he declared.

"How do they get away with it? I don't know, but I heard a prominent police official say that it was the most corrupting piece of legislation ever enacted."

"We also have the canned heat in Hamilton," said the speaker, and altogether it creates a deplorable condition.

"Yet our friends, Mr. Raney and Mr. Nickle, will advocate the retention of such an Act. I know they are honest, but so were the fellows who burnt our forefathers at the stake for saying that the world was round."

"They say we must tighten the law; well, let us look at the tighest prohibition in the world, the Volstead Act at present in operation in the United States."

"This law makes the entire traffic 100 per cent. illegal and yet the report of the Metropolitan Insurance Company, issued July 25, 1926, shows an increase of 25 per cent. in the number of deaths from alcoholism during 1926 than in 1925, among their policyholders. The report also shows that since the first year of prohibition deaths from alcoholism have increased 600 per cent. among the same group. In that country the business is so profitable that gangs of men battle on the streets with machine guns and bombing planes to gain control. There were more murders in wars between bootlegging gangs in Chicago during 1925-26 than for the same time in the Dominion of Canada from all causes."

"To enforce a law you must have the consensus of public opinion behind it, and as it stands today, 95 per cent. of the population will not support the O.T.A."

"If we see a man robbing a house we would report it to the police, yet our prohibition friends, if they saw a man take a drink, would they report it to the police? No. Why? It shows that in their subconscious mind they don't believe it is a crime."

That is why the bootleg traffic has multiplied by leaps and bounds and is gradually bringing a disrespect for all law, he said.

In concluding, the speaker declared: "Something has to be done — the issue is not wet or dry—it is wet now—do you want the traffic controlled or do you want it uncontrolled? Handled by the State or running wild, carrying death and destruction in its wake?"

The Modern Kitchen

THE MODERN KITCHEN.
By W. S. Limbery

There have been more changes and greater advances in the planning and equipment of the kitchen in this generation, than in any other room in the house, with the exception, perhaps, of the bathroom.

The busy housewife—now that the servant girl problem is so acute, and she herself has to do most of the kitchen work—has reached the decision that her health, time and labor are too valuable to be wasted by the shortcomings of a badly planned and equipped kitchen.

The first demand then of our modern kitchen is, that is must be a healthy room to work in.

Two windows must be provided so as to insure cross ventilation and a fair degree of coolness in summer. One of these windows should have the sash double hung, so that the upper sash can be lowered to allow a vent near the ceiling.

A hood should be built over the range, connected to the kitchen flue, not only to assist in carrying off cooking odours, but also the fumes from any escaping gas, should that be the means used for cooking.

It is necessary to instal an electric exaust fan, especially if there is but one window; it can be attached to a bracket on the wall about seven feet from the floor.

Healthy floors means floors easy to keep clean and easy to work on. Inlaid linoleum of a good quality will answer both of these requirements, and it has the additional advantage of being inexpensive.

A dull, ugly kitchen cannot be healthy. We all know the effects of environment; a simple, pleasant color scheme should be devised. The walls and ceiling can be of light putty gray, woodwork slightly darker and relieved by a narrow band of delft blue around the door panels and casings. Hang window sash curtains of plain light tan scrim with a blue stencil line border, and lay floor linoleum of blue and gray squares.

To save time and labor in the kitchen work, is our second requisite.

It is necessary that the various articles of equipment we can afford to instal, should be placed in proper relation to each other. Saved steps is saved time.

There are two "pivotal points" in every kitchen—the range and the sink,—and near to each of these should be suitable cupboards, containing the various equipment used in either case.

The pot and utensil cupboard should be near the range; the china cupboards and cutlery drawers near the sink; the work table, on which food is prepared, should be within a step or two of both the range and the sink.

The kitchen cabinet (preferably of metal), subdivided to store the various commodities necessary for cooking and for the table use, and which also has separate compartments for brooms and vacuum cleaner, and for the heavy kitchen dishes, can be placed as a separate unit.

The work table, size about 32 in. x 36 in., should have a couple of drawers for the odds and ends so necessary for kitchen work. A combination work stool and ladder should be provided and also if room permits, a small rocking chair.

The only plumbing required in the kitchen is a sink or a combination sink and wash tub. This should be of enamelled cast iron, with combination metal drain boards and high back, and with water supplies through a combination double sink faucet with swinging spout. Spend money on the design and quality of the sink and cut the extra expense off the living room if it has to be. See that the top of the sink is kept 36 in. from the floor, and that it is at least 20 in. x 36 in. in size, so as to hold two dish pans.

Instal two ceiling outlets for lighting; one should be over the sink and one in front of the range, or in the centre of the room, each on its own switch. There should be a wall plug put in for any necessary kitchen electric fittings, such as the toaster, ironer, etc. Copyright 1926, MacLean Building Reports, Limited.

Question: Should the footings go below the basement floor or just even with it?

Set the footing so that the whole thickness of the basement floor slab is above it.

Question: We can now pay off the first mortgage on our property. What steps should be taken?

Employ an attorney. His charge will be small and you will have assurance that proper steps will be taken to protect your interests in full.

T. B. CHALK AT MILLBROOK

Conservative Candidate in Durham Addresses Good Meeting.

WELL SUPPORTED

MILLBROOK, Nov. 29.—T. B. Chalk, Mayor of Port Hope and Conservative nominee in Durham, made his initial appeal to the electorate of Millbrook and vicinity on Wednesday evening, the town hall being well-filled for the occasion.

Honorable J. R. Cooke, who was to have been the chief speaker, was detained in some manner, and the candidate made the opening address, stating his pleasure in speaking to the electorate and asking their support on December 1st.

"We have one of the best-governed provinces in the Dominion," Mr. Chalk said, "and we have men of the highest type filling its official positions. The Premier, who has one of the brightest minds in our country, has been ridiculed by the press, and had false accusations brought against him, yet though blow after blow has fallen, he cannot be knocked out."

Expressing confidence that the Ferguson government will be returned after next Wednesday, the candidate went on to speak of the good work accomplished by the Minister of Health, Hon. Dr. Godfrey; the Minister of Mines, Hon. Charles McCrea; the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. G. S. Henry, and others.

"Yet in spite of the business-like way in which the affairs of the province have been administered, everything else has been lost sight of while the O.T.A. has been given paramount attention."

O.T.A. Unenforceable.

The O.T.A. cannot be enforced, the speaker felt assured, because it has not public sentiment behind it, and if government control were substituted for the Act, bootlegging will be gradually eliminated, doctor's prescriptions wiped out, and the revenue of $30,000,000, which now goes annually to the illicit sellers of liquor, will be turned into the government treasury instead of the $5,000,000 the latter has received yearly.

"I'm out to support any measure for the betterment of the temperance situation, and if elected will be glad to assist in framing any Act that will be an improvement on the ones now in force in the Western provinces, "where government control prevails."

Eulogising the Honorable Howard Ferguson's interest in the youth of the province, the Boys' Training School at Bowmanville being tangible evidence of practical help for the underprivileged lads, the candidate went on to condemn the clergymen, especially of the United Church, who are participating in the present campaign, "using their churches for political propaganda in upholding the O.T.A."

Miss Clara Field.

Miss Clara Field, of Cobourg, was the next speaker, and said she considered it a privilege to discuss questions of public moment, either Federal or provincial, "and while this is a time of great interest and anxiety, it will be over one week from to-night."

Urging the women to use their franchise because they hold the balance of power, Miss Field added that, "although Mr. Sinclair is presumably the opposition leader, Mr. Raney is the 'man behind the guns.' We want to have a responsible government after December 1st, as we have had for the past three and one-half years; are you going to bring back Mr. Raney, who had plenty of opportunity to show what he could do when he was Atterney-General, and failed?"

The good record of the various ministersin the Ferguson Cabinet was alluded to in the highest terms—hydro extension at a reasonable rate to farmers; radio possibilities in rural sections; community halls, and clubs formed encouraging healthy competition; improved conditions for dairy production and exportation; agricultural classes introduced in the rural schools, and better equipped teachers insisted upon; sanitary conditions and public health over the whole province, raised to a higher standard; and particularly the provincial finances put on a better basis by Honorable Mr. Price, "following the terrible mess the Drury government had made of them."

The development of Northern Ontario, where millions of dollars of English capital has been invested in the mines; and the better forest protection with an aeroplane service for fire patrol, were described with enthusiasm.

"Failing to elect Honorable Howard Ferguson as Premier, who would we put in? There seems to be no one except Mr. Raney, or Mr. Sinclair. The opposition is a "terrible mixture" of Liberals, Progressives, U.F.O.'s; Prohibitionists, and I hardly know what else. And if he was elected; what is Mr. Sinclair going to do? Have any of you read anything of his policy should be be in power for the next three or four years? I'm sure I have not.

The Liquor Question.

"This brings me to the question most discussed in this campaign. I'm not going to call it the temperance policy, because I believe that Mr. Ferguson's policy is the only real temperance policy we have presented to us." (Applause.) I believe if the ministers and the temperance workers would only put something better before the electors they would be doing a real service and taking a wise course.

"It is perfectly impossible to eliminate alcohol from the world—the Great Maker has put it in every vegetable, fruit, and grain that grows. If every distillery, and brewery in the country was closed, there would still be plenty of liquor, of a very inferior kind, made and in use."

Defining prohibition as "the attempt to control a man's appetite by legislation," the speaker condemned the O.T.A.; believing it impossible of enforcement. Over-indulgence in liquor was also condemned as a bad thing, and not to touch it at all advocated as the best plan. Those who believe there is no other way of controlling the liquor situation except by the O.T.A. were spoken of with regret, and clergymen "using their churches for political propaganda" were strongly condemned. "It is absolutely false for Mr. Nickle to say that he did not have proper backing in enforcing the law for, while $109,000 was spent for this purpose

AN EXTRA HOUR.

Electors should not fail to remember that they have an extra hour on Wednesday in which to poll their vote, inasmuch as the polling booths are to remain open until 7 p.m., an hour later than in the Federal elections, while the opening hour is 8 a.m. as usual.

With eleven hours given over to taking the vote, there is not much excuse for a failure on anybody's part to register his opinion on the issues before the electors.

The extra hour in the evening is expected to be a convenience to many voters, although it means, of course, a longer day not only for the election officials but also for the party workers to whom election day means long hours of working at top speed to cause the electors generally to do what they ought to do of their own accord without any help from party organizations, i.e., discharge their duty as citizens by exercising their franchise.

ALL EYES ON THE EAST.

For once in its history, at least, Eastern Ontario—or the section east of Toronto—will occupy a paramount position in the public gaze on election night.

This part of the Province contains four constituencies in which the results will be of the greatest general interest, inasmuch as they involve the political fate of the three Provincial leaders and of Hon. W. F. Nickle, whose break from the Government and opposition to its policy have made him one of the outstanding figures of the campaign.

In South Ontario W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, is opposed by ex-Mayor John Stacey, of Oshawa.

In Grenville Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, the Premier, is opposed by a prohibitionist candidate.

Prince Edward finds Hon. W. E. Raney, Progressive chieftain, battling with a "native son" for the right to represent the constituency in the Legislature.

Mr. Nickle, of course, is a candidate in his home city of Kingston, where he is opposed by Ald. T. A. Kidd, the Government candidate.

CAMPAIGN ACTIVITY.

The electors of Peterboro City cannot claim that the leading issue of the present election campaign has not been discussed for their benefit from all angles, both from the platform and through the medium of newspaper advertising.

The holding of five meetings in the city itself last week constituted somewhat of a record in campaign activity here.

Two of these gatherings were held by the Peterboro Prohibition Union, with Rev. Murdock McKinnon and Mrs. Gordon Wright as the principal speakers.

The only Liberal meeting of the campaign brought W. E. N. Sinclair, the Provincial Liberal leader, here on Saturday night.

The Government's view of the issues was put before the electors by Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Public Works, and Mrs. Howard Fallis on Wednesday night, and by Harry G. Fester, member of the Ontario Minimum Wage Board, on Saturday night.

In addition to these meetings, both parties have been conducting a vigorous advertising campaign, so that the voters should by this time have a grasp of both sides of the argument and be ready to mark their ballots on Wednesday.

YOUR DUTY IS TO VOTE.

May The Examiner be pardoned for once more emphasizing the desirability of a large vote being polled on Wednesday.

No man or woman whose name is on the list should be satisfied to be a mere looker-on in public affairs.

The opinion of the whole mass of the people is essential on every important question, and probably never was more necessary than in the decision that is to be arrived at by the electors of the Province on December 1.

It surely is of concern to every one what Government is to manage our business during the next four years.

And it is of equal importance perhaps how the liquor evil in Ontario is to be dealt with because that is a matter that directly or indirectly affects everybody.

We have been in the habit of entrusting the responsibility of deciding most of our public issues to about 70 per cent. of the electors—sometimes, indeed, to a considerably smaller percentage.

In this election the number of votes polled in Ontario, as a result of the interest that has been created in the O. T. A. question and the multiplicity of public meetings and private arguments over this issue should approach a record.

In the general welfare it is to be hoped that this expectation will be realized on Wednesday.

There is no reason why it should not.

Here in the city the polling booths are close at hand; there are party organizations eager to supply you with information as to where you vote.

If you have not already learned where your vote has to be registered, get in touch with the organization whose policy you favour tonight or tomorrow so that on Wednesday you will be able to discharge your duty as a citizen of Canada's best Province.

GET THE FACTS.

Due to the four great economic divisions of the Dominion, it is but natural that the man on the street thinks sectionally instead of nationally. Through the breadth of their influence, Canadian business men are in a position to remedy this condition—if they wish it remedied.

The sectional spirit in the unthinking is fostered by the attitude of certain editors in central Canada who picture the western farmers as selfish individuals desiring nothing more than the opportunity to obtain loans which will never be repaid. The western press, in its turn, tells the farmers a story they love to hear and indicates that central Canada is reclining in the lap of luxury brought about by its selfish attitude on tariff matters. And so the old game goes merrily on with each part of Canada urged to believe that those in other sections are more selfish and more sectional in their outlook than those in other portions of the Dominion.

In speaking recently along these lines, J. M. Macdonnell, of the National Trust Company, made the point that he, for one, did not find his own neighbors any more unselfish or one any more national in their viewpoint than people elsewhere in Canada.

And the business man, most of them leaders in their own spheres and their own communities, can help this intolerable situation by pointing out to others that the sectional atitude is illogical and unfounded.

In all this, perhaps central Canada is more blameworthy than other parts of the Dominion. Ontario and Quebec not infrequently assume the "Be-good-little-boy" tone which naturally enrages the Western and the Maritime Provinces. In the past, luckless orators in central Canada have as much as told the West and the Maritimes to "go to work, little men, and you will obtain your reward in due course."

The complaints of the Maritimes and the farmers may, or may not have been overdone. But certain it is that the preaching attitude has been done to death. In other words, what is wanted in solving the many problems which face, and which will continue to face, a country with such a wide variety of viewpoints is the scientific attitude. Forget the opinions, forget the prejudices, and ascertain the facts. It is upon these and upon these alone that the nine Provinces can best frame their national policies.—Financial Post.

THE RUSSIANS' MOTIVES.

Russian Communist leaders were full of glee when the general strike was declared in Great Britain last spring. They were much chagrined when that strike came to an end. Indeed, they vented their displeasure in violent denunciations of British trade union leaders. Some of the Russian leaders who had planned to attend the British Trade Union Congress during the past summer and were prevented from doing so by the British Government, abused the British Government and the British trade union leaders in terms that were resented by the delegates present at the Congress.

Since then the members of the Russian "Red" Trade Unions have been sending, in compliance with orders issued by the central committee of the Communist International, contributions to Great Britain to assist the British coal miners in their strike. While the general strike was in progress Major Kindersley, M.P., drew the attention to certain comments upon that brief struggle that were reported to have been uttered by prominent Russian politicians. These statements indicated that the Russian Soviet leaders were anxious to do all in their power to assist in prolonging the strike because they regarded it as a revolutionary movement. It was an extraordinary movement, but it was not viewed by the great mass of the British people in the same light in which it was viewed by the Russian Communists. The Russian Communist leaders, according to Major Kindersley, were alleged to have described the general strike as political in character and as an important step toward revolution against the form of government established in Great Britain. Lozovsky, General Secretary of the Red Trade Union International, was reported at the time to have issued a proclamation calling upon workers outside Great Britain to boycott British coal orders, to refuse to deliver merchandise to Great Britain and to wage a merciless war against strike-breakers. He declared that millions of the British proletariat had risen in rebellion and that for the first time in British history class was arrayed against class. Subsequently, the central committee of the Communist International was reported to have "ordered continuance of 'strict, compulsory and regular deductions' from all Russian workmen's wages, and also from the wages of members of affiliated organizations outside Russia" to be used to prolong the coal strike in Great Britain. The committee took the position that the termination of the strike by surrender of the strikers or by a compromise would be "a severe blow to the whole revolutionary movement." It also issued a series of orders to be carried out by British Communists with the object by preventing the collapse or settlement of the strike.

Thus, it would appear that the object of the Russian Communists was to prolong the coal strike in the hope that it would be the beginning of a revolt against the British system of government. Another object of the Russians was disclosed in a recent article of the Russian newspaper Pravda. The British people did not show sympathy with the Russian Communists' desire to keep the strike going in the hope that it might lead to the overthrow of the British constitution and the establishment of a Soviet rule in Great Britain. The British public would not show more sympathy with the Pravda's plea for continuation of the strike on the ground that "even a single day has vast importance, involving colossal losses and bringing Britain's economic structure nearer total collapse." Britons cannot be expected to be eager to place their country either economically or politically in the same position as Russia.—Mail and Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

And Wednesday night is going to be a very cold one, too, for a lot of people in this Province.

Just let us jog your memory again—early Christmas shopping is advisable in everybody's interests, including your own.

There is gloom in both the Government and the Nickle camps in Kingston. But it is not the political outlook, but the downfall of Queen's football team that is responsible for the sadness.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 Canadian Press)—Wheat moved downward in City).—Wheat moved downward in price Saturday owing largely both to Argentine reports of better weather and to pressure of Canadian supplies. Closing quotations here for wheat were heavy, 7-8c to 1 1-2c net lower, with corn 1-4c to 1-2c up; oats 1-8c to 1-4c off, and provisions varying from 10c decline to 25c advance.

Corn displayed relative strength Saturday, especially toward the last. Unfavorable weather was the chief factor. Oats were draggy, influenced by wheat weakness.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press)—There was a slight improvement in the foreign demand for Canadian grain on the Montreal market Saturday and a little business was transacted in wheat and oats.

The feature of the local coarse grain trade was the stronger feeling that developed for Canadian Western oats and prices were marked up 1 1-2 cents to 1 cent per bushel.

The local and export trade in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour continued quiet, but values were steady.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under a good demand. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but firm.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade, but values were unchanged. Receipts for the week totalled 11,255 boxes.

There was a fair demand for butter and a moderate amount of business was done. The undertone was steady. The receipts last week were 2,507 packages.

A moderate amount of business was done in fresh and storage eggs and prices ruled steady. The receipts last week were 8,936 cases.

MRS. GORDON WRIGHT VS. TEMPERANCE.

Editor, The Evening Examiner:

Dear Sir:

May I ask space in your valuable paper with reference to the above heading? I was impresed by the clever way in which Mrs. Gordon Wright appealed to the emotions of her audience in the address she gave at The Grand Opera House on the night of the 26th inst.

One might have taken issue on many of the statements Mrs. Gordon Wright made, but she claimed the privilege of her sex to address the audience without interruption.

Her answer to my first question, "What is your interpretation of Prohibition as applied to the O.T.A."—was to be expected viz: "The Prohibition of the Sale and Consumption of ALL and every kind of intoxicant, with the expressed hope of, in the near future, Dominion Wide Prohibition! Mrs. Wright's reply to my second question, "What is you definition of Temperance?" was that they; the Prohibitionist Party—had gone beyond and above Temperance! Is there need of any comment to such a reply?

Thanking you, sir, in anticipation of your publishing this letter, I am,

Yours faithfully,
E. MASSEY-COOKE,

Toronto, Nov. 26, 1926.

To the Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir:

In today's Toronto Mail appears a report of a speech made by Premier Ferguson at Chatham last night. In it he states that the "Prohibition Union advertised that Mrs. Murphy (Janey Canuck) was my cousin, then she was my sister. The worst feature of the whole business is that the Secretary of the Prohibition Union, Rev. Wallace Peck, is a first cousin to Mrs. Murphy. Yet he uses his clerical position to defame by falsehood one of the best of women when he puts these statements in the mouths of people who are using them. I say that without fear of contradiction and invite Mr. Peck to answer these advertisements. When they resort to this kind of poison gas they should not be able to maintain their position in the community. I don't propose to let the bickerings and chirpings of those kind of men divert me from the course I am going to pursue in Ontario."

Mr. Ferguson may be an authority on "poison gas" and "irresponsible chirpings"; but the above statement made at Chatham is absolutely false. I have been General Secretary of the Ontario Prohibition Union for over two months. Not a single piece of literature issued by the central office of the Ontario Prohibition Union has made any statement of any kind, regarding the relationship or relatives of either Premier Ferguson or Mrs Murphy. No such statement, has at any time, in any way been authorized by me. If there is such literature it has not been sent out by this office, nor written or published by any one now connected with the office. In dealing with the temperance situation I have dealt with the issue and not with personalities.

In one respect the premier is correct .He vehemently protests that Mrs. Murphy (Janey Canuck) is not related to him and is related to me. I am rather proud of the fact. For the best of good reasons, I do not agree with the lady's view on the Alberta situation, but unlike some other people, do not vehemently denounce her nor claim that honorable people are using "poison gas" and are guilty or "irresponsible chirpings"

Sincerely yours,
W. W. PECK,
General Secretary.

GOOD MEETING AT MADOC FOR HON. J. R. COOKE

Many Speakers Support His Candidature in North Hastings.

UPHOLD POLICIES.

Government Control Advanced as True Temperance Legislation.

MADOC, Nov. 29.—A meeting in the interests of the Conservative candidate, Hon. J. R. Cooke, was held in the Masonic hall on Wednesday with a large crowd present. Mr. F. Curry, reeve of Madoc, acted as chairman. The Madoc band played several selections before the meeting began and between the speeches.

The first speaker on the programme was Mr. C. B. McGuire, reeve of Stirling. "It affords me very much pleasure to be here to-day," said Mr. McGuire, "pleasure to be on the platform and to be with Hon. J. R. Cooke. The attendance this evening speaks volumes for him.

Mr. McGuire said he wished to say a few words on the issue, which was apparently confusing to many people, especially to the ladies. "The other side do not explain things just as they are but bring them out in a confusing way," he asserted. Mr. McGuire referred to Mr. Ferguson's speech in Trenton, saying that Mr. Ferguson had there explained everything, and had then urged the people to do their own thinking and vote the way they thought best.

Mr. McGuire spoke of citizenship and education. "We must all acquire the power of self-control and try to be a credit to the community in which we live. Each has a duty to perform, and if it is not carried out society will suffer." The speaker stressed education. "If we are to get anywhere with this temperance legislation it must be through education; education in the homes and schools and the church afterwards. Good citizenship is the highest product of education."

In speaking of the church in connection with temperance, Mr. McGuire regretted that the signing of the pledge has not been in such general use of late as it was a few years ago. He had signed the pledge when a young boy in Sunday school and he had never broken it yet. About one hundred and thirty-eight young lads had signed it at the time and he did not know of any who had turned out drunkards. He thought the signing of the pledge should be started again in the churches.

Mr. McGuire did not believe that any law should be put on the statute book that could not be enforced. "We are all grown-up children," he said. "We cannot break a law or we want to break another." He believed the bootlegger was responsible for the downfall of the O. T. A.

In summing up, Mr. McGuire referred to the good works done by Hon. J. R. Cooke during the last fifteen years. "He has worked heart and soul for us. We would be ungrateful if we did not turn out to vote for him, and where could we get a man to do more? That man isn't born. Therefore, let us give him a majority of two to one."

Hon. J. R. Cooke.

Hon. J. R. Cooke was the next speaker. "I hope you will not hold it against me for calling another meeting so soon," began Mr. Cook, and went on to say that he was going to talk from a prepared statement as there were certain facts he wished to go to the press correctly. He recalled the fact that on Saturday he had not attempted to criticize Mr. Sharp's address, and it was because he could not find any arguments in it. It was merely a lot of platitudes. He had criticized Rev. Mr. Stewart for he had made statements that were not true. His statement that there would be dispensaries in every town was not true, and the statements against Mr. Ferguson were also untrue. He later read an extract from Sir William Heart's letter as published in The Globe to show the falsity of these statements.

The candidature of Mr. Sharp was nothing short of an insult, Mr. Cook said, because there was an abundance of temperance men to be found here and if they had not known Robert Cooke and his record they would have opposed him themselves. The very nature of the deputation who waited upon Mr. Sharp was itself a clear indication of political and personal antagonism.

Mr. Cooke read from Sir William Heart's letter in The Globe of November 22, 1926, in which Sir William replied to the quotations in The Star of the Rev. J. W. Lowry in his speech in Sherbourne Street United Church when he had said that "the man who assassinated Sir William Hearst, politically and every way, was the honorable or dishonorable G. Howard Ferguson." In the reply Sir William had refuted this charge as being untrue in that Mr. Ferguson had been a loyal true friend to him and had fought for him in 1919. He also stated that "the O. T. A. could never have been enacted had it not been for the wholehearted support, able assistance, and co-operation of Mr. Ferguson. Prior to the session of 1916, while I was ill in bed and unable to attend to my public duties, he was busy drafting the Act and laying plans to insure its enactment," was Sir William's statement.

Mr. Cooke dwelt with particular emphasis on this paragraph.

Mr. Cooke then proceeded to read the proposed amendments to the O. T. A. as follows:

First, they will establish an independent commission along the lines of the Hydro Power Commission, that shall be authorized to deal with the liquor problems of this province, arising out of the manufacture of liquor by the distilleries, and deal with them along these lines:

Second, that no dispensary can be established in any municipality that voted dry previous to 1916, and these dry municipalities represent 99 per cent of the area of Old Ontario, and so when the Rev. Mr. Sharp and the Rev. Mr. Stewart stated at Madoc that these dispensaries could be established in every town and city and village of this province, they stated what was absolutely untrue. "I do not say wilfully untrue because they may not have taken the trouble to look up what the facts are but surely the question is of sufficient importance that man in their calling should not make such misrepresentations in regard to such a serious question."

The third amendment that the government proposed to make is that it shall be illegal for anyone below the age of 21 years to have liquor in his possession. The principle underlying this amendment that the state shall have control of minors is not new. In the Education Act one finds that the state has for years and years stepped in and exercised authority over the child in defiance of the parent, because for years the state has said that no matter what the desires of the parent may be they must attend school until the age of fourteen years, and the government of to-day is going a step farther in that principle and saying by the third amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act that until the age of 21 years it shall be illegal for anybody to have liquor in their possession.

"Now, the fourth amendment we propose to deal with," he continued, "is the privilege enjoyed by the medical profession of issuing prescriptions. Whereas, the statistics show that the medical profession throughout this province issued 1,500,000 prescriptions for liquor and for which the government agencies collected over five million dollars, the proposed amendments will make doctor's prescriptions absolutely illegal anywhere in this province. Surely, that is another amendment that is very striking in its character.

"Then the government also proposes to say that the possession of liquor of any kind without the government seal being attached will be absolutely illegal and this amendment will make it far easier to secure convictions of those who violate the act. In the past, it has been very difficult to secure convictions because perjury was rampant and in the great majority of cases it was impossible to secure evidence that would lead to conviction, and so we propose to simplify in this amendment the process of conviction by saying that any liquor found in the possession of anybody anywhere throughout the province of Ontario that does not bear the government seal shall be evidence of illegality and its mere possession will bring conviction.

"Then there is also in these amendments the interdiction clause which will mean that the family of a man, his wife or his children, shall, as a matter of fact, control the whole situation as to whether a man shall be allowed to have any liquor at all or not, because under these amendments it will be possible for a man's wife or any of his children to write a confidential letter to the commission controlling the distribution of liquor. That communication will be kept confidential but if either his wife or his family do not wish a man to have it then his permit is cancelled and we want to say to you that you can search every country in the whole wide universe and fail to find in the statutes of any country of the world such advanced temperance legislation as these amendments proposed."

Mr. Cooke also read as follows from a statement made by the Hon. W. F. Nickle on the floor of the House on February 17, 1925:

"I am trying to tell you, Mr. Speaker, that I am convinced unless some relief can be obtained against this ever-growing tendency that the Ontario Temperance Act is bound to be destroyed. The pendulum is swinging against the Ontario Temperance Act and while the movement was caught at the full of the tide in 1916 and 1919, due possibly to the emotionalism of the war to-day it is almost at the ebb of the tide; and, as a temperance man, I am satisfied that unless something is done to relieve the stress the Ontario Temperance Act is doomed to be destoyed."

"Whom should the electors believe," concluded Mr. Cooke, "Sir William Hearst, whose wonderful endorsation of the Hon. Mr. Ferguson, as outlined in his letter to The Globe, or should they believe Mr. Sharp, who never did anything to assist in the passing of the Ontario Temperance Act?"

W. Martin.

The next speaker was Mr. W. Martin of Stirling, who believed that this riding would not be true to itself if it did not elect Mr. Cooke. He spoke of the increase in the grant to the schools here brought about by Mr. Cooke. He disliked the using of the churches on Sunday for political talk and referred to the refusal of a Hamilton radio to broadcast a political sermon. He called to mind the work accomplished by Mr Cooke in the interests of North Hastings and quoted figures spent on colonization roads.

Other Speakers.

Speeches along the same line of thought, eulogizing Hon. J. R. Cooke and speaking in the highest terms of his integrity and the great amount of work done for this riding were given by C Rollins, reeve of Rawdon, who spoke also at length upon the improvements in roads and bridges brought about by Mr. Cooke, and by Dr. Embury, M. P., for Hastings-Peterboro', who also took the opportunity of thanking the electors for his own return. Dr. Embury charged the Temperance people with lack of sincerity. He spoke of Rev. Mr. Sharp's appearance in Bancroft the night before. "Where are the delegates that formed the largest delegation that ever went out of Hastings when they went to Point Anne?" Dr. Embury wanted to know. "They shoved Mr. Sharpe into a mud puddle and then hid behind a stump," he said. Dr. Embury discussed the three elements that enter into a contest, characterizing them as: (1) The candidate; (2) The administrative part of the government, and (3) The policy of the government. "The qualities of the present member were beyond praise," said the speaker, "and we all believe in the administrative ability of the Ferguson Government. Any law on the statute books that any government tries to enforce and cannot, breeds a line of perjurers."

The principal sources were: (1) The bootleggers; (2) Doctor's prescriptions, and (3) Moonshiners. Dr. Embury considered that the making of the medical profession dispensers was a big mistake in the O. T. A. The moonshine business, he said, was the most prolific of any trade in the Province of Ontario.

T. Montgomery.

T. Montgomery, ex-reeve of Rawdon, followed with a few words of appreciation for Mr. Cooke, of whom he had been a life-long friend, and T. B. Airhart, warden of the county, came next, speaking at some length on the part of Mr. Cooke had played in assisting education and of his work in connection with the Hydro-electric. He spoke of his own personal experience in connection with liquor, and of his association with Mr. Cooke for the past ten years, during which time he had never known Mr. Cooke to taste a drop of liquor.

T. Burnside.

Mr. T. Burnside of Madoc gave a brief but humorous speech, ending up by saying that he would defy any one to put a man in the riding who would do more than Robert Cooke.

Rev. Mr. Goodwill.

The last speaker was Rev. Mr. Goodwill from Cobourg. Mr. Goodwill spoke of the efforts Mr. Stewart had made to prevent him from speaking in Belleville. He wanted it understood that he was not representing the Presbyterian Church in Canada, but himself. The ministers had been left free to decide for themselves which side they would represent. Mr. Goodwill said he was a prohibitionist himself. He had fought against the bar and he was out to to fight against the illicit sale of liquor, and he was just as sincere now as he was before. "You say I'm dry. Another says you're wet, because you're on a Conservative platform," said Mr. Goodwill, and went on to speak of the futility of preaching sermons on social evils. He had tried it once on the evils of tobacco, and immediately one of the very men at whom the sermon had been aimed came over and sat on the manse steps and smoked him out. It was like the minister who had said that if he had his way he would gather all the gin, whiskey and rum and dump it in the river, and had then concluded his service by announcing the hymn, 'Shall We Gather at the River?'"

In speaking of the young people, he said he understood that the young man must have something on his hip if he is to be popular, and the young lady must have a mouth with a capacity to swallow the cork, if necessary. "The government is the people. They want the act enforced. Who are going to do it? If you can't trust the Conservative party, are you going to trust members of the Drury party?" He spoke of the disregard in Russia for stricter penalties and drew the conclusion that if ignorant Russian peasants would defy the death law, what could be expected of liberty-loving Canadians? He scored Rev. Murdoch McKinnon in vigorous terms and said that in college days Mr. McKinnon had taken the side of oppression, as he was doing now. Mr. McKinnon thought he could prevent gun-runners from taking their lives in their hands and dodging ice-cakes, by taking his fountain pen.

"As Christian people we need to begin education in the home, the school and the lodge and warn children about the evils of liquor. Mr. Ferguson," he said, "is offering government control. He is going to sacrifice his whole political career and place it on the altar of sacrifice. He has come bravely out with a definite programme, but the other side say he has sold himself to the liquor interests. There is pressure brought to bear on the government by fadists, and by liquor interests. It is wise to strike a middle course. If our friends get in they will have to listen to the fadists." He commended the Whitney clause of the two-fifths majority. He himself would rather look to the sound judgment of the common people of Ontario than follow the fadists.

During the meeting, an interruption occurred when a large piece of plaster suddenly fell from the ceiling, deluging the men near the door and giving John Moore of Queensboro a nasty cut in the head.

the first year, $405,000 was spent last year.

"When some Conservative mothers come to me and say, 'I'm still considering this thing; I have boys to protect,' I reply, 'Don't you think there are many other mothers with boys, and girls too, in Ontario and the Western provinces? That is no reason for voting away from your party; you are certainly not going to keep liquor from your children by voting for the O.T.A., rather than for government control.'"

Mr. Ferguson's denial of any cousinship with Mrs. Murphy (Janey Canuck) was emphasized, and her public statement read, "Government control will not completely wipe out bootlegging and illicit stills, but it will succeed to a greater extent than the O.T.A. Mr. Ferguson has studied the laws in the Western provinces and will have the advantage of this knowledge, and improving on these, when an Ontario law is framed after December 1st."

The speaker insisted that the "change of mind" thrown up so often to Honorable Howard Ferguson, "is an advantage when a better way presents itself," and referred to "a certain church which; when I was a girl was opposed to certain forms of amusement. I live in a college town—we had a Methodist college there, and if we went into a Methodist home we never saw cards or dancing going on. Now there is a change of mind, and I seldom go into a Methodist home but I find in practically all dancing and card-playing are indulged in."

In concluding her address Miss Field referred to the splendid character of the ministers in the Ferguson Cabinet, "men fit to be entrusted with the administration of public affairs," and added, "when I listen to the returns over the radio next Wednesday, I'm sure I will learn that Durham has returned Mr. Chalk." (Applause.)

F. W. Bowen, M.P.

F. W. Bowen, M.P., who was greeted with hearty applause, declared the Ferguson government had been clean, and efficiently administered in all its departments. He felt a change from the O.T.A. was necessary, though it had done good work at the first, but evils had crept in, "and if we have trusted these men with our affairs in other matters and they have managed them so well, surely we can trust them to frame a policy, more stringent than the government control measures in force in the Western provinces, and see that it is enforced?"

Permit holders guilty of opening a parcel of liquor bought at a vendors, before reaching their homes, would be sent to goal; abusing permit privileges would also be a goal offence. "A vendor's store may not be opened in this county; that will be a responsibility resting with your member; but it will be a more respectable way of obtaining liquor going in the front door of the shop, and not to the back door of the bootleggers."

"I would urge you to give Mayor Chalk your hearty support on December 1st." (Applause.)

Ex-Warden J. L. McCamus.

Ex-Warden J. L. McCamus, who was chairman of the meeting, and P. L. Brown, of Port Hope, also spoke briefly the latter devoting considerable time to condemning strongly the holding of meetings in the United Church in his own town, and elsewhere, addressed by political leaders, and W.C.T.U. representatives, insisting, "I predict that the continuance of this thing for three weeks will wreck the ideal for which they have striven for twenty-five years."

"Not 'wet' and 'dry', but 'dry' and 'dryer'," the speaker said was the proper nomenclature, resenting the Conservative party being listed as "Wets."

The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.
